JOHNSON MEN IN NORTH DAKOTA SAY GOVERNOR WILL HAVE DELEGATION

Expect to Control the State Convention at Grand Forks.

Claim They Will Secure an Instructed Delegation to Denver.

Bryan Followers Working Hard to Head Off Johnson Movement.

Grand Forks, March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supporters of Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota for the United States presidency claim great things for him in North Dakota in the way of securing the indorsement of the state convention, which will be held in Grand Forks on March 25. A following of 75 per cent in that convention, it is claimed, will be solid for Johnson, while the other 25 per cent will be for Bryan. The Johnson campaign has been booming lively within the last few days, and the followers of the Minnesota governor claim they have matters well in hand.

Since the proposition of indorsement of candidates for the presidency has developed, a great deal of interest has been taken in the convention. The Bryan followers are at work in an effort to head off the Johnson movement, and whether they will be successful or not is hard as yet to say. Some time since a warning note was sent out by a Fargo follower of the Nebraskan to the effect that Johnson men were at work in an effort to secure control of the state convention, but the Bryan men took little heed until the last few days.

The Johnson men, besides claiming the convention by a 75 per cent following, also claim that they will procure an instructed delegation to the national convention in Denver, and while their first fight was not directed on that particular object, it is understood that they will take up that phase of the question and do everything possible to push it through.

The Johnson men today stated that the Seventh judicial district, comprising the counties of Pembina, Walsh and Chevalier, would be solid for Johnson. In Ramsey, Pierce, Towner and Rolette counties, a split is looked for, with Johnson having slightly the better of it. The county of Ward will be practically solid for Johnson, while Bottineau will send a Bryan delegation. Williams and McKenzie have not been heard from as yet. The central part of the state will find a split, with Johnson in the

CHINAMAN WILL NEVER RETURN

Zeal of Officers at Border Fills Him With Disgust.

San Francisco, March 16.—As a result of friction with the United States officials on crossing the border line between the United States and Mexico, Liang Hsun, the charge d'affairs of the Chinese legation in Mexico City, who is at the Fairmont, said yesterday that he would never return to America. Liang, a graduate of Amherst, well acquainted with American customs and international courtesies, but the zeal of these federal officers of the border line in prying into the character of the minister has filled him with anger and disgust.

Liang Hsun is returning to China to mourn the death of his father. For a number of months he has been unable to perform this ceremony of honor and respect, which is so strictly enforced in the Chinese religious and family customs. Minister Wu, lately arrived in this country, has allowed Liang a leave of absence from his post in Mexico City. He will leave for the Orient in the middle of the week.

PRESIDENT ARRAIGNED

In Caustic Terms by Tillman, in Speech to Senate.

Charges Many of Present Evils to Executive and Advisers.

Washington, March 16.—Citing what he claimed to be "cold-blooded facts," to show executive responsibility for many of the exils which exist, Senator Tillman, in a speech made in the senate today, said:

"In the same category of 'keeping the work of commerce to the ear and breaking them to the hope,' if the newspapers are to be believed, he is even now planning a truce with these same rich malefactors and is ready to grant amnesty to all past trust offenders. In the most pronounced language he has denounced the combination between labor organizations and the boycott, but on the eve of an election panders to the same vote by demanding changes in the law as interpreted by the supreme court. Organized labor is to be relieved from the prohibition of the supreme court's decisions, but along with it must go the relief of capital. Once relieved 'the malefactors of great wealth' will smile in triumph over their victory while labor will find itself no freer than before."

Charges Evils to President.

Mr. Tillman charged many of the evils in connection with the recent financial

THE FREEDOM OF LONDON

Bestowed Upon Florence Nightingale, the Veteran Nurse.

London, March 16.—The freedom of the city of London was today bestowed upon Florence Nightingale, the organizer of the nursing in the Crimean war. The ceremony took place in the Guild Hall in the presence of a large gathering, which included many doctors and nurses. The aged nurse—Miss Nightingale is in her 88th year—was too infirm to attend and was represented by her nephew. The usual costly gold casket was omitted from the ceremony in accordance with Miss Nightingale's wishes and one of oak and bronze substituted, and by her request the $500 usually expended for the golden casket will be given to charity.

The lord mayor of London officiated at the ceremony, and among those present were the directors of the general army and navy hospitals, representatives of the Red Cross society, and deputations from several girl's schools.

Sir Joseph Dimsdale, the city chamberlain, in making the presentation, explained that the city regretted that, by the unexplained omission of a former generation, Miss Nightingale had not been honored in this way half a century ago.

Pekin, March 16.—The full terms under which the case of the Tatsu Maru, the Japanese steamer that was seized by China in February on the allegation that she was conveying arms and ammunition to the Chinese revolutionists, has been settled, are as follows:

First—China agrees to punish the officers who lowered the Japanese flag on the Tatsu Maru and to send a warship to the place where the vessel was seized to fire a salute as the Japanese flag is re-hoisted.

Second—The Tatsu Maru is to be released at once.

Third—China will purchase the arms and ammunition seized.

Fourth—She will punish the officers who committed this breach against international usage.

Fifth—The viceroy of Canton will settle the amount of demurrage for the retention of the steamer after consultation with the Japanese consul, and, finally, Japan agrees to exercise extra vigilance against her subjects in the matter of smuggling arms into China.

ATTEMPT OF INCENDIARY

To Burn Building Endangers Lives of Sixty People.

Seven Separate Fires Are Found in N. Y. Basement.

New York, March 16.—The lives of sixty persons in a tenement house at 1629 Madison avenue were endangered early today by what is believed to have been an attempt of an incendiary to burn the building. Fortunately the flames were discovered and extinguished before they had spread from the basement, and all the occupants of the house were able to make their escape in safety. When the firemen went into the basement, they found seven separate fires in progress and the whole house filled with smoke and naphtha fumes. Joseph Laschinsky, who was seen to leave the building a few moments before the fires were found, was arrested.

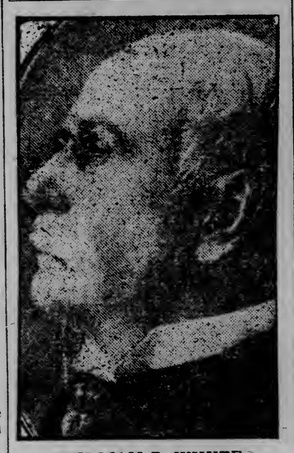
TO FIGHT TAFT IN IOWA CONVENTION

Hughes Men Will Try to Prevent Instructions for Secretary.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 16.—A letter from the Hughes campaign league of New York city, was received by the Savoy hotel management yesterday and a telegram is expected today making a definite reservation of apartments during the state convention this week, and which will be utilized by representatives of Governor Hughes in an effort to prevent instructions for Secretary Taft.

Friends of Secretary Taft are confident that the convention will adopt strong instructions for their candidate, believing that without regard to factional lines, a proposition to instruct would have a large majority.

GIRL ADMITS CHARGES THAT SHE MADE AGAINST HITCHCOCK ARE UNTRUE



WILLIAM P. WHYTE,
United States Senator From Maryland, Who Is Critically Ill—He Is 82 Years of Age.

Justice Blanchard Immediately Orders Acquittal of Comedian.

Girl Says Gerry Society Forced Her to Make Charges.

Judge Suggests That District Attorney Investigate Matter.

New York, March 16.—A sensational development occurred today in the trial of Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, when Justice Blanchard ordered the acquittal of the defendant on the indictment against him growing out of the charges of Ellen Von Hagen, a young girl. The action of the justice was taken upon motion of Assistant District Attorney Garvan after Flora Whiston, the prosecution's chief corroborating witness, had testified that the story she told before the grand jury was false. Several other indictments on similar charges are still pending against Hitchcock.

Flora Whiston swore on the witness stand that an agent of the Gerry society had frightened her into making the charges against Hitchcock. He threatened to take me away from my home—to separate me from my mother if I did not tell that story," said the girl in a sobbing voice when asked why she had made the charge against Hitchcock before the grand jury.

The girl said the only person to whom she had told the truth concerning her relations with Hitchcock was her step-father. It was after the step-father had been called to the witness stand and testified that the girl had assured him that Hitchcock had never ill-treated her that Mr. Garvan moved for the dismissal of the case.

In directing the jury to return a verdict acquitting Hitchcock on the Von Hagen indictment, Justice Blanchard said he regarded the testimony of the Whiston girl as of the most startling nature. He suggested that it be made the subject of thorough investigation by the district attorney's office.

Flora Whiston was arrested on a charge of perjury as she was leaving the courtroom.

It has not yet been determined what action will be taken on the remaining indictments against Hitchcock.

Washington, March 16.—By the vote of 3 to 2 the sub-committee of the senate committee on the judiciary today declared unconstitutional all of the bills intended to remove federal barriers against states exercising control of their police powers for the regulation of the liquor traffic. Hearings on these measures have been held covering almost the entire present session, and the bills were advocated by representatives of practically all of the states where there is a strong prohibition sentiment. The members of the sub-committee are Senators Knox, Nelson, Fulton, Bacon and Rayner.

San Francisco, March 16.—A so-called Coxey's army of California will start from Oakland and San Francisco today for Sacramento, and will be joined en route by unemployed men in such numbers that it is announced that fully 1,000 will be in line by the time they reach the state capital, according to the statement made last night at Oakland by members of the colony. Arriving at Sacramento, they intend, it is said, to demand of the state authorities certain measures which they believe of benefit to them.

$1.00 FOR CHARITY GETS MAN A HOUSE

New York, March 16.—Bernard Satsky, an expressman of Newark, took one dollar to the Congregation Anse Russian temple to give to the rabbi for charity.

"You might as well enjoy your charity," he was told. "Use the dollar to go to the charity ball of the congregation tonight. It will be just the same."

Satsky went to the ball, and before he started for his stable afterward, he heard that the coupon on his ticket for the ball was the one that had drawn in a raffle, a three-story dwelling house in Prince street, unencumbered by mortgage.

SHOOTS HERSELF; RESULT OF GRIEF

Trenton, N. J., March 16.—Margaretta Borden, 15 years old, daughter of Harry L. Borden, shot herself in the heart last night, as the result of grief. Three causes are assigned for her act: the objection of her father to a young man who had been calling upon her; worry because her mother was dying of consumption, and disappointment over the placing of her sisters in charge of her uncle in Atlantic City, forcing her to attend to the household duties.

"I am tired of it all," she said, just before entering her room and firing the shot.

Democracy: "That's the Only Star That Will Guide Me Out of This Desert of Chaotic Political Entanglement."

TOWN TREASURER SAID TO HAVE MISUSED FUNDS

Hippoliet Buyck Claimed to be Central Figure in Conspiracy.

Hippollet Buyck, alias Charles Buyck, the treasurer, and W. A. Jones, the clerk of the town of Buyck, about thirty miles north of Vermilion dam, St. Louis county, have been sued by the town authorities for $33,600 and $4,500 respectively for the alleged misappropriation of the township funds.

The charges against the town officials are quite sensational in character and are presumed to grow out of the recent investigation of the town affairs made by the state public examiner at the instance of the county board.

In the main the complaint against Buyck charges him with being the leading figure in a gigantic conspiracy to defraud the town, while James is claimed to be a willing tool of Buyck.

It is alleged that Buyck conceived the idea of organizing the several unorganized townships in the vicinity of his residence in section 9-65-17 into an organized town and then bonding the town and by taxation and other methods raising large sums of money which by proper manipulation he could turn into his own pocket.

The complaint alleged that Buyck in furthering his plan, got up the petition for the town, the county board organized it, attaching his name to the town, and the voters took steps to bond the town for $2,000 to raise money to build a road from Vermilion bridge to Pelican station.

It is claimed that Buyck held the Commercial Investment company up for a $2,000 bonus when that company took the bonds and that the concern paid him $413 extra for some unlawful purpose.

The town authorities claim Buyck gathered about him a gang of indolent hangers on whom he could work according to his will, that he charged exhorbitant prices for boarding the men, ordered work done on the road out of season in order that the men could get money to spend over his bar, and that he bled the town treasury generally.

Charges are made that Buyck had himself appointed purchasing agent

JURY ACQUITS SELMA MATTSON OF MURDER

A verdict of not guilty was returned in the Mattson murder trial shortly before noon today.

Mrs. Selma Mattson, charged with killing her husband, Nikoli Mattson, at Chisholm, Jan. 14 last, by sinking a double-bitted ax into his skull, was acquitted by the jury after deliberations lasting but fifteen minutes.

The case has been on trial for three days and a half. Mrs. Mattson was indicted for murder in the second degree. The evidence against her was purely circumstantial and not of a conclusive nature. She had made a statement to the chief of police of Chisholm, in which she is alleged to have confessed that she killed her husband, but this was ruled out of the evidence, through the efforts of O. J. Larson, attorney for the defense, on the ground that the statement was made under implied promises of immunity, or that she might be lightly dealt with if she admitted the crime.

With the alleged confession excluded, practically the only evidence against Mrs. Mattson was the testimony of the Tepson woman, that she heard the defendant tell Mattson, "You devil, you, if you don't shut up I will kill you." The witness claimed this statement was made the night of the murder, when Mr. and Mrs. Mattson came home drunk from one of the Chisholm saloons.

Arguments to Jury.

The arguments to the jury were made this morning, County Attorney Norton taking only twenty minutes to sum up the evidence for the state, while Mr. Larson, for the defense, talked an hour and a half.

With the slight amount of evidence that he had on hand Mr. Norton made an able plea for a conviction, but the

Will Consider Paving Question.

The council street committee will hold a conference with the property owners along Grand avenue, this evening, to come to some understanding as to the recommendations to be made to the council relative to the paving of the avenue between Belknap and Eighteenth streets. Superior Has Woman Orator.

Miss Jennie Hogan of the Superior normal school is the only young woman contestant in the Inter-normal Oratorical league's annual event, which will be held in Superior, March 20. The Whitewater normal will send a basketball team to compete with the Superior normal team. A musical program is being arranged, under the direction of Mrs. Cora A. Merry, and it is probable that the visiting delegations will be asked to participate, if they bring any musical talent. A number of social affairs will be arranged during the time the visitors are in the city. Miss Hogan's topic is, "A Type of Womanly Greatness."

FRIENDS TO AID CORICA

Strong Case Against Duluth Boy Held for Murder in West.

Shot His Employer After Quarrel Over a Dinner.

Friends of Domenico Corica, the former Duluth boy, who is held at Yreka, Cal., on a charge of murder, have interested themselves in his case and are raising money to assist in retaining counsel for his defense. Friends of the young man in California have already engaged B. K. Collier, a prominent Yreka attorney, to conduct the defense and he is working on the case. The California laws allow the defense to secure evidence by deposition and several Duluth people, who knew the young man here, will send sworn statements attesting to the good reputation of the defendant while he made his home in Duluth.

Details of the crime, with which Corcia is charged, have been received in letters from his attorney and the sheriff of the county, in which the crime was committed. Corica, it seems, was working around an establishment, consisting of a saloon, dance hall and restaurant, conducted by William Amos, the man who was killed at Mt. Cloud, about ninety-five miles from Yreka, which is the county seat.

Dec. 15 last, Corcia went into Amos' restaurant and ordered the Chinese cook to kill a chicken for his dinner. The cook refused and Amos backed up the cook. After some words, Amos and Corica left the restaurant together and renewed their quarrel in a narrow passageway. Three shots were fired, one taking effect near Amos' hip, near the back, and the other two going wild. Amos lived until the next day and Corica got away. He was followed to San Francisco and then to Los Angeles, where he was captured, being returned to the scene of the crime, Feb. 23.

On account of the wound being near the dead man's back, the state's case is strengthened and cold-blooded murder is alleged. The defendant claims self defense and the case will be fought on that basis. Amos refused to make any statement as to who shot him, beyond inference to Corcia indirectly. It is said that before he died, he said: "The boy wasn't so much to blame after all," and the defense will make much of that.

Corica is well known here and his friends are anxiously awaiting the trial, the date for which has not yet been set. A brother-in-law of the accused man will make a trip to California to attend the trial and give such aid as he can to the boy, who is but 22 years of ago.

Heart failure was pronounced the cause of death and a post-mortem examination will be held this evening. Thorsen had been ill for several days last week, but his condition was not serious. He felt better this morning and was returning to work when the sudden summons came. He is survived by a wife.

KANE CASE IS CALLED

Marine Corps Recruit Being Tried for Illegal Voting.

Little Difficulty is Experienced in Selecting the Jurors.

Michael P. Kane, a member of the United States marine corps, who was enlisted in Duluth last fall, is on trial in the district court on the charge of illegal voting in the First precinct of the Seventh ward, at the primary elections last December.

The case was called for trial by County Attorney Norton, immediately following the close of the Mattson murder trial in Judge Dibell's room.

Four jurors were accepted up to the noon recess of the court. These were John C. McCoy, a marine engineer residing at 1031 West Second street; Edwin J. Wenzel, employed in the Board of Trade building and residing at 414 Fourth avenue east; George W. Logan, employe of Marshall-Wells Hardware company, and C. E. Johnson, shipping clerk for the same firm.

Kane still wears the marine corps uniform that he had on when brought back from the Mare Island station, at San Francisco, by Sheriff Bates. He appears to be rather nervous in his actions, and the change from a jail cell to a court room filled with spectators seems to have its effect on the young man.

Only two of the six men examined for jurors were excused this morning. At that rate the jury should be completed by 3 o'clock this afternoon and the introduction of evidence begun.

HAITIANS EXECUTED

Dozen or More Revolutionists Shot at Port au Prince.

Great Excitement Prevails and People Are Terror Stricken.

Washington, March 16.—Between ten and fifteen Haitians, alleged to be revolutionists, were shot in Port Au Prince, Haiti, yesterday morning, according to information which reached the state department today.

Great excitement prevails in that city and a reign of terror has struck the people. The executions took place before daybreak, and it is understood were the acts of the island government, Hayti. It is said, contemplates getting rid of all of the refugees in all of the consulates in the island and an order is expected to be issued today for their embarkation.

Information has reached diplomatic channels in Washington that Mr. Borno, Haitien minister at Santo Domingo, has accepted the position of minister of foreign affairs for Haiti, and that Gen. Leconte, the newly-appointed minister of the interior, has accepted that portfolio.

War Vessels Handy.

It the event it is found desirable to dispatch a war vessel to Port Au Prince to look after the protection of American interests during the excitement, the navy has almost half a dozen ships that could be sent there without delay. These include the cruisers Tacoma and Des Moines, the former now cruising in the Windward islands, and the latter at Guantanamo, and the gunboats Dubuque, Marietta and Paducah, all at Guantanamo engaged in target practice. If conditions at Port Au Prince get worse, a naval vessel will be sent there, but up to this time no orders to that effect thave been issued.

Situation Complicated.

The situation in the Haitien republic which for several weeks past has been the scene of revolutionary activities against the administration of Gen. Nord Alexis, and which resulted in the execution of a number of politicians for alleged conspiracy against the government is further complicated by the fact that a number of revolutionists took refuge, when the movement failed, in the foreign consulates, especially the French, at Gonaives and St. Marc. The Haitien government demanded that the men be handed over to it, but France refused on the ground that it was not satisfied that they would be given humane and lawful treatment when they left the protection of the French flag.

The situation is complicated further by the allegation that the revolutionary movement was fostered in some of the foreign consulates in Haiti. This has given the government opportunity to make charges of foreign support. Charles Miot, a Haitian, who was American consular agent, at St. Marie was removed from an office in January by the American legation on the ground of complicity with the rebels.

RECLUSE IS VICTIM

Of Robbers Who Dug Fortune From Beneath Her Porch.

Marshall, Ark., March 16.—A message received here stated that Miss Amanda Brixey, a recluse living near Snowball, Searcy county, had been robbed of $12,000. Robbers dug the money from under her front porch. She lives alone, but was ill and had been taken away from her home for treatment. It was generally believed she had considerable money concealed, and when she left the house the robbers investigated. When informed she had been robbed she arose from her sick bed and hurried home. From among rubbish in the smokehouse she removed an old kettle containing much gold and took other money concealed elsewhere. She has considerable money deposited in banks here.

A Pre-Easter Display and Sale of Spring Wear!

We have planned these earlier displays with a view to giving the women of Duluth and its vicinity an opportunity to "know the fashions" as early as their Eastern cousins. Then, too, Easter this year comes at so late a date as to promise a very heavy pre-Easter rush; therefore the more shrewd woman will buy early in order to obtain primary choice, leisure in shopping, better attention and more prompt and careful alteration (if any be necessary) than she will be able to obtain at any store during the high tide of the season's rush.

Garments of Style and Quality are a Blessing of Twentieth Century Civilization.

Women of the twentieth century buy their garments ready to wear; women of the nineteenth century bought cloth and made them, and women of the eighteeth century spun the cloth, then made them, but we are not yet at the top of the ladder for women are becoming more and more critical as to the fit and workmanship. We pride ourselves on being abreast of the times and fairly in advance of the ordinary stores. The collection of spring garments gathered here are highly expressive of the striking difference between the stereotyped "ready-made" of a few years ago, and the clever conceptions which the name now implies. Good taste, good style, distinguished designing and fine fabrics are their features of superiority. Tailored Suits at from $21.50 to $100.

Have You Been Wondering Whether or Not You Should Buy a Silk or Lingerie Dress.

Well, if you care to follow fashion, it's quite the thing you'll want. There are the handsome "Merry Widow" frocks in the "spot" foulards with guimp effect of embroidered net. Then there are the semi-princesses in Tussah, Pongee, Foulard and Taffeta. Or of the sheer lingerie materials so much trimmed as to make one wonder whether the dress was intended to be of trimming or of the scraps of material which peep out here and there.

Some are in the dainty evening tints such as lavender, corn, pink and blue.

They're very appropriate for afternoon, evening or street wear—and, oh so handy!—for they are all in one piece, with belt and collar attached; enabling milady to "slip into" it in a jiffy and yet be most fashionably attired. The prices range from $21.50 to $135.00.

Our Very "Chic" Waists.

"Strictly Tailored" is applied to most of the smart linens and many of the more sheer stuffs. The styles include the plain Riding or Golf Waist, the tucked and plaited styles and even some with light touches of embroidery, plainly applied. Prices $3.50 to $7.50.

Dainty Nets are receiving even more widespread attention than ever before, and are handy and pretty for semi-dressy wear, for they are appropriate for a multitude of diverse uses. Prices $5.75 to $10.

The Pretty Lingerie Waists cover a wide field and are so daintily pretty, yet of so many different types as to demand a personal visit. Prices $1.50 to $32.50.

SPRING JACKETS---Covert and Broadcloth

These garments show their "snap" mostly in the "cut," for they are quite plain—an odd pocket, chance strap or novel seam finishing being the only deviation from the "plain"—$10.00 to $29.50.

DRESS SKIRTS: Many fashions in accepted materials. The skirts as we have said before, allow free choice among three distinct types—viz: plaited, circular-gore and multi-gore. The trim on many simulates the "tunic" idea now so much in vogue, while other show a wide fold, tucks or strappings—Prices $7.50 to $35.00.

The showing of Silk Petticoats is at its best. The styles are well conceived, well executed and of fine materials—$5.00 to $25.00.

Spring Says: "New Gloves"

and as usual we are ready to cater to the demands of the season, and the whims of fashion. Everything from white and the most delicate of tints to jet black awaits your asking; and as to length there is everything from one to 16-button length. Prices $1.25 to $4.25.

"Very Trig" Neckwear—the things are "just as cute as they can be"—there are the new leather bows, French jabots, hand-embroidered ties and collars and other cute conceits. Prices 25c to $3.50.

WHAT WE OFFER DULUTH'S JUNIOR MISSES

Winsome girlish suits in handsome summer suitings, serges and worsteds. Designed especially for growing misses who stand on the boundary between girldom and womanhood. The styles are nobby, well tailored and the jackets silk lined. Prices range from $15.00 to $29.50.

Clever Styles in Children's, Girls' and Misses' Jackets

Neatly tailored box, and semi-fitting models, in plain colors, checks and stripes. Lined or unlined—sizes 2 to 16. Prices $3.50 to $16.50.

Pretty Wash Dresses of Linen, Chambray, Gingham, Pique and sheer white stuffs—sizes 2 to 18. Prices $1.50 to $16.50.

Dainty Guimps. American-made or French hand-embroidered patterns. Prices $1.25 to $5.00.

Sweaters—(Children's and Women's sizes)—Headwear (in all styles.)

CORSETS

Fashion abhors poor ones. The Corset is the foundation of the appearance, for it moulds the contour, and contour is what makes or mars milady's appearance. After careful investigation of the subject, we have chosen the Madame Irene Back-Laced and Gossard Front-Laced Corsets as our favorite foundation for a perfect appearance. Price, $5.00 and upwards.

PHYSICIAN WINS RACE WITH DEATH

Runs Team Six Miles to Save Life of an Inventor.

Crookston, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lionel Snelling, one of the well-known farmers of Angus, twenty miles north of here, who is also of an inventive turn of mind, was terribly burned about the face, eyes and hands yesterday by the explosion of molten brass as he was pouring it from the ladel in which he had melted it, into a small cup. Without doubt his life was saved by the break-neck race to his home of Dr. F. C. Mitchell of Euclid, who was telephoned, and having his team hitched up preparatory to making another call, had his driver run the horses the entire six miles, and thirty minutes from the time he was summoned he was at the Snelling residence and applied relief measures.

Mr. Snelling, with J. F. Montgomery, the Angus merchant, have been experimenting all winter with a wireless telegraph outfit, which it was proposed to operate between the store at Angus and the Snelling farm, a distance of about three miles. They had the apparatus so it would work short distances, and were attempting to improve it at the time of the accident.

It is supposed there was a little water in the bottom of the cup when the molten brass was turned into it, and that this caused the explosion, but the cause will never be definitely known.

TRAIN CUTS HIM IN TWO.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 16.—Early Saturday Frank Brown was run over and killed by Northern Pacific Train No. 8, bound for St. Paul. Brown had evidently been walking on the track, but the engineer says he did not see him. His body was cut in two near Clear Lake, one-half of the remains being found a mile from the other half. Brown's home was at Fairfield, Minn.

TRAINING OF CHILDREN

Is the Topic of Nearly Every Minister in Duluth.

Thousands of Parents Impressed With Need of Detention Home.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart therefrom," was the theme of nearly every minister in Duluth yesterday, and from scores of pulpits in the city sermons were preached urging upon parents the necessity of better home training for children, and the need of a detention home in Duluth.

Yesterday was the day set aside by the Duluth Ministerial association as the day on which a special effort would be made to arouse the parents to the growth and spread of juvenile crime in Duluth, and impress upon them the necessity for strict and careful home training for their children.

Nearly every minister in the city complied with the request, and from 10,000 to 15,000 parents yesterday were impressed with the need of greater care and watchfulness.

"THE PARENTS' DEBT."

Rev. M. S. Rice Says Parents Should be Held Responsible for Children.

Rev. M. S. Rice, at the First M. E. church, in speaking on "The Parents' Debt," said the laws should be such that the state could hold mothers and fathers responsible for the proper home training of their children, and provide punishment for them when such training was not provided. Parental neglect was given as the cause of practically all crime among the boys and girls. The fact that many children are allowed by over-indulgent parents to have all the money they desire to spend, he said, is responsible for much of the crime among the young.

While this practice of allowing almost unlimited spending money does not always directly injure the child thus supplied, the poor child who associates with the one more liberally provided, contended Rev. Rice, stirred by envy, or embarrassment, at being unable to return favors extended by his more wealthy friends, is often led to evil subterfuges to obtain money. Records of the local juvenile court show that in many instances girls and boys have stolen so they might have some article of dress similar to that worn by the children of well-to-do parents.

The speaker had no set rules to lay down for the bringing up and government of children. He explained that before marriage he had a very handsome set of rules, but as the years rolled by he found that they did not apply at all, and had to be broken. Most of the books on child government, he asserted, were written by women who never had been married, and the rules they offered parents were much like those early ones of his, very pretty to look at, but of no practical value.

"This problem of the child is one of the most vital subjects before the world today," said Dr. Rice. "I want you to understand that I am not preaching at you, but am talking with you."

The tendency of the times, he maintained, was to turn parental obligation entirely over to the public school system. He had a good word for the school system, but said it never had and never would take the place of parental influence in character building. Fathers and mothers, but more particularly the former, came in for a roast for devoting all their time to business and society, and leaving the training of their children to others. The complex life of today has pushed the child into a realm of its own, where conditions are artificial, declared the minister.

The father, he said, must give himself up to his boy. Certain training cannot be left to anyone else. The father does not do his duty by merely providing liberally for the family. Money is not everything necessary in the bringing up of the child. Great numbers of boys he asserted, have been robbed of their fathers at a critical period of their lives. They need the care, attention and friendly advice of a father much more than they need the money he is struggling to provide them with. Money should be a minor consideration. He thought the curfew law a good one, and suggested that it be revived and enforced.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN

Is the Topic of Sermon by Rev. A. W. Ryan.

Rev. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, preached a sermon on "Parents and Children" in that house of worship yesterday morning.

Dr. Ryan said that the latter day tendency is for children and parents to drift apart, in a way, and he deplored it. He said that parents do not maintain as close a relationship with their children as they should, and, in consequence, the youngsters do not look as they should to their fathers and mothers for guidance or example.

He urged parents never to forget their duty to their children. He told them not to allow too many of the world's pastimes, too much of its business, or other things make them forget the children. They owe more of a debt to their country and the church he said, than to think they have fulfilled their duties with the mere clothing of them and sending them off to school.

He said the practice of allowing the child's dictum to prevail in the household was a mistake which was being made too often by fond and sometimes indifferent parents.

"While the Evil Days Come Not."

"While the Evil Days Come Not," was the topic of the sermon by Rev. John W. Powell at the Endion church.

He pointed out the many temptations which beset children in a city, such as gambling, cheap theaters, suggestive signboards, saloons and a score of other things. He claimed that both society and the home are responsible for the proper training of the children of the community.

Watch Friendships.

At the Second Presbyterian church, Rev. J. L. McBride compared the boy to the photographic plate, and said that if he were to develop properly, he must have the proper kind of scenery about him. His life, he said, would reflect his home training and his friendships. He urged upon parents the necessity of watching closely the friendships which boys and girls formed.

"Children are not reformers," he said. "They are more likely to be deformed by evil companionships than to reform their companions."

Other Sermons.

Among the other ministers who delivered sermons along the same lines, were Rev. Campbell Coyle at the First Presbyterian church; Rev. J. R. Davies at Grace M. E. church; Rev. Baxter Waters at the First Christian church; Rev. S. B. Goetz at the Hope church of the Evangelical association; Rev. Alexander Milne at the Pilgrim Congregational church; Rev. J. W. Loughridge at the Central Baptist church.

MEETING TO BE IMPORTANT ONE

Public Affairs Committee Will Consider Several Questions.

A large attendance is expected at the meeting of the public affairs committee, to be held this evening at the Commercial club. S. A. Thompson, field secretary of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, will deliver an address, and Capt. Alexander McDougall will read a report on the last meeting of the congress, which he attended as a delegate.

An important question to come up will be that of enlarging the harbor basin, and adopting resolutions recommending that money already appropriated be devoted to this purpose as soon as the weather conditions will permit in the spring.

The business of the meeting will include the preparation of resolutions for final action of the government in securing land for the federal building in the group which is proposed for the corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street.

GRANDMAISON OUT OF HIS MIND

Critically Ill With Pneumonia, Patrolman Reports for Duty.

Patrolman Fred Grandmaison, critically ill with pneumonia at his home on Park Point, while out of his mind yesterday morning, insisted in getting out of bed, dressing himself and starting for the police station to report for duty. The efforts of his family were not sufficient to keep him in the house, and, clothed in his uniform, he started for the city.

Chief Troyer was notified, and Detective Irvine met him at the canal bridge, but was unable to get him back home. Grandmaison insisted on proceeding to the police station, and after arriving there wanted to be assigned a beat, although scarcely able to stand. Under the ruse that he was being sent on a case, the patrolman was taken to St. Mary's hospital in a cab. He was mentally deranged throughout the night.

LONDEN HAD STAGE-FRIGHT

Applicant Rejected for Citizenship Has Filed Second Application.

Frank Londen, one of the two Russian Jews whose application for citizenship papers was refused at the last session of the district court held for the purpose of making new citizens, has field a new application. Londen, it was claimed, was unable at the examination before the court and Assistant United States Attorney Sweet to tell who was president of the United States or governor of Minnesota. It is said that he did not know anything about the Constitution of the United States and did not realize the importance of an oath of allegiance. Londen claims that he could have answered the questions correctly, but he was too much frightened. He believes his attack of stage fright has worn off and that he will be able to pass the next examination.

POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

SKILLFUL ROBBERY

Of Mail Car Perpetrated by Man in Guise of Inspector.

Clerks on Oriental Limited Bound and Bandit Secures Booty.

Spokane, Wash., March 16.—A lone bandit boarded the mail car of the Oriental Limited, the fast trans-continental train of the Great Northern railway at Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, before daylight yesterday morning, robbed the mail and escaped. He secured admittance under the guise of postoffice inspector, giving the name of C. W. Bennet. John Nystruen, one of the postal clerks, was on duty at that hour, while the other clerk, Benjamin Stumpf, was asleep under a table.

"Is there any mail for me?" the bandit inquired. "There ought to be; please look."

Looked Into Muzzle of Revolver.

Nystruen complied with the request and when he turned to inform the pretended inspector that there was none, he looked into the muzzle of a revolver. After warning Nystruen to make no outcry, the bandit directed him to get into the closet, and proceeded to rifle the mails. In about four hours, Stumpf, who had awakened when the bandit first entered the car and had gone to sleep again when Nystruen informed him that an inspector was aboard, had again awakened. Thinking it strange that he had not been called, Stumpf looked towards the mail table and saw the stranger sorting letters. As the clerk was crawling from beneath the table under which he had slept, the bandit drew a revolver and ordered him to be silent. He then threw a jumper over the clerk's head, bound his hands behind him, and seated him in the far end of the car.

Gave Clerk Air.

Three times during the run to Spokane the bandit asked the clerk who was locked in the small closet if he were suffocating, and being answered in the affirmative, he thrice opened the door and let the imprisoned man get some fresh air.

When the train arrived at Spokane, it was discovered that six sacks of registered mail bound for coast points had been cut open and their contents rifled. The sacks for Spokane were not disturbed.

In cutting open the mail sacks, the bandit slashed his hand and much of the mail in the car was covered with blood.

It was from this bloodstained mail that a scent was obtained which bloodhounds followed as soon as the robbery was discovered. The scent, after being followed through several Spokane blocks was lost.

VACANT LOT GARDENING

Which Proved Successful Last Year Will Soon be Resumed.

New York, March 16.—Announcing a resumption of the work of the Vacant Lot Gardening association, of which Howard Payson Wilds is president, William Ryan, superintendent, yesterday issued a pamphlet in which details are given concerning the work of the organization.

Among the men helped last year was one whose stay in a tent on a garden patch he worked helped to cure him of tuberculosis.

One man who worked in a garden last year under the direction of the association sold for $138.80 vegetables representing an original investment of $14.20.

This year the association hopes to interest more poor persons in the work than shared in it last year. The only item of expense attaching to the use and benefit of one of the gardens is the tent in which the gardeners and the members of his family live. These tents cost $20 each.

Men Trying to Capture Robbers, Are Taken Themselves.

Coffeyville, Kas., March 16.—At 11 o'clock yesterday morning three members of the Ochelata posse came upon the Tyro bank robbers on the bank of Candy creek, eight miles southwest of Ochelata, where they were waiting for an oil lease cook to get dinner for them.

The posse men were ordered to halt and throw up their hands. They complied at once. The robbers broke up the possemen's rifles, took away their pistols and also one of their horses and then permitted them to depart unarmed. After dinner the bandits fled further into the Osage hills. They were believed to be a short distance east of Big Heart, Oklahoma. A posse of about one hundred men is about to leave Big Heart, hoping to surround the out-laws.

BOY SPILLED DIAMONDS

Over Floor and Ragman May Have Got Valuable Ring.

St. Louis, Mo., March 16.—Mrs. Jordan W. Lambert, wife of the millionaire chemical manufacturer, believes her missing diamond and emerald ring, valued at $3,500, was taken by her 30-months-old son, Jordan W., Jr., from her jewel box and thrown into a waste basket.

Ragmen and junk dealers have been notified that a large reward will be paid for the recovery of the ring, which is believed to have been carried away in a pile of trash from the Westminster apartments, where the Lamberts reside.

Several days ago Jordan, Jr., scattered a number of gold collar buttons, diamond rings and jewels about the floor of his mother's room. When she looked for her most valuable ring Thursday it was not to be found.

She called upon police headquarters and reported that she had been robbed.

The child led her to the waste basket and pointed to the littered papers inside. The basket was emptied, but the ring did not appear.

THEY MUST BE CITIZENS

Captains of Steamboats Must Show Their Naturalization Papers.

Overcrowding of Gasoline Launches Will be Guarded Against.

Local government inspectors of steamboats have received instructions from Washington directing them to insist upon applicants for license, who are of foreign birth, furnishing their naturalization papers with applications, in order that such papers may be examined by the division of naturalization, bureau of immigration and naturalization, to determine positively whether or not such naturalizations have been properly granted.

If it is learned that they have not been properly granted, the desired license will be withheld until the requirements of the law in this respect have been complied with. Heretofore first papers were all that were asked, and no special investigation was made to see whether or not they were properly made out and granted. Now full citizenship papers will be required.

The department is becoming more strict every year in issuing licenses for the operation of boats, whether they be steam, gasoline or otherwise operated. Especial vigilance has been exercised since the Slocum disaster, several years ago.

Local inspectors also have supervision over gasoline launches, and certain new rules governing their operation will be in effect this year. Heretofore, no limit was placed on the number of passengers they might carry, but this season conditions will be different, and only a specified number of passengers will be allowed.

This will more particularly affect the gasoline launches operating between Superior and Park Point, which have been dangerously overloaded in the past on special occasions. The law will also hit smaller launches that may be hired by the hour or day, and their carrying capacity will be limited.

Local government authorities intend to see that the laws in regard to signaling, and the equipment of boats with necessary bells, lights and whistles, are strictly observed with the smaller as well as the larger craft, and private launch owners who do not observe the law in this respect will be liable to a heavy fine.

TO POSTPONE CONFIRMATION

Council Will Probably Take No Action on Appointments.

Mayor Haven's appointments will come up before the city council for confirmation tonight and they will probably receive a setback. It is said the Democratic aldermen are not inclined to confirm the appointments until the Bloedel-Cromwell controversy over the Second ward election is settled. It is expected the committee on officers and elections will tonight report a resolution confirming the appointments and it will be laid over for a week. There are any number of rumors over the turning down of one or more appointments, but nobody seems to have any reliable information on the subject.

In the ordinary course of events, President Getchell would appoint his committees tonight, but with the seat of Alderman Cromwell insecure, it is believed the appointments will be put off for a week. After the decision of the court in the appeal is handed down, the personnel of the council will be settled and until that time, the present committees will probably serve.

It is said that some of the breweries are taking no part in the fight on Alderman Foubister's resolution establishing a policy of issuing saloon licenses only to those to be in actual charge. Some of the larger breweries are said to be content with such a policy and it is believed the resolution will go through tonight.

HALF WAY MARK ALMOST REACHED

Y. M. C. A. Committees Have 463 New Members to Their Credit.

Kilchil	80
Taylor	46
Dunlap	42
Fenton	62
Thompson	45
MacGregor	72
Ross	29
Miser	29
Wheeler	27
Total	463

Above is the standing of the membership committees in the campaign for new members for the Y. M. C. A. Kilchil is in the lead with eighty new members to the credit of himself and followers, and MacGregor comes second with seventy-two. The total of 463 is almost one-half of the 1,000 which the association started out to get before March 20. It is expected the 500 mark will be reached before this evening. There are still four days left, including the 20th, and the committees will work with redoubled energy until the time limit is up. It is believed they will be successful in getting the full 1,000. Keen but friendly rivalry is manifested among the workers, and each is trying to outdo the others. A number of young men who would like to become members have not yet put in their application, but are considering the matter, and have practically promised to enter their applications before the time limit is up, thus taking advantage of the special offer, and getting in for $5 a year. After the 20th the membership fee will be $12 a year.

CHILDREN ENLISTED

In the Movement for Suppression of Juvenile Crime.

Meetings Held for Children of Lakeside and Lester Park.

The children themselves will be enlisted in the movement for the suppression of juvenile crime, which has been taken up by their parents and by the ministers of the city.

Rev. Albert R. Parker of Lakeside is planning a series of meetings for the children of Lakeside and Lester Park, which will be addressed by the ministers of the city and by the principals of the different public schools. It is planned to interest the children in the elevation of their own standard of morals.

Four meetings will be held in all, on successive Friday afternoons. The first one will be held next Friday at 4 o'clock, in St. John's Episcopal church, Lakeside. Rev. H. B. Sutherland will speak, and all of the children living in Lakeside and Lester Park will be invited to attend.

The purpose of the movement for a better citizenship will be explained to the young people, and their co-operation will be asked.

The plan may be taken up in other parts of the city, and similar meetings held in other churches.

BOY BURGLARS ARE ARRESTED

Charged With Breaking Into West End Meat Market.

Peter Peterson and Louis H. Costello, two boys only 14 years of age, were arrested this afternoon by Detectives Terry and Walsh on the serious chrage of burglary.

The two boys are claimed to have broken into the store of Dominick Piunartis at Twenty-eighth avenue west and Fourth street, last night, and to have stolen a quantity of hams, butter, and other provisions.

The boys will probably be taken before the juvenile court.

It is for such cases as these that the detention home is desired. The police have no place to keep the boys except in the juvenile department of the city jail, or in the county jail. If the detention home were built, the boys could be sent there, and would be forced to continue their studies during the time they spent in the home.

GOVERNOR IS PRAISED

F. B. Daugherty Says Johnson Would Make Excellent Candidate.

Washington, March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. B. Daugherty of Duluth arrived in Washington today from Jacksonville and is a guest at the Ebbitt. Mr. Daughterty is in ill health and sought restoration in Florida. He found, however, that the climate of Florida at this season of the year was too torrid for one who had lived long in the North Star state. He said today, at his hotel, that the Washington weather as it now prevails seemed to suit him exactly, and that he would remain here for some days, at least, until such a time as spring weather is thoroughly in evidence, in St. Louis county.

Though a republican, in politics, Mr. Daughterty, paid high tribute to Govenor Johnson, whose candidacy for the presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket has practically been launched. "I have the honor of a personal acquaintance with the governor," said he, "and no cleaner, nor more upright man could by any possibility be selected to lead the Democratic hosts in the coming race, for the presidency."

GOVERNOR WILL NOT INTERFERE

With the Execution of Sentence Upon Chester Gillette.

Albany, N. Y., March 16.—Governor Hughes will not interfere in any way with the execution in the week beginning March 30 of the death sentence upon Chester Gillette of Cortland, convicted of the murder of Grace or "Billy" Brown, of South Otselic, Chenango county, at Big Moose lake in the Adirondacks in July, 1906, and now in the "death cells" at Auburn prison. The governor would not talk about the matter for publication this afternoon but it may be stated with entire confidence that he has carefully read not only the unanimous opinion of the court of appeals, affirming Gillette's conviction, but also the evidence in the case, and entertains no doubt of Gillette's guilt.

It was reported today that Gillette's mother was on her way here to appeal to Governor Hughes to save her son's life. Nothing had been heard from her at the executive mansion at 1 p. m.

BOY DIES ON THE COUNTY

White Plague Fatal to Finnish Youth in Strange Land.

Government Was About to Send Him to Old Home.

On the verge of being furnished with free transportation to his old home in Finland, where he hoped to recover his normal health among family and friends, or at worst to die in the land of his birth, Frank Rikela, only 19 years of age, died last night at the St. Louis county poor farm.

Rikela came here from Ely recently and, being afflicted with tuberculosis and unable to support himself, was taken to the poor farm. He had no relatives in the United States. The case was brought ta the attention of Inspector in Charge William H. Dean of the local immigration office, and he reported the matter to the authorities at Washington. It was a clear case for deportation, and there is no question that the deportation order would have been forthcoming within the next few days, had death not intervened to stop the government in what, in this instance, would have been a merciful act.

Rikela landed in Boston in July, 1906, and cam to Minnesota with the hope of making a fortune in the land of promise. He got along all right for a time, but finally became afflicted with tuberculosis, and since then has steadily declined in health. He probably will be interred in the potters' field.

A Butte dispatch says: The North Butte company has put a large force of men to work at development on the Jessie and Edith May veins, and preparations are being made to take out large quantities of ore from the 1,800 foot level of the Jessie, where the deposits are steadily growing richer. New stoping ground is being opened up on the Edith May, and if conditions warrant, the company will be taking out a greatly increased quantity of ore before the close of summer.

The Butte Coalition company is pushing the work of completing the surface equipment on the Tramway, and it will only be a very short time before extensive exploration work will be commenced. Rich ore bodies have already been opened up in the Minnie Healy and Tramway ground, and with the appropriation of $80,000 a month, which was recently made, the Tramway shaft will be carried to a depth of 2,000 feet and the rich veins which are known to widen out and develop into great deposits of high grade ore, will be worked to the great profit of the company. The underground condition of the property is excellent, and preparations on a scale more extensive than at any other mine in the camp will be commenced. The possibilities of the company are magnificent.

PUGILISTS ARE BEING TRIED

Are Charged With Participating in a Prize Fight.

The alleged participants in the prize fight, held a week ago Saturday night, in Victor Lamont's saloon, on West Michigan street, are on trial in the municipal court, this afternoon, before Judge Windom.

Through a misunderstanding, the prisoners are represented by an attorney who knows nothing of the case. William Marx was engaged to defend them, but they became dissatisfied with him for some reason, and asked Alexander Marshall to represent them. Mr. Marshall sent C. C. Colton from his office to secure a continuance, but the court refused to grant any further delay, and Mr. Colton was compelled to go ahead with the case without any preparation. Albert Polinsky and Frank Wilson are charged with taking part in the fight, while Victor Lamont, George W. Thatcher and Morris Pauls are charged with aiding and abetting it.

The court's opinion was announced by Justice Day who held that the Elkins act is applicable to transportation anywhere and that an offense is confined to the initial point. He also held it applicable alike to shipper and carrier.

GONG WAS NOT HEARD

Lakeside Children Sat in Basement While Others Marched Out.

The School Board Investigating Committee Begins Its Work.

While the pupils of the upper floors of the Lakeside school were marching out in response to the fire drill, this morning, the pupils in the manual training department in the basement, Director Barnes and Supt. Denfeld were waiting for the alarm to sound.

Director Stevens had sounded a fire alarm, and the pupils all marched out in a prompt and orderly manner, except those in the basement, who had not heard the alarm. Had there been a real fire, they could easily have scrambled out the basement windows, which are on a level with the ground, but the special investigation committee will see that a gong is put in the basement at once.

The committee began its tour of the schools this morning. It was appointed for the purpose of inspecting the schools to see if proper precautions are taken to prevent fires and panics.

The task which the committee has undertaken is not one which can be finished in a day. Two or three days must be consumed by the members before every school shall have been visited and its mysteries probed by the investigators.

On the committee are School Directors Barnes and Stevens and Supt. Denfeld and with them as an advisory expert is Chief Engineer Larson of the Duluth public schools.

The party gathered at the Central high school this morning. As two members of the committee were desirous of appearing at the opening exercises in the high school, the start was not made until after 9:30.

While the committee did not have any stated itinerary, the members started off in the direction of the East end schools first. They will visit the institutions in that direction, probably all of them east of Lake avenue, before tackling any of the other side of that dividing line.

It was the plan of the committee to slip into the school building and without making any preliminary announcement to those in charge of the place, ring the fire bell and bring about a fire drill on the part of the children and teachers.

If any of the outside exits are found to be locked, woe unto the unfortunate janitor whose business it was to look after such things.

When the committee has finished its tour of inspection, an exhaustive report of its trip will be prepared for a rending at the next meeting of the board, which will be held on the first Friday in April.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

St. Patrick's day celebrants are not restricted to those who can truly claim a near or remote national relationship with the holy man whose name is honored along about the seventeenth of March. There is a spontaneousness about St. Patrick's day, however, that almost jars a German out of the placid every day routine, and phlegmatic indeed is the individual who is not slightly stirred on St. Patrick's day in the morning or a little later on.

"As ridiculous as it may seem to many, the very existence of St. Patrick is a subject of dispute, and it is argued that the true shamrock does not grow in Ireland," says "What To Eat." Noting the printed controversies in Irish newspapers to the effect that the true shamrock grows only in America, one Irishman wrote back as follows:

"Oh, Paddy dear, and did ye hear
The tale that's going round,
The shamrock plant, it does not grow
At all on Irish ground."

"Debate has spread its cover of doubt over everything in connection with St. Patrick's day that was once regarded as truth. The Irishman's love of argument has resulted in clouding all the claim to authenticity of the story of St. Patrick—the man who, vision-driven for redemption of "Ierne" from Druidical superstitions, with true missionary zeal, turned his back on the proud estate of his father, the "Decurio," in Bannavan of Tibernio, a far corner of Britain, to return to the green and beautiful isle, where in the year of his captivity, as a swineherd, he had learned the spiritual darkness of its people. But we must leave it to present and future debaters to further darken the history of this forceful man as he drives the snakes from Erin, kindles the fire by breathing upon ice, or makes himself a mighty power among the people or a terror to the Druids. The beautiful legend of St. Patrick, the eloquent, stooping as he preached on the confines of a grove in Meath, to pick up a tiny trefoil to make plain the Trinity to the unlettered Celts surging around him in wonder, is too well known to be dwelt upon.

"Those who deny that truth of this story claim that the ordinary three-bladed leaved Trifolium minus, known throughout this country as the shamrock, is not the shamrock at all, and that the true shamrock is the watercress. This question is the subject or prolific and forcible argument in this country and in Ireland. To forestall the trouble resulting from the display of the leaves in past years, one noted florist now humbly labels his pots of Erin's symbol, 'This is said to be shamrock.'"

Frank Daniels.

Frank Daniels will be seen at the Lyceum tonight in his new comic opera under the management of Charles Dillingham. The new vehicle is entitled "The Tattooed Man."

Harry B. Smith, author of so many American successes and A. N. C. Fowler, a new writer, have collaborated on the book, and the musical score is by that master of melody, Victor Herbert.

The locale of the opera is in Persia. The first scene is laid in the courtyard of the shah's palace with its slave girls, harem, snake charmers and dancers. The second shows a Persian rose garden with its atmosphere of Oriental splendor. The title role, played by Mr. Daniels, is that of a charlatan weather prophet and poet.

Felix Haney's Story.

Felix Haney, who has made a hit wherever he has been seen in his new role of Alderman "Jim" Phelan in "The Man of the Hour," is a Philadelphian when he is not an actor. He and other members of his family have resided in the Quaker City for many years, and some of the members have been both active and conspicuous in the turgid politics which mark the civic progress of Pennsylvania's metropolis. Haney tells a good story on a friend of his who was elected in the mid-'90s to the state legislature.

This brother of the actor's had been a man getting $1,600 a year as bookkeeper, and living up to every penny of it. After one term in the legislature, he returned home, and began building a $20,000 house, which he proceeded to furnish in keeping with its cost. As the salary of the member of the legislature is under four figures, his family, friends, neighbors, and acquaintances were naturally astounded at this evidence of wealth. It was Felix, himself, who at length determined to ask.

"Pat," said he, confidentially, to the politician, "how is it that, after only one term on the legislature at a salary of $350, you are able to put up such a front here in the city?"

"Well, Felix," replied Pat, with the air of a man who was about to part from a humiliating secret, "I'll tell you, if it goes no farther."

Felix promised, and Pat resumed:

"When in Harrisburg, the wife and I decided, you see, to get along without a servant."

"The Man of the Hour" will be at the Lyceum tomorrow and Wednesday, with a popular price matinee Wednesday.

The Burlesquers.

The High School Girls have opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan. In company are Matt Kennedy, the Suttons, the Big Four, Jeanette Young, Robert Athon, Madeline Franks, Wiora sisters and the youngest looking of chorus girls on the Empire circuit, from all reports. They will give a bargain matinee tomorrow, and Friday will be amateurs' night.

MANY IN ASYLUM.

Marquette, Mich., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seven hundred patients are now incarcerated in the Newberry insane asylum. The number has shown a steady increase until the matter of their accommodation has become a serious problem. The asylum is overcrowded.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Sauerkraut, 10 cents a qt.
Spare ribs, 12 cents a lb.
New cabbage, 5 cents a lb.
Old cabbage, 2 cents a lb.
Mushrooms, 60 cents a lb.
Prunes, 10 to 25 cents a lb.

It is truly amazing the number of people who will confess at table to a plebian fondness for sauerkraut and spare ribs or prunes. When talking the matter over, a dainty fastidiousness may be maintained, but when confronted at the meal hour with the delectable concoctions, it is, as has been said, truly amazing to see the active confession that ensues.

Prunes, of a prime variety, that have been carefully scrubbed, and even more carefully stewed, until they are plump and tender and surrounded with a rich, brown syrup, are no Lenten penance, but rather a delicacy to be sought after.

FREE LANCE REFORMER

C. W. Arnold is Campaigning Against Objectionable Advertising.

Says Money Comes When He Must Have It.

C. W. Arnold, the man who was given $100 a month by Mrs. Potter Palmer and "more if he needed it" to conduct his work in Chicago, is a kind of free lance among reformers. Just at the present time he is engaged in a campaign to compel publications of all kinds to discontinue objectionable advertising. He spoke yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. meeting for men on the evils that are brought about by advertisements of an objectionable nature.

"Why am I doing this work, you ask?" said Mr. Arnold in speaking of his mission last evening. "Because I cannot help it. I've tried to kick out of the traces many times and get kicked back every time. Men who are seeking the destruction of the child, somehow of other play into my hands and are brought to book through no effort of mine. When, as is often the case some poor child of mortality spat upon by the world that calls itself 'society' and refused a chance to rise again comes to me and is given a little bit of hope; when, notwithstanding the meagre financial support I get, money seems to come just when I must have it, what's a fellow to do? Fly in the face of Providence? Can't do it! I'm not built that way.

"I'm getting my reward as I go along. Every other child I meet on the street gives me a smile. Every fourth child that I meet says 'Hello' though they never saw me before. Most of them are girls—a boy I know has his opinion about that too.

"Yes, I'm bound to see the murderous stuff that is in most of the papers whipped out. The want 'personal' columns of one paper in the Twin Cities has been responsible for the moral degradation of a girl every day in that city. Yes, it's gone now—not by the will of the paper, but by that of its patrons who spoke in no uncertain terms as to what they thought of it. I have an abiding faith in the people that love decency, they are in the majority and the majority rule in this country, all they need is to be shown what the stuff means and they act. I've stood on the church and other platforms since the 15th of November last and if my strength holds out I expect to keep it up for the next year. I have been refused three platforms in the last fifteen months and they probably had a good reason for it."

CONFESSES TO KILLING

Wisconsin Woodsman Admits Shooting of Patrick Campbell.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 16.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Marinette, Wis., says: Paul Kania, a woodsman, who was lodged in jail at Florence in January charged with murdering Patrick Campbell, a homesteader, made a confession on Saturday last, in which he admits shooting Campbell. Kania says he was looking for work and applied at Campbell's shanty for a night's lodging. Campbell refused to shelter him and later came out of his shanty carrying a lantern and a revolver.

According to Kania's story, Campbell ordered him away and at the same time fired a shot at him. Konia then raised his gun and returned the shot fatally wounding Campbell. A fellow homesteader found Campbell in a dying condition and made an effort to bring him to Florance for medical treatment, but he died on the way. Kania says he did not intend to kill Campbell.

NOW CATHOLIC PRIEST.

Former Episcopal Rector Takes Charge of Church at Manistee.

Manistee, Mich., March 16.—Returning as a Roman Catholic priest to this city, where for several years he held the rectorate of the Protestant Episcopal church, Rev. Ernest Willoughby Jewell will sing his first solemn mass in Guardian Angel church here on March 24. Rev. Jewell, who will now be named Father Edward Joseph Jewell, received the minor orders of the priesthood at Grand Rapids, Mich., last week and will be ordained a priest next Thursday in Grand Rapids. His former parishioners here will follow him to the Roman Catholic church. Before he left the Episcopal church in 1905, Rev. Mr. Jewell, who is a widower with three children, held rectorates at Petoskey, Calumet and Manistee, being known as an extreme high church man.

THUNDER BAY IS OPEN.

Nothing to Obstruct Navigation at Canadian Head of Lakes.

Navigation is open at Port Arthur, according to R. H. Flaherty, a Port Arthur mining man, who registered at the St. Louis yesterday, after consuming the better part of five days in traveling from the Canadian town to Duluth via Winnipeg. He says there has hardly been a time this winter when boats could not ply in and out of the Port Arthur harbor.

"The bridge across the Rainy river, connecting the Canadian Northern and the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg, will soon be completed," said Mr. Flaherty, "and then it will be much easier to get to Duluth from the Canadian Head of the Lakes. The people of Canada are looking forward with satisfaction to the crop period. Conditions are good for the wheat growers next spring and summer."

SMALL COURT GRIST.

Only One Arrest for Drunkenness Was Made During Sunday.

The record of the last three Sundays at the police station was about reached again yesterday, when only one arrest was made for drunkenness in twenty-four hours. Con Kelly acquired a load somewhere yesterday, for he had one last night that was too heavy for a hold-over from Saturday night. He was no stranger to the court and he was given $3 and costs, or three days. August Freeman, familiarly known as the "King of the Bowery," appeared with evidence in the shape of a black eye that some body had crossed his path. He drew five days and several other drunks were let off with small fines.

COOKING SPOILS PEARLS.

Heat Destroyed Value of Gems Found in Oysters.

If Bruce Well's wife had only served raw the oysters consumed at the Wells home the other evening, instead of cooking them, the family would have been enriched several hundred dollars by the deep sea products.

Wells, who is a street car conductor, was eating the oysters when his teeth came in contact with some hard substances. Upon examining them, he felt sure that they must be pearls and a visit with them to a local jeweler confirmed the belief.

But the jeweler said the heat of cooking had spoiled the pearls and that they were worthless. Before they were warmed, they could have been disposed of for several hundred dollars.

DEPARTMENT TO DECIDE

On Final Disposition of Dispute Over Militia Transportation.

Washington, March 16.—Since the 2 cents a mile agitation has been in the foreground, the question of paying for the transportation of the troops of the National Guard over bond aided and land grant railroads is before the department of war. Railroads in several states have refused to carry militiamen at the old rate, which was 50 per cent of the tariff rate for passengers. Payments have been previously made on that basis and circulars from the war department do not permit paying a rate in excessof one-half of the regular rate.

The state authorities have been notified to "issue transportation requests" and leave the final settlement of the amount due the railroads to the war department. When settlement is made and the exact amount paid, it will be charged to the state's allotments of the appropriations for the militia.

APPLICATIONS OF 65,000 REJECTED

Immigrants for United States Turned Down by Steamship Lines.

Philadelphia, March 16.—Secretary of Commerce and Labor Oscar S. Straus, who was in this city yesterday, in an interview on the immigration question, said that more than 65,000 applications for passage to the United States were rejected at the agencies of the several steamship lines in European cities during the last fiscal year, for fear that the character of the applicants was such that the steamship company would be compelled by the immigration authorities of this country to take them back to the port whence they would sail to this country.

The secretary spoke freely upon the immigration laws, and contended that as they now exist they are so nearly perfect that but few, if any, amendments are necessary, and the people need have no apprehension as to the result of their enforcement, which, so far as lay in his power, would be energetic and prompt.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN.

It was timely and proper that the pastors of Duluth should take up the vastly important problem of proper management of the children in their sermons yesterday, and that earnest, thoughtful discussions of the subject should have been heard from practically every pulpit in the city.

It has long been evident to every thoughtful observer that there are in this city, as there are in all cities, homes where proper influences do not surround the children. Wherever a young girl or a young boy is seen wandering the streets at night, frequenting public dances and other resorts, skirting danger at every step, it is pretty good evidence that something is wrong in the home that child comes from.

Yesterday's discussions of this subject were due to the suggestion of Judge J. D. Ensign, who presides over the juvenile court, and who is, therefore, in an uncommonly good position to see what is going on, and to learn the underlying causes of juvenile delinquencies. He has stated that juvenile crime is on the increase in Duluth, and he flatly charges that parents are responsible for it. The cases where children are "born bad" are very few indeed, and the theory of heredity in such cases involves no pleasing commentary upon the parents. In nine cases out of ten children go wrong because parents allow them to do so.

The central theme of yesterday's sermons, therefore, was the duty of parents to their children. Some talked upon the duties of children to their parents, and this was proper enough, though to this it should be said that children who fail in respect and obedience to their parents fail because they have not been properly trained, so that in the end the entire subject is summed up in the duty of the parents to the children.

"Train the child up in the way he should go and he will not depart from it in old age," was the text of many sermons yesterday, and it is a good old text that appears to have been too much neglected in recent years. The grandparents of today's children did not run the city street, go to public dances, attend plays in each other's company and generally act like grown people when they were 12 to 15 years of age, and that seems to be the habit nowadays, even among children in well-to-do families.

Parents must, first, keep their children under their watchful care at all times. To succeed in this they must make the home pleasant and attractive. To make the children wish the right things, the right things must be made to seem desirable, not hateful. There is little to be gained by harsh methods or puritanical rules that make good things hateful and evil things temptingly attractive.

One might almost as easily expect water to rise higher than its own level as to expect children to rise higher than their home influences. Occasionally a child will, through outside light or inward grace, rise superior to its immediate environment, but it does not happen often.

If parents will remember this, and will stop to think that there is danger in every moment that children spend beyond parental watchfulness, things will be much better than they are today.

THAT DRAINAGE PROTEST.

Elk River Star-News: It is a little singular to learn that Northern Minnesota people are protesting against drainage plans proposed by the government, and then coming down to the legislature with demands for large appropriations for the same purpose.

The Herald has been expecting to see something of this sort as a result of the recent protests from the Lake of the Woods country against federal drainage in Northern Minnesota. These protests came from a very few people, living in a very limited area, and they do not represent the general sentiment of Northern Minnesota in the slightest degree, as everybody knows who is familiar with conditions.

The situation was explained fully in The Herald recently by J. H. Hay of Thief River Falls. For the information of the Elk River Star-News, and of others who may be similarly puzzled, it may be as well to explain it again.

The protest came from settlers in the high and wooded portions of Northern Minnesota, adjacent to the Lake of the Woods and in the lower reaches of Rainy river. This territory needs no drainage, at present, because the settlers are more interested in getting the timber off their lands and selling it than they are in agriculture. The settlers who have homesteaded lands in that section desire to secure immediate returns from their ventures by disposing of the timber. Farming, as practised elsewhere, is necessarily a secondary consideration with them. They fear that the passage of the Steenerson federal drainage bill will involve a delay in the acceptance of their final proofs, which is necessary before they can sell their timber.

Against this faint protest from a small area may be set the united sentiment of all the remainder of Northern Minnesota, which wants to see the swamp lands drained and made fit for farming. They want the government to do its share on its own lands, and they demand that the state drain its swamp lands as speedily as possible.

In the case of the state, they have a right to demand, and do not have to beg, the relief needed. As Editor Hamilton of the Aitkin Republican clearly showed in his paper read before the Minnesota Editorial association, the state has dealt unfairly not only with Northern Minnesota, but with the federal government.

The swamp lands owned by the state, which include millions of acres, were donated by the federal government upon the agreement that the state should drain them, and that the proceeds of all sales should be devoted to drainage.

The state has utterly failed to keep its agreement with the government. It has appropriated small and inadequate sums for drainage purposes, but most of the lands are undrained, and a large portion of them were deliberately given away to railroads.

The government would have a perfect right to take back these swamp lands on the ground that the state has violated the terms of the grant. It will not do this, but the state should, even at this late day, determine to carry out its contract, and that means to drain these lands.

PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS.

It is highly gratifying to note the keen public interest that is being shown in the movement to provide public playgrounds for the children of Duluth.

The Women's Council, always alert, public-spirited and keen in its perception of what is good and uplifting and beautifying, has always taken a deep interest in this movement, and the same thing is true of the other women's organizations of the city. April 20, under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club, an organization of women, Lee F. Hanmer, field secretary of the National Playground association, will arrive in Duluth to look the local field over and give what aid he can to those interested in providing playgrounds for the children.

Mayor Haven is interested, and will take the matter up with the Commercial club. Former Mayor Cullum was keenly interested in the subject, and the new mayor will take up the work that he laid down.

It cannot be managed all at once, probably, but there should be at least four play spots available for the children. One should be in West Duluth, one on the hillside in the West end, a third upon the hillside back of the business center of the city, and the fourth in the East end. While the lake shore park in the East end will provide an immediately available playground for that portion of the city, it seems likely that the most good will be done by attending first to the West Duluth and West end parks, because these sections, which will afford homes for the employes in the city's factories, will quickly tend to congestion, and sites should be secured before the need is made too great by crowded blocks and congested tenements.

Mayor Haven's idea is that the existing parks should be turned over to the children, and that the objectionable "Keep Off the Grass" signs should be banished. The parks should not only be good to look at, but they should be good to rest in and for the children to play in. Very likely such a move would involve the necessity of providing permanent caretakers for each of the parks so used, to prevent abuse of the privilege, but that would be an expenditure worth while.

A real playground, however, is not a carefully kept park where the children might feel as ill at ease as they would in a strange parlor. The ideal playground is a park, too, but it would have open fields for games of all sorts, and it would be liberally supplied with swings, vaulting bars and other paraphernalia needed to provide a wholesomely good time.

The expense of providing playgrounds is all out of proportion to the good it will bring. A dollar spent in playgrounds will buy a thousand dollars' worth of clean sport, fresh air, safe amusement and upbuilding recreation.

"RUINING" THE RAILROADS.

The publication of the annual reports of earnings upon the various railroads of the country is spreading a hush over the crowd of railroad magnates who had recently been complaining that "hostile legislation" had injured the railroads and would ruin the country.

Of course the railroads were hit hard by the panic that swept over the country last fall, and of course, in the last two or three months of the year, their business fell off enormously. Yet their business for the year was tremendous, and their earnings were in proportion.

The significance of these reports lies in the fact that the measures alleged to have ruined the railroads were practically all passed and made effective before the beginning of the year's business. The latest of them were made effective early in the year, and if these laws had "ruined the railroads" the ruin ought to be apparent in the reports of the earnings for the year.

The Railway Age, which takes the railroad side of public discussion, and cannot therefore be accused of distorting the facts to make them unfavorable to the railroads, says of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western that its "earnings last year were the largest in the history of the country, and from the treasury resources all but $15,000, which were not presented, of the $3,067,000 first mortgage 7 per cent bonds, maturing on Sept. 1 last, were paid. Outside of this small unpaid amount the outstanding capital obligations of the company are limited to its $26,200,000 capital stock, although it is, of course, responsible for heavy rentals under the terms of its leases of subsidiary properties."

The Lackawanna's 1907 surplus is equal to 18.5 per cent on its capital stock, and this figure, added to the 20 per cent dividends paid, indicates total net earnings of 38.5 per cent. This showing is made in a year of extraordinarily high costs, and of declining traffic at the close. If this is "ruin," many of us would like to have congress and the legislatures pass some "hostile legislation" that will "ruin" us.

Yet the president of the road, in his annual report, complains bitterly of public interference, and declares it to be quite plain that both the great political parties intend to make the great railway interess and the large investments in them the "pawns in their games of politics."

The Railway Age also shows that the Pennsylvania road's gross earnings "for the first time passed the $150,000,000 mark." The total net income was $58,999,584, compared with $59,218,500 in 1906 and $52,568,500 in 1905. When it is remembered that 1906 was the most prosperous year in the history of the railroads of this country, the 1907 showing is a long way from "ruin." The Pennsylvania was able to show net earnings equal to 10 per cent on its capital of $315,000,000.

The railroads have howled before they were hurt.

Look out for the children, and the coming generation will take care of itself.

It is a time to bury every difference and every jealousy in a common effort to push Duluth ahead.

It is said that Orchard will refuse offers of clemency, and will choose to die for his crimes. There will be little opposition from the public to his plans.

The Duluth News Tribune, which has never forgiven Governor Johnson for winning two victories over Republican candidates, is the chief organ in Minnesota, apparently, for the Hearst-Bryan malcontents who are trying to discredit Governor Johnson by defeating his endorsement for president. The partnership is logical and illuminative.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Like every man who ever came out of Spokane to the East, Henry H. Edwards, who is registered at the St. Louis, is a "booster" and never tires of telling of the glories of his thriving, hustling home town.

"Spokane has spent more than $1,000,000 for new churches within the last three years," he said. "We have five new church buildings that cost more than $100,000 apiece. A new Catholic catnedral cost $75,000. The Episcopalians spent $100,000. The First Baptist congregation and the First Presbyterian each spent $100,000 and the Methodists spent about $110,000. These with a number of smaller churches brought the total cost of the new buildings up to more than $1,000,000.

"Spokane is just as good a city as it ever was, and a little better, although business is a little quiet just now. That's the most you will ever get a Spokane man to admit—that business is a little quiet temporarily.

"The people of the Canadian Northwest are not discouraged at the partial failure of last year's crop," said George F. Buhlman of Calgary at the Lenox. "Western Canada will recover more quickly from such a year as last year, than almost any other district of the American continent. Within a few months now this year's crop will be ready to harvest and the farmers will have money again. The country is rich—wonderfully rich—and a little thing like last year's panic will not do any permanent or far reaching injury to Northwestern Canada.

"There is quite a little interest in the coal fields of the foothills at the present time, and quite a little development work is going on this spring."

"Let me tell you one reason why this city of yours is not growing faster than it is," said S. W. Parrett of Chicago, who is at the McKay. "My business takes me to a great many cities during the year, and Duluth is not a city of enthusiastic boosters for buying home-made goods. You go into a grocery store in Minneapolis and see how many sacks of flour you can find that were made in any other city but Minneapolis. But go into a grocery store here, and find how many you can find that were not made here. They all handle Duluth made flour, but flour made in other cities is sold just as freely. I know for a fact that there are people in Duluth who send to a mail order house in Chicago for groceries—think of it, buying groceries in Chicago. Those people are valuable citizens to a community—not. You don't appreciate your own town, and you don't realize how many things are made here that are just as good or better than anything you buy in any other city."

Eastern Trusts and Their Oppression.

Chicago Journal: Few Western people realize how completely they are under the domination of Eastern trusts. Yet there is hardly an article of common, daily employment for the use of which Westerners do not pay tribute to the New York rich.

In the morning the Western man wakes up, looks at a watch manufactured by the watch trust, and jumps out of bed, the springs of which have been assessed by the steel trust. He puts on shoes from which the leather trust has taken its percentage. At breakfast he puts sugar trust sugar into coffee trust coffee. He smokes a pipe filled with tobacco trust tobacco. His wife sews a button trust button on his coat with thread from the thread trust. He sends his children off to school with books from the book trust. He reads his morning newspaper, which has paid exorbitant prices to the paper trust. He fills the furnace with coal from the coal trust. He puts on rubbers from the rubber trust. He walks over pavements laid by permission of the asphalt trust to a telegraph office, where he pays the telegraph trust for sending a message. He goes for a journey on one of the railroad trust's lines. He goes home and reads by the light furnished by the Standard Oil trust.

All these trusts are Eastern concerns, draining money from the whole country to New York. All of them are protected by the tariff, without which they would be powerless. Most of them are so little in need of tariff protection that they sell goods cheaper abroad, after paying freight across the Atlantic ocean, than they do at home.

Tariff revision will remedy the evils from which the country is suffering by breaking up trusts, restoring industry to its natural places, and reducing prices. Manufacturers will be compelled to sell to the American people as cheap as they sell to foreigners.

Everyday Misquotations.

London Tit-Bits: Critics who assert that we get more slovenly and careless every day in speech, manners and customs have proof of part of their assertion, at any rate, in the manner in which the writings of famous authors are continually being misquoted and distorted. In Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" are these lines: "Water, water everywhere, Nor any drop to drink." Ninety-nine people in a hundred say, "And not a drop to drink" for the last line.

Again, how often we hear people sing, "Rule, Britannia, Britannia rules (instead of rule) the waves," and quote Macbeth as saying, "Screw your courage to the sticking point," instead of "sticking place." These two familiar lines of Samuel Butler's, "He that complies against his will is of his own opinion still," are usually misquoted as "Convince a man against his will, he's of the same opinion still."

Shakespeare never wrote "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," although this is the version generally given of the correct words of Henry VI, which run: "Ill blows the wind that profits nobody." Nathaniel Lee is similarly treated in regard to his phrase, "When Greeks join'd Greeks then was the tug of war," which more often than not is misquoted as "When Greek meets Greek then comes the tug of war."

"Money is the root of all evil," is a travesty of the lines from the first Epistle of St. Paul to Timothy, "The love of money is the root of all evil." Another Scriptural passage which is often incorrectly quoted is the sentence from Proverbs: "Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall." The popular version is, "Pride goeth before a fall."

That fine phrase from Wolfe's poem, "The Burial of Sir John Moore," which runs, "But we left him alone with his glory," is very badly treated by people who say, "Alone in his glory;" while the correct words, as written by Longfellow, of the phrase so often used, "All things come to him who waits," are "All things come round to him who will but wait."

THE WEATHER.

More snow tonight and tomorrow, the weather man says: also warmer weather. It was cold last night, the thermometer getting down to 5 degs. below zero, and yesterday's highest was 24 degs. It was bright and pleasant yesterday, and just comfortably cool. This morning, naturally after last night's below zero weather, was crisp and wintery, but it was by no means uncomfortable.

A year ago today it was mild and lightly cloudy.

The sun rose this morning at 6:19 and sets tonight at 6:14, making 11 hours and 55 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Much colder weather prevails this morning in the western lake region and district north of Iowa, due to a high pressure area that has moved its center from Alberta to Western Ontario during the past twenty-four hours. Zero temperatures are the rule over most of Western Canada, Northern Minnesota and Northeastern North Dakota. The barometer is also high over Florida and off the Pacific coast. Barometric depressions overlie New England states and Montana. These disturbances caused snow to fall during Sunday or last night in most Northern districts. The easterly movement of the Montana low pressure will be attended by more or less snow and milder temperature in this locality tonight and Tuesday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Sanstone Courier: The many complimentary notices from the county press to the Duluth dailies make the other city papers wonder if they have made a mistake in cutting off exchanges. These two Duluth papers are good boosters and have all of the news for Northern Minnesota and ought to have the united support of the north half of the state. Boost all you can yourself and also support the papers that are trying to better this section of the state.

Stillwater Gazette: Mayor Haven of Duluth has mapped out a number of reforms he will inaugurate. He has decided to close the saloons at the hour designated by law, stop gambling and the public dances, and to place a restriction on all hotels where no questions are asked. He will use his best efforts to keep the newsboys from loafing around saloons, which will meet the approval of all, saloonkeepers included. If the mayor carries out the excellent policies mapped out he will do much good and be a credit to the city over which he presides.

Brainerd Tribune: The lid goes on with a bang at 10:00 every night over in Duluth.

Fergus Falls Globe: There is no room in this fair land for the blot of anarchy Out with it!—Duluth Herald.

Quite correct. There is no room for anarchy (lawlessness) anywhere. And it is the same whether the anarchist be a bomb-thrower or a "captain of industry." For every one killed by bombs and bullets there are thousands killed by lawless greed, as witness the roster of the victims of railroad wrecks, the mine disasters, and like results of the anarchy of greed. "Out with anarchy." But include the rich anarchists, the "captains of industry" in the sentence passed upon the other classes of anarchists, and all will cheerfully agree with you. Down with anarchy!

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Our Duluth neighbors are beginning to take a lively interest in the iron ranges—a sort of a biennial interest.

Brainerd Tribune: In Duluth the grocers propose to curtail their credit list, which will of course, be so much the better for the man who pays his bills promptly—and who also pays for the bad bills.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Rather remarkable, if it not, that Duluth does not trot out a gubernatorial candidate? There's some of the right kind of stuff there, and this will be the year for taking on something new.

Madison Western Guard: No thanks, we'll get along very well without the Twin City dailies as long as we can get the daily papers of a live, progressive enterprising city—we mean the papers from the Zenith City—Duluth.

Milaca Times: Duluth newspapers, like their city, are progressive and up-to-date. They know the value of the country to the city and take every opportunity to cultivate good will and good feeling for their town.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Elk River Star-Times: If public officials who ignore the provisions of the law in the transaction of public business are immune, why should we send a man to jail who steals a loaf of bread because he is hungry?

Perham Enterprise: At the present time it looks as if J. F. Jacobson had a "lead pipe cinch" for the Republican nomination for governor.

Elk River Star-News: Everybody appears to take great delight in kicking Senator Foraker of Ohio, now that he is down and out, so to speak. One thing about Foraker that we always admired is that the public always knew where to find him on every issue that came to the front. He may not have been right on all occosions, but was never mealy-mouthed about statlug his position.

Royalton Banner: The main duty of nearly all congressmen seems to be to bow to the will of Klng Cannon and ratify his doln's. As an autocrat he makes the czsar of Russia look like a last year's bird's nest. He overshadows the other congressmen so completely that a microscope is necessary to find them.

Le Sueur News: Bryan was endorsed in Nebraska, where he did not carry the state, his own county, city or precinct.

Eveleth News: Editor Hamilton of the Aitkin Republican looks about eight feet tall and good legislative material to the Mesaba Ore. Northern Minnesota does need some eight-footers in the state house, and no mistake.

Princeton Union: The greatest objection the people of this part of the state have to J. F. Jacobson is his backing. It is so incongruous.—Appleton Press.

Then there are minor objections on the part of Mr. Young and his friends? It matters not. The people will overrule all objections and objectors at the convention July 1 and at the polls next November.

Anoka Union: Wage reduction always comes first—even more quickly than price reduction.

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: It is probable that the tariff upon anarchists could be revised upward without meeting with any objection from the country.

Anoka Herald: A Chicago woman has sought divorce from her husband because he would not bring her violets every morning. The heartless brute spent his hours in bringing her bread and butter.

JOHN A. JOHNSON.

Trot him out, Minnesota, he shall be the nation's choice,
He is competent and honest, he's an orator of power.
From the Goldgen Gate to Boston, the people will rejoice.
When it's echoed forth from Denver,
who's the hero of the hour.

Beloved Minnesota, many trophies you have won,
Will the country at large be disposed to compensate,
Now your tender to the nation, John
your favorite son,
Noblest product of the North Star
state?

He is wanted in the East, and he's wanted in the South,
Will the masses whom he loves turn
him down?
Hurrah, hurah for Johnson, the people
all will shout,
He's the Democratic Moses, and he's fit to wear the crown.

From Houston to Kittson and from Koochiching to Rock, Every county in the state will fall in line,
He's the Dan Patch of politics—he's of Democratic stock.
Trot him out, trot him out, he must take the place of Bryan.

Bryan and Minnesota.

Minneapolis Journal: Democrats of the state of Minnesota are wondering why Bryan did not accord Johnson the same treatment in his own state that Taft handed out to Hughes in New York.

It was doubtless because of a difference in the men. Mr. Taft is an open, warm-hearted, genial and generous man. He has so little egotism that he does not seriously believe that the republic would totter on its base if he does not receive the nomination. On the other hand, Mr. Bryan has worked himself into a terribly unfortunate state of gloom over the prospects for his native land if he is not elected. He cannot conceive of good crops, if he, the author and discoverer of all that Roosevelt has done, is not nominated. Hence he is impatient of opposition. He has bluffed every other Democrat off the track, except Johnson, and, with a doubt, he expected to bluff Johnson. When Johnson did not bluff, he became gloomily indignant.

It is too bad to see as nice and as clever a man as the author of "The First Battle" get so self-centered. It might perhaps, tend to restore Mr. Bryan's equilibrium if he should take down the volumes inscribed with his name and learn that the first battle was a defeat, the second battle a rout and the third battle a shameful slaughter. In the fourth battle the Republicans ought to be prohibited by ordinance from hitting the Bryanites with the closed fist.

The remedy is yours for the asking. Dyspepsia bars the way to your attaining success, wealth and influence by clogging the wheels of your health machine. Your work suffers, energy wanes, perseverance flags.

In this age of hurry and bustle, where concentrated energy is essential to success, where the strong man wins and the weakest goes to the wall—you owe it as a duty to yourself, your family, your friends, to keep that God-given health you were blessed with at the start.

Why not make a fresh beginning, and at the expenditure of only 50 cents in the purchase of a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, find anew the joy of "living," the joy of "working," the joy of "strife."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain the very elements which your stomach possessed when it was healthy—pepsin, diatase, golden-seal and others. By the action of these digestive ferments the dissolved food substances pass into the blood vessels and lymphatics, and so enter the general circulation.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WINGREN IS SENTENCED

Accidental Slayer of Peter Larson in State Reformatory.

Effort Will be Made to Procure Pardon for Him.

Brainerd, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—To walk many miles to give himself up for manslaughter, ride in the cars from 3:45 in the morning until noon, appear before a district judge during the noon hour, plead guilty and be sentenced and start for the reformatory at 1:20 p. m., was the achievement of Charles Wingren, who shot Peter Larson by mistake for a moose, east of Rapid River, as told in The Herald dispatches.

Wingren, who is a young homesteader, who recently married a widow with six children, was trailing a moose in one of the most sparcely settled regions of Koochiching county and seeing an object he supposed was the moose, fired two shots, the second of which penetrated Larson's bowels. He died before medical aid reached him. Wingren left at once alone for International Falls and gave himself up. In company with Sheriff Walsh and County Attorney Stanton he came to Brainerd Saturday, and having telegraphed to Judge McClenahan, found the jurist awaiting them while the train stopped for dinner. The train remains from 12:10 to 1:20 and in that time Wingren had pleaded guilty and the party left at once for St. Cloud. Mr. Stanton went on to St. Paul and will lay the matter before the board of pardons at once and hopes to have Wingren released, as there was no question but that it was an accident and the fact that the country was practically uninhabited renders the carlessness more excusable.

BULLETS FINISH SHORT FREEDOM

Escaped Convict is Cornered by Officers and Shot Down.

Washburn, N. D., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joe Bassanella, one of the convicts who escaped from the state penitentiary at Bismarck last Thursday with H. Woollens, was shot and killed by the sheriff of McLean county and an assistant about seventeen miles north of here Saturday.

Bassanella opened fire on the officer and his companion when cornered, after a chase on horseback of several miles. The officers returned the fire and Bassanella fell after about twenty shots had been exchanged. He was shot through the head.

After escaping from the penitentiary he and Woollens, his comrade in crime, parted company when five miles from the penitentiary. Bassanella went north and Woollens west on a horse he had stolen. During the day Bassanella stole a small target pistol at a farm house and a suit of clothes. Eight miles further northwest he stole a horse. Nothing more was heard from him until a former jailer at Washburn, who had seen Joe at the trial of his brother for murder, met him on the road as the farmer was en route to Washburn. At a later place he informed Sheriff Beck and with the latter armed himself and went in pursuit.

They caught up with Bassanella, but as soon as the latter caught sight of them he made a dash for the river timber. Arriving at the brink of a steep ravine he dismounted and dashed down, followed by a fusillade of bullets, but managed to gain the shelter of a scrubby wood, where for two hours the pursuers hunted for him. Finally he was located and ordered to surrender, but replied at a hundred-yard range with a shot from his revolver, which went wild. He was ordered to throw up his hands, but said he would die first and shot again without result. Under the fire of an automatic revolver and a Winchester he was soon killed, being shot through the head by one or the other of the officers. The stolen plunder was found on him.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles F. Umbreit, an old settler and soldier, was buried Saturday from the Methodist Episcopal church under the auspices of the Masonic lodge, of which he was a member. Rev. James Smith, pastor of the church delivered the sermon.

Later, when the city of Thief River Falls was started, he became identified with the business life of the growing town, and until his death, was considered one of the factors towards the upbuilding of the place. He was considered one of the oldest Masons in the state, having joined the order in 1860, the year prior to the breaking out of the Civil war. Improvements in Bump Makes Show Much More Spectacular.

Longest Standing Jump—John Evenson, Duluth, 110 feet.

Most Graceful rider, Olaf Larson, Duluth.

Ole Feiring showed the possibilities of the new slide on Chester hill yesterday afternoon, when, on the run for the longest standing jump, he cleared 124 feet. He couldn't hold his skis though and tumbled. Otherwise the marks were somewhat disappointing, the prize for the longest standing jump going to John Evenson, with 110 feet.

The tournament was the last of the year in Duluth and probably in the entire United States. The number of riders was not as great as in former Duluth tournaments, but all of the local stars were entered, as well as the Coleraine men and several other lesser lights. Coleraine scored heavily, winning second and third places.

The falls were the features of yesterday's events. The riders weren't accustomed to the bump, which had been moved back ten feet and raised about four feet. They shot out straight into the air so high that they landed on the lower slide with great force and nearly every man had at least one fall. The falls were spectacular, but dangerous, and several serious accidents were avoided by the best of good luck.

The meet may have been a disappointment as far as the length of the jumps went, but it was certainly spectacular enough to satisfy the most enthusiastic thrill-hunter. Some of the men turned almost complete somersaults in the air. Those, who did hold their feet, had to show that they were expert ski riders to do so. There was much waving of arms and fine posing in the air, and every spectator got his money's worth of creepings on the spine, when riders rolled to the bottom of the slide in a cloud of snow and skis, slashing around in the air.

Despite all the falling, there was only one serious accident. John Hanson, a Duluth rider, fell with great force, near the end of the meet, and had to be carried from the slide. His legs and back were strained, but it is not believed his injuries will lead to anything very serious.

The board of directors of the Duluth club entertained the riders last night at a banquet at the St. Louis hotel. Clarence B. Miller, G. G. Hartley, C. E. Evens and others spoke. Cash prizes of $50 and $25, offered by G. G. Hartley at the beginning of the season to the Duluth riders making the longest standing jumps on any hill, were awarded to John Evenson and Ole Feiring, who made jumps of 122 and 119 feet, respectively, at Ishpeming, Washington's birthday.

OUTLAWS TEMPT BASEBALL STARS

Union League Clubs After Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner.

Washington, March 16.—President A. W. Lawson of the Union League baseball club was yesterday in conference with President Hart of the local Union League club and as a result Mr. Lawson stated that Mr. Hart has wired Tyrus Cobb of the American league, an offer of the largest salary ever paid to a ball player, to play with the Washington Union league club.

Mr. Lawson yesterday stated that President Schlechter of the Philadelphia Union league club has made Hans Wagner of the National league an offer of $10,000 to play with the Philadelphia Union league club this season.

Augusta, Ga., March 16.—Tyrus Cobb stated to the Associated Press over the long distance telephone that he has, so far, received no offer at all from President Harlow of the Union Baseball league but has reason to believe that the report is well founded. He says he has under consideration an offer from Mr. Lawson of $5,000 a year to play with the Washington club of that league, and that the offer will be accepted by him, if he cannot agree with President Navin of the Detroit club.

"I am going to start for Detroit immediately," he said.

To Race for Title.

Joe Munch of Minneapolis and Walter Wiggins of Duluth will meet tonight at the Temple roller rink in the first of two races for the championship of the Northwest. Munch holds the title, but Wiggins gave him a close race at the Northwestern tournament at Minneapolis last fall, and his Duluth friends believe he can defeat the champion. The race is for a side bet of $50 and a purse of $50, offered by the rink management. The second race will be held tomorrow night.

MANY ENTER FOR TOURNEY

Fifty-Four 5-Men Teams Are to Roll at St. Paul.

Two Duluth Teams Leave for the State Capital.

The Fitwells and Centrals, two of the five-men teams to represent Duluth in the state bowling tournament, which opens tonight at St. Paul, left yesterday afternoon for the capital city. The Zeniths, the other team, will follow today and tomorrow morning will find all three on the ground ready to go after some of the $1,182 offered in prize money this year.

There are in all sixteen Duluth bowlers entered in the tourney, the members of the three teams being entered in the doubles and singles also. They are the best rollers on the Duluth alleys, have made good showings in state tournaments in former years, and are counted upon to get some of the money for Duluth.

The opening ceremonies of the tournament will take place at 7:15 this evening and the first balls will be rolled at 7:30 o'clock. Assemblyman H. B. Keller will make the opening address of welcome for the city and President R. F. Malone of the State Bowling association, will respond for the bowlers.

The entries are heavier than for any tournament in the history of the association. Fifty-four five-men teams will compete and there is room for no more on the Prister alleys, where the event is to be held. The Twin Cities, Duluth and Stillwater are all represented and many of the smaller towns, which never sent men before, have entries. The tournament will extend over two weeks.

BURNS IN DUBLIN.

American Champion Thinks Roche is an Easy Mark.

Dublin, March 16.—Tommy Burns, the American pugilist, arrived here yesterday for his fight on March 17, when he will defend the title of heavyweight champion of the world against Jem Roche, the Irish champion. Burns is still suffering from an inflamed eye, the result of an accident a few days ago, the outcome of which at one time threatened to be serious, but he has definitely decided to go on with the contest, as, otherwise, he is in better condition than he has ever been, according to his own statement and that of his trainers.

Some of the friends of Roche believe that he has a splendid chance to defeat Burns but careful observers of the game regard the American as a sure winner, and he himself displays the utmost confidence in his ability to turn the trick.

VESPER CLUB BARRED.

Plans Announced for American Henley May 21.

New York, March 16.—The American Rowing association has issued its formal announcement of the plans for the American Henley on May 21. There will be twelve races, all as usual at one mile, 550 yards, straightway. The definition of the "second" races is made particularly clear, is being explained that racing in other organizations does not affect the right of entry.

Note is made of the continued barring of the Vesper Boat club on account of the trouble over Abell's membership in the Octuple race last year. The club can enter no more races until it disavowes the action of its racing committee in this matter.

Harris is Winner.

Mauritz Harris of Superior affirmed his right to the lightweight wrestling championship of the Head of the Lakes by defeating John Peterson at the Metropolitan opera house Saturday night. Peterson is a recent arrival from Sweden and showed some wrestling ability. The match was for a side bet of $50, and was one of the fastest pulled off at the "Met" this year.

S.S.S. CURES RHEUMATISM

The aches and pains of Rheumatism are only symptoms which may be scattered or relieved with liniments, plasters, blisters, etc., or quieted with opiates. As soon, however, as the treatment is left off or there is any exposure to dampness or cold, or an attack of indigestion, or other physical irregularity, the aggravating pains, swollen joints and tender places on the flesh return, and the sufferer finds that he has merely checked the symptoms, while the real cause remained in the blood. Rheumatism is due to a too acid condition of the blood, brought on by indigestion, chronic constipation, weak kidneys, and a general sluggish condition of the system. This acid circulating in the blood produces the pains, aches, and other disagreeable symptoms of Rheumatism. S. S. S., a purely vegetable remedy, cures Rheumatism by going down into the circulation and driving out the cause and making this life-stream pure, rich and healthy. When the blood has been cleansed of the irritating, pain-producing acids by S. S. S., the pains and aches cease, the muscles become soft and pliable, the health is built up, and Rheumatism completely and permanently cured. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.

A TRUE TEST

REGARDING CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

THE TEST OF TIME

A Bit of History—Showing How Honest Goods and Honest Efforts Have Succeeded.

For more than thirty years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has constantly gained favor and popularity until it is now one of the most staple medicines in use, and has an enormus sale. Every industry has its pioneer days, and it is during these struggling times that its worth and merits are tested. The early history of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy shows that except in point of merit, it had no more hope of success than other similar preparations, which were put on the market at the same time, but were never known outside of their own locality, and have long since ceased to be manufactured. Step by step, each successive year, as its superior excellence becomes more widely known, it has been gradually gaining in favor. Taken first, perhaps, on trial by some family, who found it good, it was recommended by them to a neighbor; they in turn passed it on to other friends, and for over thirty years its reputation has in this manner been spreading until it has reached the utmost corners of the earth. Science and advanced medical authorities during all of this time have failed to produce a better remedy for coughs, colds, and croup, and today Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is enjoying the largest sale of any similar preparation on the market. This success can be attributed to no other cause than its sterling worth. No matter how much prominence an article may receive through the medium of advertising, it must be trustworthy to hold the confidence of the public. In thousands of homes this remedy is the main reliance of parents in attacks of croup. Not only does it give prompt relief, but it is so pleasant to take that children like it, and it contains nothing that is in any way injurious.

NO OPIUM

In Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

The fact that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic makes it particularly suitable for young children, and especially so, as it can always be depended upon in cases of colds, croup and whooping cough, and has become famous for its cures of these diseases. Mothers have for many years accepted out statements that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, but that they may be further assured of this fact, we submit the following certificates.

By direction of Board of Health, it was declared that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy did not contain any narcotics, and could be sold by anyone.

Many Mothers of a Like Opinion.

Mrs. Pilmer of Cardova, Iowa says: "One of my children was subject to croup of a severe type, and the giving of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy promptly always brought relief. Many mothers in this neighborhood think the same as I do about this remedy and want no other kind for their children."

HEART TO HEART TALK

With a Young Mother.

Good morning, I'm so glad to see you. How are the children? What's the trouble now? Seems like they have been sick all winter. First scarlet fever, then diptheria, and now it is whooping cough. Well, you have had your hands full to be sure, but do you know I believe you could have warded off some of those diseases. Oh, no! I'm not accusing you of neglecting your children; you're too good a mother to do that. I know your new neighbors brought scarlet fever, but don't you remember the hard colds your children had just when they came? Now, listen a moment; that has had more to do with it than you think. Your children were then particularly susceptible to disease germs, on account of their lowered vitality. Eminent physicians now agree that children would not be nearly so likely to take scarlet fever, diptheria, whooping cough or any of the catching diseases if every cold were doctered w hen it first makes its appearance. You have noticed that when two children are exposed to some contagious disease at the same time often one of them will take it and the other will not. Well, that is just the reason, one child had a cold and the other did not. I never allow a cold to run twenty-four hours without attention. You say you don't have any confidence in cough medicines? You have not used the right one yet. Just try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you'll change your mind. Of course you have heard of it. It has been on the market for thirty-five years. There is nothing in it that will injure your little lamb. Get a bottle of it while you are up town and you will find that your children will not catch everything that comes along.

A Maine Merchant Tells Why He Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years," says Alonzo Purinton of West Bowdoin, Maine. "I do not use any other kind myself or in my family. I will give you a bit of experience I had with this remedy myself. I had a cough caused by a catarrh, so the doctors told me. I kept a continual hacking, and when I got a cold it was much worse. The doctor could not relieve me, and I used several cough cures, all to no purpose, except to get the stomach out of order. I had grown worse for two or three years, and it became very annoying. After I took the agency for Chamberlain's Medicines I tried Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I used half a dozen bottles of the 25-cent size, and was thoroughly cured. I have not had a cough since, now going on two years, except when I get a cold, then I take this remedy and it soon fixes me all right. I know that my catarrh has not bothered me near so much as before, so, of course, I always recommend Chamberlain's when I am asked for the best cough remedy. I would have willingly given $50.00 to anyone who would have cured my cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy did."

ABOUT COUGHS

A Cough is Not a Disease, But a Sympton.

By the character of the cough we are greatly aided in determining the nature of the disease that causes it.

A dry, hacking cough is usually caused by an irritation of the mucous membrane, lining the air passages of the throat and bronchial tubes. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will allay this irritation. The cause being removed there will be no more coughing.

When the cough is dry, loud and sonorous, it indicates that you have taken cold. Take a double dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, bathe the feet in hot water, take a cathartic and go to bed and you can cure a cold in one night.

When the cough is spasmodic and long continued, it indicates whooping cough, and the peculiar whoop will identify the disease. This is a dangerous disease unless properly treated. More deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Keep the cough loose and expectoration easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as required, and all danger may be avoided.

A persistent cough often follows an attack of influenza or grip, which is usually due to a roughness and irritation of the mucous membrane lining the air passages of the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven very successful in allaying this irritation and checking the cough.

When a child's cough has a peculiar ringing, metallic sound, accompanied by hoarseness, it indicates an approaching attack of croup. The attack may be warded off by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely as directed with each bottle as soon as the cough appears.

For a persistent cough, accompanied by a gradual loss of flesh, a tired feeling and night sweats, consult a physician at once, and have your lungs examined. Those are the first symptoms of consumption, and if a cure is hoped for no time should be lost.

Colds and Croup in Children.

"My little girl is subject to colds," says Mrs. Wm. H. Serig, No. 41 Fifth St., Wheeling, W. Va. "Last winter she had a severe spell and terrible cough, but I cured her with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup. As soon as he shows any signs of croup I give him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for three or four days, which prevents the attack."

A fight which is attracting more attention than any pugilistic event in the Middle West in many a month will take place tonight in Milwaukee, when Billy Papke, the Spring Valley wonder, will meet Hugo Kelly, the slashing Chicago middleweight.

The middleweight title is just about as badly confused as the lightweight crown, not counting Gans. The principal contenders for middleweight honors are Papke, Kelly and Stanley Ketchell. By hard work in the ring and disposing of promising opponents, those three have risen to the top notch, and to one of them will go the wreath.

After tonight's fight there should be only two left, Ketchell and another. Papke and Kelly are mixers. They will not go the entire route without a knock-out or a decision. They went to a draw before, but now they are in better condition to fight every minute they are in the ring, and they will.

Papke has the unique record of never having lost a fight. He has been in the game less than two years, and has probably fought more during that time than any man who came into prominence in any division of late. He and Kelly have something of the same style of fighting. They bore in for a quick finish, and tonight's bout will be fast from the first tap. They fight at 158-pounds and are both stronger at that weight, with the odds in favor of the Italian with the Hibernian handle. Their last fight was at 154 pounds, and Kelly weakened himself somewhat by going in at that weight.

George Hackenschmidt's first interview in New York listens well. He is "delighted" that Gotch is a good wrestler. He didn't cross the big pond, you know, to meet any backwoods dub, and he is glad of the opportunity to wrestle a real man. He expects to win, but he hopes Gotch will be as good as he is reputed to be, so that the match may be a good one.

There's nothing of the faker about either Gotch or Hackenschmidt. If either have fooled the public on a match of any significance, the public doesn't want to know it now, for it thought its eyes were always open. Wrestling is the fakers' game, and be it said for both Gotch and Hackenschmidt that they have risen above that reputation and are credited with being "square."

The public is reasonably certain, then, that the Chicago event will be on the level. It is ready to see the best man win, and now many are picking Gotch as the best man. The big Iowan is certainly better than anything in the United States, but Hackenschmidt is a wonderful man. His work with Tom Jenkins several years ago gave the United States a line on him. He is better now than he was then. He doesn't rely entirely on his great bulk and strength, for the science of wrestling is not an unknown art with him.

Gotch is apparently in for the one great battle of his life. He knows it and will do his best to hold favor with the public. Should he be beaten, he must be content with the championship of the United States. At present it looks as though that is all he will get.

HANCOCK IS BEATEN.

Copper Country Champions Make Disastrous Trip to the Soo.

Hancock, Mich., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hancock hockey team, champions of the Copper country, arrived home yesterday morning after a disastrous trip to the Soo. Two games were played with the Canadian Soo and one with the American Soo. The Canadians won their games by scores of 14 to 7 and 5 to 2, and at the American Soo the Hancock boys lost by 4 to 2.

The Copper country team was weakened on the trip by the absence of Linder, the star point man. Carrigan was also out of the last game on account of illness. With the presence of several former professional players in the Soo lines, the teams there are putting up a great article of hockey and the Hancock champions were fairly beaten.

DULUTH WINS AGAIN.

St. Paul Five Defeated in Second Game by Score of 29 to 14.

The Duluth Y. M. C. A. basketball team made it two straight from the St. Paul five by taking Saturday night's game by a score of 29 to 14. The Duluth boys again showed their superiority in team play and basket throwing. There were a few changes in both teams, but neither was weakened.

The first half ended with the score 17 to 6 in favor of the Duluth five. Early in the half, the home team showed its ability and the result was never in doubt. The play was fast all the way through and the spectators were kept on edge by spectacular team play and throws for basket.

The team lined up as follows:

St. Paul	Position.	Duluth.
Folson	forward	Fenton
Swenson	forward	Delghton

IS UNABLE TO TELL HER AGE

Student at Barnard Gets Into Mix, But is Reinstated.

New York, March 16.—Because Mabe Frances Elder, a student at Barnard college, became slightly "mixed" concerning the exact date of her birth, she was expelled from the college and subjected to a two years' investigation that involved scores of witnesses and volumes of testimony. Now, after the trying ordeal, she has been reinstated, largely through the kindly offices of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, and a trustee of Barnard.

It has not been clearly shown that the young woman intentionally fibbed about her exact age, but according to the ponderous documents in the case, there is no doubt whatever that she was the victim of an interchange in names made by her mother long before the girl was old enough to have anything to say about it.

To establish this, it became necessary to obtain much testimony, even to that of an undertaker, who was questioned as to a certain little "white coffin" in which a still younger sister had been buried.

Briefly told, Miss Elder became a student in the ethical culture school of which Dr Felix Adler is the head, in September, 1901. At that time the date of her birth was given as Aug. 9, 1886. She proved to be a pupil of exceptional promise and was so favorably regarded that the trustees commended her for a free scholarship in Barnard.

In June, 1905, she applied for the entrance examination in Barnard, and in the application blank the date of her birth was given as Aug. 9, 1888. This discrepancy was discovered, and as a matter of correcting the records the young woman's attention was called to it. She insisted that the last date given was correct.

From this seemingly trivial circumstance grew the ponderous investigation, and the young woman's subsequent discomfort. For a time the investigation went along in a perfunctory way, then there began to be talk about "persecution," and finally the trustees of the ethical culture school determined that Miss Elder was positively making misrepresentations about her age, and called the attention of Laura D. Gill, dean of Barnard, to the seriousness of the situation. She was suspended from Barnard and now, after two years, is reinstated, but she will never be able to tell her exact age.

FOE TO BLINDPIGGERS

Is Appointed Assistant Attorney General of North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., March 16.—Attorney General McCue expects to fight the illicit liquor traffic in this state to a finish, and for that purpose has appointed George Murray of Sherbrooke as one of his assistant attorneys general. Murray held the position of temperance commissioner until the office was abolished by the supreme court, which held that the creation of the office of temperance commissioner was unconstitutional.

Murray was a demon for blind piggers, and now that he has agreed to accept the place offered him by the attorney general, he will have the opportunity to finish the work he had just commenced when compelled to step out of office.

OUTLOOK IS IMPROVED

All Talk of Hard Times is Stopped in New York.

Return of Prosperity Declared to be a Foregone Conclusion

New York, March 16.—A lean spring, a lazy summer and a large fall is the worst that anyone can predict today for a business outlook. Within a week all talk of panic and hard times has been stopped like a shot by the news that the big Knickerbocker Trust had found its feet. The effect has electrified every atom of trade and finance, the length and breadth of the island. The jar of the closing doors of this institution has given people here a winter of worry and left to some a spring of straits. Their opening thing is, however, galvanizing into more than ordinary action the fibres of business. That the next nip of cold will find things whirling with the old prosperity on a safe and sane basis is declared by the men of money and manufacture here today to be a foregone conclusion. Under the slackness of spring and the sleepiness of summer, they say, will lie the greatest processional which the material interests of this country has ever known. The chastened character of the business extensions, which have already begun to bud, is convincing even the most hardbit that the winter was worth while.

Shielding Scholars.

To shield the blood of 700,000 school children from the slightest chance of the touch of flame or crush, Greater New York is laboring today with an anxiety bred of the Collinwood horror which will not down in the parents' minds. From mayor down to members of the police and fire force, every city official is bent on perfecting a safety scheme which will pluck on the instant each innocent tot from the first show of danger. For years the fire drill has been cultivated up to military tactics by the heads of the public schools here. Time and again the nerve and training of teachers and children have emptied a great building in time of need in minutes by the watch. Veteran educators stoutly hold today that such measures form the only safeguard of their charges and pronounce fire escapes and firemen on duty a dangerous diversion, rather than a help. But beside all this drill and training, the fire department is today making plans to spread around the scholars the strictest watch and quickest means of succor. Gotham is mindful of nothing long. But it will be many a month before the saddening stroke of the Cleveland news ceases to tug at its heart-strings.

Clubdom in Court.

Blue blood at the bar met blue blood on the bench up at the Yorkville police court the other day; and ever since, the blood of the populace, more mixed with good red corpuscles, has been boiling. It was the "Good morning, Will," of Magistrate Kernochan and the answering "Good morning, Freddie," of Prisoner W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., that set the courtroom crowd astir, as an ordinary bike cop arraigned the man he had chased a hard mile to arrest for speeding his auto. When "Will" appealed to "Freddie's" knowledge of his judgment of speed and "Freddie" discharged "Will" and another companion scorcher forthwith, the ordinary bike cop raged and the populace trembled its wrath. That this is the first time on record that Magistrate Kernochan has taken to playing "Freddie" is a mitigating circumstance to those who know this active young police justice means well enough. This is not by any means the first time that "Will" Vanderbilt has been caught meandering the safety of the streets and it is considered high time that he be handed up to a higher and less clubby court.

Checking Crime.

With the startling showing of increasing crime in Gotham, which was set forth by the district attorney in figures, came the news today that California has just received the pioneer band of boys and girls, who have left the parent George Junior Republic in this state to make the first effort to extend the work to the nation. That scores of crooked starts in life have been straightened out at the unique colony up on the hills of Tompkins county, is something which the overworked judges here will testify as they look over the records of suspended sentence. It is the opinion of these practical criminologists today that only by extending the principles which it has taken "Daddy" George fourteen years to work out with his juvenile republic, can crime eventually be met and checked throughout the country. When prisons and reformatories stand deserted and in ruins some day in the future, they declare, society will be depending on a national network of such junior republics, where boys and girls teach themselves the lessons which the greater republic would teach their elders if it did not punish them first.

BIDWELLS CONVICTED

By a Chicago Jury of Operating a Confidence Game.

Chicago, March 16.—Benson Bidwell and his son, Charles F., promoters of the Bidwell Electric company, the so-called "Cold Motor Concern," were found guilty Saturday night of operating a confidence game, which is a penitentiary offense.

Benson Bidwell, who is a brother of George and Austin Bidwell, who defrauded the Bank of England out of $5,000,000, started the electric company in 1906. He declared that he had invented an electric motor that would not burn out. He also claimed that he was the inventor of the trolley car and the electric fan. Investors from all parts of the United States answered the advertisements, sending in to the company $225,000, according to the books of the concern. Charles Bidwell was appointed secretary and general manager of the company and given 366,000 shares of the $2,500,000 stock.

It was claimed by the prosecution that the Bidwells sold their private stock in the company to persons who thought that they were buying treasury stock. This was supported at the trial by Miss Ida C. Palmer, who had been employed as an assistant by Charles F. Bidwell. In addition to testifying against her former employers, she turned over to the state a secret stock book containing the names of investors in the concern.

Good For Everybody.

Mr. Norman R. Conlter, a prominent architect, in the Delbert Building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c at all drug stores.

GOVERNMENT TO RUN THE SALOON

Novel Proposition Made to Congress by Minnesota Man.

Washington, March 16.—Government management, supervision and control of the retail liquor business is the unique but interesting proposition which Mr. Henry Selover of Gladstone, Minn., proposes to congress.

Mr. Selover, in a long statement, which he has sent to Washington, says that the saloon question is rapidly approaching a stage where it is bound to become the leading political issue between the two great parties.

Mr. Selover is not a Prohibitionist, but he takes the stand that that party will not be able to carry its pet theories into effect. As long as corn and rye and hops are produced on the surface of the earth he insists that there will be distilled and malt liquors manufactured into whisky, beer and alcohol, while the grape will never cease to produce wine. He points out, and offers facts to prove his assertions, that the present saloon is far from being a satisfactory institution, even to those who drink. They do not get a pure article, he argues, and the time has arrived when the moderate drinker, who knows how to imbibe scientifically, either goes to the private club or does his drinking at a cafe, hotel, or at home.

Mr. Selover says: "I believe the general government has the power and authority to regulate the saloon. They are now paying both a federal and state license. My idea would be for the government to take over the sale of liquors and this would establish what may seem to some a rather surprising proposition, viz: the government saloon."

PRICES ARE STILL RISING

Figures Show That Cost of Living is Still Increasing.

Chicago, March 16.—Heads of households whose pocketbooks are tapped weekly to provide for "three squares" a day and a comfortable home, will find little consolation in the report from New York that the cost of living had decreased in the last thirty-three months, judging from figures obtained in Chicago.

Wholesale grocers, meat dealers, clothing concerns and shoe houses provided an array of statistics showing that the cost of many of the necessities of life has increased, and that prices of others indicate comparatively little decline. In many lines of canned goods there has been a marked increase in cost.

Beef Alone Is Cheaper.

Sheep are higher than they have been for many years, dealers say, although the price of No. 1 beef is 15 per cent less to the consumer than it was four months ago. The latter decrease, it is asserted, is due to the large amount of cattle now being dumped upon the market.

Workingmen's shoes are cheaper, but the finer grades cost the same as of old.

Clothing is higher, according to dealers, than it was three years ago.

"Sheep are higher than they have been in the last thirty-eight years, so far as my experience goes," said George Duddleston, former member of the board of education, and proprietor of a meat market at 87 Fifth avenue.

There is a marked decrease, however, in the price of hides and butter tallow. The price of pork is erratic. My impression is that the price of meats is about the same as it was three years ago. The report from New York was compiled on a forced sale basis. I know that rents and fuel are higher, and I do not place much credence in stories about a decrease in the cost of living."

Clothing Is Higher.

"There has been a decrease of about 10 per cent in the cost of heavy working shoes," declared J. Harry Selz, of Selz, Schwab & Co. "In the medium grades there has been a decline in price ranging from 3 to 5 per cent. In shoes costing from $3 to $5 there has been no change in price."

"On the whole, I should say that the cost of clothing is higher than it was three years ago," said Harry Hart of Hart, Schaffner & Marx. "In the last year there has been a decrease in the cost of cotton goods. Some of the fine woolens are higher than they were a year ago, while in the medium grades there has been no change during the past year."

ORGANIZE AN ALUMNI CLUB

Phi Delta Theta Fraternity Members Hold a Banquet.

In honor of the day set aside as that on which the Phi Delta Theta National fraternity was founded, March 15, and in order to organize an Alumni club of that society in Duluth, fifteen graduate members gathered at a banquet at the Spalding hotel Saturday night. The club has already an enrolled membership in Duluth of twenty-four graduates, from different universities and colleges in the United States.

The organization of this club will make fifty-one Alumni clubs in the United States. The Phi Delta Theta fraternity has a membership of 15,000, divided among seventy chapters.

At the dinner it was decided that the Duluth club should hold a banquet every half-year, and have regular monthly meetings. Officers were elected as follows: Bert Fesler, president; E. F. Blu, secretary, and C. C. Colton, treasurer.

J. B. Cotton acted as toastmaster, and every member present spoke enthusiastically on the past of the society and the future of the Duluth Alumni association.

The following compose the charter members of the new club:

Elmer F. Blu, Northwestern university; J. B. Cotton, Michigan university; James B. French, Iowa university; Oliver S. Andresen and Charles E. Adams, Minnesota university; Hartley V. Burroughs, Toronto university; Richard M. Sellwood, Cornell university; C. L. Hornaday, Indiana university; Leslie T. Tibbell and Ernest L. Heimbaugh, Wisconsin university; Charles C. A TRAGEDY AT SAN PEDRO, CAL.

Man Shoots Three and is Killed Himself by Officers.

San Pedro, Cal., March 16.—Gracio Elgueta, a lumber handler, last night shot and probably fatally wounded 11-year-old Margaret Manes, wounded 7-year-old Minnie Shackelford twice, shot her grandfather, James Shackelford, through the shoulder, fired at Mrs. Manes and was himself killed by a policeman.

Mrs. Manes, her daughter, Margaret, and Minnie Shackelford, had been seated in the front room of their cottage, the door being open. Suddenly Elgueta appeared in the doorway and opened fire on Mrs. Manes. He fired one shot before the woman ran to the window and jumped out. The man then turned his gun on the woman's daughter, firing a shot which hit the little girl's left breast, passing through, piercing the right lung. The man then fired two shots at Minne Shackelford, the first shattering her left hand and passing through her right arm.

Elgueta then passed into the next room, where Minnie's grandfather, a cripple was lying on the floor He fired two shots at the elderly gentleman, one taking effect in each shoulder.

Policemen Inman and Logan, who had been attracted to the spot by the sound of firing, pursued the fleeing man. The fugitive ran to the yard of his home, where he reloaded his revolver and opened fire upon the officers. They returned the shots and Elgueta fell dead, shot through the heart.

Elgueta was a rejected suitor of Mrs. Manes and jealousy of her led to the shooting.

FIGHTS BATTLE WITH WILDCAT

Seventeen-Year-Old Boy Attacked by Big Animal, Kills It.

Menominee, Mich., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alone in the dark farm yard near his father's home with no weapon but a thick club to defend himself against a sudden attack, John Nohlachek, aged 17 years, had a thrilling experience with a wild cat a few nights ago, which he will not forget for many years to come.

The boy who was caring for the stock in the barn was attracted by a suspicious noise on the outside, going into the yard without any warning a large animal sprang upon the surprised youth who managed to see a big stick in the dark and defend himself against the animal of which he could see nothing but two blazing eyes. After a battle, lasting several minutes, the boy managed to land several well directed blows upon the head of the animal, stunning it. His father's attention had been attracted by the noise and appearing upon the scene with a gun killed the beast.

Young Nohlachek was badly lacerated about his head, neck and arm, and the wild cat when brought to town was unrecognizable, its skull being so badly crushed.

The cat was one of the largest ever killed in Menominee county, measuring three feet in length and weighing about forty pounds.

JAILS ARE GUARDED TO PREVENT LYNCHING.

Henderson, Ky., March 16.—Webster county, the scene of a race war Saturday night, is quiet, but the jails at Dixon and Henderson are being heavily guarded for fear of a raid by a mob. Deputy Marshall Smith Childers of Providence, who was shot by Jack McDowell, a negro, is dying.

Will McDowell, a cousin of the murderer, Tom Fuqua, Tom Miller and another unknown negro, were arrested yesterday charged with the shooting of the traveling men.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, apply Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve to them while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" to purify and enrich the blood.

Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve is cleansing and pain relieving. It destroys the bad odors arising from suppurating, or running, sores and puts them in the best possible condition for healing.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood. "Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter rising after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid, or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and its attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editoral staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription": "A remedy which invarably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "In Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhea (surpressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anemic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can go better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. Easy to take as candy.

The children's laxative—Cascarets. Candy tablets, pleasant to take, gentle in their effects. Throw out the old-time physics.

Look back at your childhood days.
Remember the physic that mother insisted on once in a while—castor oil, salts or cathartics.
How you hated them. How you fought against taking them. How you dreaded their after-effects.
That was all wrong, but then nobody knew better.

With our children it's different.
They belong to the day of the gentle in medicine. The day of harsh physics is over.
We don't force the bowels now; we coax them.
We have no dreaded after-effects.
And the dose is a candy tablet.

Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't know what they do.
The children's revolt is well-founded.
Their tender bowels are harmed by them.
The modern way is to give a gentle laxative, and to give it more frequently. To keep the bowels always active.
The best method is Cascarets. One-half a tablet, as often as needed, does more than anything else to keep a child well.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with C C C on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and

ON THE IRON RANGES

IRON DISTRICT MUCH PLEASED

Over Action of Commissioners in Allowing Them Commissioners.

Coleraine, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is great satisfaction expressed by the citizens of the iron district of Itasca county over the action of the county commissioners in redistricting the county into five commissioner districts at their session in Grand Rapids Saturday. Large delegations of citizens representing the different sections of the county attended the session and presented their claims.

The Commercial clubs from Coleraine, Bovey and Nashwauk especially made a strong showing. J. A. Vaudyke presented the claims of the Canisteo district and Ex-Senator McCarthy spoke for Nashwauk. The former stated clearly that the northeastern part of the county wanted two of the five commissioner districts and offered some startilling facts in support of the claims of this section. He showed that at the last general election there were less than 2,000 votes cast, and that the present voting stength of the territory in the iron townships is nearly half that number. At present this large per cent of the population was without representation on the county board.

The valuation for taxation of the entire county is a little less than $20,000,000 and of this nearly $14,000,000 is in the sections of which Coleraine and Bovey, and Nashwauk are centers. This section did not ask for a representation on the county board commensurate with the population and valuation but only two members. This the commissioners readily conceded, and at the next election officials will be elected from the Canesteo and the Nashwauk districts. Senator McCarthy made a strong plea for the reasonableness of the division proposition. He advocated the general plan of commissioner districts as outlined by Auditor Spaulding, and showed how this would benefit all interests, both mining, farming and business.

WORKS CONFIDENCE GAME.

Smooth One Finds Several Easy Victims in Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A smooth confidence man has found a considerable number of citizens in Eveleth with a new game. Is General Belief Current Around Village of Aurora.

Nineteen steel trip-cars, one dynamo, two cars of lumber and a car of iron rods and pipe have been the shipments to date. It was rumored that all the material of the mine was to be shipped, but this week Supt. Rashleigh has received orders to move the large engine and dynamo, that was shipped last fall but that has been lying at the freight shed since, to the mine and install it. It looks as if everything will be put in readiness to start operations at the St. James' directly after the presidential election.

A number of drills are being worked at the Fowler-Meadow mine, and good deposits of ore are being found.

When the mines are all running here, Aurora will be a hummer. There are immense quantities of ore here; the ore is deep, and will require practically the same number of men in the winter as in the summer.

weakness of the state's case was apparent.

Mr. Larson made a strong and effective plea for the acquittal of his client. He did not ask for mercy, but for justice, asking the jury to either acquit or convict her of the degree of murder charged. Mr. Larson made much of the claim that the state had utterly failed to show any motive for Mrs. Larson to commit the murder, and, worked out with some effect his own theory that Gus Lien, the state's witness had a motive for killing Mattson and that he was more likely to have been the one that committed the atrocious and horrible deed. The defense held that "lust of flesh forms the strongest incentive possible for murder," and that this incentive was before Lien who coveted Mattson's wife.

As for Mattson, the dead man, Mr. Larson was dramatic in his expression of scorn, he said:

"I cannot say a good word for that man who is dead. I cannot think of any degradation deeper than that of a man who will consent to live on the prostitution of his wife. He is as low as it is possible for God to make a man."

During Mr. Larson's address to the jury Mrs. Mattson wept at times. It was the first time that she has shown any emotion during the trial.

When the jury came in and were being polled she sat nervously twisting her handkerchief in her fingers, but did not show by the expression of her face that she realized the import of the verdict. Following the verdict she was hurried out of the courtroom as it was crowded and the officers did not care for any scenes.

flurry to the president and his administration, and said:

"These are only a few of the achievements of this 'uncrowned king.' With others of his kind he has created a Frankenstein monster which unsatiated by the blood of suicide and tears of heartbroken women, threaten to devour and consume his creators who were able to quench his thirst by torrents of gold poured out by the federal treasury."

He charged the senate and house with absolute subservience to the wishes of the chief executive. "Servility and cowardice are the order of the day," he declared.

Mr. Tillman also asserted that every effort was being made to control the negro vote and coming back to the charge of favoritism on the part of the president he said:

Favors the Wealthy.

"The poor fools who were shouting his praises have so far failed to understand that the bad government which the Republican party has given the country is due solely to the ignorance and debauchery of the people. Misled and deceived by the newspapers which are owned by these same rich men, labor, organized and disorganized, trails along behind the banner of Republicanism and shouts for Roosevelt and his policies. The millions who have been robbed are equally as enthusiastic as the millionaires who have been benefitted. The capacity of the people to govern themselves wisely and protect their interests is seriously called in question by existing conditions. The money which came by dishonest and unfair methods is used to control the machinery for the nomination at Chicago.

Price of Negro Delegates Rises.

"The price of negro delegates in the South rises day by day. The office-holding clique manipulated and directed by a high official of the government under Roosevelt's sanction and orders and reinforced by millions in the hands of relatives and friends of one of the candidates is opposed in the struggle for the control of these southern delegates by beneficiaries of Republican misgovernment who want to be left alone in the enjoyment of power and the benefits of their private fortunes which the existing conditions afford. It is a battle between predatory wealth on both sides with the power and prestige of the president thrown into the balance in behalf of his favorites. Civil service rules, pernicious activity of government officials, bold and unblushing efforts to dictate his successor in the White House or compel his own renomination for a third term are conspicuous factors of the situation."

for the town, that he charged a 10 per cent commission on the price of all goods bought and charged $1 per hundred weight for hauling the goods from Vermilion dam, the town paying freight charges on his own stuff as well.

The town officials claim Buyck dominated the town board and that things were made so hot for any opposing supervisor that the latter would resign and the vacancy would be filled by a tool of Buyck.

When Buyck was on the town board, it is allege that his wife acted as chairman in his absence and that she signed orders illegally to the amount of over $2,500.

It is alleged that the road is of no practical benefit, that it is incomplete and impassable and was conceived for the sole purpose of providing a place for the town to spend its money so that Buyck would receive the sole benefit.

The authorities claim that over $17,000 of the township funds provided for bond-lead, although the contest there is very close. The slope district, it is said, will be solid for Johnson. The southern tier of counties have not been heard from yet. In the valley, Johnson men say that Richland and Traill will send Johnson delegations, while Grand Forks and Cass county will split up very badly.

There has been only one Democratic county convention held as yet, that one being at Rolette. The members of the delegation to the state convention are divided about even.

THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST

every rivulet is a roaring torrent, and every river a lake. Bridges have been washed out or dynamited, railroad tracks are under water, and when traffic is not delayed by these disasters, huge landslides block the way.

The most serious reports come from Walla Walla. Mill Creek, which flows through that city, nearly every winter goes on a rampage, but at present it is outdoing previous records and has caused wholesale destruction of business in general, and destruction of several houses.

Next in point of seriousness is the situation at Pendleton. Although the levees, built after last year's floods, are still holding, there is fear that they are becoming undermined. In this case the town will suffer serious damage.

Many Bridges Washed Away.

In the Lewiston, Idaho, country, railroad tracks are reported under water, bridges washed out and fears are entertained that the waterworks, which supply that city will be flooded and the supply of drinking water shut off. Many families have been driven from the lowlands.

The Touchet and Patit rivers have washed out the city dike at Dayton, Wash.

In Western Washington the rivers around Seattle and Tacoma are still rising, but little damage has resulted so far.

The Willamette river and its tributaries are running like a mill race, above Salem, but no damage has resulted.

Railroads Main Sufferers.

As is usual during the flood conditions, the railroads are numbered among the principal sufferers. The worst of these is the Oregon Railroad & Navigation-Union Pacific system—which has not been able to send a train through for the past thirty-six hours. This road is blocked principally by heavy landslides east and west of Pendleton.

Train service in the neighborhood of Walla Walla, and from Lewiston north, is at a standstill.

The Northern Pacific and Great Northern are almost entirely out of the flood districts, though the Northern Pacific suffered to some extent from slides in the western part of Washington.

The prospects today are that conditions throughout the three states will be worse instead of better. According to the last forecast, a new storm, which made its appearance off Vancouver island, Sunday morning, is now moving across the Pacific Northwest, and will cause general rains throughout the district.

STRUCK DOWN BY BLOW IN DARK

Peter Johnson's Ear is Almost Severed From His Head.

It took Dr. Abbott, the police physician, two hours, Saturday night, to replace Peter Johnson's ear, which was almost severed from his head by a blow received, he said, in Nelson's saloon at 21 East Superior street.

Johnson appeared at the station, Saturday night, about 11 o'clock, with his face covered with blood and his ear hanging by a thin shred at the top. He said he had entered the saloon, and, when just inside the door, was dealt a terrible blow on the side of the head. When he came to, he found that he was in danger of losing his aural appendage, and hurried to the police station to secure aid.

Johnson said he didn't know who hit him. It was just before closing time, and by the time the officers reached the saloon, the people had been driven out and the place was closed. A further investigation is being conducted today.

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Liberal World's Shipments and Bearish Southwestern News.

Flax is Unchanged at the Close of Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 16.—World's shipments were very liberal and the news from the Southwest had more of a bearish tone today than it did Saturday, so the American markets weakened during the latter part of the session today, and closed soft.

Liverpool closed ½@⅝d higher. Berlin ¼c lower and Budapest unchanged to ⅝c higher.

The May option closed 1¼c lower in Duluth and New York, 1⅜c lower in Chicago and Minneapolis and 1⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1⅜c lower in Duluth, 2⅜-1¼c lower in Chicago, 1¼c lower in Minneapolis, 1c lower in New York and 1¼c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ¼-⅜c lower in Chicago and 1d in Liverpool. May oats closed ½-⅝c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat offerings were light and the market was well supported, culminated by the strong American cables on Saturday, and the opening values were 1d to ⅝d higher, with the undertone firm. Later, however, easiness developed on the large world's shipments and general dullness, and values lost ¼d of this advance. Toward mid-day the market again turned steady under good outside support, and the decline was recovered. At this time the market was firm for the distant months and from ¾d to 1½d higher than Saturday. March was slightly easier at the mid-day decline.

"Corn was firm and from ¼d to ½d higher. Support was the result of the firmness in America on Saturday. The market was extremely dull. Wheat cargoes weak, sellers asking 1½d to 3d advance. Corn cargoes were steady."

Car receipts at Duluth were 41 against 87 last year, and at Minneapolis 60 against 566 last year, (two days), making a total for the Northwest of 98 against 652 last year. Chicago received 34 against 22 last year. Winnipeg received 3.

Primary receipts of wheat were 980,000 bus., last year 1,000,000 bus. Shipments 279,000 bus., last year 187,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 414,000 bus.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,213,000 bus., and is now 40,114,000 bus., against 47,354,000 bus., a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 587,000 bus., last year 393,000 bus. Shipments 324,000 bus., last year, 442,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 1,292 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Depressing Factors and Active Selling Caused Weakness in Wheat.

Chicago, March 16.—The market for wheat opened weak today, commission houses being active sellers. The depressing factors were increased receipts in the Northwest and favorable weather for the crops in the Southwest. May wheat opened ½@⅝c to ¾@⅞c lower at 95⅜c to 96¼c, and for a time held within that range. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 702 cars against 443 cars last week and 674 cars a year ago.

The market was weak all day because of heavy selling of July and September on account of the favorable outlook for those months. The low point for May was 95¼c. The close was weak with May 1⅜c lower at 95⅛@¼c.

The corn market was easy along with wheat. May corn opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 66c to 66⅜c and sold at 65⅝c. Local receipts were 173 cars with 6 of contract grade.

Prices were easy in sympathy with wheat. The low point for May was 65½c. The close was easy with May ⅞@⅝c lower at 66⅜@⅜c.

The oats market was dull because of a slack demand, and in sympathy with wheat and corn. May oats opened ⅛@⅜c lower to ¼@⅝c higher at 54½c to 55c and for a time held within that range. Local receipts were 274 cars.

The provisions market was easy because of a 5c decline in the price of live hogs. May pork was 2½c lower at $12.30. Lard was unchanged at $7.90. Ribs were 2½c lower at $6.57½.

Closes: Wheat—May, 95⅛@⅜c; July, 89⅝@90c; September, 86⅞@87c. Corn—May, 65¾@⅞c; July, 62¾c; September, 61¾c. Oats—May, old, 51⅜c; May, 52¾c; July, old, 44⅜c; July, 45c; September, 35⅜c. Pork—May, $12.27½@12.30; July, $12.67½@12.70. Lard—May, $7.95; July, $8.17½; September, $8.40. Ribs—May, $6.55; July, $7.10; September, $7.35. Rye—Cash, 82½c. Barley—Cash, 75@85c. Timothy—March, $4.75. Clover—March, $20.75. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 97⅝@99c; No. 3 red, 96⅜@98½c; No. 2 hard 95⅜@$1.01½; No. 3 spring, 95⅜@$1.00; others, nothing doing. Corn—No. 3, 62c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Bug Stories Give Wheat Strength, But Receipts Prompted Selling.

Minneapolis, March 16.—Green bug stories from the Southwest made strength in wheat, as also the fact that Liverpool was up a penny, but the railroads surprised all the trade by bringing 647 cars into Minneapolis against 565 a year ago and this prompted selling. Prices were 1c to 1¼c under Saturday for a good part of the day. Local elevator stocks decreased 50,000 bushels for two days.

The large world's shipments, also the fact that the quantity of wheat on passage increased against, and is now above 60,000,000 bushels, were depressing. May wheat opened $1.00¼@1.00⅝; high, $1.00⅝; low, $1.00⅜@1.00½; close, $1.00⅜. July closed $1.01⅛.

The edge came off the cash market, both No. 1 northern and No. 2 selling ½c under Saturday's basis, No. 1 at 1c over May, and No. 2, at ½c under. Elevators took a good part of the wheat. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.06⅜@1.06⅝ spot, and $1.06⅜, to arrive;; No. 2 northern, $1.04⅜ spot, and $1.04⅜, to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 96⅜c@$1.02.

No. 3 yellow corn, 59⅞@61¼c.

No. 3 white oats, 50½c. No. 2 rye, 74⅝@76¾c.

Barley was firm for malting grades on light offerings of good stuff, but dull for low grades. Closing range, 68 cto 84c.

Flax was easy at ⅛c under Duluth May on receipts of 122 cars or considerably more than expected. Close, $1.15½. Bran is quoted steady at $21.25@21.75, miller reporting a good demand.

Flour was dull and millers were complaining of the active competition of winter wheat flour in Minneapolis territory. Foreign inquiry was light. Shipments, 74,672 barrels. First patents, $5.35@5.50; second patents, $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, 3.30@3.40.

Copper Gossip.

Hayden, Stone & Co., Boton, to Walter W. Carr: We had a good opening for coppers with trade broad and active, the further advance in metal prices in London on top of those for the last few days had made sentiment more cheerful. Activity was in Butte Coalition, North Butte, Boston Consolidated and Utah Consolidated. There was a good deal of profit taking, but prices held steady. We look for a rather narrow market, but with an upward tendency.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minnn., March 16.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade for the week opens up very uneven. A large supply of horses left over from last week are in the hands of dealers which tends to congest the market and keep down the prices of present consignments. Spring trade is not opening up as well as it should and the outlook for the spring season is less encouraging than a week ago. It is impossible for shippers to make any money on the present market. Farm stuff had the call. Mules moved slow. Dealers are making preparations for the big sale Wednesday. The following values show a $5 to $10 slump in all classes.

Drafters, extra	$165@225
Drafters, choice	120@165
Farm mares and horses, extra	110@160
Farm mares and horses, choice	100@140

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Had Reactionary Tendency and Prices Took a Drop.

Efforts to Support Prices Abandoned and Close Was Weak.

New York, March 16.—Trading in stocks started off today in considerable volume and with an irregular price movement. Realizing sales made an impression on some issues that were advancing when the market left off on Saturday and others continued to rise. Republic Steel preferred sold at an advance of 2, Colorado Fuel 1, and St. Paul and American Smelting ⅝. Western Union declined 1.

Considerable further irregularity in prices was shown before the market eventually moved upwards on an increased volume of trading. St. Paul led the recovery, Republic Steel preferred gained 3 points, Delaware & Hudson, Wisconsin Central preferred and National Lead preferred 2, American Tobacco preferred 1¾, St. Paul and American Smelting 1½ and Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, American Car preferred, Louisville & Nashville and Distillers' Securities 1. International Pump fell 1.

The strength in St. Paul was a sustaining factor again when prices tended to yield. That stock rose 2⅝ over Saturday, Missouri Pacific 3, Consolidated Gas and General Electric 2¼, Northern Pacific, Toledo, St. Paul & Western preferred and Railway Steel Spring 1½, Reading, Erie second preferred, Pacific Mail and Western Maryland 1¼ and Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island preferred, International Paper preferred, Corn Products and Central Leather 1. Prices were shaded a fraction before noon. Bonds were steady.

A sharp selling movement began when the traders sought to realize profits in St. Paul. That stock reacted 4 point and there were similar recessions in turn in Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific, Reading and American Smelting. Prices of some prominent stocks showed fractional declines from Saturday. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred advanced 2¼, Texas & Pacific 2 and American Linseed preferred 1. Ontario & Western fell 1.

The tone of the market became distinctly weak in the late afternoon. All of the principal stocks were freely sold and particularly Union Pacific, United States Steel and the copper group. Denver & Rio Grande preferred rose 2⅝.

The market closed weak. Efforts to support prices seemed to be abandoned and the decline became pronounced in and the decline became pronounced in the final hour. Erratic fluctuations in Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie had an unsettling influence. That stock broke from $1.04½ to 97 between sales and then rallied to 102. Union Pacific and Anaconda fell 2, Amalgamated Copper 2⅜, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1¾, Reading 1⅝, Atlantic Coast Line, Northwestern, Kansas & Texas preferred and American Locomotive 1½. Rock Island 1⅜, Delaware & Hudson, American Sugar and Brooklyn Rapid Transit 1¼ and Southern Pacific, Kansas & Texas, Great Northern preferred, United States Steel, American Smelting, Tennessee Copper and National Biscuit 1.

Stock Gossip.

New York—Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market displayed a reactionary tendency today, and prices were generally lower. Considerable realizing was in evidence, but the developments of the day were not of a character to induce selling, other than profit-taking. The recent advance was regarded too fast, and today's recession should tend to strengthen the position of the market. We would not be surprised to see the market sell slightly lower, but think good issues should be bought on declines.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 16.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 5 points on covering, and in response to higher Liverpool cables than expected. Trading was quiet and the active months slipped off a point or two with the market, during the middle of the morning, about 1@2 points net higher. Reports were of good weather in the South and more rapid farm work, but there was no fresh evidences of weakness in the Southern markets.

Spot, closed quiet: middling uplands, 11.20; middling gulf, 11.45; sales, 2,300. Futures closed steady on May and easy on other months; closing bids, March, 10.35; April, 10.35; May, 10.39; June, 10.21; July, 10.17; August, 9.98; October, 9.73; December, 9.77.

YACHTS ON THE MARKET

New York Magnates Are Pinched for the Elusive Dollar.

Are Forced to Sell Palatial Sea-Going Steam Craft.

New York, March 16.—These are hard times for the more than "moderately" rich. Fifty of the largest yachts in this country are on the market. Reports that many owners of huge steam and sail craft were anxious to sell their floating palaces have been rife in shipping circles for several days. An investigation on every hand evidences that the money panic had reached deep into the pockets of yachtsmen.

Designers and yacht brokers said those who wish to sell have bought anew. That is true in a few instances, but the fact remains that never before have so many large craft been for sale.

Especially is this the case in steam yachts. Owners of sailing vessels that cost less to run than steam driven craft are holding back with the hope that business may pick up, but many who have spent tens of thousands a year on coal, crews, fittings and entertaining have been forced to give up the sea, either from lack of funds or of time to spare from business.

The desertions from the blue ribbon fleet will be felt in all of the large clubs, including the New York, Atlantic and the Larchmont organizations. Of the 250 large vessels registered in Newport harbor two years ago for the New York Yacht club cruise many believe there will not be one-quarter to draw from this year. Scores of others who have now their craft up for sale have expressed doubt as to putting their craft in commission. Many make no effort to conceal the fact that they will spend the summer in New York, unless business goes takes a sudden change for the better.

Some Top-Notchers.

Among the yachts on which prices have been named are Geo. Gould's 279-ton Atlanta, formerly Amzi L. Barbour's British-built Lorena, and Frank J. Gould's Helenita, which he named after his wife. Three Vanderbilt yachts are in the market. They are Frederick W. Vanderbilt's 134-ton conqueror, Cornelius Vanderbilt's 70-foot sloop Rainbow, and W. K. Vanderbilt's 70-footer Virginia. Cornelius Vanderbilt, as commodore of the New York Yacht club, will keep his white steamer, North Star, for his flagship.

Another yacht of more than 200 feet that is for sale is the ship America. The Watt estate has named $200,000 as a price for her. William B. Leeds, the "tin-plate king," has put his Noma on the market, as has Col. John Jacob Astor his Nourmahal. The last named is known all over the world, Col. Astor having entertained aboard her in nearly every civilized port.

Morton F. Plant has offered his Black Venetia for $185,000 and his famous schooner Ingomar, which Capt. Barr raced here and abroad, for $85,000. Mr. Plant, however, ordered a steam yacht larger than the Venetia built abroad last fall.

Among the sailing craft for sale is the big black auxiliary schooner Invincible, which the late Charles T. Barney, president of the Knickerbocker Trust company, owned for a number of years. Mrs. Barney has placed the yacht's value at $80,000.

Also in the sailing list are five of the American yachts that took part in the transatlantic race for the Kaiser's cup in 1905. They are Edmund Randolph's 307-ton auxiliary bark Apache, Robert E. Todd's white schooner Thistle, Edward R. Coleman's white schooner Hildegarde, George Lauder, Jr.'s, black schooner Madymlon, and Dr. Lewis A. Stimson's white Fleur-de-Lis. Their total value is in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Fifty Worth $4,000,000.

It is estimated that the fifty largest craft for sale represented a value of $4,000,000. At least four of them are worth well over $200,000 each, and they cost many times that sum. Only five years ago Col. Astor spent $50,000 in some new fittings for the Nourmahal.

On her broad main decks are four small cannons and an arsenal of rifles, revolvers and cutlasses. Having ample coal bunker capacity, she could go anywhere in the world.

Her dining saloon is thirty feet square, the full width of the ship's walls, and the ceiling is paneled in white mahogany. A large fireplace is a feature of this room, and few yachts can boast of such a one as this yacht contains. In the cabinets are handsome silver trophies, including loving cups, tankards, salvers and a huge punch bowl. The large table is covered with a cloth of royal purple embroidered in old gold and turquoise blue. The divans are in robin's egg blue plush.

At the foot of the main staircase and next to the dining saloon is Mrs. Astor's stateroom. Blue and gold are the prevailing tones in the upholstery. The bed has a richly carved headboard of dark mahogany. The colonel's room is adjacent. Across the hall from this suit are guests' rooms. The music room is at the forward end.

At the head of the saloon staircase is the room called by Mr. Astor the "Social Hall." A seat runs the full circumference of the circular room. Also, on the main deck are the chartrooms, cardroom and smoking room.

A fortune has been expended on rugs alone for the princely yacht. The floors of all the rooms and upper deck are covered with priceless specimens from all parts of the Orient. All the brass railing on the decks are covered with alumin

IGNORANCE SAVED HIM

West Duluth Man Tried to Pass Fake Promissory Note.

Released After a Warning to be More Careful.

A clerk in the Columbia Clothing company's store, at Third avenue west and Superior street, gasped this morning when John Hakonen passed a promissory note over and asked if he could get cash for it. The paper called for $512, and the clerk saw that the man was either crazy or ignorant. He was detained while an officer was called, and then taken to the station.

Hakonen said he picked the note up on the street in Hibbing, yesterday, and he thought it was a check. He could make out the figures, and, supposing that was all that was necessary, went ahead in the attempt to secure money on it. He didn't attempt to put any endorsement on it, his story of finding the note seemed plausible and he was released, as no attempt at forgery could be shown. The paper was taken from him and he was advised to be more careful in matters of which he was ignorant.

The note had evidently been made out in jest, for it was dated Oct. 9, 1909. It was signed by A. H. Rivers, and purported to promise to pay Harold Wezne $512, thirty days after date. It was properly made out on a common promissory note blank. The date should have told Hakonen that the paper was worthless.

Hakonen is 31 years old and boarded with Paul Haapanen at 322 South Fifty-eighth avenue west.

FIRE WAS SMOTHERED

And Flamed Up When Firemen Broke Open the Door.

Early last evening, behind locked doors and fastened windows, in a new house belonging to Tony Talarico, at 119 South Fifty-seventh avenue west, a fire crackled and blazed until it became practically smothered through lack of oxygen. When the fire department arrived at the call of a box alarm, turned in by a neighbor, only a little smoke issuing from the cracks at doors and windows gave evidence of the fire smoldering inside. A door was broken in, allowing an inrush of air, and the whole interior was almost instantly enveloped in flames, which were extinguished with great difficulty by the firemen.

Mr. Talarico claims that he had just left the building but ten minutes before and the only fire in the house was that in a stove. No one was in the house when the fire broke out. It is thought that it was caused by a basket of clothes that was near the stove catching on fire.

The interior of the house, which had only been finished last summer, was badly scorched and the stairway was entirely burned out.

The damage is estimated at about $350.

DYNAMITE CLUB BANQUET.

Will be Held One Day Later Than Usual This Year.

Contrary to all customs of years past, the Dynamite club will hold its banquet tomorrow night, instead of St. Patrick's eve. This change is due to the Imperial Minstrels giving their show tonight, and as several Dynamiters have parts in that entertainment, it was considered best to postpone their fireworks until Tuesday night.

The Dynamiters' chef, unfortunately, is out of town, but he has appointed a very competent man to take his place, and great preparations are being made for the annual affair, which promises to be the loudest noise heard in West Duluth in years.

The dinner will take place at the Commercial club rooms.

West Duluth Briefs.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Mitchell, who died Saturday night, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence, 5335 State street. The service will be conducted by Rev. J. W. Loughridge of the Central Baptist church.

Tomorrow night has been set aside at the Western Curling club rink for the pleasure of members, their wives and daughters only. The club plans to devote at least one night each season for such a purpose.

Watch repairing. Hurst, West Duluth.

The funeral of James McLeod, the 19-year-old son of N. M. McLeod, took place this afternoon from the Proctor Methodist church and the interment was at the Oneota cemetery. He died yesterday of typhoid fever at the home of his parents in Proctor.

Mrs. John Princell, who has been visiting her husband for the past week in West Duluth, returned yesterday to Minneapolis.

Saturday evening at the Western Curling club's rink, the Duluth rink skipped by Alexander Macrae defeated A. G. Macauley's rink by a score of 13 to 11, and Martin Meldahl's rink was victorious over the Duluth rink skipped by West, by a score of 14 to 9, giving West Duluth a total score of 25 to Duluth's 22.

Oscar Peterson of the West Duluth police force has been very ill for the past four days at his home, 2216 West Second street.

Mrs. Walter McCumber and son Sironia of Taconite, Minn., arrived in West Duluth this morning. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richter. Mrs. McCumber is Mrs. Richter's sister.

CHARGED WITH BLIND PIGGING

Three Italian Women of Nichols Arraigned in Court.

Three Italian women from the town of Nichols, one of them bearing a child in her arms, were arraigned before Judge Dibell this morning on the charge of running blind pigs. They waived the time for pleading and entered pleas of not guilty. Bail was fixed in the sum of $200 which it was expected each woman would furnish.

The women under arrest are Marie Shendo, Matavo Paulato and Conchato Porucho. Mrs. Shendo brought her baby with her. The state claims that they sold several bottles of beer to Joe Konkovich and Mike Chardilo, Jan. 11 last, at 10 cents per bottle. The women will be defended by Arnold & Pickering of Eveleth.

BAD FIRE AT LYONS, FRANCE.

Lyons, France, March 16.—The fire, which broke out last night in a big biscuit factory here, and which spread over a block of buildings, covering twenty-two acres, was gotten under control when $400,000 damage had been done.

SUPPLIES FOR PANAMA.

Washington, March 16.—Large shipments of supplies of beef, potatoes and ice, for the supply ship Arethusa, are to be sent to Panama by the navy department. The supplies are to be put aboard the vessel about March 20, for the torpedo boat destroyer flotilla, now at Panama.

RAILROADS

TOWERMEN EXCEPTED

Are Not Affected by the New 9-Hour Law.

Train Crews Being Closely Watched by Railroad Officials.

The new federal law governing hours for working on the railroads does not appear to affect the towermen. Towers, it may be said for the benefit of those who are not acquainted with the term, are little buildings placed at most railroad crossings for the purpose of providing a place for the levers which work the block signal systems, and the man who operates them.

Men employed in towers in the Duluth district are still working twelve hours a day, the same as formerly. They expected that under the new system they would work in eight-hour shifts, but were informed by railroad officials that the new law said nothing about employes in towers, and therefore they would have to work along under old conditions. In many respects the towers operating block signal systems are more important than telegraph offices, so it appears to have been an oversight that this class of men was left out.

Towermen, and all employes along the line, in fact, are being closely watched by officials of the Great Northern, and frequent tests are being made to see whether or not they are observing the rules. Officials resort to a variety of subterfuges to ascertain the methods employed by workmen, and just now their efforts in this direction are greater than ever before. This holds true of all roads entering Duluth, to a greater or less extent, but is particularly true of the Great Northern. Tests are made of train crews on different matters at the most unexpected places, and the practice is said to be resulting in several benefits, for the men are constantly on their guard, and instead of getting careless and not showing the proper observance of rules, are taking pains to see that they live up to them, even in the smallest details.

BENEFIT FUND.

Pension and Death Fund Proposed for Omaha Employes.

St. Paul, March 16.—Plans are under consideration by the officials and employes of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road for the creation of a pension and death benefit fund to be maintained by joint contributions of the employes and company. This is an extension of the present pension plan in vogue on the system. The fund is now maintained by the company alone and it is proposed to let employes contribute so as to make the pensions in each case considerably larger than at present. A special committee of employes has the proposition in hand, and it is expected that it will be ready to submit to the company at a "family gathering" of officials and employes to be held at Omaha next Sunday. These "family gatherings" are an innovation in the railroad world. A meeting was held at Hudson, Wis., yesterday, which was attended by 500 to 600 men from various parts of the system. Addresses were made by General Manager Trenholm, General Superintendent Strickland, Harry C. Hope, superintendent of telegraph and signals; Division Superintendent Kennedy and others.

Kodol is today the best known remedy for all disorders of the stomach, such as dyspepsia, heart burn, sour stomach and belching of gas. Sold here by all druggists.

SALOON MAN APPEALS

Right to Jury Trials Will be Passed Upon.

Convicted Saloonkeeper Makes Stand for Retaining License.

Notice of appeal to the district court from the decision of the municipal court in the case against William Fanta for violation of the liquor law was filed this morning by Alexander Marshall, attorney for Fanta. The appeal has not yet been filed with the clerk of the district court, but it will probably be today.

Fanta was arrested during the week of Feb. 16 on complaint of Lieut. Fritz of the city police, who charged him with keeping open after 12 o'clock on the night of Feb. 15. Fanta pleaded not guilty and at a subsequent hearing was adjudged guilty by the court and sentenced to pay a fine of $75 and costs.

The complaint alleged that Fanta was open until 12:20 on the morning of Sunday, Feb. 16. Fanta admitted that there were people in his place after 12 o'clock, but held that he should have been given a reasonable time in which to clear his place. He held that he had locked his doors at 12 o'clock and that no liquor was sold after that hour, the people in the place only consuming what they had purchased before the closing hour.

Fanta has been cited to appear before the council tonight to show cause why his license should not be revoked. He will probably secure a stay from the council until his appeal has been passed upon by the district court. There are several other cases of a similar nature, which came up at the same time as Fanta's and the decision of the court will affect them also.

Fanta will probably not appeal on the grounds that he locked his doors at 12 o'clock, but rather on his right to a jury trial. Under the city ordinance, the court hears the liquor cases, and it is held by Mr. Fanta's attorney that the prosecution for violation of the liquor law is a criminal prosecution within the meaning of the state constitution and the defendant is entitled to a jury trial. The case will probably result in a decision as to the jurisdiction of the municipal court over such cases.

BRYAN TO STEP ASIDE, JOHNSON FOR LEADER, TALK AT WASHINGTON

Report That Bryan Will Refuse to Accept the Nomination.

Believed That Johnson Will be His Choice as Candidate.

Nebraskan Sees Chance to be Power Behind the Throne.

Chicago, March 17.—A Washington special dispatch to the Record-Herald says: Persistent efforts to start a real campaign in the interest of Governor Johnson of Minnesota for the presidency, the announcement by persons claiming to speak for the governor that he will consent to run, and in due time announce his candidacy, and reports that Johnson headquarters are soon to be established in Chicago, Washington and New York, have revived speculation in official circles as to the possibility of the Denver convention being something more than a cut-and-dried Bryan ratification meeting.

Has Governor Johnson changed his mind about being a candidate? If so, why? These are questions of decided interest to the politicians at present, in view of the statements of those professing to speak for the governor, especially their very recent announcements that the Minnesota executive will declare himself in the race in a public speech next month. If Governor Johnson has altered his position emphasized in repeated interviews to the effect that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination, he must have a good reason. He is regarded as too astute to enter knowingly into a hopeless contest.

That a contest against Bryan for the nomination would be hopeless this

POLITICIANS ARE ACTIVE

Begin Campaign for Various Democratic Candidates at Denver.

Bryan, Johnson, Gray and Chanler Are Much Talked of.

Denver, Colo., March 17.—Active political work on behalf of candidates for the nomination for president and vice president before the Democratic national convention, which meets in July 7, has already begun in this city. Headquarters have been rented at the leading hotels and political workers are on the ground looking after the interests of the men they represent.

The campaign for the various candidates seems to have opened about two months earlier than is usual. The men in charge of the convention for the Democratic party say it is customary for candidates to appear in the convention city about thirty days before the convention opens and begin preparations for the campaign. There are half a dozen candidates represented in Denver by political workers with headquarters here who are busy interviewing all who arrive from the various states to secure headquarters for their delegations that are to be here in July.

Prominent in Contest.

Prominent among those who have been mentioned in connection with the presidential nomination are W. J. Bryan of Nebraska, George Gray of Delaware, Stuyvesant Chanler of New York and Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota. Their friends who are already here in their interests state positively that their names will go before the convention as nominees. A number of other candidates for the nomination are mentioned, but none of them appear to have developed strength enough so far to make their intentions of interest to those who are really in the race.

Colorado Delegation.

The attitude of the delegation from Colorado is attracting a great deal of interest. The argument is made that because the convention is being held in this state, and more than $100,000 is to be spent in the entertainment of the delegates from other states, the Colorado delegation should go into the convention uninstructed. For this reason, it is probable that Colorado's delegation will be left free to vote for whatever candidate it chooses.

The citizens of Denver pledged $100,000 to help pay the expenses

GEORGE KEMP, owner of the mill.

The engineer, name not given.

— HAWKINS, an employe.

The cause of the explosion is not known.

RIOTING IN FAIRBANKS

Members of Miners' Federation Cause Trouble in Alaska.

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 15.—Members of the Western Federation of Miners engaged in a riot today. They molested and threatened men going out on the trail to the creek to work and prevented railroad men loading the baggage on the train. The deputy marshal was hurriedly called and found it necessary to club the rioters.

Louis Daazai took five shots at Deputy Phil North, who returned the fire, but no one was injured except a number of federationists, who were clubbed. Daazai was arrested. Tom Steffenson, organizer and leader of the Western Federation of Miners; W. E. Priestley, editor of the Miner's paper, and Frank Cullen, secretary of the local union, were arrested for harboring prisoners in union headquarters after the shooting. Their bails were set at $5,000 and they were sent to jail in default.

PRIMARIES ARE ON AT ST. PAUL

Election Being Held to Select Candidates for Spring Contest.

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A primary election is being held today to select nominees to be voted on at the spring election, May 5. On the Republican ticket, the candidates for the mayoralty nomination are Joseph McKibbin, Louis G. Hoffman and Dr. Carl Wirth. On the Democratic ticket are Daniel W. Lawler and Louis Nash.

George E. Wells is the Prohibition candidate for mayor and Lloyd L. Leith is the public ownership party's candidate. There are about fifty-two public spirited citizens who hope to be nominated for the assembly, which is composed of twelve aldermen and nine assemblymen. The polls opened at 6 o'clock and close at 9 p. m.

Reports on the early registrations in different parts of the city indicate a large primary vote today. The Republican vote is expected to show a heavy increase, possibly reaching 11,000 and aggregating 16,000 for a practical certainty.

While the Democratic vote will be large, it is not expected to reach the figures of two years ago, when the figures reached 12,231 on the mayoralty candidates. Reports from the downtown precincts at 5 o'clock showed that about 20 per cent of the usual primary vote was in. There were no disturbances at any of the polling places, so far as could be learned. The voters, as a rule, went to the booths individually, and few seemed to encourage advice as to how they should vote.

FLEET CAN TOUR WORLD

All Battleships Need is Coal to Go Anywhere.

An Interesting Statement Made by the Chief of Staff.

Magdalena Bay, Lower California, March 13, via San Diego, Cal., March 17.—"The trip from Hampton Roads to Magdalena bay has demonstrated that the Atlantic fleet can go to any part of the world, if coal is provided," declared Capt. A. R. Ingersoll, chief of staff to Rear Admiral Evans, today, when asked for a statement by the Associated Press. Upon Capt. Ingersoll devolved a large portion of the work of executing the cruise.

"The plans, which were formulated last August," he continued, "for the coaling on the present cruise, provided for the use of eighty tons per steaming mile. Then there was added eight additional tons daily for various necessary allowances. We have found that

On Account of Illegal Practices in Interstate Shipments.

Officers of the Chesapeake & Ohio Said to be Guilty.

Certain Favored Shippers Will Also be Prosecuted.

Washington, March 17.—Criminal prosecution, it is indicated officially, will be instituted against certain officials of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company and certain favored shippers by that line, on account of what is asserted to have been illegal practices relative to interstate shipments. It appears from the findings of the interstate commerce commission that the Chesapeake & Ohio favored certain shippers "at the expense of the Sea Board Air Line and Atlantic Coast Line" in the shipment of grain and packing house products, and that the shippers thus favored gave to the Chesapeake & Ohio "all of the inbound business of the shippers so favored by it."

A hearing on the matter of these practices was held last month in Richmond, Va., by the interstate commerce commission, the evidence being taken by Commissioner Lane. The commissioner has submitted his report to the full commission. It has been approved and Attorney General Bonaparte has been requested by the commission to institute, through the United States district attorney at Richmond, proceedings against all parties involved by the evidence adduced.

Commissioner's Report.

Following is the text of Commissioner Lane's report of the practices complained of:

For some years a fraudulent practice, participated in by certain dealers in grain, and also by certain dealers in packing house products, and also by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, has obtained at Richmond, by means of which this railway company has favored such shippers at the expense of the Seaboard Air Line and Atlantic Coast Line, its Southern connections. This practice has resulted in the obtaining for such shippers a rate less than local rates over the Seaboard Air line and Atlantic Coast line for shipments of grain and also for shipments of packing house products, which local rates such shipments were legally bound to pay. This result has been accomplished by means of transfer slips

SCATHING DENUNCIATION OF HIGH FINANCIERS MADE BY SENATOR LA FOLLETTE

DUKE WITH THE ELKINS

New Facts Concerning Rumored Marriage With Senator's Daughter.

Circumstances Do Not Bear Out Denial of Italian Court.

Rome, March 17.—Some significant circumstances regarding the movements of the duke of Abruzzi came to light today, and do not bear out the denial made at the Italian court yesterday of a marriage engagement between the duke (who is a cousin of King Victor Emmanuel) and Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of Senator Elkins, of West Virginia. The duke came to Rome the middle of February, and had several long interviews with the king and his elder brother, the duke of Aosta. The latter came from Naples purposely for the conference. Following these interviews, the duke of Abruzzi asked leave of absence from the command of the battleship Regina Elena. This was granted, since which time the navy department has heard nothing of his movements.

At Spezia it was said the duke left there the end of February, accompanied only by his valet. It is thought at Spezia that the duke went to Paris. Before leaving, he sent an aide to Rome with a letter to the king, saying he would later communicate his address to his majesty. Up to the present time he has failed to do this.

The duke of Abruzzi, who has been staying incognito at St. Augustine, Fla., left there suddenly last night for Washington.

Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins and her daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, were with him.

WORKERS WANT FREE BEER.

Chicago, March 17.—Free beer in unlimited quantities, with the services of a man to distribute it was among the demands which the brewery workers presented for the indorsement of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Incidentally they asked an increase of $2 a week in wages, but that feature was overlooked by the delegates in their haste to indorse the other demands.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE, Who Accuses the Standard Oil Interests and J. P. Morgan of Causing the Financial Panic Last Fall.

UP TO THE GOVERNOR

Records of Board of Control to be Placed Before Him.

Executive Will Straighten Out Friction Between Members.

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The records of the proceedings which have resulted in the present friction between the members of the state board of control will be turned over to Governor Johnson, putting it up to that official to straighten out the matter. Just what action was taken at the board meeting yesterday was not given out, but Governor Johnson said later that he understood the records would be certified up to him. Further than that he was not prepared to say anything, as he had not yet received the records.

The members of the board were not inclined to discuss the day's proceedings. L. A. Rosing held a conference with the governor at the close of the meeting. It was reported that a resolution on the subject of the controversy was adopted by the majority of the board, but just what it provided is not disclosed. It was also reported that certain statements in the record of a previous meeting of the board, when the question of calling for new bids providing for fireproof construction for the model schools at Moorhead and Mankato normals, was under discussion, were expunged from the records.

Cause of Trouble.

The cause of the present trouble among the members of the board is the publication of the proceedings of the board when the fireproof construction for the model schools was being discussed, together with an opinion of the attorney general's office on the subject, as well as one from C. H. Johnston, the architect for the board, in which he stated that he would not have approved the plans for these schools if the final responsibility had been placed on his shoulders. Mr. Ringdahl and Mr. Rosing insist that their first knowledge of the existence of these letters was their publication, and they feel the publication, under such circumstances, was not proper. They blame Mr. Leavett for getting the opinions and for making the matter public. Mr. Leavett has insisted on fireproof construction for the new buildings at the normal schools, but he had been out-voted by the other members.

STALLED UNDER THE EAST RIVER

Fire Keeps Train Load of Passengers in Suspense.

New York, March 17.—For nearly an hour today a train, half filled with passengers, was stalled in the tunnel under the East river while a fire raged in the Fulton street station, under Lower Broadway. The fire started from a short circuit in the third rail, and within a minute the wooden box which encloses the rail was in flames. The grease-soaked wood burned freely and threw off much smoke. It was not until the current in the whole system south of Ninety-sixth street had been shut off that firemen were able to fight the fire. In the meantime the power rail was "dead" for an hour, and the hapless passengers in the stalled train under the river spent that time in darkness and suspense.

Says Standard Oil Influence and Morgan Caused Panic.

Believes It Was Deliberately Planned and Carried Out.

Tells in Vivid Language of Acts in Wall Street.

Washington, March 17.—Declaring that the recent financial stringency in the country was brought about by the influence of "Standard Oil" and J. Pierpont Morgan, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin today, in a speech practically closing the debate on the Aldrich currency bill, entered upon a denunciation of men high in the financial world.

"There were no commercial reasons for a panic," said Mr. La Follette. "There were speculative, legislative and political reasons why a panic might serve special interests. There were business scores to settle. There was legislation to be blocked and a currency measure suited to the system to be secured. There was a tariff term to be disposed of, and policies to be discredited.

"A panic came. I believe that it needs only to be followed step by step to show that it was planned and executed, in so far as such a proceeding is subject to control, after once in motion. Such a statement without support in facts warranting it, would deserve condemnation. To withhold such a statement, to shrink from plain speech setting forth the facts in so far as they can be uncovered, is in the discussion of this legislation, a violation of plain public duty.

He recounted in vivid language his view of the events of Oct. 24, when Wall street was in the throes of the currency stringency, 11:30 a. m. arrived and everybody on the floor of the stock exchange was wildly seeking money at any price. Interest rates which had for several days ranged from 20 to 50 per cent, began to climb higher. Settlement must be made before 3 o'clock. Money must be forthcoming or the close of the business day would see Wall street a mass of ruins and banks and trust companies on the brink of collapse.

Back of the Scenes.

"How perfect the stage setting, how real it all seemed. But back of the

SITUATION IS CRITICAL

Further Executions Are Reported From Port Au Prince.

French Government Will Not Give Up the Refugees.

Paris, March 17.—Official dispatches received here from Haiti indicate that the situation there is still critical for foreigners. M. Carteron, the French minister, reports that fresh executions occurred last night, but he does not give the number. He says that previous to last night twenty-seven men had been executed. He describes M. Lecomte, the new minister of the interior, as "bloodthirsty." Further reprisals are feared, and there is still danger of attack on the foreign legations and consulates. It is reported there that an American warship has arrived at Gonoives.

M. Carteron says nothing about any change in the attitude of the Haitian government regarding the delivery of the Haitian revolutionists who have taken asylum at the consulates, and it is presumed that Lecomte still insists that they be turned over to him at once. The French government, however, will never consent to the delivery of Gen. Firmin or the other Haitians who sought asylum at the French legation on Sunday.

The French government does not anticipate the slightest friction with the United States over the situation in the Haitian republic. The sole purpose of France, Germany, Great Britain, and presumably the United States also, is the protection of foreign subjects against the rapacity of the Haitian soldiery, should the latter get out of hand and throw off the control of the authorities.

Foreign Cruisers Arrive.

Port Au Prince, March 17.—Two foreign cruisers have arrived here, the British Indefatigable and the German Bremen. The coming of foreign ships of war to Port Au Prince is a surprise to the people. The lives of foreigners are not considered to be in danger. Today the situation is tranquil.

CELLMATE SAYS MRS. MATTSON CONFESSED

Lizzie Raffn Tells Herald Reporter Mrs. Mattson Admitted Killing.

"I was awful drunk and hardly knew what I was doing. I did it and then I fell over on the bed across his feet. When I awoke I found the ax handle. I was scared and ran out of the room."
—Statement Lizzie Raffn says Mrs. Selma Mattson made to her while Mrs. Mattson was awaiting trial in the St. Louis county jail on a charge of murdering her husband.

Now that Mrs. Selma Mattson has been tried and acquitted of killing her husband by sinking a double-bitted ax into his head while he lay on the bed at their home at Chisholm, it develops that she admitted the crime to Mrs. Lizzie Raffn of Biwabik, who is serving a term of thirty days in the county jail for drunkenness. Mrs. Raffn let the story of the confession out today and she talked freely enough to a Herald representative.

When asked why she didn't speak during the trial, Mrs. Raffn said:

"I didn't think it was my business and nobody asked me to do so. I am not the kind that meddles in other people's business and it wasn't for me to offer my services."

When asked of the confession, she said she had first learned of the charge against Mrs. Mattson from Lizzie Tepson, who was held as a witness in the case.

"Lizzie told me that Mrs. Mattson was accused of murdering her husband," Mrs. Raffn said. "'And she did it too,' said Lizzie. 'How do you know she did?' I asked. 'Well, I was with them that night and heard them quarreling, and she told me afterward that she did it,'" she said. "After that I had several conversations with Mrs. Mattson about the crime and I could tell that she wanted to get rid of him for a long time. She said she had left him several times and he had followed her and induced her to return to him.

"'Couldn't you find an easier way to get rid of him than that?' I asked her. 'You made money and could easily have gotten a divorce, because he beat you, didn't he?'

"'Well,' she told me, 'I tried to get rid of him several times, and he always followed me.' She seemed to be slow of comprehension, and had done it with only the idea of getting rid of him.

"'How did you come to do it?' I asked her. She said she was awfully drunk and hardly knew herself what she was doing. When they went to the room, she said, he laid on the bed, and then the whisky got the better of her. She said, after she did it, she could not control her actions, but fell in a stupor across the bed. When she awoke, she found the ax handle and rushed out of the room.

"She told me of different occasions when she wanted to get rid of him and left him. She said that night all her wrongs seemed to rush on her, and she didn't know what she was doing when she got the ax and put him out of the way."

Mrs. Raffn has ideas of her own. She says she gathered from Mrs. Mattson's conversation on different occasions that she had been contemplating getting rid of Mattson for some time. About a year ago, Mrs. Mattson told her, she had given her children away, and didn't know where they were now. Mrs. Raffn thinks that, while figuring on getting rid of him, she "spotted" the ax, and then, when she was drunk, on the night of the murder, the insane scheme came into her head.

Mrs. Mattson can not again be tried for the murder, after being tried by a jury, and the light Mrs. Raffn throws on the crime can not be used by the authorities. Mrs. Mattson told the woman that she will leave soon for her home in the old country, as she doesn't want to stay here any longer.

SUPERIOR NEWS

OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN.

Superior Mayor Victor Linley, who is a candidate for renomination and re-election on the Republican ticket in Superior, opened his campaign at Music Hall in the East end, last evening with a stirring address to a crowd of 300 to 400 people. Mayor Linley scored the brewery interests for the part they are said to be taking to defeat him, and declared that the manhood and womanhood of Superior is all that is going to keep the liquor element from winning the fight. Mayor Linley warned the people that while the Sunday closing law is being enforced now that there is a possibility that it will be relaxed with the right sort of a mayor in the chair. He pointed out the fact that the law existed previous to his own administration, but was not enforced. He paid his respects to the "business men" of the city who have condemned his policy of closing up the "red light" district and intimated that there were other business men in Superior who did not pander to the trade that formerly came from that district.

Among the other speakers were William Lawler, City Attorney McIntosh and G. E. Deltrich.

Will Complete Approaches Soon.

From the present condition of the construction work on the new approaches to the Interstate bridge it is expected that the structure will be completed by April 1. Between 250 and 300 piles will be used for the approaches on each side of the bay.

Will Recommend Paving.

Following the meeting held with the property owners along Grand avenue, last evening, it is expected that the council committee will recommend the paving of Grand avenue between Belknap and Eighteenth streets to the full width, with creosoted blocks. Only a few of the owners present wished to deter the improvement.

Holds Annual Meeting.

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Superior Board of Trade last evening a warm discussion is said to have taken place over the merits and demerits of the old plan of operating the board, and the matter is claimed to be undetermined as yet. Secretary Lent's annual report was not made public, it is understood that there will be a lively contest on the board over the option trading as some of the members are said to be determined to put an end to all question of bucket-shopping, and to operate the board on so-called legitimate lines.

J. S. Lane's Editorial

Suits and topcoats, like men, have character.

And that is one reason why you should have your clothes made to order.

Ready-made guessfits, after they have gone out into the world awhile, look like ten cents.

Some deceive by first appearance, but invariably prove false to their trust. None gives the service of a garment built to your measure.

If I couldn't bond my clothes for character, for fit and for service, I would retire from business.

That's why I incorporate in every order "Satisfaction or No Pay."

My prices—$35, $38, $40, $45—are $5 to $10 less than any other good tailor charges, and there are no better clothes than mine built at any price.

NEW TRIAL IS ORDERED

Court Sets Aside Verdict in Favor of Maxim Heirs.

Judge Dibell has denied the motion of John Brigham for a judgment, notwithstanding the verdicts in the three cases brought against him by the Maxim heirs, but has ordered a new trial.

The actions, which were similar in nature, were brought by May Maxim Smith, Alphonse Maxim and Grace Maxim Miller against Mr. Brigham to recover an aggregate sum in the amount of about $5,000 as the plaintiff's alleged share in the proceeds for the sale of some iron ore lands on the Mesaba range for $10,000.

The plaintiffs claimed that Mr. Brigham had obtained their interest in the property for the nominal sum of $250 by fraud and that he should be compelled to share the profits of the deal with them.

The jury awarded verdicts against Mr. Brigham totalling something over $5,000.

Judge Dibell sets the verdict aside and grants the new trial on the ground of errors by the court in charging the jury. His memorandum is, in part, as follows:

"The jury had under consideration the transaction whereby the representative of the Maxim heirs surrendered to the defendant the unrecorded deed. The claim of the plaintiffs was that the defendant practiced fraud in obtaining the surrender. The claim of the defendant was that there was no fraud and that he bought the Maxim interests and that the unrecorded deed was surrendered to him upon the purchase, for the purpose of putting the title in the grantee in a new deed from the grantor. Fraud was the gist of action. The issue was upon the fraud. The issue was not on the question whether there was a sale. Evidence of the sale was merely evidence in disproof of fraud. The burden was in the plaintiff to prove the fraud. The settled case shows that the court charged the jury that the burden of showing a sale was in the defendant, as the claim of a sale was defensive matter. This was a palpable and inexcusable error. It was substantial in its nature and prejudicial. The question of fact was a close one. For this error a new trial must be granted."

BRAINERD COUNCIL PUTS MATTER UP TO VOTERS.

Brainerd, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night took the first active step toward solving the question of the future water and light supply for the city of Brainerd, when it unanimously passed a resolution submitting to the people the question of bonding the city in the sum of $159,000, the full limit of the city for that purpose, for funds to purchase or erect waterworks, and to furnish power for the electric light plant. The question will be submitted at a special election, which will be held on Tuesday, April 24.

The city now owns its own electric light plant, but is securing its power from the Northland Power company, which owns and operates the dam across the Mississippi here. A twenty-year contract for power expired March 13, and the city has only been able to secure a renewal on a basis of six-months' notice to be given by either party. The waterworks system is owned by the Minnesota Waterworks company, and it is expected that if the bond issue is voted, and there is every reason to expect that it will be, that condemnation proceedings will be commenced at once under the state law to acquire the water plant.

WEST END

TEMPERANCE GATHERING

Union Society Will Hold Big Rally in West End.

The Duluth Union Temperance society will have a big temperance rally next Sunday evening in the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

This will really be the regular monthly service of the society, but plans are being made to have it one of the most enthusiastic demonstrations for the cause of temperance that has been held in the city this winter.

The work of the Duluth Union Temperance society is not confined to the West end. Its membership and the scope of its usefulness extend over the entire city. Sometimes services are held in one part of the city and sometims in another.

The principal speakers next Sunday evening will be Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, and Albert Thoren, one of the officers of the society. Both men have been taking an active part in the society's work for the cause of temperance.

Others will probably give short talks, and there will be a special musical program.

WANT NEW SCHOOL.

West End Hillsiders Will Urge Their Needs Still Farther.

At the last meeting of the board of education, members of the West End Hillside improvement association petitioned that body for a new schoolhouse to replace the Horace Mann building, which they regard as most unsatisfactory, not to say unsafe, and delegates from the association will probably journey uptown and appear in person before the board at its next meeting.

The members of the improvement association and others residing in the district are very much opposed to having the Horace Mann building used for school purposes another year. The building is an old one, and they say it has outlived its usefulness. What they want in that locality is a new building, and the members of the improvement association will urge that, if they get a chance, at the next school board session.

DOCTOR THE SKIN TO CURE THE SKIN

Scientific Study Proves Eczema Cannot Be Treated by Dosing the Stomach With Drugs.

Advanced medical science, after years of study and research, is now practically agreed that Eczema, psoriasis, salt rheum, and diseases of like nature are skin diseases—and cannot be cured by doctoring the blood. The treatment prescribed is the direct application of healing, soothing remedies to the skin.

"Doctor the itch where the itch is"—such is the common sense as well as scientifically correct conclusion. Oil of wintergreen, compounded with such other soothing vegetable remedies as glycerine and thymol in D. D. D. Prescription, is recognized as the specific. Physicians use D. D. D. Prescription freely in their practice. Dr. C. A. V. Hartleben, Washington, D. C., writes as follows:

"D. D. D. Prescription is medicinal, soothing and the effect is miraculous. God knows it saved me a deal of suffering. I recommend it to everyone I can."

INDECENT BUSINESS CARDS

Saloonkeeper who circulate business cards containing vile and suggestive jokes, and poems are likely to find themselves in trouble, according to C. W. Arnold of Minneapolis, who is in the city today.

Mr. Arnold is engaged in a movement to suppress all forms of objectionable advertising, and the indecent bulness cards are one of the objects of his attack. Warrants have been sworn out for two saloonkeepers in a neighboring town, who have been circulating a card with a most vile and indecent paragraph on the back. Similar cards have been seen at times in Duluth, and if any local saloonkeeper have been guilty of circulating them they are likely to also find themselves under arrest.

"I don't intend to stop until I get such men as these behind the bars," said Mr. Arnold today. "There is one agency which supplies the saloon men with these cards and they are the men I am after."

Bergerson says he went to Pike lake and Two Harbors after disposing of the horse. The horse was valued at $200. Bergerson was placed on trial in police court this afternoon.

BIG CROWDS

Throng the Emma J. Johnson Department Store in West End.

Last Saturday was the opening day of the Emma J. Johnson sale, at 2112 West Superior street, and the attendance was such that the large force of extra salespeople was utterly unable to wait properly on the hundreds of bargain-seekers who thronged the store, from its opening until its closing. Yesterday more salespeople were added to every department, but even then they were taxed to their utmost.

Each day the firm adds fresher and greater values, which draw thrifty buyers from every part of the city. The goods are being disposed of rapidly, regardless of their value, and the sale is regarded as a record-breaker.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

At the mid-winter meeting of the executive board of the Minnesota Federation of Women's club held during February at St. Paul the report of the committee interested in the establishment of a scholarship fund for girls as a memorial to the late Mrs. Lydia Phillips Williams was heard. Of this enterprise the last issue of the Courant, the official club paper of the federation says:

"Not only has the Minnesota Federation served to give weight to the influence of women in public questions, but it has now created a loan fund to help in the education of some girl, who as a result of high standing, moral character and proper disposition, has demonstrated her longing for an education. This helping girls to an education, aiding them to be independent and self-suppoorting and providing them with weapons with which to fight the battle of life, appealed to Federation as a fitting way in which to perpetuate the memory of Lydia Phillips Williams, second president of the Federation.

The board, in executive session, set aside $200 from the state treasury as a nucleus for this work. No club nor person is to be solicited for funds to aid in this work; yet since many clubs and individuals expressed the desire to contribute to this fund as a mark of love and respect for the woman whose memory the Federation would perpetuate, no one is barred from sending whatever sum she desires directly to the state treasurer, Mrs. E. G. Lewis of Sauk Center.

This memorial loan fund is to be administered through a special committee composed of Miss Margaret Evans, first president of the Federation, the acting state president, corresponding secretary, vice-president-at-large and the state treasurer; acting in conjunction with the educational committee of the state."

STORE OBSERVATIONS

Gold Fish, Summer Hats, Flowers for Ten Cents.

Gold fish, small, wriggling, but beautiful little creatures may be purchased for 10 cents each. At the same counter a small globe, large enough for one fish, may be bought for another 10 cents. In the tub with the golden beauties there is a dark-spotted silver fish, and most interesting of all, a few well-grown poly-wogs. Any one of these specimens may be taken home to the children on payment of the trifling sum of 10 cents each.

"Wee Willie," or "The Curse of Clifton," may become your own for 10 cents in silver, or two nickels.

Fuzzy-wuzzy yellow chickens, to whose cotton batten sides have been glued a few real feathers, are already suggesting the Easter season and the coming forth of new things. Rabbits and other symbols of the Easter time are also shown in large variety.

On an adjoining counter are to be found the spring flowers.

Not potted tulips, golden yellow and beautiful, nor yet home-grown violets, nor even Easter lilies, in regal beauty, but great stuffed, swollen, pink rose buds, or smaller red roses in clusters and violets in bunches of stiff purple, such as nature never produced, and then there are black red cherries, nestling in a branch of verdure, that is more life-like than the real, and lilies, those starry suggestions of the early spring, in branches of lavish splendor. Any one of which may be purchased at 10 cents each.

Across the aisle from this riot of color may be secured a hat, a large, limp, languid hat, for 10 cents. Very close to this the necessary skeleton of wire may be bought for another petty dime, upon which the limp and languid bit of woven straw may be made to assume a shape of more or less beauty. If a twist of ribbon is needful to make this confection a thing of beauty, that, also, may be purchased at a nearby counter for 10 more cents. Any one who can furnish the art for combination can easily see that a very grand hat, a veritable come-into-the-garden-Maud kind of hat, may be wrought at a small expenditure. If the decoration is carefully selected it would hardly be necessary for Maud to go into the garden.

A string of jagged, uneven coral may be bought for 10 cents a string. It may supply the missing bit of color in your costume.

NOT A PARTICLE OF SKIN ON BODY

Worst Case of Eczema Doctor Had Seen in 40 Years.—For Six Months Father Expected His Baby to Die—Blood Oozed Out All Over Her Body—Had to Be Wrapped in Silk and Carried on a Pillow—Now She Is Perfectly Cured.

DOCTOR RECOMMENDED CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My little girl was born two weeks before her time and my wife died four hours after the birth of our child and I had to raise the baby on artificial foods. Six months after birth she broke out and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked for her to go to her mama, but thank God and his agents, she is alive and well to-day and she will be three years old the seventh of December and has never had a sign of the dread trouble since.

"I used every known remedy to alleviate her suffering, for it was terrible to witness. Dr. C—— gave her up and then I went to C—— F—— and got Dr. B—— and he and Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment saved her. He recommended the Cuticura Remedies, or said we were right in making use of them. As nearly as I can remember, we used eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment; but you must take into consideration that hers was an exceptional case, for an old and good doctor said that it was the worst case that had come to him in forty years. I have always hinged on Cuticura Soap to keep her skin soft and to give her a pure complexion. James J. Smith, Wood and Metal Pattern Maker, Box 234, Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 14 and 22, 1906."

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"THE TATTOOED MAN."

Frank Daniels Manages to Extract Many Laughs From Audience.

A little black-haired girl, a pretty young woman with a clear, sweet soprao voice, a clever comedienne in a burlesque "old maid" part, and some impersonations of popular comedians by a good-looking young man, save "The Tattooed Man" from being a very mediocre production.

Admirers of Frank Daniels, who are accustomed to look upon him as "the whole show," met with the unexpected last evening, when the popular comedian made his first bow in two years before a Duluth audience. There were three or four people in the company who came in for as much attention as he did, and at least one who caused just as many laughs.

The Daniels type of humor seems to grow closer and closer to the burlesque. He is still funny, at times, but his elastic eyebrows, facial contortions and gestures are not enough to arouse hilarity in themselves, and the machinist who hammered together the lines of "The Tattooed Man" was about as scintillating as an English duke.

But to return to the little lady in the chorus. She was strictly on the job at all times. She was a whole host in herself, and was the center of attention while she was on the stage. Her lines consisted of yelling when the others yelled, and singing when they sang, but that didn't keep the black haired little miss from working.

Daniels himself failed to arouse much enthusiasm during the first act, not enough, in fact, to call for the accustomed funny curtain speech, but he settled down to business in the second act and soon was furnishing the audience with fun in his old-time way.

Julia Brewer possesses a remarkably sweet and pretty voice, and has in addition pleinty of grace and good looks to recommend her to the audience. As Lelia she easily made good. Norma Kopp was good as Alma, and Louise Sylvester was the one who rivaled Daniels in extracting laughter from the audience. Harry Clarke was clever as Algy Cuffs, and William Danforth sang well in the part of Abdallah.

The chorus was a good one, containing several pretty girls, and the scenery and costumes were all that could be desired.

"The Tattooed Man" is an alleged musical comedy in two acts, the scenes of which are laid in Persia. Daniels appears as Omar Khayam, who bears on his neck a mystic birthmark. The story has it that two other people in the world bear the same mark and that all three must die when one does. This and two or three love affairs furnish the plot that is usually given a musical comedy.

AT THE BIJOU.

One of the Best Bills of Season is Shown This Week.

One of the best bills ever put on at the Bijou is being played at that popular house this week. There are seven numbers on this week's bill, everyone of them being above the average in brightness and up to dateness. Taken, altogether, the show is one of the best vaudeville offerings of the current season.

The musical act of Hale and Corbin and Miss Allen is one of the best acts of its kind ever given here. A specialty of banjo selections and some of the classical music of the trio, is far above the ordinary. Their selections range from the topical tune to the best of the classics.

The Doric four, composed of Billy Moore, Kem Metcalf, Charles Riener and Wilbur Turner, does some very good vocal work.

"The Nightingale," is a clever one act sketch and "Canard, The Man on Time," is a high class comedy novelty. McNish and Penfold do a song and dance act, and Isadore Silver sings some new illustrated songs. A new lot of moving pictures are shown.

The Burlesquers.

The High School Girls, at the Metropolitan this week, ought to get the money for the mere reason of their good looks, not taking into consideration the worth of their performance, which incidentally should be given a high rating, judging from burlesque standards.

Some of the High School Girls look as if they had just graduated, which is quite a point in their favor when it is considered that many of the chorus girls who come to the Metropolitan had finished their studies when some of the youngsters in the High School company were in the kindergarten.

The entertainment comprises two whiffs called "The Mayor of Nowhere," and "Willie Taylor," and a good program of vaudeville stunts. Matt Kennedy, who has a comical face and a good line of talk, is the principal cut-up and he hands out a good many laughs. Incidentally, Jeanette Young sings "Dreaming" in a real classy fashion. There are some good songs in the burlesques and the chorus works well in them. "The Girl I Left in Boston Town," is perhaps as good as any, although Mat Kennedy's topical ditty make a hit.

Madelin Franks, the soubrette of the company, opens the olio and Robert Athon and Jeanette have one of those amusing skits about matrimony. Sutton and Sutton do some twisters and get off a lot of rustic comedy. The Big Four continues its efforts while on the stage to singing, which is most commendable, inasmuch as the singing is all right. The three Wiora Sisters contribute a breath of Hungarian gypsy life that holds interest.

"The Man of the Hour."

"The Man of the Hour" will be back at the Lyceum tonight for an engagement of three performances.

Duluth people have pleasant recollections of the play, which was seen here but a few weeks ago. It is a high class drama of political life, portrayed by a first class company, and those who missed seeing it on its first visit, missed one of the best dramatic offerings of the season. There will be a popular priced matinee tomorrow.

The advance manager states that the company is the same as that seen here on its last engagement.

TELL THEIR GRIEVANCES

Woodsmen Give Evidence Against Agents Before the Aldermen.

That the council might hear direct complaints against the employment offices, Chief Troyer took James and Duko Merila and Barney McCoy before that body last night and had them tell their grievances.

The two Merilas hired out March 13 with the Lake Superior Employment company for work in Murphy Bros.' camp, they said. They claimed the employment agent had represented to them that the camp was sixteen miles from Knife River and that they would be allawed to ride free on a logging train from that station to the camp. They paid their fares to Knife River and, when they arrived there, they said they were not allowed to ride on the logging train. They learned, they said, that the camp was forty miles from Knife River and they walked back to Duluth, twenty-two miles.

Barney McCoy said he hired out to the Duluth Employment company to go to Saxon, Wis., for the Schroder Lumber company, March 9. He was sick on that day and when he reported the next day, they would not send him, and have held him waiting since. His original ticket was stamped "Fare Paid" and the only jobs they have offered to send him to since were with the stipulation that he pay his own fare.

Matthew Alexander also appeared at the meeting and told his troubles. He said he hired out last fall with the Northern Employment office to go 200 miles into Wisconsin to work at cutting ties for the Northwestern Lumber company. He said he paid his own fare and when he arrived at the place, there wasn't a tie or a stick of timber in sight. He said his fare cost him $9 both ways and only by legal process had he recovered that amount.

He said that last spring, he hired out with another company to go to Koochiching to work at tie making, and when he arrived there, he couldn't find a tie. On his return to Duluth, he said, he couldn't collect a cent, although he paid out $15 in railroad fares.

The matter was referred to the special committee for investigation of employment offices.

What Is Good Style?

As fashion leaders at the Head of the Lakes, women of cultivated tastes look to us each succeeding season for THE CORRECT STYLES, knowing that the S. & B. Co.'s interpretations are authoritative and dependable.

This knowledge and this result of it are the life-blood of our business. WE KNOW MORE THAN ONE OR TWO GOOD STYLES; we show the season's "fads" as well as the standard creations in fine garments.

What is style? First of all, the requirements of current fashion must be embodied in the design. Then the cloth must not only be in fashion, but also suited to the design of the garment, the trimmings must harmonize with the color, and the pattern of the cloth must be appropriate for the design.

And it is fully as important that the garment be cut shapely, sewed and pressed just right, and that THE LINING AND UNSEEN PARTS be shaped and stitched properly. These details are given attention only by the best tailors.

Thus, STYLE is workt into the garment, step by step—consequently, STYLE IS MORE THAN MERE FASHION, OR APPARENT FASHION. The stylish garment is tasteful in design; it fits gracefully; it is thoroly tailored; it is in fashion, of course; and, finally, GOOD STYLE REACHES ITS CLIMAX IN BECOMINGNESS TO THE INDIVIDUAL WEARER.

THE S. & B. CO. offer you THE STYLES AS THEY REALLY ARE; the knowledge of their perfection as described here enhances their WORTH, while it educates one to be more critical, to distinguish the defects and shortcomings of the many "NEARSTYLES" exploited now-a-day.

The old board had $7,201.54 to work with the past year and performed considerable work with it. The road from the Mohawk to the Syracuse mine had $2,229.94 spent on it, and the building of the St. Louis River and Aurora road cost $2,981.60. This latter road will be completed this year, work to be started as soon as funds are available. This road was built to draw the trade to Aurora of the farmers south of town.

WOULD DYNAMITE JUDGE.

Report at Hibbing That Woman Threatened Magistrate.

Hibbing, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report is current that Mrs. Mike Iuri, who runs a boarding house here, and whose husband was recently released from the county jail for assaulting Arvid Selzar, had made threats of dynamiting the home of Judge Brady of the local court, even going so far as to boast she had several sticks of the explosives in her trunk to be used in sending the home of the dispenser of justice skyward. This sensational disclosure was made during the court proceedings yesterday involving the son of the accused, who was fined $10 for firing a pistol over the head of one of the boarders for making alleged threats against his mother. An interpreter had to be used and during the trial it was claimed that several of the boarders told of hearing the woman make the dynamite threats against Judge Brady. The court paid little attention to the story, inclining to the idea the woman was laboring under more or less worry because her husband was in jail, and the judge had promised to have him released.

TOWN OF STUNTZ HELPS OUT HIBBING LIBRARY.

Hibbing, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The township of Stuntz will not allow the village of Hibbing to bear all of the expense of equipping and maintaining the handsome new Carnegie free public library just completed at a cost of $25,000. At its last meeting the town board decided that as the townspeople, as well as those living in the village, would benefit by the library, an appropriation would be the proper thing, and this was voted. The village of Hibbing has to contribute $2,500 per year to support the library and the liberality of the Stuntz town board will permit of large investments in library books and general equipment.

ST. PATRICK IS GIVEN TRIBUTE

For His Great Deeds by Large Audience at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night's entertainment given at the Vail hall, in honor of Ireland's patron saint, under the direction of the local A. O. H., drew a crowd which completely filled the hall. The address of the evening was given by M. E. Lennon, a local lawyer. He compared the condition of Ireland when it had self-government with that under the British rule. He showed that Ireland was the only country that prospered without the aid of bloodshed; that it grew through the establishment of schools and places of learning, through the great influence of religion and education. It was the only nation that enjoyed 600 years of continual peace and prosperity.

He compared it with the bloody triumph of Rome and Athens, and pointed out their weaknesses. He predicted that within the coming generation Ireland would secure home rule.

Mr. Lennon eulogized the character and work of St. Patrick, and was roundly applauded at its close.

Before and after the address musical numbers were given by a number of young men and women. Those prominent in the affair were the Misses Margaret, Bessie and Josephine Murphy of Virginia. A vocal solo, "The Rose of Old Derry," was well sung by Miss Gertrude De Noble. She responded to an encore after continuing her applause. A baritone solo was given by Mr. Hare, while ten young men and women appeared in two different scenes. A vocal solo was given by A. E. Snider, while Leland & Hubbard in a number by a string quartet. The enjoyable evening was closed by the singing of "Saint Patrick's Day."

MT. IRON'S NEW CHURCH.

First Presbyterian Edifice Fittingly Dedicated Sunday.

Mountain Iron, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new First Presbyterian church, erected here at a cost of $4,223, was dedicated Sunday in fitting style. The pastor was in charge of the service, Rev. S. J. Jamieson, pastor-at-large, in the Duluth presbytery, preached the dedicatory sermon, when $800 of the indebtedness on the equipment was raised at this meeting and the trustees expect to raise the balance soon. The church has a membership of thirty-five persons, seventeen of whom were received during the past year. The First Presbyterian church of Mountain Iron was organized Oct. 3, 1905. Its history, thus far, though brief, has been eventful. It assumed self support from the beginning and called Rev. C. Garvin to act as pastor. Mr. Garvin remained in the field about six months. Rev. A. N. Wolff was then called and entered upon his duties May 1, 1907. Soon afterwards plans were laid for the erection of a suitable house of worship.

BABIN HAS NOT SOLD.

Proctor Hotel Man Has to Do a Lot of Explaining.

Proctor, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. Babin, proprietor since Oct. 15, 1906, of the Proctor hotel here, is doing a lot of explaining these days because of a heading over a story in Saturday's Herald, stating that the Proctor hotel had been sold. The article told of the sale of the Railroad hotel, owned by John Morris, to M. Landry of Iron River, Wis., and there was no intention to make it appear that Mr. Babin had sold the Proctor hotel. This explanation is due Mr. Babin, as he has received numerous inquiries, which also shows incidentally that The Herald is widely read.

The ball to be given tonight by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen at the village hall is expected to be a largely attended and very successful affair, and interest in the event is quite keen.

SCATHING DENUNCIATION

scenes, Morgan and Stillman were in conference. They had made their presentations at Washington. They knew when the next installment of aid would reach New York. They knew just how much it would be. They awaited its arrival and deposit. Thereupon they pooled an equal amount and held it. Then they waited. Interest rates soared. Wall street was driven to a frenzy. Two o'clock came and interest rates ran to 150 per cent. The smashing of the market became terrific. Still they waited. Union Pacific declined 10½ points; Northern Pacific and other stocks went down in like proportion. Five minutes passed—ten minutes past 2 o'clock. Then at precisely 2:15 the curtain went up with Morgan and Standard Oil in the center of the stage with money—real money, $25,000,000 of money, giving it away at 10 per cent.

"Oh, uncrowned king.
None but himself can be his parallel;
Even to the dullest person standing by,
Who fastened still on him a wondering eye,
He seemed the master spirit of the land.

Plot Worked Beautifully.

"And so ended the panic, so beautiful it worked out. They had the whole country terrorized. They had money of the deposits of the banks of every state in the Union to the amount of $500,000,000, nearly all of which was in the vaults of the big bank groups. It supplied big operators with money to squeeze out investors and speculators at the very bottom of the decline, taking in the stock at an enormous profit. In this connection the operations of Morgan and Standard Oil furnish additional evidence of the character of this panic. We have record proof of their utter contempt for commercial interests, not only for the country generally but for legitimate trade in New York city as well."

"The Morgan and Standard Oil banks," he said, "pursued in that critical moment the course of the speculating bankers.

"They ministered to the needs of Wall street, quite deaf to the appeals of commerce. Their course was that of men who are playing with the credit of the country for a purpose."

Mr. La Follette reviewed the growth of industrial reorganization. "These reorganizations were at the outset limited to those turning out finished products, similar in kind," he said. "Within a period of three years following 142 reorganizations were effected. In making these reorganizations the opportunity for a large paper capitalization offered too great a temptation to be resisted. This was but the first stage in the creation of fictitious wealth. The success of these organizations led quickly on to a consolidation of combined industries, until a more handful of men controlled the industrial products of the country. The opportunity to associate the reorganization of the industrial system with banking capital presented itself. Such connections were a powerful aid to reorganizations, and reorganization offered an unlimited field for speculation. It was a tremendous temptation."

Growth of Combinations.

He discussed the economic development of the country, and laid especial stress upon the growth of financial combinations.

"The bare names of the directors of the two great bank groups (Standard Oil and Morgan), given in connection with their business associations, is all the evidence that need be offered of the absolute community of interest between banks, railroads and all the great industries.

"There are twenty-three directors of the National City bank (Standard Oil). There are thirty-nine directors of the National Bank of Commerce (Morgan). Examination of these directors shows that these two groups are being knit together, suggesting their full identification.

"Subject to differences which may arise between powerful individuals of these different groups, resulting in occassional collision, they are practically a monopoly and, as far as the public is concerned, practically one group. The business partner of the head of the Morgan group is found on the directorate of the chief financial institution which heads the Standard Oil group. And one of the leading directors of the National City bank (Standard Oil) is a member of the board of directors of the principal financial institution in the Morgan group. The directors of the leading organization comprising the two principal groups are bound together in mutual interest as shareholders in the various industrial concerns which have been financed by one or the other of these groups in recent years.

"Remember that these fifty-two men who are directors of the two important back groups are not additional to the list of less than 100 whom I have referred to as controlling the industrial life of the nation, but a part of it.

Fourteen Head Great Combinations.

"Fourteen of the directors of the National City bank are at the head of fourteen great combinations representing 38 per cent of the capitalization of all the industrial trusts of the country.

"The railroad lines represented on the board of this one bank cover the country like network. Chief among them are the Lackawanna, the Chicago Burlington & Quincy, the Union Pacific, the Alton, the Missouri Pacific, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Rock Island, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Mexican National, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Northern Pacific, the New York Central, the Texas & Pacific, the Erie, the New Haven, New York & Hartford, the Delaware & Hudson, the Illinois Central, the Manhattan Elevated of Ne York city, and the Rapid Transit lines of Brooklyn. These same twenty-three directors, through their various connections, represent more than 250 other banks, trust companies, railroads and industrial corporations, with an aggregate capitalization of more than $11,200,000,000.

Speaking of the great stores of money in New York, in connection with various industrial institutions, he continued. "With this enormous concentration of business it is possible to create artificially, periods of prosperity and periods of panic. Prices can be lowered or advanced at the will of the 'system.' When the farmer must move his crops, a scarcity of money may be created and the prices lowered. When the crop passes into the control of the speculator an artificial stringency may be relieved and prices advanced, and the illegitimate profit, raked off the agricultural industry, may be pocketed in Wall street.

"If an effort is made to make any one of these great interests obey the law, it is easy for them to enter into a conspiracy to destroy whoever may be responsible for the undertaking."

Criticises Aldrich Bill.

He severely criticised the provision of the Aldrich bill by which railroad bonds are to be made security for emergency circulation and charged that it was a scheme to defeat legislation which might lower railroad rates.

"As a common carrier the railway is entitled to charge sufficiently high rates to pay operating expenses and a reasonably fair return upon the fair value of the property which it uses for the convenience of the public. This is the standard and the only standard by which to measure reasonable rates. To secure the application of this standard to the railway rates of the country has been the object of a struggle extending over many years. The courts have sanctioned it. The interstate commerce commission has urged it upon the attention of congress, and common justice to the public interest demands it. Tried by this standard, if a railway company has grossly overcapitalized its property, it cannot rightfully impose upon the public a transportation charge to pay any return or dividend upon this fictitious capitalization. It does not signify that the public has not yet been able to secure the application of this standard to the rates of the country. Their cause is just, and its defeat from year to year has been accomplished only through the powerful influences which the great transportation concerns of the country and those interested in these securities have been able to successfully exert in preventing legislation.

"Today we are confronted with the astounding proposition that congress shall hold out legislative inducement for the exaction of transportation charges which shall net a continual 4 per cent dividend on railway capitalization. It is idle to say that this measure is limited in its scope; that it has reference simply to a limited issue of railway bonds as security. He is blind indeed who does not see the ultimate effect of a proposition which directly or indirectly raises a standard for the payment of a fixed dividend upon railroad capitalization without regard to the valuation of the property.

Will Advance Railway Rates.

"The certain effect of this action by congress is to stimulate every railroad company within the purview within this statute to maintain the position of its bonds within the favored class, and every other railway company to qualify at the earliest possible moment for admission to the favored class. It is plain, sir, as the noonday sun, that the direct effect of this proposition will be to advance railway rate charges, and that it will identify the government with a maintenance of rates in all cases where it has accepted railway bonds for currency circulation."

He insisted that the interstate commerce commission is not empowered to ascertain the value of the physical property of the railway companies of the country, and strongly favors such a valuation as the only means of fixing railroad rates.

"When once the government invites the national banks of the country to invest in them for the patriotic purpose of averting financial disaster these railroad bonds will become sacred paper," he said.

"The good faith of the country will be pledged to defeat any legislation that suggests a disturbance of the 4 per cent dividend upon the stocks. The senator from Rhode Island will be heard in solemn warning. We will be told that the bonds were bought by the banks not to make money, but to be held in readiness to protect the credit and commerce of the country; that bond markets are easily disturbed; that such security is delicate and sensitive; that legislation menacing dividends even upon grossly watered stocks would alarm the holders of these bonds and force them upon a falling market at great sacrifices, possibly producing panic and leaving the banks but partially prepared to take out emergency currency.

"Could any plan be devised which would be more effective in blocking the way of legislation for valuation of the physical properties of railroads and defeating the final reduction of rates to a just and reasonable basis."

we were able to keep well within this estimate and maintain the ten-knot speed. The arrangement for coaling at all of our various stops have been carried out and the pre-arranged plans have proved entirely adequate.

"At Rio we took on 24,000 tons; at Punta Arenas, 21,000; at Callao, 21,000, and at Magdalena, when we have finished with the colliers, we shall have taken on 35,000 additional. This supply will be adequate to last until we arrive at San Francisco. This provides also for the coal to be used in our target practice.

"All of this amount of coal was provided with the exception of the amounts taken on at Rio and Trinidad from chartered colliers.

Plans Worked to Perfection.

"The supply shiploads, and the provisions for the fleet, were computed at the same time as was the coal estimate, and submitted to the department. These have worked out to perfection. Our fresh meat lasted, and when we reached Magdalena we still had 200,000 pounds left over. We had 1,000,000 pounds of fresh meat when we started. The bakeries on our ships have supplied us with 900 to 1,000 loaves of bread daily.

"We started with 500,000 pounds of potatoes, which supply was exhausted at Punta Arenas. We issued the last 4,000 pounds there. From there to Callao the crews were rationed with dehydrated or dried vegetables, which were found to be most satisfactory. At Callao we took on 238,000 pounds of potatoes, which lasted until we reached Magdalena. Here the Buffalo met us with 200 tons more. This will last ten days until the Culgoa can get here from San Diego, where she was sent from CaHao with orders to take on stores and return here. She will give us enough fresh provisions to last until we arrive at our final destination at San Francisco.

Can Go to Any Part of the World.

"The trip has demonstrated that the Atlantic fleet can go to any part of the world if coal is provided. The rest will be easy. I may say that, all taken together, the men and officers of the fleet have not regarded the present cruise in the same remarkable sense that the public has. With them it has merely been a day's work—nothing more. However, they are all gratified at the successful conclusion of the cruise to date. It merely confirms our expectations."

Much disappointment is expressed throughout the fleet over the failure of the expedition to rescue the American sailor, Jeffs, from Indefatigable Island. The fleet passed within about forty miles of the island and the tender Yankton was sent in to make the search. The landing party from the tender searched all habitable portions of the island for two days. Remains of camp fires were found in several parts, but no trace of the sailor was discovered. In one place a razor was found with Jeffs' initials on it. It is the belief of the men in the Yankton that the marooned sailor has been picked up by some passing vessel. Search was made in every possible place where the man could have concealed himself before perishing, but it was without result. The Yankton proceeded to Acapulco and is expected to reach Magdalena the first part of next week.

Target Practice For Three Weeks.

Target practice will occupy probably about three weeks. There will be no battle practice, that being held in the fall of the year. Preliminary practice is limited to two ships, the Kansas and the Vermont, which have not yet fired all of their guns in practice. All will engage in record target practice. There will be four ranges, four ships firing at a time. The rafts for the targets were finished this afternoon and were being towed out to the grounds to the southeast of where the squadron is anchored. Yesterday and today three or four of the ships, including the Georgia, Rhode Island, Kansas and Vermont, were on the range laying out the lines and anchoring buoys for attachment of the targets and for the guidance of the ships. The frames of the targets were towed out by a tug. The canvas covering which forms the targets will be put in place in the morning. The shooting will then begin. It is likely that the fleet will leave here between April 5 and April 10. Stops will be made at San Diego, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and Santa Cruz.

At Los Angeles ports, where the fleet will be divided into divisions of four ships each, to be anchored off Long Beach, San Pedro, Redondo and Venice and Santa Monica, it is not unlikely that the fleet first will steam in single line formation up the coast along the line of the various ports, and then divide. This would make a splendid naval pageant, which might be witnessed by the people of those cities. Again, on departure, the fleet probably will form in single column and sail North, repeating the parade. A simultaneous salute, such as was given in some of the South American ports, may be fired.

Only One White Man at Magdalena.

The little town of Magdalena has not grown to any appreciable extent because of the fleet's visit. It is about the same size that it has been for years past. It consists of a row of small one and two-story white-washed houses, located on the northern shore of what is known as Man of War Cove. The houses set back from the beach some fifty feet and extend for perhaps 1,000 yards along the shore. Mr. Heney, a cousin of Francis J. Heney, the assistant district attorney of San Francisco, is the only white man in the place. He has resided here for the past eight years as local manager for a company, controlling 4,120,000 acres of land, which fronts along the bay. A young woman, a cousin of Mr. Heney, and her mother, reside with him.

The remainder of the population is entirely Mexican. There are normally about 115 people in the place. On the ranch, horses and cattle are reared. The cattle are killed for local consumption. Water is the great problem. Ordinarily it is brought from many miles inland and frequently is furnished to Mr. Heney by the ships in the harbor. The ships convert the salt water into fresh and afford an adequate supply.

The day before the arrival of the Atlantic fleet the steamer Curacao from La Pax, landed thirty-eight Mexicans at Magdalena, and the question of food and water for them was a serious problem. Mr. Heney solved it by securing a supply from the ships. Governor Sanginez and his official party are quartered at Mr. Heney's residence, which is the most pretentious in the place.

Within the past two days, two or three new buildings of a temporary nature have sprung up along the beach and are being used by Mexican vendors.

of the national convention, and $75,000 of that sum has already been paid to Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and the remainder will be paid March 21. Elaborate plans for decorations and entertainment of delegates will call for the expenditure of further large sums.

Members of the Democratic national committee who are here say that candidates are appearing in the political arena in larger numbers this year than has ever been before known. The announcement that 1,000 delegates, alternates and prominent politicians will come from New York city alone, lends credence to the belief that there will be an exciting contest for places on the ticket.

SITUATION IS CRITICAL

harbor last night and announced her arrival by three cannon shots. These detonations at this late hour created a small panic in Port Au Prince, but calm was quickly restored as soon as the reason of the firing was made known. The Bremen arrived here today.

Refugees Cannot Leave.

Washington, March 17.—The Hitlan situation is described by the state department officials today as decidedly more grave than at any time since the revolution has been in progress there. Dispatches received early in the day are to the effect that the Haitlan government has reversed its decision to allow the refugees in the foreign legations to leave the country. They will not be allowed to do so.

As a further protection to American interests in the island, the curiser Des Moines was ordered to proceed at once to Port Au Prince from Guantanamo. The gunboat Eagle was dispatched there yesterday. It is estimated the Des Moines can make the trip in approximately fifteen hours. The only instructions given are that American interests shall be protected.

CRIMINAL PROSECUTION

issued by the station agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, on the written instruction of the assistant general freight agent of this railway company, said transfer slips falsely conveying to the Southern lines the statement that such shipments had originated at points beyond Richmond, and were entitled to move from Richmond to destination in the Carolinas at a division of a through rate, such division being less in amount than the local rates to which these shipments were legally subject.

Shippers Reap Benefits.

"The benefits of this arrangement have been reaped by the shippers enjoying it and also by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, which, whether by express agreement or not, has received all of the in-bound business of the shippers so favored by it.

"It also further appears that the assistant general freight agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, responsible for the above described abuse, upon discovering that the same was under investigation by special agents of this commission, undertook to make amends for the same to the Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast line. To this end he ordered that a list be prepared of all cars which had, by his orders, been moved at a division of the joint through rate less in amount than the local rates to which they were legally subject. Being informed by one of his subordinates that this list would be a very long one, he gave orders that the list should only show the cars moved during the months of August, September and October, 1907. Having been furnished with a list covering these months, he forwarded it to the Southern lines with a statement that it showed 'all' cars so misbilled, which he had been able to discover.

"It also appears that certain records of the Chesapeake & Ohio company have been destroyed, contrary to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce. This destruction appears to have been made by the auditor of disbursements under authorization of the comptroller of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company.

"So far as the matters disclosed are criminal in their nature, they will be referred to the United States district attorney at Richmond with the request that prosecution be instituted against all parties therein involved."

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

Virginia, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the committee appointed by the Commercial club to consider the question of a home rule charter for Virginia was held last evening in the council chamber. The members of the committee present were: J. L. Kimball, ex-president of the council; R. C. Pickering, Mayor Andrew Hendrickson, A. C. Osborn, president of the council, and Frank Hughes, secretary of the Commercial club. The next step will be the circulation of a petition to the judges of the circuit court, asking for the appointment of a charter commission.

The Commercial club will hold its next meeting tomorrow evening, when the matter of county division will be brought up for discussion, also the making of final arrangements for the banquet to be held on Tuesday, March 24.

Mr. McCloud was 30 years old and is survived by his wife, to whom he was married only Feb. 1. He was taken ill soon after the wedding. The funeral will be held at Chisholm, Wednesday. WHITE TOWNSHIP BOARD

Has Made Many Improvements, Notably in Roads.

Aurora, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the newly elected officers of the town of White take office they will have a balance of $881.85 in the treasury to work with. The old board had $7,201.51 to work with the past year and performed considerable work with it. The road from the Mohawk to the Syracuse mine had $2,200.91 spent on it, and the bridging of the St. Louis River and Aurora road cost $2,581.99. This latter road will be completed this year, work having been started this spring, and will be opened as soon as funds are available. This road was built to draw the trade to Aurora of the farmers south of town.

WOULD DYNAMITE JUDGE.

Report at Hibbing That Woman Threatened Magistrate.

Hibbing, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report is current that Mrs. Mike Buri, who runs a boarding house here, and whose husband was recently released from the county jail for assaulting Axel Sazar, had made threats of assaulting the home of Judge Bailey of the local court, even going so far as to boast she had several sticks of the explosives in her trunk to be used in sending the home of the disposers of justice skyward. This sensational disclosure was made during the court proceedings yesterday involving the son of the accused, who was fined $50 for tossing a pound over the head of one of the boarders for making alleged charges against his mother. As the fine remained unpaid at last accounts it is claimed that several of the local women have determined to make board so cold hereafter as to drive Judge Brady, the sitting magistrate, out of town. The court paid little attention to the story, ascribing to the idea the woman was laboring under more or less worry because her husband was in jail, and the judge had promised to have him released.

TOWN OF STUNTZ HELPS OUT HIBBING LIBRARY.

Hibbing, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The township of Stuntz will not allow the village of Hibbing to bear all of the expense of equipping and maintaining the handsome new Carnegie free public library just completed at a cost of $25,000. At the last meeting the town board decided that as the townspeople, as well as those living in the village, would benefit by the library, an appropriation would be the proper thing, and this was voted. The village of Hibbing has to contribute $2,500 per year to support the library and the liberality of the Stuntz town board will permit of large investments in library books and general equipment.

ST. PATRICK IS GIVEN TRIBUTE

For His Great Deeds by Large Audience at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night's entertainment given at the Vail hall, in honor of Ireland's patron saint, under the direction of the local A. O. H., drew a crowd which completely filled the hall. The address of the evening was given by M. E. Lennon, a local lawyer. He compared the condition of Ireland when it had self-government with that under the British rule. He showed that Ireland was the only country that prospered without the aid of bloodshed, that it grew through the establishment of schools and places of learning, through the great influence of religion and education. It was the only nation that enjoyed 500 years of continual peace and prosperity.

He compared it with the bloody triumph of Rome and Athens, and pointed out their weaknesses. He predicted that within the coming generation Ireland would secure home rule.

Mr. Lennon eulogized the character and work of St. Patrick, and was roundly applauded at its close.

Before and after the address musical numbers were given by a number of young men and women. Those most prominent in this line were the Misses Margaret, Bessie and Josephine Murphy of Virginia. A vocal solo, "The Rose of Old Derry," was well sung by Miss Gertrude De Noble. She responded to an encore after continual applause. A baritone solo was given by Mr. Hare, while ten young men and women appeared in two different songs. A violin solo was given by A. E. Sadler, who played the violin in a number by a string quartet. The enjoyable evening was closed by the singing of "Saint Patrick's Day."

MT. IRON'S NEW CHURCH.

First Presbyterian Edifice Fittingly Dedicated Sunday.

Mountain Iron, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new First Presbyterian church, erected here at a cost of $4,223, was dedicated Sunday in fitting style. The pastor was in charge of the service, Rev. S. J. Jamieson, assisted by many of the Duluth presbytery, preached the dedicatory sermon. About half the indebtedness on the equipment was raised at this meeting and the trustees expect to raise the balance soon. The church has a membership of thirty-five persons, seventeen of whom were received during the past year. The First Presbyterian church of Mountain Iron was organized Oct. 3, 1905. Its history, though fair, though brief, has been eventful. It assumed self support from the beginning and called Rev. C. Garvin to act as pastor. Mr. Garvin remained in the field about six months. Rev. A. N. Wolfe was then called and entered upon his duties May 1, 1907. Soon afterwards plans were laid for the erection of a suitable house of worship.

BABIN HAS NOT SOLD.

Proctor Hotel Man Has to Do a Lot of Explaining.

Proctor, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. Babin, proprietor since Oct. 15, 1906, of the Proctor hotel here, is doing a lot of explaining these days because of a leading over a story in Saturday's Herald, stating that the Proctor hotel had been sold. The article told of the sale of the Railroad hotel, owned by John Morris, to M. Landry of Iron River, Wis., and there was no question as to make it appear that Mr. Babin had sold the Proctor hotel. This explanation is due Mr. Babin, as he has received numerous inquiries, which also shows incidentally that The Herald is widely read.

The ball to be given tonight by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen at the village hall is expected to be a largely attended and very successful affair, and interest in the event is quite keen.

The funeral of the 2-year-old daughter of Capt. Mitchell was held at the Catholic church at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

VIRGINIANS IN ISHPEMING.

scenes Morgan and Stillman were in conference. They had made their presentations at Washington. They knew when the next installment of aid would reach New York. They knew just how much it would be. They awaited its arrival and deposit. Thereupon they pooled an equal amount and held it. Then they waited. Interest rates soared. Wall street was driven to a frenzy. Two o'clock came and interest rates ran to 150 per cent. The smashing of the market became terrific. Still they waited. Union Pacific declined 100 points; Northern Pacific and other stocks went down in like proportion. Five minutes passed—ten minutes, past 2 o'clock. Then at precisely 2:15 the curtain went up with Morgan and Standard till in the center of the stage, with money real money, $25,000,000 of money, giving it away at 10 per cent.

"Oh, uncrowned king.

"None but himself can be his parallel;

"Even to the dullest person standing by,

"Who listened still on him a wondering eye.

He escaped the master spirit of the land.

Plot Worked Beautifully.

"And so ended the panic. How beautiful it worked out. They had the whole country terrorized. They had money of the deposits of the banks of every state in the Union to the amount of $500,000,000, nearly all of which was in the vaults of the big bank groups. It supplied big operators with money to squeeze out investors and speculators at the very bottom of the decline, taking in the stock at an enormous profit. In this connection the operations of Morgan and Standard Oil furnish additional evidence of the character of this panic. We have record proof of their utter contempt for commercial interests, not only for the country generally but for legitimate trade in New York city as well."

"The Morgan and Standard oil banks," he said, "pursued in that critical moment the course of the speculating bankers.

"They ministered to the needs of Wall street, quite deaf to the appeals of commerce. Their course was that of men who are playing with the credit of the country for a purpose."

Mr. La Follette reviewed the growth of industrial reorganization. "These reorganizations were at the outset limited to those turning out finished products, similar in kind," he said. "Within a period of three years following 12 reorganizations were effected. In making these reorganizations the opportunity for a large paper capitalization offered too great a temptation to be resisted. This was but the first stage in the creation of fictitious wealth. The success of these organizations led quickly on to a consolidation of combined industries, a more manifold and much controlled the industrial productions of the country. The opportunity to associate the reorganization of the industrial system with banking capital presented itself. Such connections were a powerful aid to reorganizations, and reorganization offered an unlimited field for speculation. It was a tremendous temptation."

Growth of Combinations.

He discussed in one vein development of the country, and laid especial stress upon the growth of financial combinations.

"The bare names of the directors of the two great bank groups (Standard Oil and Morgan), given in connection with their business associations, is all the evidence that need be offered of the absolute community of interest between banks, railroads and all the great industries.

"There are twenty-three directors of the National City bank (Standard Oil). There are fifty-nine directors of the National bank of commerce (Morgan). Examination of these directors shows that these two groups are being knit together, suggesting their full identification.

"Subject to differences which may arise between powerful individuals of these different groups, resulting in occasional collision, they are practically a monopoly of the banks so far as the public is concerned, practically one group. The business partner of the head of the Morgan group is found on the directorate of the chief financial institution which heads the Standard Oil group. And one of the leading directors of the National City bank (Standard Oil) is a member of the board of directors of the principal financial institution in the Morgan group. The directors of the leading organization comprising the two principal groups are bound together in mutual interest as shareholders in the various industrial concerns which have been financed by some one of the other of these groups in recent years.

"Remember that these fifty-two men who are directors of the two important bank groups are not additional to the list of less than 100 whom I have referred to as controlling the industrial life of the nation, but a part of it.

Fourteen Head Great Combinations.

"Fourteen of the directors of the National City bank are at the head of fourteen great combinations representing 38 per cent of the capitalization of all the industrial trusts of the country.

"The railroad lines represented on the board of this one bank cover the country like the network. Chief among them are the Lackawanna, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Union Pacific, the Alton, the Missouri Pacific, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Rock Island, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Mexican National, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Northern Pacific, the New York Central, the Texas & Pacific, the Erie, the New Haven, New York & Hartford, the Delaware & Hudson, the Illinois Central, the Manhattan Elevated of New York city, and the Brooklyn Transit lines of Brooklyn. These same twenty-three directors, through their various connections, represent more than $20 other banks, trust companies, railroads and industrial corporations, with an aggregate capitalization of more than $1,500,000,000.

Speaking of the great stores of money in New York, in connection with various industrial institutions, he continued: "With this enormous concentration of business it is possible to create artificially, periods of prosperity and periods of panic. Prices can be lowered or advanced at the will of the 'system.' When the farmer must move his crops, a scarcity of money may be created and the prices lowered. When the crop passes into the control of the speculator an artificial stringency may be relieved and the prices advanced, and the illegitimate profit, raked off the agricultural industry, may be pocketed in Wall street.

"If an effort is made to make any one of these great interests obey the law, it is easy for them to enter into a conspiracy to destroy whoever may be responsible for the undertaking."

Criticises Aldrich Bill.

He severely criticised the provision of the Aldrich bill by which railroad bonds are to be made security for emergency circulation and charged that it was a scheme to defeat legislation which might lower railroad rates.

"As a common carrier the railway is entitled to charge sufficiently high rates to pay operating expenses and a reasonably fair return upon the fair value of the property which it uses for the convenience of the public. This is the standard and the only standard by which to measure reasonable rates. To secure the application of this standard to the railway rates of the country has been the object of a struggle extending over many years. The courts have sanctioned it. The interstate commerce commission has urged it upon the attention of congress, and common justice to the public interest demands it. Tried by this standard, if a railway company has grossly overcapitalized its property, it cannot rightfully impose upon the public a transportation charge to pay any return or dividend upon this fictitious capitalization. It does not signify that the people ...as not yet been able to secure the application of this standard to the rates of the country. Their cause is just, and its defeat from year to year has been accomplished only through the powerful influences which the great transportation concerns of the country and those interested in these securities have been able to successfully exert in preventing legislation.

"Today we are confronted with the astounding proposition that congress shall hold out legislative inducement for the exaction of transportation charges which shall net a continual 4 per cent dividend on railway capitalization. It is idle to say that this measure is limited in its scope; that it has reference simply to a limited issue of railway bonds as security. He is blind indeed who does not see the ultimate effect of a proposition which directly or indirectly raises a standard for the payment of a fixed dividend upon railroad capitalization without regard to the valuation of the property.

Will Advance Railway Rates.

"The certain effect of this action by congress is to stimulate every railroad company within the purview within this statute to maintain the position of its bonds within the favored class, and every other railway company to qualify at the earliest possible moment for admission to the favored class. It is plain, sir, as the noonday sun, that the direct effect of this proposition will be to advance railway rate charges, and that it will identify the government with a maintenance of rates in all cases where it has accepted railway bonds for currency circulation."

He insisted that the interstate commerce commission is not empowered to ascertain the value of the physical property of the railway companies of the country, and strongly favors such a valuation as the only means of fixing railroad rates.

"When once the government invites the national banks of the country to invest in them for the patriotic purpose of averting financial disaster these railroad bonds will become sacred paper," he said.

"The good faith of the country will be pledged to defeat any legislation that suggests a disturbance of the 4 per cent dividend upon the stocks. The senator from Rhode Island will be heard in solemn warning. We will be told that the bonds were bought by the banks not to make money, but to be held in readiness to protect the credit and commerce of the country; that bond markets are easily disturbed; that such security is delicate and sensitive; that legislation menacing dividends even upon grossly watered stocks would alarm the holders of these bonds and force them upon a falling market at great sacrifices, possibly producing panic and leaving the banks but partially prepared to take out emergency currency.

"Could any plan be devised which would be more effective in blocking the way of legislation for valuation of the physical properties of railroads and defeating the final reduction of rates to a just and reasonable basis."

we were able to keep well within this estimate and maintain the ten-knot speed. The arrangement for coaling at all of our various stops have been carried out and the pre-arranged plans have proved entirely adequate.

"At Rio we took on 24,000 tons; at Punta Arenas, 21,000; at Callao, 21,000, and at Magdalena, when we have finished with the colliers, we shall have taken on 35,000 additional. This supply will be adequate to last until we arrive at San Francisco. This provides also for the coal to be used in our target practice.

"All of this amount of coal was provided with the exception of the amounts taken on at Rio and Trinidad from chartered colliers.

Plans Worked to Perfection.

"The supply shipboards, and the provisions for the fleet, were computed at the same time as was the coal estimate, and submitted to the department. These have worked out to perfection. Our fresh meat lasted, and when we reached Magdalena we still had 200,000 pounds left over. We had 1,000 tons of fresh meat when we started. The bakeries on our ships have supplied us with 300 to 1,000 loaves of bread daily.

"We started with 500,000 pounds of potatoes, which supply was exhausted at Punta Arenas. We issued the last 4,000 pounds there. From there to Callao the crews were rationed with dehydrated or dried vegetables, which were found to be most satisfactory. At Callao we took on 238,000 pounds of potatoes, which lasted until we reached Magdalena. Here the Buffalo met us with 200 tons more. This will last ten days until the Callao can get here from San Diego, where she was sent from Callao with orders to take on stores and return here. She will give us enough fresh provisions to last until we arrive at our final destination at San Francisco.

Can Go to Any Part of the World.

"The trip has demonstrated that the Atlantic fleet can go to any part of the world if coal is provided. The rest will be easy. I may say that, all taken together, the men and officers of the fleet have not regarded the present cruise in the same remarkable sense that the public has. With them it has merely been a day's work—nothing more. However, they are all gratified at the successful conclusion of the cruise to date. It merely confirms our expectations."

Much disappointment is expressed throughout the fleet over the failure of the expedition to rescue the American sailor, Jeffs, from indefatigable Island. The fleet passed within about forty miles of the island and the tender Yankton was sent in to make the search. The landing party from the tender searched all habitable portions of the island for two days. Remains of camp fires were found in several parts, but no trace of the sailor was discovered. In one place a razor was found with Jeffs' initials on it. It is the belief of the men in the Yankton that the marooned sailor has been picked up by some passing vessel. Search was made in every possible place where the man could have concealed himself before perishing, but it was without result. The Yankton proceeded to Acapulco and is expected to reach Magdalena the first part of next week.

Target Practice For Three Weeks.

Target practice will occupy probably about three weeks. There will be no battle practice, that being held in the fall of the year. Preliminary practice is limited to two ships, the Kansas and the Vermont, which have not yet fired all of their guns in practice. All will engage in record target practice. There will be four ranges, four ships firing at a time. The rafts for the targets were finished this afternoon and were being towed out to the grounds to the southeast of where the squadron is anchored. Yesterday and today three or four of the ships, including the Georgia, Rhode Island, Kansas and Vermont, were on the range laying out the lines and anchoring buoys for attachment of the targets and for the guidance of the ships. The frames of the targets were towed out by a tug. The canvas covering which forms the targets will be put in place in the morning. The shooting will then begin. It is likely that the fleet will leave here between April 5 and April 10. Stops will be made at San Diego, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and Santa Cruz.

At Los Angeles ports, where the fleet will be divided into divisions of four ships each, to be anchored off Long Beach, San Pedro, Redondo and Venice and Santa Monica, it is not unlikely that the fleet first will steam in single line formation up the coast along the line of the various ports, and then divide. This would make a splendid naval pageant, which might be witnessed by the people of those cities. Again, on departure, the fleet probably will form in single column and sail North, repeating the parade. A simultaneous salute, such as was given in some of the South American ports, may be fired.

Only One White Man at Magdalena.

The little town of Magdalena has not grown to any appreciable extent because of the fleet's visit. It is about the same size that it has been for years past. It consists of a row of small one and two-story white-washed houses, located on the northern shore of what is known as Man of War Cove. The houses set back from the beach some fifty feet and extend for perhaps 1,000 yards along the shore. Mr. Heney, a cousin of Francis J. Heney, the assistant district attorney of San Francisco, is the only white man in the place. He has resided here for the past eight years as local manager for a company, controlling 4,120,000 acres of land, which fronts along the bay. A young woman, a cousin of Mr. Heney, and her mother, reside with him.

The remainder of the population is entirely Mexican. There are normally about 115 people in the place, on the ranch, horses and cattle are reared. The cattle are killed for local consumption. Water is brought from many miles inland and frequently is furnished to Mr. Heney by the warships in the harbor. The ships convert the salt water into fresh and afford an adequate supply.

The day before the arrival of the Atlantic fleet the steamer Curacao from La Paz, landed thirty-eight Mexicans at Magdalena, and the question of food and water for them was a serious problem. Mr. Heney solved it by securing a supply from the ships. Governor Sanginez and his official party are quartered at Mr. Heney's residence, which is the most pretentious in the place.

Within the past two days, two or three new buildings of a temporary nature have sprung up along the beach and are being used by Mexican vendors.

of the national convention, and $75,000 of that sum has already been paid to Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and the remainder will be paid March 21. Elaborate plans for decorations and entertainment of delegates will call for the expenditure of further large sums.

Members of the Democratic national committee who are here say that candidates are appearing in the political arena in larger numbers this year than has ever been before known. The announcement that 1,000 delegates, alternates and prominent politicians will come from New York city alone, lends credence to the belief that there will be an exciting contest for places on the ticket.

SITUATION IS CRITICAL

harbor last night and announced her arrival by three cannon shots. These detonations at this late hour created a small panic in Port Au Prince, but calm was quickly restored as soon as the reason of the firing was made known. The Bremen arrived here today.

Refugees Cannot Leave.

Washington, March 17.—The Hitlan situation is described by the state department officials today as decidedly more grave than at any time since the revolution has been in progress there. Dispatches received early in the day are to the effect that the Haitian government has recessed its decision to allow the refugees in the foreign legations to leave the country. They will not be allowed to do so.

As a further protection to American interests in the island, the curiser Des Moines was ordered to proceed at once to Port Au Prince from Guantanamo. The gunboat Eagle was dispatched there yesterday. It is estimated the Des Moines can make the trip in approximately fifteen hours. The only instructions given are that American interests shall be protected.

issued by the station agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, on the written instruction of the assistant general freight agent of this railway company, said transfer slips falsely conveying to the Southern lines the statement that such shipments had originated at points beyond Richmond, and were enabled to move from Richmond to destination in the Carolinas at a division of a through rate, such division being less in amount than the local rates to which these shipments were legally subject.

Shippers Reap Benefits.

"The benefits of this arrangement have been reaped by the shippers enjoying it and also by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, which, whether by express agreement or not, has received all of the in-bound business of the shippers so favored by it.

"It also further appears that the assistant general freight agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company, responsible for the above described abuse, upon discovering that the same was under investigation by special agents of this commission, undertook to make amends for the same to the Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast line. To this end he ordered that a list be prepared of all cars which had, by his orders, been moved at a division of the joint through rate less in amount than the local rates to which they were legally subject. Being informed by one of his subordinates that this list would be a very long one, he then gave orders that the list should only show the cars moved during the months of August, September and October, 1907. Having been furnished with a list covering these months, he forwarded it to the Southern lines with a statement that it shoved 'all' cars so misbilled, which he had been able to discover.

"It also appears that certain records of the Chesapeake & Ohio company have been destroyed, contrary to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce. This destruction appears to have been made by the auditor of disbursements under authorization of the comptroller of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company.

"So far as the matters disclosed are criminal in their nature, they will be referred to the United States district attorney at Richmond with the request that prosecution be instituted against all parties therein involved."

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

The Information Contained in This Citizen's Statement Is Priceless.

The hale, the hearty, the strong can afford to toss this paper to one side impatiently when they read the following, but any sufferer in Duluth who has suffered hours of torture caused by kidney complaint will stand in his own light if he does not follow the valuable advice offered here.

Mrs. M. McGillivray of 1228 Superior street, Duluth, Minn., says: "As I told in my former statement I was troubled with my kidneys a good deal for a year or two, and had heavy, dull pains through my loins. My back tired easily, especially if I reclined or sat long in one position. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were unnatural, and I was troubled with persistent headaches. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Duluth Drug company's store, and began to use the preparation. I received wonderful benefit from this remedy. It imparted strength to different organs and banished the backaches and headaches. I am glad to re-endorse such a valuable remedy for backache and kidney trouble."

Davenport Lumberman Tries to Get "Inside" on Wrestling Bout.

New Orleans, La., March 17.—J. E. Cavanaugh, a wealthy lumberman of Davenport, Ia., reported to the police here Saturday that he had been fleeced out of $37,500 by a party of men in New Orleans posing as representatives of prominent local sporting clubs. He displayed the stubs in his check book and offered to furnish the police with any evidence they might desire. Mr. Cavanaugh said he was recently approached in the Middle West by a man who told him that there was a crowd of wealthy men in New Orleans who were willing to risk all they had on a wrestler here, but that he knew of a man named Marsh from Seattle, Wash., who could throw the New Orleans wrestler and that an opportunity was presented to make a lot of money. Mr. Cavanaugh bet $37,500 on March. The match was held in secret. March won the first fall, but when the men went to the mat a second time March suddenly bled from the nose and mouth. A man who said he was a doctor declared March was dying. Mr. Cavanaugh was advised that if he did not want to go to jail he had better get out of the way and he went to Memphis, Tenn. He waited some time for news about March, but seeing nothing about it in the newspapers he came back to New Orleans for his $37,500.

EXPENSES STILL HIGH

No Reduction in Cost of Living in Duluth.

Average Said to be Higher Than a Year Ago.

A scarcity of jobs and a general reduction of wages, following the financial flurry, do not appear to have made any difference in the cost of living in Duluth, although in the East it is reported that one can live 10 to 15 per cent more cheaply now than at this time a year ago. All staple articles of grocery and meats here are as high as they were in the spring of 1907, and certain fancy lines and fruits are said to be higher.

There are those who maintain that the cost of living in Duluth at the present time will average higher than a year ago, instead of lower. Rents are no lower then they were a year ago, and there are no indications of a drop in rents. Indeed, a raise is expected in many quarters, and notices to this effect have already been supplied by some of the real estate men.

It is rather difficult to get a reliable table of figures showing the comparative retail cost of groceries now and a year ago, but from the best information at hand the principal advances have been in the line of fruits. Grape fruit, for example, commands just about double the price it did last year at this time, and oranges are also placed at a figure high above that of this season last year. There has been an advance in practically all lines of fruit.

Coal is selling at the same price now as it was a year ago. The usual drop of 50 cents a ton in coal is expected the first of April. Several boarding houses of the city raised the price of board during the fall and early winter, because of the high price asked for meats and groceries, and earlier in the year rooming houses advanced the price of room rent, because of the advances in house and flat rents instituted by the real estate men. There are no indications of a drop back to the old level in boarding circles, and the keepers of boarding houses assert that there would be no reason for such a drop, for conditions do not warrant it.

office, the president ordered an investigation, which was conducted by W. S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the census office, and his report of the operations of the office is now in the hands of the president.

Mr. Rossiter reports that he found no evidence of fraud or serious irregularity. He says, however, that there have been some minor irregularities, chargeable in most cases to bad administration, and that the methods of comparing the books are open to criticism. An apparent deficit of $568,399, due largely to unwise outlay for equipment, extravagance in purchase of supplies, and increased cost of production, is shown for the current fiscal year. The report contains, also, Mr. Stillings' reply to its conclusions. In the main he sets up the plea that the report is misleading and unjust, and that had he been permitted to complete the readjustment of office conditions, on the lines he laid down, the result would have been a model plant.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell, of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3rd our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by all druggists.

PUBLIC PRINTER HAS RESIGNED

Stillings Hands in Resignation Which the President Accepts.

Washington, March 17.—Public Printer Charles S. Stillings yesterday tendered his resignation to the president, and it has been accepted.

Mr. Stillings' successor has not yet been named. Mr. Stillings, when seen, declined to discuss the matter for publication. Mr. Stillings' resignation is the result of an investigation into the conduct of the government printing office under his administration. Upon representations made to President Roosevelt by Representative Landis, chairman of the house committee on printing, regarding the increased cost of printing to the departments, and alleged irregularities growing out of the installation of an audit system, and that the persons in charge of this system exerted an undue and improper influence in the management of the

This form of indigestion is most common to busy men whose nerve force is consumed by excessive mental effort or anxiety.

By actually increasing the amount of rich, red blood in the system, Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills revitalize the wasted nerve cells and so create the nerve force necessary to the proper working of the digestive system.

Thinking men appreciate this rational treatment for building up the system and preventing such serious developments as nervous prostration and paralysis.

DULUTH BOY ON THE ILLINOIS

Herbert Lee Spencer Taking Cruise to the Pacific.

With the great fleet of United States battleships and gunboats, which, under the command of Fighting Bob Evans, has rounded Cape Horn, steamed majestically through the waters of the Pacific to Magdalena bay, on the coast of Mexico, and is now anchored in that shelter for target practice, there is a Duluth boy, Herbert Lee Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Spencer, 5935 Oneida street, Lakeside. He is a past-midshipman, under Capt. Bowyer, on the stately battleship Illinois.

Herbert Lee Spencer graduated from the United States Naval academy, at Annapolis, in February, 1907. At Annapolis he was not only known as a student, but was prominent in athletics, playing three years on the football team. In the third year of his star athletic career he captained his Academy's eleven in a sensational victory over West Point, defeating the Army boys by a score of 10 to 6. It was the first time in years the Navy had won from their rival brothers in the Army school.

Shortly after he graduated he went on his first cruise to France, where he spent several months, and returned just in time to join the greatest fleet of war vessels the world has ever known in its sail through two oceans.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer last received word from their son from Callao, Peru. The cablegram only said that he was well and having the time of his life.

MANY STUDENTS ARE ARRESTED

Twenty-Two Ann Arbor Boys Locked Up for Smashing Theater.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 17.—College feeling among the students of the University of Michigan burst forth into a riot last night. Twenty-two students were lock up in jail, and the Star theater, a 5-cent place of amusement, was literally wrecked. Late in the evening the mob of students, directed a college "rush" against the front of the building, tearing away windows and doors and plaster and rolling the theater piano out in the street where leaders of the students mounted the instrument and performed a dance to the accompaniment of mad cheers and yells from the crowd. The trouble dates back to Saturday night, when a student in the audience who persisted in repeating the Ann Arbor college yell too often to suit the management, was ejected and thoroughly clubbed by a special policeman in the employ of the theater.

The police authorities say that students convicted of participation in the riot will probably receive a jail sentence with no alternative of a fine.

JUDGE IS SHOT WHILE ON TRAIN

Struck by Bullet Which Comes Through Car Window.

Augusta, Ga., March 17.—Former Judge O. W. Buchanan, of Winnsboro, S. C., who's wife is a niece of Senator B. R. Tillman, was mysteriously shot and perhaps mortally wounded late yesterday while on his way from Columbus to Augusta to attend the bedside of his niece, who is ill here.

Judge Buchanan was seated by an open window in the day coach of a Southern Railway train when the train left Wards, S. C. The train had proceeded but a short distance when a shot was fired through the window by some unknown person, the bullet entering the judge's right side. He was taken to a private sanitarium on his arrival here, and an operation was performed. He is in a critical condition.

A DARING ATTEMPT TO STEAL $240,000.

New York, March 17.—An attempt to steal $240,000 from C. B. Richards & Co. of Nos. 311 and 312 Broadway, this city, was revealed at police headquarters last night, following the receipt of the news of the arrest of one of the alleged forgers in Paris. The man under arrest is Gustavo Bozzo, 28 years old, formerly a stenographer employed by the bankers. The police say he has confessed, and that he implicated two confederates. The alleged thieves had realized $36,720 of the big stake they were after when the forgeries were discovered.

NEWSPAPER MEN

Were Given Money to Exploit the Submarine Boats.

Washington, March 17.—Admission was made before the special house committee investigating the charges of Representative Lilley of Connecticut regarding the legislative methods of the Electric Boat company, that money had been paid by the Electric Boat company to certain newspaper men to prepare and distribute news concerning submarine boats. This testimony was given by Charles S. McNeir of this city and attorney for the Electric Boat company. Mr. McNeir, however, entered a general denial that his company had ever paid for the dissemination of news with the purpose of influencing legislation or for creating a wrong impression in the public mind. He also denied that a general press bureau was maintained by the Electric Boat company, or that as far as he knew the company had ever spent money for the entertainment of members of congress or others who might exert an influence in securing contracts with the government for its boats.

CHURCH MAKES GOOD

From Concert Given by Akeley Talent Sunday Evening.

Akeley, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The musical concert given Sunday night in the Evangelical Lutheran church was a hugh success. The local choir was assisted by Miss Marie Hovey of Minneapolis, Mary Christenson of Cass Lake and Prof. Raduski of Cass Lake. The Norwegian music was greatly enjoyed, and although admission to the church was by tickets costing 35 cents each, the edifice was crowded.

This was the first high class concert given in an Akeley church on Sunday evening, where admission has been by ticket. The experiment of charging 35 cents was a remarkable success and the treasury of the Lutheran church reaped a big sum of money.

A treat was given the music loving people.

"TRUSTY" PARDONED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Denver, March 17.—For his heroism in overpowering Giuseppe Alia, the condemned murderer of Father Leo Heinrichs, when he attempted to escape from jail last Saturday, Guy Sexton, a trusty prisoner, who was serving a short term for a small theft, was pardoned yesterday by Governor Buchtel. Sexton was cut in the neck with a razor by Alia, receiving a severe but not dangerous wound. A scissor blade was found concealed in a sleeve of Alia's coat. Each side of the blade had been ground or filed to a sharp edge. How the murderer secured the two blades has not been definitely ascertained.

PLANS FOR DEVELOPMENT.

The decision of the public affairs committee of the Duluth Commercial club to see to it that St. Louis county is properly represented at the state fair this year is timely and good. Equally pertinent and promising of good results is its determination to start the work at once, in order that there shall be plenty of time in which to plan and prepare an exhibit that shall be truly representative of the many interests, vast wealth and prodigious possibilities of the county.

Chiefly, of course, the exhibit should set forth the advantages which this county and this section offers for market-gardening and dairying. This involves not only a showing of what can be done here with the fertile soil and the rich grasses and clovers, but a showing of the splendid market that is open for the products of farm, field and dairy.

The Herald has hoped that some time it would be possible to arrange an exhibit from Northeastern Minnesota, including not only St. Louis county but also the adjacent counties which would naturally market their products in Duluth—Carlton, Lake, Cook, Aitkin and Koochiching, or even those farther away but still naturally tributary to Duluth. If this is ever done Duluth will have to lead the way, since Duluth is the capital of this promising section, and the benefits of development will be largely hers. However, a completely representative exhibit from St. Louis county will furnish the nucleus around which this arrangement can be made later.

The Commercial club is making itself of large use to this section in taking up with energy the work of putting productive settlers upon the lands near Duluth. The handsome booklet "Cows in Clover," which the club has recently had printed for wide distribution, will help not a little in this work. It contains the speeches delivered at the dairymen's meeting held in the club rooms last June, and in these speeches the possibilities and profits of dairying are attractively set forth by the best of authorities upon the subject. The speeches treat not only of dairying in general, but of the advantages which this particular region offers to those engaged in that pursuit—advantages which are equalled in few places and excelled in none.

For instance, Supt. A. J. McGuire of the Grand Rapids experimental farm stated at that meeting: "If I were going to farm tomorrow for myself I would prefer Northeastern Minnesota to any country that I know of." Ex-Governor Hoard of Wisconsin, considered one of the world's greatest dairying experts, said: "I know of no superior anywhere for the building of a farm home than lays right out here north of this city." F. H. Scribner, a practical and markedly successful Wisconsin dairyman, said: "You will find that you have one of the greatest dairy countries here that we have anywhere."

These are a few of the pertinent things in that book and they describe a region lying at the doorstep of one of the hungriest and most promising markets in the world.

POLITICS AND PROHIBITION.

The Herald is being obliged by numerous copies weekly of a publication called the St. Paul Record, which devotes most of its space to arguments against prohibition, county option, local option and anything that tends to curb the spread of the liquor traffic.

In its current issue it shows upon its front page a cartoon, picturing a crafty and guileful individual waltzing with a scrawny and ancient dame wearing a pump as her head dress. The crafty individual is labelled "Politician," and the ancient lady is, of course, labelled "Prohibition."

There is perhaps more significance about this picture than the St. Paul Record realizes.

We have had prohibition with us as an issue for many years. There has been a Prohibition presidential ticket in the field every four years since 1872, when the first convention was held and the first candidate nominated. In that year the party got but 5,608 votes, and it rose to its highwater mark of 264,066 in 1892, falling off slightly in subsequent elections. As a party, it has accomplished nothing; as a moral force, the sentiment back of it has been joined by a popular revulsion against saloon abuses, and together they have made half the country dry.

But the significant part of the Record's cartoon is the association of the politician with the prohibition movement. In all these years when the Prohibitionists were marching gallantly to the polls to cast their ballots for a hopeless cause through principle alone, the politicians have had nothing to do with them at all. That was because the cause was not popular, and its chances for success were slender.

If, as this pro-saloon newspaper intimates, the politician has now joined hands with prohibition, the condition is indeed serious, and the saloon forces have reason for their alarms.

It is not that the politician is so tremendously powerful in influencing public sentiment. It isn't that at all, because the politician never does influence public sentiment. He merely takes advantage of public sentiment to gain his own ends. And if the politician has taken up prohibition, that proves that public sentiment is back of it and that the politcian has found it out.

Therefore, if the politician is flirting with the prohibition dame, "the stuff is off." That means it is a bandwagon movement, for the politician rides only in the bandwagon. His whole life is spent in figuring out which is the proper wagon to get into, and when he chooses one you may make up your mind that he is absolutely certain that it is the popular vehicle.

Of course the politician is mistaken at times, but not often. His habit is caution. He never seeks to lead the van, but contents himself to bring up the rear, shouting, however, as loudly as though he himself had originated the movement. When he gets into the game it is never without weighing of all the probabilities and possibilities, and it is not until he is morally certain that everybody else is going to get into the game, too.

MINNESOTA BELITTLED.

The Springfield, Mass., Republican speaks somewhat slightingly of the presumption of Minnesota, a state so far removed from the culture and learning and narrowness of New England, in having a presidential candidate.

It speaks of Governor Johnson as the "twice elected governor of a state that does not rank very high in population, wealth and the diversity and complexity of its social and administrative problems;" as much as to say that a state that shines so dimly when the refulgence of Massachusetts is emblazoning the firmament has a lot of nerve to be trotting out a presidential candidate.

It is very clear that it is necessary to remind the Republican that there is a good deal of the United States outside of New England, and even west of the Alleghanies. Minnesota need not fear to compare itself with Massachusetts at any time or in any contest. It is younger, of course, and that is its chief offense; however, youth is a disability that even states will, in time overcome.

As to population, it is true that there are more populous states than Minnesota, but there are none with a higher average of citizenship and intelligence, not even Massachusetts. Fifty years ago Massachusetts was sixth in population among the sisterhood, and now it has sunk to seventh; fifty years ago Minnesota was thirty-sixth, and now it has risen to nineteenth. Fifty years hence, at this rate, Minnesota and Massachusetts may have changed places.

If the Republican will look at the Statistical Abstract of the United States it will find more interesting intelligence that it does not now possess. It will find that this state's wealth was estimated in 1905 at $3,343,722,076, while Massachusetts, with its greater age and population, was worth $4,955,578,913. Per capita, this is $1,909 in Minnesota and only $1,766 in Massachusetts. At the same time, Massachusetts was in debt $72.72 per capita, and Minnesota only $22.07 per capita.

In that year, too, the value of railroads and equipment was $250,052,000 in Massachusetts and $466,734,000 in Minnesota. Massachusetts is heavily burdened with taxation compared with Minnesota, the per capita taxation upon an ad valorem basis being $0.61 in Minnesota and $17.06 in Massachusetts. Minnesota's prosperity was more stable than that of Massachusetts, because in that year this state had only 291 failures while Massachusetts had 887. Between 1900 and 1905 Minnesota increased the number of its manufacturing enterprises, while those of Massachusetts fell off.

From 1880 to 1900 Minnesota's farms increased in number from 92,386 to 154,969, while those of Massachusetts fell off from 38,406 to 37,715. The percentage of farm acres under cultivation in Minnesota, in the same time, increased from 54.1 per cent to 70.3 per cent, while in Massachusetts it fell off from 63.4 per cent to 41.1 per cent. In the same period the value of farm property in Minnesota increased from $238,718,864 to $788,634,642, while in Massachusetts the increase was only from $164,288,956 to $182,646,704.

As to "diversity and complexity of social and administrative problems," the advantage should be all in favor of Minnesota: in favor of a young, vigorous and growing state with all the industries that Massachusetts has and many besides, and against an old, settled, slowly deteriorating commonwealth with its problems—in its own mind—settled and disposed of.

LAW AND PUBLIC POLICY.

A curious condition has arisen in Chicago, where the temperance people have been trying to bring about a popular vote at the spring election upon the question of whether or not the saloons should be closed on Sunday.

There is a law in Illinois against Sunday saloons, as there is in all other states, but it seems to be impossible to enforce it in Chicago. Juries will not convict. In half a dozen or more cases, where the law enforcement crowd brought evidence to the prosecuting attorney, and the prosecuting attorney tried the cases, the juries, in the face of conclusive evidence of the violation of the law, refused to convict, and returned verdicts of not guilty.

So the temperance people decided to have the people vote upon the policy, and presented petitions to the board of election commissioners in sufficient numbers to bring it to a vote. But the board has refused to submit the question to the people, and it will not, therefore, be voted upon at the coming municipal election.

The reasons advanced by the board seem conclusive enough. "A question cannot be one of public policy when it embodies a plan of action in violation of law," said the commissioners. "It is contended that the question is in effect the same as asking the voters if they are in favor of repealing the present Sunday law. It would seem to leave no room for argument to say that a declaration on the part of the voters to the effect that saloons shall remain open on Sunday is by no means equivalent to a declaration in favor of a law permitting them to remain open on that day."

The commission logically points out that if the question were submitted, and the vote upon it were in favor of Sunday closing, all it would amount to would be a declaration that the existing law should be enforced. On the other hand, if the vote turned out to favor Sunday saloons, it would mean that the voters had decided that the saloons should remain open in violation of law. In other words, in the affirmative the vote would simply approve a law whose very existence implies a demand for its enforcement; while if the vote were in the negative the public would be put in the paradoxical position of approving violation of law.

In short, the question of whether a law should be enforced or not is not a question of public policy. If the question were whether the Sunday closing law should be repealed it would be a question of public policy. If it were whether, having no Sunday law, one should be enacted, that, too, would be a question of public policy. But the question of whether a law should be enforced cannot, according to the reasoning of the Chicago election commissioners, be considered one of public policy.

The condition in Chicago shows once more the sham, pretense and hypocrisy growing out of laws not backed by public sentiment.

March is doing very well toward bringing up the winter's average of wintry weather.

This is the day when Irishmen pause to do honor to the memory of one of the world's greatest uplifters—Saint Patrick.

The morning paper is endeavoring to regulate the politics of the entire state in both parties. It will later appreciate the difficulty of making a tin whistle sound like a trombone.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Down at the Lenox hotel last evening a little group composed of two travelling salesmen, an insurance man, and a newspaper reporter were discussing small towns, and their "characters."

"In the little town I came from in Ohio," said the insurance man, "there is a man like Peter Pan, the 'boy who never grew up.' This man never grew up. He's the kid yet, and he will be until he dies. 'Dad,' they call him. He's an old bachelor, about 60 years of age, and I'll bet that he has more friends in that county and fewer enemies than any man that ever lived there. Ever since I can remember 'Dad' has been master of ceremonies at all the Sunday school picnics ever pulled off in the town. He hasn't missed one in twenty years, I guess. It doesn't matter what church it is that gives it, 'Dad' never goes to church, but he attends every Sunday school picnic, gets his coat off, and takes charge of the sports.

"'Dad' has been clerking in the same store for twenty years and has probably been getting the same wages, about $12 a week, all that time. He lives in a little room over a drug store, and he always manages to keep a bagful of peppermint candies in his pockets for the kids. He can't walk a block without having ten or fifteen kids tagging after him, and they all know 'dad.' I'll bet if 'dad' died every man who ever lived in that town would feel that he had lost a friend."

"The strangest character we had in our town," said one of the drummers, "was the principal of our high school. He was crazy on the subject of mathematics. The man was a born mathematician, but he was wasting his talents teaching high school youngsters for $1,200 a year. He seemed to grow lean and crochety on it, and I don't blame him. He had the brain of a Newton, but he could not turn his knowledge to practical use, and lived and died a poor man.

"There was one certain method of getting on the right side of him. Any boy who showed a liking for mathematics could do as he pleased in school. The old fellow would work with the boy for hours at a time, showing him the principles of higher mathematics. His mind seemed to take a most difficult problem and simply tear it to pieces. The boys used to make great sport of him, but at heart, I think, every one of them respected and liked him for the man he really was. He was simply a man who got in wrong. Hundreds of men with half the brain he had, and more self assurance are making ten times his salary today."

"Our town down in Maine had a real live Thoreau," said the second drummer. "The people there used to think he was crazy, and called him 'the hermit.' He was a bachelor of a widower, I never knew which, and lived all alone in a little cottage on the outskirts of the town. Nobody knew how he lived. He must have had a little money when he came there. He spent nearly all of his time in the woods. Once in a while he would come to town and buy a few groceries, paying cash for them, and then the people would not see him again for days. He would wander through the woods sleeping in the open in the summer time, and building a fire and cooking his own meals. Nobody ever saw the inside of his cottage, that I know of, and the youngsters used to be afraid of him, although he was as harmless as a kitten. The poor old fellow probably came there to live out the last days of his life alone. What he had been nobobdy knew, and he died as he lived, a mystery. He had a hobby for collecting butterflies and when he died, they found a wonderful colection in his cottage."

"I have a theory," said the Insurance man, "that everybody is crazy on somo topics and that unless there is something to counterbalance it these qualities show themselves with advancing age."

"Perhaps you are right," said the first drummer.

THE WEATHER.

The snow did not last long and this morning it was clear, cool and brilliant. The weather man says it will be a little cooler tonight than it was last night—it was 7 degs. above zero last night and it will get down to about zero tonight—but that it will turn warmer again tomorrow, and that the westerly winds will shift to northeasterly, accompanied by partly cloudy conditions. Yesterday's highest temperature was 18 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, and though the north wind was cool, the sun's rays melted the snow rapidly.

The sun rose this morning at 6:17 and sets tonight at 6:16, making 11 hours and 59 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low pressure areas centered over British Columbia, Wyoming and the western lake region, caused snow over most northern districts during Monday or last night, and higher temperatures this morning in the western lake region and Mississippi valley. High pressure areas off the North Atlantic coast and over the Red River valley are attended by colder weather in those sections. Zero temperatures prevail in Northern Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Red River valley, the coldest being 24 degs. below zero at Battleford. Generally fair weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Wednesday with rather low temperature tonight, but followed by milder weather Wednesday afternoon."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Walker Pilot: If Governor Johnson needs any recommendations to enable him to get into the lecture field, the Republicans would be pleased to supply him. In fact they will do anything that will detract his attention from further gubernatorial honors.

Blackduck American: Northern Minnesota's greatest need at present is not more government land thrown open for settlement, but actual settlers on the lands that were homesteaded during the past ten years and which has, after being stripped of its timber, been deserted. If congressman Steenerson really is anxious to boost these counties let him devote his surplus time to inducing actual settlers to come here instead of exerting his energy to have every acre of government land tarown open to settlement to be gobbled up by outside speculators.

Walker Pilot: Many's the girl who has been able to look into the remotest corners of a man's heart with no other light than the sparks of a parlor match.

Ely Miner: The fifty-first legislative district promises to be well supplied with legislative candidates the coming summer. Duluth and Two Harbors will furnish the bulk of the aspirants, and in our opinion it would be a wise plan to have some from Ely on the list. What's the matter with M. E. Gleason for the legislature?

Hibbing Tribune: Hon. E. B. Hawkins will be one of Minnesota's big four at the national Republican convention. This is one thing that does not look funny to J. Adam Bede.

Le Sueur News: The country press is for Joel Heatwole for governor.

Royalton Banner: As things stand today there is but very little difference between the creeds of honest Democrats and Republicans. They are both struggling to keep the country out of the grasp of the unscrupulous rich who seek nothing but plunder.

Le Sueur Sentinel: The poorest kind of citizen is the one who wants to reform affairs only when they affect the price of his lots, his job or his three squares a day.

Northfield News: All that the people ask of the railroads is a fair service in return for the bonds voted and the tribute paid to the railroads since they were built. But they do demand this and they will have it if such a thing is possible. The more the railroads fight back and refuse to give what is wanted the more enemies the road taking the action makes for itself.

Karlstad Advocate: If anything needs knocking, knock it. If anything deserves boosting, boost it. Anything can be excused except that "most insidious of all forms of selfishness, inertia."

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

New York World: The only hope of the Democrats in the coming campaign lies in the nomination of a candidate like John A. Johnson, whose life history will appeal to the imagination of everybody, who has no record of defeat and disaster to explain away, who has not been identified with the old vendettas of his party and who has demonstrated his ability to get votes.

Brooklyn Eagle: Mr. Johnson's friends may make what fight they please for him before and at the Denver convention. But unless we mistake him greatly he will employ the interval between now and the meeting of that body in caring for state business and not in writing platforms for or issuing proclamations to his party. His record suggests that with him the Democracy might win, while the "past performances" of Mr. Bryan, to borrow a race-track phrase, are discouraging augury of defeat.

Indianapolis News: Don't the Bryan men in Minnesota remember that Mr. Bryan merely urged that delegates be instructed? He didn't say for whom.

Moorhead Citizen: The committee could not have done otherwise. Even if he does not receive the nomination at the national convention at Denver he is certainly entitled to a complimentary vote from the Democrats in the state of Minnesota, for he has done more to bring the party in this state together than any other candidate they have ever produced. We want to see Governor Johnson get the nomination if possible, but if Mr. Bryan receives it we will support him just as loyally.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: For the first time Minnesota has a full-fledged candidate for the presidency. At the meeting of the Democratic state committee last Friday Governor Johnson's name was recommended to the state convention as a fitting candidate for the highest honor human ambition can seek. It is fair to assume that there will be little opposition in Minnesota to the presentation of the governor's name.

Omaha Bee: "Governor Johnson refuses to discuss politics," says a St. Paul dispatch. Governor Johnson is apparently determined to appear as different as possible.

Buffalo News: The managers of Mr. Bryan announce that they will contest all the nine congress districts against Governor Johnson. They are not willing to permit his friends to show him the courtesy of even a complimentary favorite son vote. • • • Apparently the demand is that the Democratic party of no state in the Union be permitted without a fight to support anybody but Mr. Bryan at Denver. Even the courtesy shown by Secretary Taft to Governor Hughes in New York is to be denied to Governor Johnson in Minnesota. Such tactics may gain a nomination in July, but what about the election in November?

Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier: But the independent Democrats of the East would like to see a Democrat elected, and they are ready to make concessions. They do not ask that a conservative of the Parker type be nominated. They will be satisfied with Johnson, a Bryan Democrat. Mr. Bryan's friend, who has not indulged in numerous eccentric flights into Socialism, such as advocacy of government ownership of railroads, which Mr. Bryan himself admits is not an issue. They would accept the nomination of Johnson because they would see in it the beginning of an earnest, hopeful and inspiring contest against the Republican party, but the nomination of Bryan they would regard as the childish surrender of a good fighting chance to an irrational emotion aroused by an eloquent and amiable dreamer of dreams.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Bryan supporters in Minnesota are adding strength to Governor Johnson's presidential possibility, and it is the very thing they are trying to prevent. It would look much better if the Minnesota contingent of the unwashed would swing into line for Johnson and ignore Bryan. There may be no possible chance for Johnson to walk off with the plum from Denver, but it would be most becoming for his home state to stand by him to the end, and not growlingly submit to the egotistical whim of the Nebraska dictator. Johnson is the biggest "favorite son" on the political chart today, and he is entitled to better than he is receiving from the sore-head element of his own state.

A Bad Move.

Bisbee, Ariz., Review: Certainly the Bryan following in the state of Minnesota are not acting on the advice of the Nebraskan in their move to contest a delegation in that state. At the meeting of the state Democratic committee in Minnesota an endorsement of Governor Johnson of that state for president was given. This action has been construed in certain quarters as the formal announcement of the candidacy of Governor Johnson for the Democratic nomination. Whether this construction be correct or not, friends of Bryan in Minnesota will not be able to strengthen their cause by making a fight in that state. Governor Johnson is entitled to the solid delegation of his own state if he shall decide to enter the contest for the nomination and there is no one so foolish as to imagine that Bryan could control the state in opposition to the man who has been the idol of both Democrats and Republicans there so long.

The Bryan men in Minnesota will gain nothing for themselves or their favorite by starting a roughhouse in that state. The only result will be to weaken the Democratic strength in Minnesota this fall.

It is quite likely that the row in Minnesota has more to do with local politics than it does with national, but in any event Col. Bryan should give no countenance to the proposition to oppose Governor Johnson in his own state, and we do not believe that he will.

BRIGHT AND BREEZY.

Baltimore American: "There is one paradoxical quality which a vine possesses."

"What is that?"

"It can keep on running while it is still rooted to the spot."

Washington Star: "Why doesn't that man get on in politics? He seems capable and industrious."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "he is all that. But he showed bad judgment in selecting his opinions."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "What are you going to do with your second boy?"

"Jimmie? Well, we've come to the conclusion that Jimmie has no taste for business and can't make money and so we are going to get him into West Point."

Chicago News: "What are the most powerful explosives known?" queried the young man.

"Two prima donnas in one opera company," replied the ex-theatrical manager.

Washington Star: "Whom do you hold responsible for the embarrassments that the public suffers?"

"Well," answered Farmer Cornstossel, "it depends on circumstances. I own a few shares of bank stock and I've been runnin' fur road supervisor. Speakin' as a financier, I blame the politicians, an' speakin' as a politician, I blame the financiers."

Baltimore American: He—I hope, now that the dog question has come up, I can get rid of that cross little cur of yours.

She—It is a good thing that all kinds of ill-temperede brutes are not included in the crusade, for something might happen to the men who are growling all the time.

Baltimore American: Young Lady Visitor—What is that harsh sound I hear?

Old Farmer—That's the geese a-honking.

Young Lady Visitor—Why, it is a party of automobilists!

Old Farmer—That's what I said.

SHOULD BE NO FIGHT.

Wabasha Herald (Dem.): There should be no Johnson-Bryan fight in this state, and we can not believe that either of these great leaders of the people would in any way encourage a contest. This thing of Bryan's barrel and Johnson, the candidate of the system, is nauseating to honest men, who reverence both of these splendid leaders. Such charges are scurrilous in the extreme, and will gain a hearing from only those who cater to the highly sensational. We admire the fight that the radicals are making against the anti-Bryan forces for the organization, but think they show mighty poor judgment when they attack Governor Johnson as viciously as they have. Governor Johnson should have the Minnesota delegation at Denver just as long as he wants it, and it should be given him generously, and the very men who are now opposing him should be the men to make the tender of Minnesota's delegation to him.

We believe that if there were no other reason why the delegation should be given to Governor Johnson, rather than that of playing the game of politics skillfully, there is enough in that to give it to him, and to give it to him generously. Every man who makes an attack upon Governor Johnson enhances wonderfully the stock in trade of those who were traitors to Democracy's candidate in 1896 and 1900. These fellows are playing the game well, and they are likely to win out before the people. There is no question but Johnson is very close to the plain people of Minnesota, and they are likely to forget the traitors in their efforts to defeat the anti-Johnson forces now and thus permit these fellows to control the state organization.

Instead of the slogan, Bryan-anti-Johnson, let us make it Johnson and Bryan—Johnson just as long as Johnson wants it, and then Bryan, should Johnson fall in the nomination. We believe this personal attack on the governor is illadvised, is not good politics, and is ingratitude to a man to whom Minnesota's Democracy owes much.

PLANS FOR DEVELOPMENT.

The decision of the public affairs committee of the Duluth Commercial club to see to it that St. Louis county is properly represented at the state fair this year is timely and good. Equally pertinent and promising of good results is its determination to start the work at once, in order that there shall be plenty of time in which to plan and prepare an exhibit that shall be truly representative of the many interests, vast wealth and prodigious possibilities of the county.

Chiefly, of course, the exhibit should set forth the advantages which this county and this section offers for market gardening and dairying. This involves not only a showing of what can be done here with the fertile soil and the rich grasses and clovers, but a showing of the splendid market that is open for the products of farm, field and dairy.

The Herald has hoped that some time it would be possible to arrange an exhibit from Northeastern Minnesota, including not only St. Louis county but also the adjacent counties which would naturally market their products in Duluth—Carlton, Lake, Cook, Aitkin and Koochiching, or even those farther away but still naturally tributary to Duluth. If this is ever done Duluth will have to lead the way, since Duluth is the capital of this promising section, and the benefits of development will be largely hers. However, a completely representative exhibit from St. Louis county will furnish the nucleus around which this arrangement can be made later.

The Commercial club is making itself of large use to this section in taking up with energy the work of putting productive settlers upon the lands near Duluth. The handsome booklet "Cows in Clover," which the club has recently had printed for wide distribution, will help not a little in this work. It contains the speeches delivered at the dairymen's meeting held in the club rooms last June, and in these speeches the possibilities and profits of farming are attractively set forth by the best of authorities upon the subject. The speeches treat not only of dairying in general, but of the advantages which this particular region offers to those engaged in that pursuit, advantages which are specified in few places and excelled in none.

For instance, Supt. A. J. McGuire of the Grand Rapids experimental farm stated at that meeting: "If I were going to farm tomorrow for myself I would prefer Northeastern Minnesota to any country that I know of." Ex-Governor Hoard of Wisconsin, considered one of the world's greatest dairying experts, said: "I know of no superior anywhere for the building of a farm home than lays right out here in the city." F. H. Scribner, a practical and markedly successful Wisconsin dairyman, said: "You will find that you have one of the greatest dairy countries here that we have anywhere." These are a few of the pertinent things in that book and they describe a region lying at the doorstep of one of the largest and most promising markets in the world.

POLITICS AND PROHIBITION.

The Herald is being obliged by numerous copies weekly of a publication called the St. Paul Record, which devotes most of its space to arguments against prohibition, county option, local option and anything that tends to check the spread of the liquor traffic.

In its current issue it shows upon its front page a cartoon, picturing a crafty and gaudily habited "saloon" walking with a swaying and fascinating dance wearing a cramp as her head dress. The crafty individual is labelled "Politician," and the ancient lady is, of course, labelled "Prohibition."

There is perhaps more significance about this picture than the St. Paul Record realizes.

We have had prohibition with us as an issue for many years. There has been a Prohibition presidential ticket in the field every four years since 1872, when the first convention was held and the first candidate nominated. In that year the party got but 5,608 votes, and it rose to its high water mark of 249,506 in 1892, falling off slightly in subsequent elections. As a party, it has accomplished nothing; as a moral force, the sentiment back of it has been joined by a popular revulsion against saloon abuses, and together they have made half the country dry.

But the significant part of the Record's cartoon is the association of the politician with the prohibition movement. In all these years when the Prohibitionists were marching gallantly to the polls to cast their ballots for a hopeless cause through principle alone, the politicians have had nothing to do with them at all. That was because the cause was not popular, and its chances for success were slender.

If, as this pro-saloon newspaper intimates, the politician has now joined hands with prohibition, the condition is indeed serious, and the saloon forces have reason for their alarms.

It is not that the politician is so tremendously powerful in influencing public sentiment. It isn't that at all, because the politician never does influence public sentiment. He merely takes advantage of public sentiment to gain his own ends. And if the politician has taken up prohibition, that proves that public sentiment is back of it and that the politician has found it out.

Therefore, if the politician is dieting with the prohibition diet, "the soup is off." That means it is a lost-wagon movement, for the politician rides only in the bandwagon. His whole life is spent in figuring out which is the proper wagon to get into, and when he chooses one you may make up your mind that he is absolutely certain that it is the popular vehicle.

Of course the politician is mistaken at times, but not often. His habit is caution. He never seeks to lead the van, but contents himself to bring up the rear, shouting, however, as loudly as though he himself had originated the movement. When he gets into the game it is never without weighing of all the probabilities and possibilities, and it is not until he is morally certain that everybody else is going to get into the game, too.

MINNESOTA BELITTLED.

The Springfield, Mass., Republican speaks somewhat slightingly of the presumption of Minnesota, a state so far removed from the culture and learning and narrowness of New England, in having a presidential candidate.

It speaks of Governor Johnson as the "twice elected governor of a state that does not rank very high in population, wealth and the diversity and complexity of its social and administrative problems;" as much as to say that a state that shines so dimly when the refulgence of Massachusetts is emblazoning the firmament has a lot of nerve to be trotting out a presidential candidate.

It is very clear that it is necessary to remind the Republican that there is a good deal of the United States outside of New England, and even west of the Alleghanies. Minnesota need not fear to compare itself with Massachusetts at any time or in any contest. It is younger, of course, and that is its chief offense; however, youth is a disability that even states will, in time overcome.

As to population, it is true that there are more populous states than Minnesota, but there are none with a higher average of citizenship and intelligence, not even Massachusetts. Fifty years ago Massachusetts was sixth in population among the sisterhood, and now it has sunk to seventh; fifty years ago Minnesota was thirty-sixth, and now it has risen to nineteenth. Fifty years hence, at this rate, Minnesota and Massachusetts may have changed places.

If the Republican will look at the Statistical Abstract of the United States it will find more interesting intelligence that it does not now possess. It will find that this state's wealth was estimated in 1905 at $3,313,722,076, while Massachusetts, with its greater age and population, was worth $4,055,378,013. Per capita, this is $1,990 in Minnesota and only $1,766 in Massachusetts. At the same time, Massachusetts was in debt $72.72 per capita, and Minnesota only $22.07 per capita.

In that year, too, the value of railroads and equipment was $250,052,000 in Massachusetts and $466,734,000 in Minnesota. Massachusetts is heavily burdened with taxation compared with Minnesota, the per capita taxation upon an ad valorem basis being $9.61 in Minnesota and $17.06 in Massachusetts. Minnesota's prosperity was more stable than that of Massachusetts, because in that year this state had only 291 failures while Massachusetts had 887. Between 1900 and 1905 Minnesota increased the number of its manufacturing enterprises, while those of Massachusetts fell off.

From 1880 to 1900 Minnesota's farms increased in number from 92,386 to 154,099, while those of Massachusetts fell off from 38,109 to 37,715. The percentage of farm acres under cultivation in Minnesota, in the same time, increased from 54.1 per cent to 70.3 per cent, while in Massachusetts it fell off from 63.4 per cent to 44.4 per cent. In the same period the value of farm property in Minnesota increased from $238,718,864 to $788,581,642, while in Massachusetts the increase was only from $164,288,059 to $182,640,704.

As to "diversity and complexity of social and administrative problems," the advantage should be all in favor of Minnesota; in favor of a young, vigorous and growing state with all the industries that Massachusetts has and many besides, and against an old, settled, slowly deteriorating commonwealth with its problems—in its own mind—settled and disposed of.

LAW AND PUBLIC POLICY.

A curious condition has arisen in Chicago, where the temperance people have been trying to bring about a popular vote at the spring election upon the question of whether or not the saloons should be closed on Sunday.

There is a law in Illinois against Sunday saloons, as there is in all other states, but it seems to be impossible to enforce it in Chicago. Juries will not convict. In half a dozen or more cases, where the law enforcement crowd brought evidence to the prosecuting attorney, and the prosecuting attorney tried the cases, the juries, in the face of conclusive evidence of the violation of the law, refused to convict, and returned verdicts of not guilty.

So the temperance people decided to have the people vote upon the policy, and presented petitions to the board of election commissioners in sufficient numbers to bring it to a vote. But the board has refused to submit the question to the people, and it will not, therefore, be voted upon at the coming municipal election.

The reasons advanced by the board seem conclusive enough. "A question cannot be one of public policy when it embodies a plan of action in violation of law," said the commissioners. "It is contended that the question is in effect the same as asking the voters if they are in favor of repealing the present Sunday law. It would seem to leave no room for argument to say that a declaration on the part of the voters to the effect that saloons shall remain open on Sunday is by no means equivalent to a declaration in favor of a law permitting them to remain open on that day."

The commissioners logically point out that if the question were submitted, and the vote upon it were in favor of Sunday closing, all it would amount to would be a declaration that the existing law should be enforced. On the other hand, if the vote turned out to favor Sunday saloons, it would mean that the voters had decided that the saloons should remain open in violation of law. In other words, in the affirmative the vote would simply approve a law whose very existence implies a demand for its enforcement, while if the vote were in the negative the public would be put in the paradoxical position of approving violation of law.

In short, the question of whether a law should be enforced or not is not a question of public policy. If the question were whether the Sunday closing law should be repealed it would be a question of public policy. If it were whether, having no Sunday law, one should be enacted, that, too, would be a question of public policy. But the question of whether a law should be enforced cannot, according to the reasoning of the Chicago election commissioners, be considered one of public policy.

The condition in Chicago shows once more the sham, pretense and hypocrisy growing out of laws not backed by public sentiment.

March is doing very well toward bringing up the winter's average of wintry weather.

This is the day when Irishmen pause to do honor to the memory of one of the world's greatest uplifters—Saint Patrick.

The morning paper is endeavoring to regulate the politics of the entire state in both parties. It will later appreciate the difficulty of making a tin whistle sound like a trombone.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Down at the Lenox hotel last evening a little group, composed of two traveling salesmen, an insurance man, and a newspaper reporter, were discussing small towns, and their "characters."

"In the little town I came from in Ohio," said the insurance man, "there is a man like Peter Pan, the 'boy who never grew up.' This man never grew up. He's the kid yet, and he will be until he dies. 'Dad,' they call him. He's an old bachelor, about 60 years of age, and I'll bet that he has more friends in that county and fewer enemies than any man that ever lived there. Ever since I can remember 'Dad' has been master of ceremonies at all the Sunday school picnics ever pulled off in the town. He hasn't missed one in twenty years, I guess. It doesn't matter what church it is that gives it. 'Dad' never goes to church, but he attends every Sunday school picnic, gets his coat off, and takes charge of the sports.

"'Dad' has been clerking in the same store for twenty years and has probably been getting the same wages, about $12 a week, all that time. He lives in a little room over a drug store, and he always manages to keep a bagful of peppermint candies in his pockets for the kids. He can't walk a block without having ten or fifteen kids tagging after him, and they all know 'dad.' I'll bet if 'dad' died every man who ever lived in that town would feel that he had lost a friend."

"The strangest character we had in our town," said one of the drummers, "was the principal of our high school. He was crazy on the subject of mathematics. The man was a born mathematician, but he was wasting his talents teaching high school youngsters for $1,200 a year. He seemed to grow lean and crochety on it, and I don't blame him. He had the brain of a Newton, but he could not turn his knowledge to practical use, and lived and died a poor man.

"There was one certain method of getting on the right side of him. Any boy who showed a liking for mathematics could do as he pleased in school. The old fellow would work with the boy for hours at a time, showing him the principles of higher mathematics. His mind seemed to take a most difficult problem and simply tear it to pieces. The boys used to make great sport of him, but at heart, I think, every one of them respected and liked him for the man he really was. He was simply a man who got in a little wrong. Hundreds of men with half the brain he had, and more self assurance are making ten times his salary today."

"Our town down in Maine had a real live Thoreau," said the second drummer. "The people there used to think he was crazy, and called him 'the hermit.' He was a bachelor or a widower, I never knew which, and lived all alone in a little cottage on the outskirts of the town. Nobody knew how he lived. He must have had a little money when he came there, he spent nearly all of his time in the woods. Once in a while he would come to town and buy a few groceries, paying cash for them, and then the people would not see him again for days. He would wander through the woods sleeping in the open in the summer time, and building a fire and cooking his own meals. Nobody ever saw the inside of his cottage, that I know of, and the youngsters used to be afraid of him, although he was as harmless as a kitten. The poor old fellow probably came there to live out the last days of his life alone. What he had for money nobody knew, and he died as he lived, a mystery. He had a hobby for collecting butterflies and when he died they found a wonderful collection in his cottage."

"I have a theory," said the insurance man, "that everybody is crazy on some topics and that unless there is something to counterbalance it these qualities show themselves as the years advancing age."

"Perhaps you are right," said the first drummer.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: If a girl will admit a man kissed her, he didn't.

Common sense is useful for everything, except being engaged.

It's a good deal easier to make money than to prevent other people from spending it for you.

What a girl likes about going to the matinee is it's so exciting to think how remantic it would be if she knew the leading man.

If you depend on hat kind of a woman for your meals, it's just as well to know the difference between being fat and plump and to show you do.

THE WEATHER.

The snow did not last long and this morning it was clear, cool and brilliant. The weather man says it will be a little cooler tonight than it was last night—it was 7 degs. above zero last night and it will get down to about zero tonight—but that it will turn warmer again tomorrow, and that the westerly winds will shift to northeasterly, accompanied by partly cloudy conditions. Yesterday's highest temperature was 18 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, and though the north wind was cool, the sun's rays melted the snow rapidly.

The sun rose this morning at 6:17 and sets tonight at 6:16, making 11 hours and 59 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low pressure areas centered over British Columbia, Wyoming and the western lake region, caused snow over most northern districts during Monday or last night, and higher temperatures this morning in the western lake region and Mississippi valley. High pressure areas off the North Atlantic coast and over the Red River valley are attended by colder weather in those sections. Zero temperatures prevail in Northern Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Red River valley, the coldest being 24 degs. below zero at Battleford. Generally fair weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Wednesday with rather low temperature tonight, but followed by milder weather Wednesday afternoon."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Walker Pilot: If Governor Johnson needs any recommendations to enable him to get into the lecture field, the Republicans would be pleased to supply him. In fact they will do anything that will detract his attention from further gubernatorial honors.

Blackduck American: Northern Minnesota's greatest need at present is not more government land thrown open for settlement, but actual settlers on the lands that were homesteaded during the past few years and which has, after being stripped of its timber, been deserted. If congressman Steenerson really is anxious to boost these counties let him devote his surplus time in securing actual settlers to come here instead of exerting his energy to have every acre of government land thrown open to settlement to be gobbled up by outside speculators.

Walker Pilot: Many's the girl who has been able to look into the innermost corners of a man's heart with no other light than the sparks of a parlor match.

Ely Miner: The fifty-first legislative district promises to be well supplied with legislative candidates the coming summer. Duluth and Two Harbors will furnish the bulk of the aspirants, and in our opinion it would be a wise plan to have some from Ely on the list. What's the matter with M. E. Gleason for the legislature?

Hibbing Tribune: Hon. E. B. Hawkins will be one of Minnesota's big four at the national Republican convention. This is one thing that does not look funny to J. Adam Bede.

Le Sueur News: The country press is for Joel Heatwole for governor.

Royalton Banner: As things stand today there is but very little difference between the creeds of honest Democrats and Republicans. They are both struggling to keep the country out of the grasp of the unscrupulous rich who seek nothing but plunder.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

New York World: The only hope of the Democrats in the coming campaign lies in the nomination of a candidate like John A. Johnson, whose life history will appeal to the imagination of everybody, who has no record of defeat and disaster to explain away, who has not been identified with the old vendettas of his party and who has demonstrated his ability to get votes.

Brooklyn Eagle: Mr. Johnson's friends may make what fight they please for him before and at the Denver convention. But unless we mistake him greatly he will employ the interval between now and the meeting of that body in caring for state business and not in writing platforms for or issuing proclamations to his party. His record suggests that with him the Democracy might win, while the "past performances" of Mr. Bryan point to borrow a race-track phrase, are discouraging augury of defeat.

Indianapolis News: Don't the Bryan men in Minnesota remember that Mr. Bryan merely urged that delegates be instructed? He didn't say for whom.

Moorhead Citizen: The committee could not have done otherwise. Even if he does not receive the nomination at the national convention at Denver he is certainly entitled to a complimentary vote from the Democrats in the state of Minnesota, for he has done more to bring the party in this state together than any other candidate they have ever produced. We want to see Governor Johnson get the nomination if possible, but if Mr. Bryan receives it we will support him just as loyally.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: For the first time Minnesota has a full-fledged candidate for the presidency. At the meeting of the Democratic state committee last Friday Governor Johnson's name was recommended to the state convention as a fitting candidate for the highest honor human ambition can seek. It is fair to assume that there will be little opposition in Minnesota to the presentation of the governor's name.

Omaha Bee: "Governor Johnson refuses to discuss politics," says a St. Paul dispatch. Governor Johnson is apparently determined to appear as different as possible.

Buffalo News: The managers of Mr. Bryan announce that they will contest all the nine congress districts against Governor Johnson. They are not willing to permit his friends to show him the courtesy of even a complimentary favorite son vote. • • • Apparently, the demand is that the Democratic party of no state in the Union be permitted without a fight to support anybody but Mr. Bryan at Denver. Even the courtesy shown by Secretary Taft to Governor Hughes in New York is to be denied to Governor Johnson in Minnesota. Such tactics may gain a nomination in July, but what about the election in November?

Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier: But the Independent Democrats of the East would like to see a Democrat elected and they are ready to make concessions. They do not ask that a conservative of the Parker type be nominated. They will be satisfied with Johnson, a Bryan Democrat, Mr. Bryan's friend, who has not indulged in numerous eccentric flights into Socialism, such as advocacy of government ownership of railroads, with Mr. Bryan himself admits is not an issue. They would accept the nomination of Johnson because they would see in Johnson the making of an earnest, hopeful and inspiring contest against the Republican party, but the nomination of Bryan they would regard as the childish surrender of a good fighting chance to an irrational emotion aroused by an eloquent and amiable dreamer of dreams.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Bryan supporters in Minnesota are adding strength to Governor Johnson's presidential possibility, and it is the very thing they are trying to prevent. It would look much better if the Minnesota contingent of the mawashed would swing into line for Johnson and ignore Bryan. There may be no possible chance for Johnson to walk off with the plum from Denver, but it would be most becoming for his home state to stand by him to the end, and not unceremoniously submit to the egotistical whim of the Nebraska dictator. Johnson is the biggest "favorite son" on the political chart today, and he is entitled to better than he is receiving from the sore-head element of his own state.

A Bad Move.

Bisbee, Ariz., Review: Certainly the Bryan following in the state of Minnesota are not acting on the advice of the Nebraskan in their move to contest a delegation in that state. At the meeting of the state Democratic committee in the state of Minnesota, for he has done more to bring the party in this state together than any other candidate they have ever produced. ALDERMEN HOLD UP THE MAYOR'S APPOINTMENTS

Democrats Want to Prevent Appeal of Bloedel-Cromwell Case.

Motions to Revoke Saloon Licenses Are Turned Down.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Confirmed Mayor Haven's appointment of Coryate S. Wilson as city attorney and postponed action on appointment of E. K. Coe as city engineer, and Dr. F. J. Patton as health commissioner, for one week.

Turned down motions to revoke licenses of William Panta and John McIntosh.

Heard complaints of men against Lake Superior Employment company, Duluth Employment company and Northern Employment company, and referred them to the special committee on employment office investigation.

Laid over resolution against holding of saloon licenses by brewery agents for one week.

Reconsidered motion to limit number of saloons on both sides of Superior street, between Fifth and Seventh avenues west to the number in that district at present, and laid it on the table.

Heard report of board of public works' intention to furnish work for unemployed men.

Ordered pavement of Twentieth avenue west during coming season.

The city council, through the Democratic vote, took expected action last night when it held up the confirmation of Mayor Haven's appointment of E. K. Coe, city engineer, and Dr. F. J. Patton, health commissioner. Coryate S. Wilson's appointment as city attorney was confirmed.

When the committee on officers and elections reported a resolution confirming the three appointments, Alderman Tessman requested a division on city engineer and health commissioner. The vote on city attorney was unanimous. Alderman Shartel moved that the other two appointments be held over for a week, the vote resulting 7 to 7, the Democrats voting in favor and the Republicans against. Mayor Haven, who was in the council chamber, took a hand and requested that, since there was a disposition to "hang" the appointments, the postponement for a week be taken. The Republicans changed their vote and the appointments were over.

Aldermen Poubister and Fullatrault were absent when the vote was taken and the equal division of the council on party lines disposed of conjectures that some of the appointments might be held up through opposition to the appointees. The vote appears to establish the fact that the Democrats intend to hold up the appointments only as long as the controversy over the election in the Second ward remains unsettled. It is believed that the action is taken so that, should the court decision favor Bloedel, and Cromwell's appeal, the mayor's appointments will be held up just so long as the Democrats are prevented from having a majority in the council by the appeal. They are inclined to believe that the action of the district court will be the guide to Bloedel and are acting on that assumption.

The council chamber was again crowded and in anticipation of some thrills. The event, like many others, failed to materialize. There was considerable talk, but no heated arguments and no sensational votes.

Saloon Motion Laid Over.

Alderman Poubister's resolution establishing a council policy of granting saloon licenses only to those, who are to be in actual charge of the place for which the license is granted, was laid over for another week, on account of the absence of Alderman Poubister.

William Panta, who was convicted about a month ago of keeping his saloon open on Sunday morning after midnight, came in for a vigorous grilling from Alderman Moore and the other "old" aldermen, but he didn't lose his license. Panta appeared for himself at first and said that by locking his doors at 12 o'clock and then giving the people inside time to dispose of what they had purchased and leave, he had done no worse than many others. He claimed that he was just letting some people out, when the police walked in on him.

P. C. Schmidt, attorney for the Fitger Brewing company, also appeared in Mr. Panta's behalf, to explain the intent of the appeal to be taken in the case. He served notice that the appeal would go to the highest court, not in a spirit of malice, but in order that a question, which has never been raised before since the saloon ordinance has been in effect, might be settled. The breweries he said, were backing Mr. Panta, in order to settle the question.

He explained that the municipal court has the same powers in criminal matters as a justice court. A justice court, he said, may try cases for offenses, the penalities for which are fines of $100 or sentences of ninety days in the county jail. He said that the city ordinance, under which the municipal courts proceeded in Panta's and other cases, provides a penalty of $100 fine or ninety days in the county jail or both. He claims that under those circumstances, cases for violation of the liquor law should go to the grand jury and be prosecuted under the state law.

Assistant City Attorney McKeon also notified the council that he was pleased that the question, which had never previously been raised, would finally be settled by the appeal and he urged the council to reserve its action until after the appeal had been taken and the decision given.

Aldermen Moore and McKnight protested against the delay. Mr. Moore said Panta had been convicted of violating the law three times in a little over a year. Complaints had come to him of young men frequenting the saloon and pointed out that the council may refuse to be governed by the action of the court, but may proceed and revoke a license for cause, regardless of appeal or conviction. Mr. McKnight said the appeal could not come before the supreme court before next October and by that time, the Panta license would have expired. He said if the council should hold up its action, every saloonkeeper convicted of the liquor laws, could appeal and thus stay the proceedings of the council.

The vote on revocation stood:

Yes—Cromwell, Kennedy, Olson, McKnight, Moe, Moore, Getchell—7.

No—Filiatrault, Hogan, Jordan, Mueller, Ribenack, Shartel, Tessman, Trevillon—8.

John McIntosh stated his case, saying that he had gone in the saloon that some men, who were leaving the city that Sunday afternoon, might secure their sacks and that some others might leave their sacks there. The vote on the revocation stood the same as on the Panta license. Alderman Moore declined to press the case of William Krebs, as he said, the place bore a good reputation and the violation was evidently unintentional.

Reconsider Motion.

Alderman Shartel's motion to reconsider the resolution introduced last week by Alderman Ribenack and passed, caused something of a discussion. Alderman Shartel said that the provision that the number of saloons on either side of the street be limited to the number there at present had escaped his notice and that of other members of the council. He said a saloonkeeper, who had been in business eight years on the south side of the street would be compelled to move by the Wisconsin Central's operations and had leased a location on the other side of the street. He charged that the resolution shut him out unfairly.

Alderman Ribenack claimed that there are already eight saloons on the north side of the street and that is sufficient in the two blocks. He was backed up by several of the aldermen, but the motion to reconsider went through and Alderman Tessman's motion to lay on the table was also carried.

Only one ballot was taken on the election of a harbormaster last night, Tom Burke receiving eight votes, McGregor one and Nevilles six. A motion to lay over for a week went through unanimously.

Superior View people requested the council to order the Zenith Telephone company to extend its lines to that location and the request was granted, on condition that five subscribers are secured there.

A protest against the granting of a license to Theodore Epper to sell intoxicating liquors at 5629 Grand avenue, in West Duluth, was received. It was signed by about 500 people.

Reports were received from City Engineer McGilvray on the surveys for a road suitable for a street car line to the city limits over the East Duluth and Lester River road and for a road to the top of the hill on an easy grade. The plat for the former showed a road with a maximum grade of ½ of 1 per cent and the road to the top of the hill was platted at a maximum grade of 7.29 per cent.

The board of public works reported that it had made arrangements for starting the stone crusher on the east side of the point of rocks, where it left off last fall, and also for putting a crew of men at work 200 feet west of that point, widening Superior street, and erecting a derrick for loading the rock on cars, for transportation to St. Croix avenue, where it will be used in steengthening the shore line. The board requested that the council have a committee to see the street railway company officials, with a view to securing an arrangement, whereby the rock would be transported by car at night, after the regular cars had stopped running. The report said the board is also trying to make arrangements for establishing a portable crusher on Twelfth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets. The board reported that sewer contracts aggregating $20,000, which had been let recently, would furnish work to many men.

On the proposed sidewalk in Jenswold street, the board reported that no width of walk had been specified, and that the Jenswold street subway is so narrow any sort of a walk would be a menace to vehicles.

The board of public works reported that it is considering the improvement of Twentieth avenue east, at an estimated cost of $29,453.40, and it was ordered to proceed with the work.

The committee on auditing and county conference reported a resolution, referring the different recommendations in the mayor's message to the respective committees, and the references were made.

Contractor McDonnell's claim for interest on the final estimate for the paving of Ramsey and Oneota streets brought a report from the committee on claims, in which it was pointed out that in similar cases in the past the claims were paid, and censuring citizens who appeal from assessments, in order to hold up payment for a time, thus entailing expense to the city. The resolution granting the claim was referred to the city attorney for a written opinion.

The bond of J. W. Preston, as a member of the board of public works, was approved by the council, thus allowing him to take his seat on the board.

Two ordinances, amending the building ordinance, were introduced. One provides that fire escapes may be so placed that they must be reached by passing through an office provided with glass paneled doors, with "Fire Escape" printed in three-inch letters on them, and that the location of the fire escape must be indicated by a red light at night. The amendment applies only to office buildings. The other relates to the height and thickness of walls of certain buildings.

RAWHIDE IS A WONDER

New Western Mining Camp More Spectacular Than Goldfield.

Has Grown to City of 9,000 in Three Months.

Tales have been told of the spectacular growth and development of mining camps, of how they have sprung up almost in a night like a mushroom and from a single miner's cabin grown to a populous city in practically no time at all. In this respect, Rawhide, Nevada, the latest gold boomed town, is said to be no exception and its rise is claimed to be even more sensational than that of either Tonopah or Goldfield.

In five months Rawhide is said to have sprung from a mere handful of from twenty to twenty-five men, to a city of 9,000 population. Every day adds from 100 to 200 new citizens to its population. Long caravans of wagons, in trains of three, one wagon hitched back of the another, and drawn by eighteen horses, wind their way across the alkaline waste into the one long tent lined street of the mining camp. The drivers of these trains sit on the nigh horse of the team next to the first wagon and guide the whole eighteen horses with a single long rein.

One of the many striking features of the gold camp, that shows the aggressiveness and quickness of the American, is the automobile stage lines that are run from Reno, Fallon and Schurz to Rawhide. From Reno the distance is something over 100 miles, and from Fallon, about sixty.

Lewis H. Merritt of Duluth, who has just returned from a trip to Rawhide, tells the above and many more interesting things about this new town. Mr. Merritt says he went to Rawhide by the way of Schurz, a little station on the Tonopah and Goldfield branch from the Southern Pacific, and twenty-four miles from the new camp. He says that from ten to twelve big modern touring cars meet the trains each day, and the fare is very nominal considering the newness of the country. "They charge $18 for the round trip of forty-eight miles and over a private road," said Mr. Merritt. "The grant to build the road was obtained from the county commissioners and cost the parties building it $15,000. It is an excellent highway. For all wagons and automobiles not belonging to the stage line, a toll is charged."

Mr. Merritt said that tons and tons of freight are being hauled by team over all three of the routes each day. From Fallon alone 400 tons a day is being drawn in and from Schurz a far greater amount.

"Every class of people in the United States is represented there from New York bankers and brokers to the ordinary miner and all are wild over the prospects of the camp. Real estate has jumped from hundreds of dollars to thousands, some lots selling as high as $15,000.

"The orderliness of the place is remarkable, in spite of the great number of saloons and gambling houses that always spring up in such a locality. No one wears a gun on the street. The visitors can get clean beds and good food at any number of boarding houses and the prices are not too steep, 75 cents for a meal and $1.75 for a place to sleep."

Mr. Merritt is very enthusiastic over Rawhide's prospects as a gold camp. He says Tonopah and Goldfield are gradually becoming depopulated and their inhabitants going to Rawhide. Men who have mined in the Alaskan gold fields, say that Nevada camp has a greater future as a producer of gold than the gold fields of the north.

J. Blair Menardi, an engineer, who made a fortune at Goldfield, Nevada, said of Rawhide: "You have accomplished more in five months here than we did in eighteen at Goldfield."

Even Nat Goodwin, the actor has announced his retirement from the stage and gone to Rawnide, on being wired by his agent there that he was the owner of properties estimated to be worth $4,000,000. He expects to build a playhouse of his own in New York city when he has realized the reported value of his holdings.

DOUBTS GIRL'S STORY.

Declares the Tale of Suicide Pact Must be Exaggerated.

Boston, Mass., March 17.—Ernest Sawyer, the sweetheart of Helen Baxter, the St. Paul girl who shocked the country by her statements to the police of New York after being rescued from a suicidal death, was located in Revere, Mass., at the home of Burton Sawyer, his father, yesterday, and gave out the following interview:

"I know that Helen had several girl chums who had married unhappily, and I had heard from Helen that some of these had died, but it was never intimated that they died this way.

"Miss Baxter and myself have been very dear friends for a long time. I first met her in Hartford, Conn., when she was living there with her sister. After staying in Hartford two years she left the sister in that city and went to St. Paul, where she has other sisters. She was not treated well by them, she told me, and this, coupled with a great desire to see the world, prompted her to go to New York with the other St. Paul girls. I don't believe that there really was any suicide club, nor do I believe that Helen or the other girls were wronged. All young girls are foolish you know."

A New York wire says Miss Baxter was at 413 East Forty-fifth street yesterday, but that she would leave for St. Paul today.

RECIPE FOR BAD BLOOD

Better Than Medicine and Said to Build Up System.

Relieves Blood Disorders by Restoring Action of the Kidneys.

All medical authorities are agreed that the blood is the great source of disease or of health in the human system. If the blood is pure, the individual is strong and healthy, if the blood is impure or diseased then there is sickness or decay in the whole system.

Rheumatism is strictly a blood disease. It is caused by excessive uric acid. Sores, pimples, etc., mean bad blood. Catarrhal affections must be treated through the blood to get permanent results. To get well, to feel strong, hearty and vigorous one must have good clean blood and lots of it. You can't clean the blood thoroughly unless the kidneys are made active. Bad blood means clogged, inactive kidneys and liver which causes, too, such symptoms as backache, nervousness, bladder and urinary difficulties and other sympathetic troubles.

Here is a simple home remedy and the Recipe for making it up is as follows:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, tCompound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at small cost.

Here the readers of this paper have a simple yet powerful and effective remedy for all forms of blood, kidney and bladder diseases which should relieve rheumatism and catarrhal affections and replace that weak, worn-out indifferent feeling with strength, vigor and health.

Damaging evidence against Michael T. Kane, indicted for illegal voting in Duluth at the primary election last December, was introduced by the state yesterday afternoon after a rapid fire of objections by M. H. McMahon, attorney for Kane, who succeeded in keeping from the jury a number of matters that the state had expected to show in the way of Kane's alleged intent.

The most important testimony for the state's case was that given by First Assistant County Attorney W. J. Stevenson, who, with Sheriff Bates, went to San Francisco to get Kane, and by S. A. Anderson, an employe of the Northwestern Boiler Works company, who accompanied the officers to identify Kane.

Mr. Stevenson's testimony, in the main, related to the alleged statements made to the commandant at the Mare Island naval station when the defendant is said to have admitted that he voted several times in the Seventh ward.

Mr. Stevenson claimed that Kane's statement was a voluntary one and was made before the defendant knew the officers or learned what they were after.

Kane's Confession.

According to the testimony, Kane was brought before the commandant in the presence of Mr. Stevenson, Sheriff Bates, S. A. Anderson and one or two others connected with the naval station. It is claimed that the commandant first asked Kane his name and then demanded:

"Kane, how many times did you vote in Duluth?"

To this question Kane is alleged to have answered:

"In one or two places, next west of the Desmond hotel."

The state contends that by "Desmond hotel" the defendant meant the Esmond hotel, which is on Twentieth avenue west, and that the next voting place west of the hotel would be the First precinct of the Seventh ward.

Mr. McMahon objected to any testimony about the statement on the ground that the state would have to first prove that a crime had been committed before an alleged confession could be received. This objection was overruled.

Mr. Stevenson denied that he held out any promises of immunity to Kane, but claimed, on the contrary, that he warned the defendant that he, Stevenson, could promise Kane nothing as he had nothing to do with the criminal prosecutions of the county.

Mr. Stevenson testified that while the party were on the way to the ferry boat landing at the Mare Island station Kane asked Sheriff Bates what his punishment was likely to be and the sheriff referred him to the witness who explained the law as regards punishment for illegal voting.

Mr. Stevenson said that Kane, during the alleged conversation on the way to San Francisco, from the naval station, made the statement that he had been a lumberjack and when not in the woods made his headquarters at the St. James hotel in this city. Mr. Stevenson claimed that he asked Kane if he knew Ben Vail, but the defendant became uncommunicative after that and declared that he did not have to tell the assistant county attorney the truth but had to tell his colonel the truth.

According to Mr. Stevenson, Kane, after he had made the admissions about voting in Duluth, attempted to explain that he did not mean he had voted in Duluth but referred to his voting at the barracks. Mr. Stevenson stated that he asked Kane what the St. James and the Esmond hotels had to do with the voting at the barracks and the defendant remained silent.

Attorneys Have Tilt.

Several sharp passages occurred between Mr. McMahon and Mr. Stevenson while the latter was on the stand. Mr. Stevenson knew his legal rights and was not backward about asserting them. To one question of Mr. McMahon's he replied promptly. "It's is none of your business." The witness left the stand a moment, when under cross-examination to confer with Mr. Norton. Mr. McMahon demanded that he go back and remain in the chair until the conclusion of the examination. Mr. Stevenson refused to go and at the insistence of Mr. McMahon, asked the court if he could be excused a moment. The permission was granted and a smile went around at Mr. McMahon's expense.

S. A. Anderson, who accompanied the officers to the Mare Island station for Kane, testified that he knew Kane to be one of the men who voted illegally at the First precinct of the Seventh ward. The witness declared he was positive of his identification by reason of a scare on Kane's right jaw. His testimony about the alleged confession at the naval station was substantially the same as that given by Mr. Stevenson.

L. P. Hartson, an employe of Armour & Co., testified that he saw Kane go into the polling place of the First precinct of the Seventh ward. The witness was positive of the identification, as he claimed that he had followed Kane and his companions for half an hour and got a good look at two of the faces in the party. Hartson did not see Kane vote. The witness was not permitted to state whether he saw Kane and the other members of his party at another voting place in the city the same afternoon.

Edward Rudberg, one of the judges of election in the First precinct of the Seventh ward, testified that in his best judgment Kane was one of the men who voted at the precinct during the afternoon of the election day in question, but the witness would not swear positively as to the identification. The state sought to show by the registration books in the First precinct of the Third ward that M. P. Kane was registered in that ward, and to establish the identity of the defendant as the "M. P. Kane" in question, but the objections by the defense were sustained.

Walter Springle, clerk at the St. James hotel, testified that Kane was one of the boarders at the hotel about the time of the primary election.

Among the other witnesses were Sheriff Bates, N. P. Graff, Sivert Aune, and J. H. Robinson.

Kane appeared to be very much amused while the objections to the introduction of the state's evidence were being sustained, but after the alleged confession was admitted and the testimony identifying him as the man who voted in the First precinct of the Seventh ward was introduced, his demeanor became more apprehensive.

year is not, as heretofore, the opinion in Washington. It is the opinion of the bitterest enemies, as well as the most ardent admirers of Bryan. Governor Johnson, there is the best of authority for stating, has held this opinion, and there is no reason to believe he has changed it even under the pressure of adulation and argument on the part of the enthusiastic politicians, which is often so irresistible to the most level-headed of public men. But has Governor Johnson heard something—perhaps a whisper wafted northward from Lincoln, Neb.—indicating that after all Bryan will not accept the nomination generally believed to be within his grasp? Has the Minnesota Democrat had a "hunch" to accumulate a following, keep strongly in the public eye and hold himself in readiness for something to happen at the critical hour?

Recently, according to information received by the Record-Herald correspondent, there was a discussion of the Democratic situation at the White House, in the course of which admonishment was given by a political observer of wide experience in the national field that the Republicans should not make too sure that they would have Bryan for their opponent this year. Reasons for the admonition were demanded and promptly expounded. It is stated that when the administration officials assembled, including President Roosevelt, heard the story of observations and deductions drawn by the visitor, based on personal investigations in certain Democratic circles, there was admission that the situation depicted was worth thinking about at least.

According to the theory presented, Bryan will not be the candidate and will voluntarily refuse the nomination for several reasons:

1. He cannot be elected against either Taft or Roosevelt, and is convicted that one or the other of them will be the Republican nominee.

2. His ambition is to continue the biggest Democrat on earth, and he realizes that another defeat at the polls will put him down and out.

3. If his party be successful under another leader he would be the power behind the throne and suffer no loss of prestige as the idol of those who now worship at his feet.

4. If his party be defeated, as he thinks probable with Taft or Roosevelt heading the other ticket, his act of magnanimity in stepping aside because not the unanimous choice of the Democrats would boost his political fortunes, increase the power of his Commoner and continue him as the stellar attraction of the lecture platform. He would have the laugh on his enemies, who have figured on "getting rid of Bryan" by letting him hang himself.

In amplification of the paragraphs above it may be said that the belief exists that Bryan is more concerned over the conservation of his worldly and material fortunes than he is over the glory of leading another forlorn hope. The belief is expressed that the "money bug" has bitten the "peerless one" harder than might be expected from his past aversion to the plutocrats. He has grown rich on the platform and his writings. He might become more than a millionaire if he keeps to the front, and there is the suspicion that he is wise enough to trim his sails so as to keep well within the money-making channel.

There are two subreasons to the imputed Bryan belief that he cannot be elected. In the first place, there would be a progressive platform, with Taft or Roosevelt the Republican nominee, and the policies pledged to be continued would be policies that Bryan himself has indorsed in large measure. Barring the possibility of business depression, which might lead others to cast their ballots against the party in power for no logical reason, there would be no incentive for the people to seek a radical change of administration.

In the second place, other things being equal, Bryan would have no newspaper support from the metropolitan press. In that respect he would be even worse off than in 1906; and in that year the overwhelming majority for McKinley in the electoral college was brought about by the educational influence of the press more than anything else, although the Bryanites have insisted it was Mark Hanna's barrel.

This year Bryan not only would lose the support of the old-line Democratic papers, which now are rapping him without mercy and which would like nothing better than to elect a Republican in order to put him out of business for keeps, but he would not even have the support of Hearst, according to authoritative announcements already made. In support of the theory presented in this article, it is said that Bryan considered all these things and weighed the consequences.

Bryan's natural course, if the theory under consideration be correct, would be to wait the psychological moment, probably at Denver, just as the nomination was to be handed him, and then hand it back as the act of a man making the greatest of earthly sacrifices in the face of possible gratification of highest ambition.

What a sensation it would be! The convention hall and the land would ring with applause of the act—with paens of praise for the man who had performed an unprecedented act in behalf of harmony for the party he loved. The "cross of gold and crown of thorns" speech would be eclipsed. Bryan would have won the greatest triumph of his life. Nothing would be too good for him after that.

There would have to be new presses to supply the demand for Bryan's paper. The people would flock in greater crowds than ever to hear him lecture. His friends would be cemented to him stronger than ever, and—there would be a future in politics. Bryan is still young.

If anything should happen to make Bryan pass the nominal leadership of the Democratic party to other hands, it is believed Johnson would be the man he is believed Johnson would be the man he is regarded on all sides as the strongest vote-getter the Democrats could nominate. He has been extremely friendly to Bryan and has insisted he would not stand in the latter's way or do anything to embarrass him as a canddate for the presidency. And if Bryan should get out it would be to his advantage to have the strongest possible man take his place.

Johnson would have great strength as a tariff reformer, and in certain sections would run like wildfire by reason of his Scandinavian origin. In this connection it is pointed out that the wife of Governor Johnson is of Irish birth and a Catholic, and that this also might have an effect from the standpoint of racial influence in politics. And if Johnson, with all his elements of strength, should win, Bryan might become the premier of his cabinet as well as the power behind the throne, without detracting greatly from his service to humanity through his paper and on the platform.

It would be stretching matters considerably to say that the views expressed by believers in this program are coincided in by Washington politicians at present.

In administration circles, where there is much political wisdom, the belief still holds that Bryan will be the opposition candidate. The theory has been deemed worthy of consideration, however, as originally stated by the president, who, for obvious reasons, is as desirous of knowing the strategy of the enemy as he is of grasping the campaign plans of his party.

But Washington generally speaking believes at this time that the presidency amounts practically to an obsession with Bryan—believes he is convinced he is to be elected, is the man of destiny, and that this is destiny's year. Governor Johnson's reported change of mind about being a candidate, however, will arouse much speculation and—having believed some time ago as much as anyone else in Bryan's obsession—formal announcement of his candidacy for the nomination will lead to stronger suspicion that something is incubating of which the public has not been informed.

APPENDICITIS.

Grape-Nuts as a Reconstructing Food.

The number of cases of appendicitis which get well by proper feeding and nursing, is not less remarkable than the number of cases which were formerly operated on only to find that the operation was unnecessary.

While looking for the cause of this disease, it is well to remember that excessive starch fermentation may be considered a frequent cause, and that suggests more care in the use of starchy foods.

Grape-Nuts can be retained on the most sensitive stomach and is extremely nourishing—just the ideal food for appendicitis cases.

"Last Spring I was taken ill with appendicitis," writes an Ind. man. "The doctor told me not to be alarmed, for he would do the best he could to save me from the operating table.

"He advised me to eat nothing for two weeks, during which time I became so weak I could hardly move. The trouble began to leave me and I began to eat fruits and milk, but I did not regain the strength I had before I was sick.

"A friend of mine recommended Grape-Nuts. I tried it and it worked wonders with me. I soon began to gain in strength, and in a month was as strong as ever.

"I don't think I ever used a food that did me so much good. I now weigh 160 pounds, as against 130 before I was sick, all due to Grape-Nuts and regular exercise.

"My muscles are like iron and I can do the hardest work. Being employed in a printing office, I have to think a lot, and my mind is clear, thanks to Grape-Nuts." "There's a reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

CHURCHES THAT ARE FIRE TRAPS

Chicago Churches Inspected by Order of the Fire Marshal.

Chicago, March 17.—Investigation of the churches of Chicago regarding the danger from fire and the protection of congregations in the matter of exits was started Sunday by 130 captains of the fire department, acting under the personal instructions of Fire Marshal James Horan. They examined over 700 church buildings.

Although no reports have been received as yet at Marshal Horan's office from battalion chiefs, a canvass of a few of the stations near the loop district showed four of the churches violating the state law as well as city ordinances in locking certain exit doors.

Same Rules Apply.

In many of the churches it was found doors swing inwards, though the ordinance specifically says that in all public buildings, such as schools, theaters, halls and churches, all exit doors shall open outward.

During church hours in the morning captains of fire companies went to the churches in their districts, inspected the exit doors, the fire protection arrangements, the seating capacity, and the case with which the buildings could be emptied.

In the evening churches which had not been visited during the morning underwent an examination.

The fire captains yesterday turned in to Chief Horan complete reports and recommendations as to necessary changes. Notices at once will be served on pastors and trustees of churches found to be of faulty construction, or where doors have been found locked, that the city ordinance must be complied with in the future. It it not expected any refusal will be met with.

The investigation of the fire peril of churches was brought about by complaints received by Chief Horan from members of different congregations, following closely after the inspection of school buildings by the fire department and Acting Building Commissioner Knight's office, when fifty school buildings were found with locked doors.

Many Doors Are Locked.

It was asserted in many letters that exits leading to fire escapes, even certain main entrance doors, were kept locked throughout services. In the larger churches, it was said, congregations were obliged to leave the structure through one main door while other exits were kept locked.

Chief Horan decided to inspect every church in the city, and gave instructions to his captains. It is believed that in about 33 per cent of the buildings examined during the day the congregations practically were locked in.

Three churches out of twelve, according to the reports of fire captains, were found to have been careless in regard to the keeping of doors locked.

THE SAFEST OF HOTELS

The St. Regis, New York, the Highest Type of Fireproof Construction.

COMFORT COMBINED WITH SAFETY

In no class of buildings are provisions for preventing or extinguishing fires more necessary than in the lofty modern hotels. Realizing this, builders have made special efforts to render such structures fireproof. In New York City many of the great hotels built in recent years claim to be so perfectly constructed that fire is out of the question, but none offers such absolute safety in this direction as the St. Regis, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street.

The builders of this magnificent hotel were not satisfied with simply complying with the stringent municipal building laws, but went far beyond in providing against fire. Steel, marble, concrete, bronze and wire glass were the principal materials used, and all wood was treated by the most approved fireproofing process. To add to the safety of this great hotel the best known fire-fighting apparatus is supplied, and employees are put through regular fire drills at frequent intervals.

The St. Regis is therefore one of the safest hotels in the world, and, as safety is a great contributor to one's comfort, a most comfortable place in which to live. In addition to absolute safety, the St. Regis offers an exceptional cuisine, perfect ventilation, quiet, refined service and surroundings.

In view of these features and the fact that moderate restaurant prices prevail and that good room with outside view may be had for $4 a day, or the same with private bath, for $5 a day ($6 for two people), or a parlor, bed room and bath for $12, it is little wonder that the St. Regis has become the most popular of New York hotels.

PAPKE GETS DECISION

Has Better of Fight With Hugo Kelly at Milwaukee.

Victory Entitles Him to Fight With Stanley Ketchell.

Milwaukee, March 17.—Billy Papke of Spring Valley, Ill., was awarded the decision over Hugo Kelly of Chicago in a ten-round bout at the Hippodrome under the auspices of the Milwaukee Boxing club. The bout went the limit, Papke's win over Kelly entitles him to a battle with Stanley Ketchall of Grand Rapids, Mich., for the middleweight championship.

The fight was almost a succession of clinches and in-fighting from start to finish. Papke earned his victory principally by knocking Kelly down in the first round for a count of two, and in the fighting thereafter he was the aggressor. He carried the fight to Kelly and worked his famous corkscrew upper cut with considerable frequency. Papke's boring-in tactics prevented Kelly from fighting in his scientific way.

Papke easily had the better of the opening round, though his knockdown, which followed a hard right to Kelly's jaw. The Chicago boy was up in an instant and the boys finished the round by some hard fighting in clinches.

Kelly got in some severe body punishment in the second round and had a slight advantage of that period. The third, fourth and fifth rounds were even. Papke came at his man like a mad bull in the sixth round. They both engaged in lively in-fighting with Papke seeming to have teh advantage. Kelly was suffering from a bad cut over his left eye at the end of this round with much blood flowing. Papke worked his corkscrew punch with good advantage in this round.

The seventh was pretty much like the sixth. Papke continued carrying the fight to Kelly in the eighth, chasing him around the ring. The round was made up mostly of clinches.

Papke had the math by a good margin. He staggered Kelly early in the round with a right to the jaw and then chased him around the ring coming into close quarters. Kelly got in some good body punishment.

The closing round was a shade Papke's and consisted of in-fighting with an exchange of but few free blows. The decision was pretty well received, although a number thought a draw would have been better. Al Bright refereed the fight. The crowd numbered 5,400.

WIGGINS WINS SKATING RACE

Victor Over Joseph Munch at the Roller Rink.

Walter Wiggins of Duluth defeated Joseph Munch of Minneapolis, Northwestern champion, in a roller skating race at the Temple rink last evening. The contest was one of the best ever seen in Duluth. The distance of one mile was covered by the victor in 3:16, which is considered remarkably good, considering the fact that the local rink was not built for speed purposes.

Almost to the last the crowd thought Munch would win out, for he led most of the way. On the last round Wiggins made a spurt and forged into the lead in time to get the decision. The race was for $50 a side and a purse of $50, which was hung up by the rink management. Wiggins and Munch will race again this evening, and if Munch wins the first heat, the deciding heat will be raced immediately afterwards.

PLANS TRIP FOR BRANDON

Artie O'Dea Has Good Games for Early Training.

Will Open Season at Hibbing With Five Games.

Artie O'Dea, manager of the Brandon team of the Northern league, who has returned from a trip to Chicago, where he purchased uniforms and other equipment for his team, is fairly bubbling over with optimism.

"Twould be folly to make predictions at this stage of the game, but, take it from me, there'll be no runaway race, if I'm any judge of ball teams on paper," he said yesterday. "The four teams will all be strong and quality will make up for any lack of quantity that may exist through the small circuit. Brandon, at least, will not be flagged, if I have to sign a new man every day."

O'Dea has signed up all the men he wants for the present. After his team goes into training, he may make some changes, and secure new men through the weeding out process in the higher leagues, but he has all the men he wants now for the preliminary work before the real race.

The Brandon candidates will report at Burlington, Iowa, April 15, where they will be hustled into their stride for the first games with Ned Egan's Burlington team April 18 and 19. After two more days of work, they will play Mammoth, Iowa., April 22, 23 and 24, jumping to Davenport for games April 26 and 27. Dates will probably be secured at Waterloo May 2 and 3, and then the team will come direct to the Mesaba range, opening the season at Hibbing May 6. Five games will be played at Hibbing, after which the team will jump to Brandon, to be come acquainted with its home lot and wait for the opening of the season May 14.

Eau Claire is now definitely out of it. There is no possibility of another town being secured and the Wisconsin town must go. The Duluth fans would like to have seen Eau Claire in the league, but they are now content to lend their support to the four-club league, which is at least more concentrated than the grasshopper affair of last year and will undoubtedly be a better paying proposition.

IRISH SKI JUMPER.

Barney Reilly of Coleraine Makes Good in Norwegian Sport.

Barney Reilly, champion ski rider of the United States in the boys' class, has a record of 109 feet in a standing jump at the Coleraine tournament this year. At Ishpeming, where he was not allowed to go to the top of the slide, he made 98 feet. He weighs only 115 pounds and has been jumping but one year. Reilly is of Irish descent and a native of Ishpeming, Mich. He lives with his parents at Coleraine.

Roller Wins Match.

Seattle, Wash., March 17.—Dr. D. B. Roller, the Seattle wrestler, won two straight falls from Jesse Westergarde of Iowa, last night. The first fall was obtained at the end of 24 minutes and the second after an hour and two minutes.

SEARCH FOR PROOF

Of Whether or Not Lincoln Drank Intoxicants, Discloses Nothing.

Washington, March 17.—The search for proof of whether or not Lincoln drank intoxicants has led to Washington, without yet discovering anyone who could say that Lincoln ever took a drink.

Maj. William H. Crook, executive clerk of the White House, who was on duty when Lincoln was president, declared today that he was certain Lincoln never drank. "I never saw him drink and never heard anybody say he drank," said Mr. Crook.

Maj. Crook was not certain whether, as president, Mr. Lincoln had served liquor to guests at the White House.

Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois, who was born and raised in Springfield, Ill., and knew Lincoln for many years before he became a president, said today:

"Lincoln never drank, smoked, chewed tobacco or swore. He was a man of the most simple habits. I recall distinctly when a committee of Springfield citizens, including myself, called at Lincoln's house after he was nominated for president, to talk over with him the arrangements for receiving the committee on notification.

"Lincoln said: 'Boys, I have never had a drop of liquor in my whole life, and I don't want to begin now.' This part of the entertainment was provided for elsewhere."

L. White Bushey, secretary to Speaker Cannon, said he recalled that an old citizen of Illinois once told him that Lincoln sold whisky when he was a country storekeeper.

"This old man lived in the town where Lincoln kept store and Stephen A. Douglas taught school," said Mr. Bushey. "He told me at the end of every school term Lincoln had a slate full of credits against Douglas. The barrel was empty and Lincoln was broke."

The holdout squad of the big leagues has simmered down to Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner, with a crowd of lesser lights, whose signatures the magnates aren't hankering after. Wagner's reasons for failing to sunset the ink are not financial and cannot be met very well so that Pittsburg is out of consideration in the National league race.

With Cobb, it is different. He is holding out for that $5,000, and it looks as though he might make good. He is said to have David Harum tendencies and, even with extraordinary care against disaster in the future, he might see his right path in taking $5,000 from the Union league rather than $4,000 from Detroit. Cobb is a valuable player and it isn't likely that Detroit will pass him up. He is on his way to the Michigan metropolis now and he and President Navin will have a very interesting little session.

The holdout boys have come over just as was expected. While the snow was on the ground and the coal stove circuits alone were playing, they were content to talk of more money or no play. But when the teams began to go to the training camps, the news of the great showing the kids were making against the veterans began to come north, and the club owners were giving out interviews, in which they said the holdout players could go to Saskatchewan for all they cared, the figures on their contracts didn't look so small after all.

Tommy Leach, Bobby Wallace, Fred Tenny, Thoney and others have sent along the little slips and beat it for the training camps. It's so every spring. The magnates have the better side of the argument and all the players get is a little cheap notoriety, which some of them seem to enjoy.

Joe Gans and Abe Attell have agreed to one of the most incongruous schemes ever sprung on a public, which has stood for a great deal. They have been matched to fight at San Francisco March 31. Attell to weigh 122 pounds and Gans 132 at 6:30 on the night of the contest, or 133 pounds ringside.

It will probably make a corking good fight. Both are the cleverest in their respective divisions and the bout will be one of science. But Abe's victories in the featherweight class don't give him a license to give away weight wholesale. The dusky gentleman from Baltimore, Md., is the one best bet. He isn't as young as he was, but he's still all there. Even if Abe is defeated, he retains his featherweight title. Outside of the financial consideration, though, just what Gans is going to gain by licking the California Hebrew isn't plain.

Today, in Dublin, Tommy Burns will fight his last bout on the other side of the pond. After putting Gunner Moir away easily and Jack Palmer more easily, he goes against Ireland's best for his title of heavyweight champion of the world. Unless the spirit of the day gives Roche more prowess, he doesn't look like a victor. He hasn't done anything to make him a likely world's champion, and Tommy will probably add a few more thousands to his pile and another victory to his record.

When Burns returns to this side of the water, there will be some fun. When he heaves in sight of the land of the free, New York will be overshadowed by a big cloud, which will make a noise like a negro named Johnson. Poor Ahthuh has been yelling his dinky head off since Burns crossed the ocean. It will be up to Tommy to give him a chance. That's about all he has, is a chance. Nobody would lay much on that, either, for it's about time to give it to Burns. He has the goods. Johnson is big and burly, but after what Burns has done to big men, he looks pretty dangerous to the smoke.

Beell Wins at Lincoln.

Lincoln, Neb., March 17.—Fred Beell of Wisconsin, last night secured three straight falls in fifty-five minutes in the wrestling match with Oscar Wasem of Lincoln.

NEW DESIGN FOR NATIONAL FLAG.

Washington, March 17.—Because of a general misapprehension on the subject of the change in the national flag necessitated by the addition of Oklahoma to the Union, the war department has found it necessary to issue circular letters to correspondents, who are submitting plans for the designs of the flag, that a design has already been adopted to go into effect on the Fourth of July next. In the approved design the field or union of the flag consists of forty-six stars arranged in six rows, the first, third, fourth and sixth rows having eight stars and the second and fifth rows have seven stars each.

CASHIER SENTENCED.

Philadelphia, March 17.—James Simpson, former paying teller of the Farmers' and Merchants' National bank of this city, who was arrested last December charged with embezzling $4,500 from the institution, pleaded guilty in the United States district court yesterday and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Your Oven Isn't Hot

A fierce heat is required to make beans digestible; you can't apply it

It is simply impossible to bake beans at home, and bake them as they should be baked. You lack the facilities.

Home-baked beans are heavy and hard to digest, because of insufficient heat. You fail to break down their fibre.

Let us bake for you. We bake in live steam, and our ovens are heated to 245 degrees. The result is, our beans are digestible.

That nutty flavor and that sparkling zest are found in Van Camp's alone

The nutty flavor comes from using only the plumpest, ripest beans. It is also due to baking without bursting.

The piquant tang comes from vine-ripened tomatoes. Our sauce costs us five times what some sauce is sold for.

The delicious blend comes from baking the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork for 90 minutes together.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

Baking beans at home is a bother. It takes too much time. That is why you don't serve them frequently.

Van Camp's are always ready. Put the can in hot water, then open, and you have a delicious meal steaming hot.

You will eat more beans when you know Van Camp's. First, because they're convenient. Second, because they're so good.

Beans are 84 per cent nutriment; yet see how many you get for ten cents

Beans and meat have about the same food value, but look at the difference in cost. Suppose your people ate beans once a day—think what you would save.

Why not tempt them with beans which are as good as beans can be? Then note how soon they ask for more.

They will like Van Camp's better than meat.

10, 15 and 20¢ per can.

BADGER BOASTS YOUNGEST MAYOR

Head of Roseau County Village is Barely Twenty-One.

Badger, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—This incorporated village of about 80 population probably has the youngest mayor in the state, if not in the Northwest, in its newly elected president, William Anderson who was only three days over the legal age when he was chosen to look after the affairs of the place.

Mr. Anderson is cashier of the Scandinavian-American bank and is popular throughout this section.

It was a three-cornered fight that first tested the stamina of the rising politician, for he was opposed by Erick Carlson and Gilbert J. Brenden, the latter of whom is editor of the Herald-Rustler. The scene at the polls was warm and spirited. From the beginning of the announcement of the various candidates for the leading office the ticket placed in the field was the center of attraction. Mr. Anderson, who is a youthful and energetic looking man, conducted his campaign through the village with all the keenness of a veteran. All the dances, the sleighrides and skiing parties found him ever to the front and he was a considerable factor before the election. The old heads of the town, however, would not concede him his strength, and his victory was a surprise to them.

BUILDING IN HANCOCK.

Two Substantial Business Blocks Will be Erected This Year.

Hancock, Mich., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Architect H. T. Liebert is at work on plans for two business blocks to be erected here. The Bosch Brewing company of Lake Linden will build a two-story brick structure on Tezcuco street. It will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. It will be fifty feet wide and fifty-four feet long. The ground floor will be for store rooms, and there will be two flats on the second floor.

W. H. Mason will erect a business block on Quincy street. This building will also be a two-story structure. Its dimensions will be 27 by 66 feet. The first floor will be a store room, and there will be two flats upstairs. This building will also cost about $10,000.

GARY, S. D., SCORCHED.

Gary, S. D., March 17.—A fire which started in M. Schultz harness store, destroyed the building, the general merchandise store of J. V. & H. J. Wells, the Vanderwerke & Farnum creamery a pool hall owned by John Handcock, B. Fenger's drug store, the Masonic hall and a barber shop. The loss has not been estimated yet.

WINGREN IS FREE AGAIN

Homesteader, Who Accidentally Shot Peter Larson, is Paroled

From Reformatory Where He Was Taken Last Saturday.

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Wingren, a homestead settler near Rapid River, Koochiching county, was paroled from the St. Cloud reformatory yesterday afternoon, having been sentenced there Saturday on a charge of manslaughter committed on Monday of last week. He will leave the St. Cloud reformatory today.

Wingren with a neighbor was out inspecting a tract of timber on March 9. They thought they saw a moose and Wingren shot. The "moose" happened to be Peter Larson, another neighbor, who lived at a distance and who died as a result. The petition for parole was signed by Judge W. S. McClenahan who sentenced Wingren, and County Prosecutor C. W. Stanton.

SAYS SHIPPEY ACTED RASHLY

Chicago Publicist Charges Police Officer With Being Murderer.

Vermillion, S. D., March 17.—Mr. Raymond Robins, noted lecturer, publicist and member of Chicago's school board, has been in the city since Saturday.

Mr. Robins is one of the best posted men of Chicago on public questions, and in speaking of the recent attempt on the life of Chief of Police Shippy, intimated that there is more behind the killing than has actually been given to the public through the press.

Mr. Robins does not entertain the belief that the young man, who met his death in the Shippy home in Chicago, had gone there for the purpose of killing Shippy. He is firmly of the belief that the fellow was simply looking for a recommendation from the officer in order that he might obtain a situation, and that Shippy, acting on the spur of the moment, snuffed out his life without even learning his mission. He places no stock whatever in the story that the fellow attempted to assassinate Shippy. Neither does he believe that there was an anarchistic plot against the present Chicago administration. Neither does he believe that Shippy's son was shot by the murdered man, but rather by a member of the household.

Mr. Robins formerly wrote editorials for the Chicago Record-Herald, and says the paper has not endeavored to get at bottom of the killing, and does not care to. The other big Chicago dailies, he asserts, are in the same boat. It is the same old industrial censorship of the press that is working to defeat the ends of justice.

SPORTSMAN'S POSITION ODD.

Must Contribute to Reward for His Own Conviction.

Little Falls, Minn., March 17.—Pleading guilty to shooting game out of season, Barney Burton of Little Falls has placed himself in the peculiar position of having to contribute to the payment of a reward for his own conviction.

Burton was indicted last fall on a charge of shooting prairie chickens before the season opened. The case was continued at the fall term of court and was to have come up this spring, but Burton decided to dispose of the matter and entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $100, but his troubles did not end there. He is a member of the Little Falls Gun club, which posted notices throughout that section of the country offering a reward of $20 for the arrest and conviction of any one found violating the game laws.

As Burton is a member of the club offering the reward, he will have to stand his share of the reward if he desires to remain a member.

PUNISHED FOR BUNKOING.

Confidence Man Who Swindled Engineer. Goes to Pen.

Shell Lake, Wis., March 17.—C. H. Davis was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses and sentenced to the penitentiary for four years. Davis, who came to this locality last summer, induced Engineer Geesa of Spooner to mortgage his home for $1,000, which Davis soon bunkoed Geesa out of and fled for greener pastures, but was apprehended and brought back for trial.

STOCKMAN GOING WEST.

Moving in That Direction After More Grazing Lands.

Dickey, N. D., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—David McLeod, one of the large stock owners west of town, says that he has bought three sections of grazing land in Billings county, twelve miles north of Medora, and expects to move with his family to that place the latter part of April. Mr. McLeod said that grazing land in La Moure county was being broken up so rapidly that he decided to go farther west where grazing land was more plentiful.

OLD CAPITOL CUSTODIAN GIVEN FAREWELL RECEPTION

Bemidji, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—L. G. Pendergast, recently appointed custodian of the old state capitol at St. Paul, and wife left Monday for St. Paul, where they will hereafter make their home.

The departure of Mr. and Mrs. Pendergast for the state capital was deeply regretted in Bemidji, where both are very popular, and last Saturday afternoon and evening a farewell reception and banquet was held by the members of the local order of Women's Relief corps and the G. A. R. of the city, Mrs. Pendergast being a member of the women's order and Mr. Pendergast of the other.

A genuine surprise was sprung on Judge Pendergast Sunday evening, when he was made the recipient of a beautiful gold-headed cane, being a gift from a number of his Bemidji friends.

NEW UPPER RIVER BOAT.

Steamer Ethel Has Been Purchased by Brainerd Parties.

Brainerd, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jay Henry Long and his son, Jay, returned from Stillwater, where they went to purchase a fine boat to be used on the upper Mississippi river. The boat is named the Ethel Mae and is twenty-seven feet in length, five foot beam. The framework and hull are constructed of steel with air tight compartments and the boat is equipped with double cylinder gasoline engines of twenty horse power. She is also equipped with up-to-date reversible propeller and is handsomely finished in brass and mahogany. She will be used largely in towing cedar poles for the McKinley company, though she is the property of Mr. Long.

A point has been found 208 feet above this, namely, Rib hill, in Marathon county, by far higher than any point in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa or Missouri, and lacking only eighty-three feet of Michigan's highest point, Porcupine mountain. SIXTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS IN BOUNTIES ON WOLVES.

Newberry, Mich., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Since Nov. 10 last fifty-four wolves have been killed in Luce county. The bounty, at $30 a head, amounts to $1,620. The past winter has been unusually favorable for the hunters and trappers, and they have reaped a rich reward, their success in Luce being duplicated in nearly every county in the peninsula. That the wolves are still numerous, notwithstanding the inroads made in their numbers, cannot be doubted, and the threatened extermination of the deer is unquestionably caused more from this source than any other.

Oddly enough, not a bone in his body was broken and there were no bad contusions, but death resulted from the shock. Fish formerly lived at Heron Lake, Minn., and moved to Kasota two years ago. He leaves a wife and three children.

JURY ACQUITS VICTOR LAMONT

A jury in municipal court this morning acquitted Victor Lamont, proprietor of a saloon at 1119 West Michigan street, of a charge of aiding and abetting a prize fight. Henry Pulinsky and Albert Wilson were, yesterday afternoon, convicted of conducting a prize fight, and Morris Pauls, Wilson's second, of aiding and abetting. The cases grew out of a raid on the basement of Lamont's saloon the morning of Sunday, March 8, when Pulinsky and Wilson had fought six rounds to a draw.

It developed that the fight was something of a farce. The principals had not stripped, and they had no ring. There were only fourteen or fifteen present and there was nothing to show that they had succeeded in selling any tickets for the event, or that any prizes were given. Lamont claimed that he had nothing to do with arranging the fight, and when he gave the boys the use of the basement, it was with the understanding that they were going to entertain a few of their friends with a friendly exhibition.

They had tickets printed, however, and the police secured one of them. The raid followed, the principals and some of those present being arrested. Charles Dancer of Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer represented Lamont.

Why Men Get Sick

Madical Scientists Ascribe Most Maladies to Germs, Neglect and Wrong Living.

If you carefully take some of the mucous from the Pharyngy of a Diphtheria patient, spread it onto a slide and put it under a microscope to be magnified 1,000 times, you will find millions of Diphtheria Germs in less space than that of a pin's point. These and all other germs live on the blood or other tissues of the patient; multiply very rapidly and secret poison which, if the resistant power of the man is not strong enough, will kill the patient. Some germs are extremely slow in the poisoning effect, but in their course of long living, are just as dangerous to wreck the health and life of men. Of the quickly killing germs are those of Diphtheria, Pneumonia, Smallpox, lockjaw, cholera. Those of the slowly killing type are the germs of Consumption, Blood Poison, Syphilis Gonorrhea and Gleet. These are most horrible in its consequences if the cure is neglected. In Consumption, the lungs are eaten up. In Syphilis, in the first stage the disease heals, apparently, but in its second stage ulcers break out on the legs or any part of the body, a man takes a few treatments and the sores heal up and he is under the impression that he is cured, but the most horrible of all diseases appear in the third stage, that of locomotor ataxia, where he cannot live nor die. Gonorrhea is doing harm locally, for the germs are causing decay of the tissues and stricture follows in later years, and often the disease goes into the blood and causes rheumatism, bladder disease and kidney trouble, heart and skin diseases. Often a man never had any disease to his knowledge, and thinks he can never get sick. He forgets that the human body, by wrong living, needs repairs as well as anything else, and if this is neglected, he will die many a year before his time is up. There is just one place where you can get a cure in Duluth, and that is by the Progressive Medical Specialists. If you have any chronic diseases, they are the people to cure you, because they have spent their life and labor getting the knowledge for the cure of these diseases of men. They extend their cordial invitation to you, sick man, to consult them free of charge. Come from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays, 10 to 1. No. 1 West Superior Street.

PACKED HOUSE

Greets the Performance Given by the "Imperial Minstrels."

At the performance of the Imperial Minstrels, given last night at the Great Eastern hall, under the auspices of the St. James church, the hall was packed to overflowing and more than 100 people anxious to see the local boys do their minstrel stunts, were turned away, for not even standing room was to be had. The St. Patrick's day celebration was both a great success financially and as an entertainment.

Master C. V. Lauermann in his song "Honey Boy," sung in his clear boy soprano, took the audience by storm. He was the only one that was allowed to respond to an encore. This was on account of the lengthy program. Cornelius Lauermann, a boy of 11 years, was the mascot of the minstrels and the pet of the evening.

Ray W. Abbott as interlocutor, and his end men sitting to his right and left, kept up a volley of jokes among which were many good local hits.

There was hardly a hitch in the whole program, except when a recess in total darkness was forced on the players by a fuse burning out.

The program was divided into two parts; the first, the minstrel show and the second, the "olio," composed of a number of songs, readings and an oration. Between the two parts Prof. Rielle played an intermezzo, which was greatly appreciated.

In the first part the minstrels, with blackened faces, reddened lips and glaring white eye-balls, sang the following list of songs all of which met with much applause: "Every Little Bit Added to What You've Got Makes Just a Little Bit More," Albert L. Lauermann; "Dear Heart, Awake," John Koneszny; "Brother Noah Gave out Checks for Rain," W. L. Little; "The Storm Fiend," W. W. D'Aoust; "I Got to See de Minstrel Show," Thomas J. Doyle, Jr.; "Rose of Old Derry," Ollie A. Dignues; "That's Gratitude," Lee F. Roe; "Much Obliged to You," Neil J. Buckley; "Honey Boy," Master C. V. Lauermann, and "Yo' Eyes Are Open But Yo' Sound Asleep," Ed Holland.

In the second part E. J. Kenny delivered an oration on St. Patrick's Day; Miss Edith Cashin, sang "A Toast to Old Erin"; Miss Mary Shesgreen read, "Erin's Flag;" Miss Clara Kenny sang a soprano solo, and Ed Holland gave a monologue, "Odds and Ends."

Miss Blanche Felix, Miss Rose Sullivan, Miss Effie Brotherton, Miss Mary Schulte, Miss Lu Carey and Miss Emma Messler formed the beauty sextette that assisted Ollie A. Dignus in his portrayal of the "Homesick Yankee," from the play, "The Rich Mr. Guggenheimer." It was a star act and completely captivated the audience.

Miss Merritt Entertains.

Miss Emily Merritt entertained a number of her friends at her home Saturday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Annie Hare, of Two Harbors. The evening was spent pleasantly in music and games. Roy Evans, Bert Habert, Robert Hanes, Arthur Dietrinch, Earl Lawrence, James Habert, Charles Brennen, Ralph O'Connor and Clyde Fitch.

WANT BASIN ENLARGED

Commercial Club Would Have Congress Approve of Dredging.

Arrangemnets Made for Big Exhibit at State Fair.

The public affairs committee of the Duluth Commercial club will urge congress to accept at once the report of the government engineers concerning needed improvements in the Duluth-Superior harbor and give such approval as is necessary to permit the use at once of $200,000 that is available, for enlarging the harbor basin on the Duluth side of the bay.

At present there is a space of 171 acres in the harbor which has been made deep enough to be navigated by the big boats and Duluthians and the vessel men are anxious to see the tract enlarged to 280 acres. To accomplish this will take something like $550,000 and only $200,000 is available for the work at the present time.

However, every one interested is anxious to see such work in this direction as can be done with $200,000, accomplished as soon as possible, and so the public affairs committee was unanimous at its meeting last night in the adoption of a resolution asking congress to approve of the engineers' report and of the use to which it is proposed to put the $200,000.

A good part of the session last evening was taken up with a discussion of harbor improvements and the work of the national rivers and harbors congress. Capt. Alexander McDougall and O. H. Simonds, who represented the club at the sessions of the congress last fall, spoke about the workings of the organization and S. A. Thompson, formerly a resident of Duluth but now one of the field secretaries of the rivers and harbors congress, delievered an extended address on the purposes of the congress, its aim and the subject of waterways in general.

Agriculture.

The meeting took on an agricultural turn, however, when the report of the special agricultural committee was read and adopted. The committee recently made a trip through Wisconsin and to the Twin Cities, where they attended gatherings of dairymen and visited agricultural schools.

During their absence they were most thorough in their distribution of the Commercial club's booklet explaining the advantages of St. Louis county as a dairy country. The members of the committee did not take along enough of the books. They say the demand for them is so great as to make one of the "six best sellers" look like a cheap scientific work so far as circulation is concerned.

They had literature boosting the Northland sent on ahead of them in the Twin Cities, but after they had visited the state experimental farm and agricultural college, they had completely exhausted their supply and had not furnished half of the people who wanted it with "Cows in Clover," which is the title of this booklet. The students at the agricultural school were all keen about getting "Cows in Clover" and when the supply ran short, arrangements were made to send 400 copies sent to the students.

The reading of this section of the committee's report led A. E. McManus to suggest that a consignment of "Cows in Clover" be sent to the great agricultural school at Valparlaso, Ind., and the secretary was instructed to do so.

Exhibit at St. Paul.

The agricultural committee reported that while in St. Paul, a conference was held with Secretary C. N. Cosgrove of the Minnesota state fair and arrangements were made for an elaborate exhibit from this county at the big fair next fall. Adequate space was secured and it is proposed to have as goon an exhibit as it is possible to prepare.

The entire report of the committee was accepted.

A resolution was passed, which will be brought before congress, urging the government to purchase additional property for federal buildings on the site of the proposed public buildings group on Fifth avenue west.

Capt. McDougall's report on the visit of the special committee appointed by the club to attend the national rivers and harbors congress last fall, was read at the last meeting by O. H. Simonds, in the absence of Capt. McDougall, but at the session last evening, the captain said a few words about the report and his impressions of the meeting.

One thing which impressed him particularly, Capt. McDougal said, was the scarcity of men from the Great Lakes country at the gathering. The Ohio river district, the lower Mississippi district and both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts were well represented, he stated, but there were comparatively few delegats from that part of the country directly bordering the Great Lakes.

He said the lake carriers, who some years ago took a keen interest in the congress, were very noticeable by their absence. He deplored the attitude of the carriers, who, he intimated, were taking the stand that they could get what they wanted without bothering with the rivers and harbors congress.

The Breakwater Plan.

Capt. McDougall was asked if anything had come of the agitation for a breakwater at the entrance to the Duluth harbor, and he admitted that there were no new developments in the situation. Despite the unfavorable report of the government engineers on the project, at their meeting in Detroit, he said that he was of the opinion that those who opposed the breakwater plan would ultimately swing into line and shout for it.

"It may take another big northeaster to prove to them that it is needed, however," he said. "We knew what we wanted, but some lake carriers, through certain channels, opposed the breakwater plan and proposed that both the Duluth and Superior entries be plugged up and a new canal be built through the middle of Park Point. But I feel confident that some day we will have the breakwater."

O. H. Simonds also spoke briefly about the congress.

S. A. Thompson's address was a thorough explanation of the purposes of the national rivers and harbors congress, in the interests of which organization he is now devoting all of his time.

He said that the congress was in need of al lthe support that could be given it. The railroads, he said, had contributed largely to the success of the national irrigation congress because they saw that that body's aims were of benefit to the lines, but that they had not given 1 cent toward the rivers and harbors congress because they were not in sympathy with its purpose.

He pointed out the fact that the railroads were unable to handle, in times of prosperity, all the business of the country, so that it was imperative that every effort be made to improve traffic by water. He also said that the boats carried chiefly lower grades of freight, which did not have to be moved swiftly, and that the vessels took none of the fast freight business away from the roads.

He said everyone should be in sympathy with the movement to better navigable waters and to open up new waterways, because of the cheapness of shipping goods by water routes. He followed this up with comparative statements of the cost of transporting freight by rail and water.

Mr. Thompson also explained very carefully that the rivers and harbors congress had never in its history worked for any particular improvement in any particular part of the country, laying great stress upon the organization's platform, which is, "Policy, not project."

He denied that the plan to construct a ship canal linking the Great Lakes with the Gulf of Mexico had ever been considered by the congress and said that the movement had not gone very far anyway.

In the absence of the chairman and vice chairman, Ward Ames presided at the meeting last evening.

Of Former Oil Inspector McDermott Are Being Investigated.

St. Paul, March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The accounts of J. A. McDermott, formerly state oil inspector, are being investigated by Public Examiner Schaefer at the request of Secretary of State Julius Schmahl.

The irregularities, the public examiner says, are such as would be found in the conduct of any large business.

The fees derived from the oil inspection are said to have increased materially since W. F. McEwen took charge of the office.

WHEAT HAS FIRM CLOSE

American Markets Up on Green Bug Talk From South.

Flax is Unchanged at End of Quiet Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 17.—Bullish news from the Southwest seemed as much responsible for the strength in the American wheat markets today, as anything else. During the early part of the session, the green bug talk from Oklahoma was very prevalent and the tone was high. Toward the close, a slightly easier feeling developed, but nevertheless, the closing prices were a little up.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 783,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat.

Liverpool closed ¾d higher, Paris ¼c to ½c lower, Berlin unchanged and Budapest 1½c lower.

The May option closed ⅛-¼c higher in Duluth, ½c higher in Chicago, ½c higher in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and ⅜c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, ⅛-¼c higher in Chicago, ⅜c higher in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and ⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ¾-⅞c higher in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat was under pressure at the opening as a result of the weaker American cables yesterday, increased American Plata steamers, and values were ⅝d lower. Following the opening, and during the remainder of the morning, the market reacted and held steady, gaining ⅜d of the early decline. Support was the result of lighter offerings and the nervousness on the part of shorts with few sellers. The market at midday was steady and ¼d lower than Monday.

"Corn was quiet and unchanged. The market was entirely neglected. Spot wheat was easy and unchanged with the exception of choice La Plata, which was ½d lower. Corn was firm and from ¼d to ½d higher. Wheat cargoes were easy with cargoes more freely offered."

Car receipts at Duluth were 51 against 206 last year, and at Minneapolis 353 against 203 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 404 against 409 last year. Chicago received 65 against 19 last year. Winnipeg received 30 against 189 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 655,000 bus, last year 483,000 bus. Shipments 331,000 bus, ast year 222,000.

Primary receipts of corn were 579,000 bus, last year 810,000 bus. Shipments 550,000 bus, last year 587,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet during the session in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.04⅜, advanced to $1.05⅜-½, declined to $1.04⅛ and closed at $1.04⅜-½, a gain of ⅛-¼c over yesterday. July wheat opened late at $1.05, advanced to $1.05⅝, and closed at $1.05, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was rather quiet and closed unchanged. May flax opened ½c higher at $1.16½, declined to $1.16⅜, rallied to $1.16¾, declined to $1.16¼ and closed at $1.16⅜, unchanged from yesterday. July flax opened ¼c higher at $1.18⅝, declined to $1.18¼ and closed at that price, unchanged from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Hold Firm With Only a Moderate Trade.

Chicago, March 17.—There was only a moderate trade in wheat today. The market was firm. Liverpool failed to follow the decline here yesterday and cables were steady. Commission houses and shorts weer the best buyers in this market. May opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher at 95¼@95½c and sold up to 95⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 406 cars against 201 cars last week and 427 cars one year ago.

The market became rather weak in the last half of the session on profit-taking. May sold off from 96⅛c to 95c. A rally occurred during the last fifteen minutes of trading, based largely on the strength of corn, and the close was firm. May was up ⅝c at 95⅝@95¾c.

There was only a light trade in corn and the market was strong on light offerings. There was a fairly good demand by shorts May opening a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 65¾@65⅞c and sold up to 66⅛@66⅜c. Local receipts were 330 cars with 8 of contract grade.

The market was very strong all day, a prediction of unsettled weather in the corn belt being the chief sustaining factor. May sold up to 66¾c. The close was strong at the top, with May up ⅜@⅝c at 66⅝c.

Oats were very quiet and the market was steady. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 54⅛@54⅜c and held within that range. Local receipts were 91 cars.

Provisions were quiet and the market was steady. A steady market for live hogs was the principal feature. May pork was a shade to 7½@9c higher at $12.20@12.37½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $7.32½7.35. Ribs were unchanged at $6.80.

Close: Wheat—May, 95⅝@95¾c; July, 90¾c; September, 87⅛c. Corn—May, 65⅝@66⅛c; July, 63⅜c; September, 62½@62⅝c. Oats—May old, 54c; May, 52⅜c; July old, 47⅝c; July, 45⅜c; September, 38c. Pork—May, $12.37½; July, $12.67½. Lard—May, $7.55; July, $8.17½; September, $8.37½@8.40. Ribs—May, $6.77½; July, $7.10; September, $7.35. Rye—Cash, 81@82c. Barley—Cash, 70@88c. Timothy—March, $4.75. Clover—March, $20.85. Cash wheat: No. 2 red, 97¾@98¾c; No. 3 red, 96¼@98¾c; No. 2 hard, 97¾@$1.04¼; No. 3 hard, 95¼c@$1.02; others, nothing doing. Corn—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 61@62c.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, March 17.—Close: Wheat—Spot, steady; No. 2 red western winter, 7s 3½d; futures steady; March nominal; May, 6s 11⅞d; July, 7s 1½d. Corn—Spot, firm; prime mixed American new 6s 2½d; prime mixed American old, 5s 6d; futures quiet; March, 5s 2d; May, 5s 3d.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Larger Receipts of Wheat Makes Tone Easier at Start.

Minneapolis, March 17.—Another run of wheat in excess of a year ago, or 353, against 203, made the tone easy here at the start. But in yesterday's run of 647 cars there were 228 cars of winter wheat, and in today's run 194 cars were winter wheat, besides which twenty-seven cars were durum, Western or mixed wheat. Only sixteen cars of No. 1 northern appeared today. One element in the trade points to the fact that the free movement of winter wheat to Minneapolis displaces spring wheat and so is unfavorable as a price factor. Another element points to the light contract stocks and to the improbability that there can be much accumulation unless spring wheat comes here instead of winter. This is a strong feature. Local elevator stocks gained 25,000 bushels yesterday and in place of a decrease of 50,000 bushels for two days show a decrease of 25,000 for three days. The green bug news kept coming from the Southwest, but there were denials of damage as well. May opened at $1.05⅝@$1.03⅜; high, $1.06½; low, $1.05½ close, $1.06⅝. July closed $1.04⅜.

Selections in top grades were firmer, otherwise cash wheat was unchanged. No. 1 northern was quotable at 1c over May, No. 2 at 1c under, but selected lots brought 1½c over and ¾c under. Elevators took most of it. No. 1 northern closed $1.07⅛@1.07⅜ spot, $1.07 to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.05⅛@1.05⅝ spot, $1.05 to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1@1.02.

No 3 yellow corn, 59⅝@62¼c.

No. 3 white oats, 50⅝c.

No. 2 rye, 74⅜@75¾c.

Barley was firm for choice malting grades, but dull and easy for low grades. Closing range, 65c to 86c.

Flax did better and got back to the Duluth May basis, receipts not being so heavy today. Close, $1.16⅝. Bran in bulk, $21.25@21.75 millers' figures.

Shipping instructions on old flour orders are not coming in so well, which makes the outward movement lighter. The market holds quiet and steady. Shipments 41,736 barrels. First patents $5.35@5.50; second patents $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.30@3.40.

Copper Gossip.

Hayden, Stone & Co., Boston, to Walter W. Carr: There was a dull opening to copper stocks, with prices holding steady on a light volume of trading, prices shading fractionally. Activity was in North Butte, Green-Cananea and Utah Consolidated, with most of trades in odd lots. There was no news at hand to affect prices either way, our market reacting in sympathy with the weakness in New York. On the decline, it became dull, with no pressure to sell. We think this will result in a higher level, but with reactions from time to time.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, March 17.—Cattle: Receipts, about 3,000; market, strong; beeves, $4.70@6.25; cows and heifers, $2.60@5.35; Texans, $4.10@4.90; calves, $5.00@8.75; Westerners, $4.60@5.60; stockers and feeders, $3.00@5.00. STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Prices Declined Early Under a Flood of Selling Orders.

Market Recovered and Closed Near Top Figures of Day.

New York, March 17.—Opening prices of stocks today showed slight recessions, the larger being in Union Pacific, St. Paul and Atchison. American Ice advanced ⅝. The dealings were active and quite broadly distributed.

Liberal selling orders were placed in the market and prices declined steadily until a large number of active stocks were quoted considerably below yesterday's closing figures. The chief pressure centered on the western group, especially the Harriman stocks. General Electric sagged 2⅝; Union Pacific, 1⅝; New York Central and American Smelting, 1¼, and St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, National Lead preferred and Corn Products preferred, 1. Erie second preferred improved 1.

The extension of the decline carried Great Northern preferred and several others a point under last night. A rally followed which placed Amalgamated Copper a fraction over last night. Bonds steady.

A partial setback brought prices down again to about the low level of the morning. This decline again resulted in a moderate distribution of new buying orders and there was a moderate rally in widen Amalgamated Copper was conspicuous. Consolidated Gas lost 2¾ and Amalgamated Copper and American Car preferred rose 1.

A slow recovery resulted in the list rising to a parity with the early high prices or above. The strength of the copper stocks was instrumental in bringing about the advance. Northwestern and Amalgamated Copper got up 1½, Anaconda 1. Louisville & Nashville sold off 1¾.

The market closed slightly irregular, but near the top. St. Paul was lifted 2 and Amalgamated Copper 2¼ over last night before reaction set in. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie rose 2½, Union Pacific and Reading, 1⅝, Anaconda, 1⅜; Northern Pacific, the United States Steel stocks, 1. Prices were marked up again in the final quarter hour.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 17.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points and after some little irregularity sold almost 20@5 points net lower on active months in response to rather easy cables, reports of rapid progress with farm work in the Southwest, good weather over the belt, fear of easier spots, scattering liquidation and local bear pressure. Business was quiet and during the middle of the morning prices were a point or two up from the lowest, although the undertone of the market showed little improvement.

Spot closed quiet, 15 points lower; middling uplands, 11.05; middling gulf, 11.30; no sales. Futures closed steady; closing bids: March, 10.25; April, 10.25; May, 10.28; June, 10.12; July, 10.04; August, 9.84; October, 9.64; December, 9.67.

Government and railroad bonds steady.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Market somewhat quite. Farm mares and general purpose horses receive the most attention. A large number of lookers were inspecting the offerings and a number of good sales were reported. Tomorrow, being auction day, a number of buyers preferred to wait to fill their orders at the sale. Market is weak and uneven in tone for this time of the year. Jefferson Patterson of Craik, Sask., picked up a load of big farm mares.

BURGLARY AT CALUMET.

Jewelry Store and Butcher Shop Are Broken Into.

Calumet, Mich., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A double burglary was committed here Sunday night when the meat market owned by Edwards Bushnell & Co. and the jewelry store of Godfrey Rohrer, both in the same building, were entered.

Mr. Rohrer estimates his loss at almost $200 in jewelry and watches, but no money. In the meat market only $5 was obtained from the cash register, which was open, and some merchandise in the shape of oranges and sausage. From the evidence it would seem as though the burglaries was the work of youngsters, and it is thought that they will be arrested soon.

RAILROADS OBJECT TO OVERTIME

Railroads Ask Conference on New Telegraphers' Strike.

Nearly all the Northwestern railroads have served notice of cancellation of existing schedules relative to the pay of telegraphers, and have asked for a conference respecting a new agreement. Several such conferences will be held during the next two or three weeks, and there may be a struggle between the telegraphers' order and the railroads regarding pay for overtime.

It is said to be the purpose of some of the railroads to disregard overtime in so far as it affects the pay of telegraphers. Under the present schedule overtime is paid for pro rata, but the men receive not less than 25 cents an hour. The roads may try to wipe out overtime pay altogether, on the ground that the men cannot justly demand it.

Telegraphers' pay is by the month. Before the passage of the new law the officials working day which must be completed before the time accrued, consisted of twelve hours. Under the new law the day consists of nine hours and overtime will be greatly diminished by the operation of the law. It is only in cases of emergency, and in certain kinds of stations that the operator can work more than nine hours and emergency cases must not arrive more than three time a week, and then not to exceed four hours at a time. Emergency is the only creator of overtime now. As the working day has been decreased to nine hours the railroads feel that they ought not to be asked to pay for overtime.

The cancellation of the schedules or agreements between the telegraphers and the railroads was made necessary because quite a number of the rules and regulations are contrary to the new law. It is asserted by the railroad managers generally that they do not propose reducing the pay of operators, unless the abolition of overtime may be regarded as a reduction.

RAIL PROBLEM.

Railroads Will Insist on Roads Furnishing a Standard Rail.

Chicago, March 17.—The steel rail problem, as it appears to the railroads, was taken up a directors' meeting of the railroad engineers and maintenance of way officials, here, yesterday.

The conference, which was preliminary to the annual conventnon of the association, which begins here today, decided to have the rail committee of the organization prepare specifications for a standard rail section, and to insist that manufacturers live up to them. The steel rail problem was taken up at the request of the American Railroad association, a committee of which has been working on it for some time. The convention will continue three days.

Opening Announced.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway has issued a circular announcing the opening of the Pacific coast line to points in South Dakota, North Dakota and Montana, giving the names of stations that may be reached by this new line, and showing a map of the route covered. A supply of this literature has been received by the local office of the road.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

New Richmond, Wis., March 17.—Mrs. James Murphy, mother of W. J. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, is dead.

New Orleans, La., March 17.—The Rt. Rev. Gustave A. Rouxel, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of New Orleans, died here today after an illness of several weeks.

La Jara, Colo., March 17.—William Nelms, aged 99 years, who claimed to be the last survivor of the "Noble Six Hundred," at Balaklava, is dead at his home in Manassa, southeast of here.

Belle Fontaine, Ohio, March 17.—Gen. A. Saunders Platt died yesterday at his home near this city, aged 86 years. He served throughout the Civil war and had a brilliant military record. He was known as a writer, being a contributor to many magazines.

FOUR SCHOOLS IN GOOD SHAPE

Four schools were visited today by the board of education's committee of investigation which is inspecting the public schools of the city, to see if proper precaution to prevent fires and panics are taken.

The Endion, Jefferson, Franklin and Nettleton buildings were those favored by the investigators, and according to a statement made to The Herald this afternoon, they found everything in satisfactory shape.

It was rumored today that the Endion school was to be closed for a week as a result of the committee's visit there, to permit of certain alterations and improvements, which would reduce the danger of accident.

Supt. Denfeld is himself a member of the investigating committee, and he said that he knew nothing of any plan to close the Endion school.

"We found conditions at the Endion school satisfactory," he said.

"Fire drills were held in all the schools we visited today, and in every one of them the children and teachers got out in good time. We saw nothing of a startling nature during the day. Everything was in place and we found nothing out of the way."

MANY PEOPLE EXPOSED.

Smallpox in Lakeside Family Not Reported to Authorities.

Six cases of smallpox, extending over a period of seven weeks in all, existed in the family of John Enquist, 4831 East Superior street, and the health department only yesterday discovered the fact. The six children have been taken in turn and now there is only one case in the house, that of a little girl.

Mrs. Enquist, it is said, tried to fumigate the house herself and had sent the children to school. All of the children had recovered except the one now sick and, without fumigation, they had been sent to school, the health authorities assert. Many people were exposed in Lakeside and the case is one of the worst to come before the department for some time.

WILL ADDRESS LABEL LEAGUE

Raymond Robins, who will adress the Women's Label league at Flaaten's hall tomorrow evening, is perhaps the best informed man in the United States on sociological and labor questions. A man of independent means, he has devoted the past seven years to a study of labor conditions. For four years he was superintendent of the municipal lodging house of Chicago, during which time 4,000 homeless men and boys passed before him.

In studying the conditions which brought such men and boys to mendicancy, Mr. Robins traced many of them from place to place, in some cases from workhouse to the penitentiary, and finally to the municipal lodging house, securing affidavits at the various points. In one individual case $900 was spent in securing the desired information. He has gone out with the casual labor group from Chicago to the Kansas farms during harvet times and worked and lived as a tramp. He has also worked at a variety of forms of common labor in the guise of a homeless wanderer.

MEN OF ALL RACES WORE THE GREEN

"'Tis a foine Sint Patrick's day," was the sarcastic remark of an old Irishman on the Bowery this morning, as he watched the motley procession that filed by, decorated in resplendent fashion with the harp and emerald green.

"Whin the Japs begin to wear ould Ireland's colors, 'tis time fer us to lave off the wearin' of the green."

The wearin' of the green was not restricted to one nationality in Duluth today. From the Japanese to the Finns, Scandinavians, Austrians and Italians, the day Saint Patrick banished the reptiles from the land of peat, was observed by all, if the wearing of the green was any indication of sentiment.

Down at the St. Louis, one of the smallest of the Japs was decorated with a flag, upon which was the harp. The flag about covered the breast of the diminutive wearer. Upon his face was a broad grin; "me Merican," he answered in response to the query as to why one of the mikado's sons was a sporting of the emerald green.

ALDRICH BILL

To be Amended to Eliminate Railroad Bonds as Securities.

Washington, March 17.—The senate committee on finance today voted unanimously to amend the Aldrich financial bill by eliminating railroad bonds as security for national bank note circulation. It also was decided to amend the bill so as to retain the provision of the present law, prohibiting the retirement by national banks of more than $9,000,000 of circulation in any one month. The committee discussed the proposition of increasing the taxation on emergency circulation outstanding more than six months. The rate under the bill as it now stands is 6 per cent. No action was taken on this feature.

SMALLPOX ON CRUISER.

Philadelphia, March 17.—As a result of the discovery of a case of smallpox aboard the cruiser Brooklyn lying at the League Island navy yard, all employes at the yard and every member of the crew, together with the officers, numbering in all about 2,000 persons, will have to be vaccinated, and the cruiser was fumigated and placed in quarantine.

DENIED AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, March 17.—The report that the president is about to send a special message to congress urging upon its attention certain matters of necessary legislation recommended by the Civic Federation, meets with a positive denial at the White House.

The fact is, the president, as already stated in the press, has been for a fortnight in consultation at intervals with members of the federation concerning the prospect of securing legislation in the direction of their desires before the adjournment of congress. The outcome is expected to be the presentation within a few days by Representative Hepburn of Iowa, of one or more bills covering the subject. The president has no present intention of transmitting a message to congress simultaneously with the introduction of these bills in the house. He is deeply interested in the success of the projected legislation and at some future date, if it appears he can assist the prime movers in this matter, he will not hesitate to address a message to congress, urging action upon the bill or bills,—but so far he has not written one line of such communication.

MINERS' COMMITTEE PREPARING REPORT.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 17.—The United Mine Workers' scale committee began today its preparation for the presentation to the national convention tomorrow of its report as to the course to be pursued as the result of the operator's refusal to meet them in joint convention prior to April 1, when the present wage scale expires.

A majority of the committee, it is reported, will favor the re-affirmation of the present wage scale and will favor signing this scale by districts or by individual operators. A minority favors further efforts to rehabilitate the interstate wage agreement, which was interrupted two years ago.

DANGER FROM FLOOD OVER FOR THE PRESENT.

Tacoma, Wash., March 17.—After forty-eight hours of apprehension lest a flood, similar to that of November, 1906, was impending, residents of the valleys of the White, Black, Stuck and Puyallup rivers breathed easier this morning when the waters, which had been rising since Saturday, began to recede. Reports from all portions of the threatened country, late last night, indicated that the swollen rivers were falling.

DES MOINES TRIES NEW ELECTION PLAN.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 17.—The city of Des Moines, yesterday, had its first primary election, under the commission plan of government. It was one of the liveliest campaigns in the history of the city. Thirteen thousand votes were cast, and practically the complete returns today indicate the nomination of A. J. Mathis and Eugene W. Waterbury for mayor.

Under the new plan of government there will be one mayor and four commissioners, and these will be chosen from the ten candidates who secured the largest number of votes at the primary yesterday. The election will be held March 30.

ESCAPADES OF RUSSIAN PRINCE

Berlin, March 17.—Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, son of the late regent of Brunswick and a second cousin of Emperor William, has resigned from the army, where he held the rank of major, and will not again be permitted to wear the German uniform. The resignation of the prince, it is declared, was requested by Emperor William.

According to the Mittag Zeitung, Emperor William has been extremely dissatisfied with the prince because of his continued relations with the Baroness Liebenberg. It was because of his interest in this woman that the prince was punished eighteen months ago by being sent out to join the German forces in the field in Southwest Africa.

MAY CLEAR M. T. KANE BY ESTABLISHING AN ALIBI

Witnesses Will Swear He Did Not Visit Polling Place.

Claims Authorities Tried to Make Him Implicate Vail.

Michael Thomas Kane, who is on trial for an alleged election fraud in the First precinct of the Seventh ward at the primary election in this city last fall, will endeavor to establish by alibi that he was not at the polling place in question at any time on election day, Dec. 17, last. Kane's line of defense was shown this morning by his testimony in his own behalf, given largely in narrative form.

Not only does Kane deny that he had any connection with any election fraud, but he claims that the county authorities attempted to induce him to swear Ben Vail, bartender at the St. James hotel, into prison; under promises of immunity. Intimations were also made by Mr. McMahon, attorney for Kane, that either the county attorney or Chief Troyer of the city police department secured an attorney to defend Kane after he was first brought back to Duluth, and that this attorney visited the jail night and day in the attempt to get the defendant to swear that he was put up to vote illegally by Ben Vail, but the matter was shut out of the evidence.

Kane declared, under oath, that W. J. Stevenson, assistant county attorney, and C. A. Anderson, who was taken with the officers to San Francisco to identify the defendant, "blackened the character" of Vail, called him a crook, and held out promises that he, Kane, would get off lightly if he would make a clean breast of it and implicate Vail as the person who put him up to vote illegally. Kane declared that he refused to do so on account of his conscience.

Parents May Be Dead.

A great many of his statements are directly contradictory to those made under oath by Mr. Stevenson, Anderson and Sheriff Bates.

Kane's preliminary examination related to his early history. The defendant testified that he is 39 years old, was born in Pittsburg, Pa., resided for a few years in Richmond, Va., and in Baltimore, Md., where he was assistant steward in the St. James hotel of the latter city. Kane does not know whether his parents are living, as he left home many years ago. After leaving Baltimore he drifted northward and westward through Ohio and Michigan and finally came to Minnesota a few years ago. He testified that he has made Duluth his headquarters and when in the city has stopped at the Palmer house, the St. James hotel and the West hotel.

Kane stated that he enlisted in the marine corps Dec. 6 or 7 and was sworn into service Dec. 16.

As to his movements on election day, Dec. 17, Kane went into detail and described the places he visited and the things he did during the day. He claimed that he knew he was to leave that afternoon for the West, that he voted as "Mike Kane" in the St. James' hotel ward or the First precinct of the Third ward, claiming that was the only place he voted the day in question. Kane testified that after dinner at the St. James' hotel the noon of Dec. 17, he waited about the hotel until about 1:45 o'clock for Sergt. Hutchings, the recruiting officer, and then went to the recruiting office. He claimed that in company with Hutchings he made a trip to the union depot, back to the recruiting office, and then took the train for the West, his testimony tending to show that he will attempt to prove by alibi that he was not out of the sight of the recruiting officer that afternoon he is claimed to have been seen at the polling place in the First precinct of the Seventh ward.

Kane claimed that he has voted but four times in his life—three times in Baltimore and once in Duluth.

The witness stated that he was asleep in his tent when summoned to appear before the commandant and the officers from Duluth, at the Mare Island naval station.

Kane claimed that the colonel, after asking him his name, wanted to know how many times he, the witness had voted.

"I said three times," declared Kane.

"The colonel asked where, and I told him at the St. James' hotel and the Edmonton hotel, when somebody else in the room—Anderson—broke in and said, 'You mean the Esmond hotel and the little place around the corner.'

"I didn't pay any attention to him then, as it was the colonel that I was responsible to. Anderson asked again if I did not mean the place around the corner, and I told him I didn't know about any such place.

"The colonel asked me how much money I got for voting, and I told him I was never paid a cent for voting. He told me to shut up, and that I would have to go back with the gentlemen that were there. I was turned over to Sheriff Bates."

Kane declared that the word "Duluth" was not used by the commanding officer at any time, and that his answer to the colonel's questions related to the times he voted from the St. James' hotel and the Edmonton hotel at Baltimore, and not from the St. James' and the Esmond hotels in Duluth.

The witness claimed he did not know until he asked on the way to the ferry what he was arrested for and supposed until then that the Duluth men were officers who had questioned his citizenship. He claimed that he smiled when told he was wanted in Duluth for an alleged election fraud and told the officers that they had the wrong man.

"I asked if the charge was very serious," said Kane, "and Mr. Stevenson told him the best thing for him to do was to tell everything and the authorities would do all they could to make things easy for him, that Mr. Stevenson asked who put him up to vote and urged him to confess.

Kane claimed that as soon as he saw his word was doubted by Mr. Stevenson that he resolved to keep still. He testified that the day following, at the hotel, Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Anderson labored with him for some time promising him that would get off lightly if he would swear Ben Vail into jail.

"They told me," declared Kane, "What a hero I would be in the eyes of the people of Duluth and what a noble thing it would be for me to go on the stand and swear Vail into jail. I told them my conscience wouldn't allow me to do that and Mr. Stevenson didn't talk any more to me about the election business."

Kane was still on the stand when the noon recess was taken.

This morning W. J. Stevenson was recalled for cross examination by the defense. The witness said he asked Kane in San Francisco about his companions that had deserted from the marine corps and told the defendant it was suspected that somebody else had put him up to vote illegally.

"I told him," said Mr. Stevenson, "that if he told the whole story who put him up to it that he would be in a better position to ask clemency of the court. I explained to him carefully that I could not promise him immunity from prosecution, never authorized Anderson to promise anything to Kane."

The state rested its case with the cross-examination of Mr. Stevenson.

TWINS FOOL ARMY OFFICIALS

Two brothers applied for admission to the army, at the United States recruiting office this morning. They looked as much alike as the proverbial peas. Unless they stood side by side you could not tell them apart. Even then you might have to take two guesses. They are twins, and their names are John and Henry Carlson.

John was the first one to take the examination. Fate must have favored the twins in the selection of John, for he is the one with the eye like the feathered high flying national emblem.

The first of the twins did not have any difficulty in naming the letters at the required twenty feet, nor in performing any of the other requirements in a most satisfactory manner. He came through the examination with flying colors. Not so Henry.

Henry has not the penetrating orbs that are possessed by brother John. His lims are obscured by something that does not permit him to see with the clarity demanded by the army. He was stumbling along on the twenty pace letters reading examination, when a bright idea occurred to him. He evidently proceeded to put in into execution.

He feigned a nose bleed and gained permission to leave the room for a moment. Out of sympathy John followed. Soon the brothers returned, but it was Henry who was left to study the pictures on the wall while John took the place recently vacated by Henry. John stumbled just a little to make the deception plausible, but managed to pass.

It seemed as if the ruse would go. Suddenly Sergeant Boyce had a hunch. He made the brothers stand side by side against the back wall and asked them to name the letters. It turned out just as he expected. John, he of the sharp eyes, could name the letters, but Henry could not make out an "R" from "J." Then, of course, the brothers had to confess to the conspiracy.

John can join the fighting force of Uncle Samuel. If he so chooses, but Henry will have to see an oculist before he can persuade the officials that he would create any damage with a rifle.

Notice to Our Customers.

Women Outlive Men.

Statistics gathered during the past ten years in the United Kingdom show that the women of over a hundred years exceeded the men by nearly 85 per cent. Long life in either sex, however, is largely a matter of health, and the odds are entirely in favor of the robust. For those who are sickly and ailing, we recommend a fair trial of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and if its wonderful record of cures during the past 54 years means anything, it certainly means that it will greatly benefit you also. It is well worth the trial, at any rate. We guarantee every bottle absolutely pure, so there need be no hesitancy in trying it. In cases of sick headache, bloating, heartburn, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, colds, grippe, female ills, or spring fever. It is for sale by all druggists, grocers and dealers.

ROBBER ATTACKS EVELETH WOMAN

Eveleth, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home of Morris Forcus, who is a pit worker of the Fayal mine, was entered about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by an unknown man, who demanded of Mrs. Forcus the money her husband had received Saturday, as his monthly wages. He threatened the woman and her child with whom she was alone in the house on the Fayal location, if she would not divulge the place where the money lay. He then felled her with a blow from a club and in great fear, she made known the place where the money was kept. The robber then secured $75 and made his escape. Mrs. Forcus is in a very serious condition from the effects of the blow received.

It is evident that some one who knew the Forcuses did the deed.

Given Up to Die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists.

EVANS WILL BE RELIEVED

Rear Admiral Thomas, the next in seniority, will succeed Admiral Evans in command of the fleet. It has not yet been determined whether Admiral Thomas will bring the fleet around the world to the Atlantic station or not. It is expected that this detail will be decided on shortly.

GEN. FOCK FATALLY WOUNDS GEN. SMIRNOFF IN A DUEL

Leading Russian Generals Appear on the Field of Honor.

Gen. Smirnoff Had Questioned Fock's Courage at Port Arthur.

Both Were on Trial at Time of Gen. Stoessel's Conviction.

St. Petersburg, March 18.—Lieut. Gen. Smirnoff was probably fatally wounded in a duel fought here this morning with Lieut. Gen. Fock. The men met in the riding school of the Chevalier Guard regiment and fought with pistols, standing close to each other when the shots were exchanged.

The duel was caused by the memorandum written by Gen. Smirnoff on the siege of Port Arthur, in which he questioned the courage of Gen. Fock. The latter considered that his honor and reputation were involved, and challenged the author of the memorandum.

Duel Was Approved.

The riding school was placed at the disposal of the combatants by the commander of the regiment and the duel occurred with the full knowledge and approbation of the military authorities. It was witnessed by several officers of high rank, and it is even reported that several women were present.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Generals Fock and Smirnoff appeared at the riding school. Without saluting they took the places assigned by their seconds. For Gen. Smirnoff the seconds were his brother-in-law, Vladimir H. Purishkevich, a member of the duma, and Capt. Schultz of the navy, while for Gen. Fock Capt. Sido, adjutant to Gen. Stoessel, and Lieut Podgursky, one of the Port Arthur heroes, officiated.

The distance between the two combatants was twenty paces, and the duellists were instructed to open fire at the word of command, and continue until one or the other was killed. At Gen. Fock's fourth shot, Gen. Smirnoff groaned and sank forward. He had been wounded in the abdomen, above the right hip. He was carried in a litter to the military hospital, where doctors, this afternoon, employed X-rays to locate the bullet.

The word "Fire" was given each time by Gen. Kirieff, the Russian authority on duelling. At the second exchange Gen. Fock's coat was perforated. At the third exchange Gen. Smirnoff accidentally fired prematurely, but Gen. Fock magnanimously declined to shoot at a defenseless opponent, and the fourth and final shots were then exchanged.

Another Duel to Follow.

This duel will be followed by another, between Gen. Fock and Gen. Gorbatoffsky, the commander of the western front at Port Arthur, who was severely criticized by Gen. Fock, during the court-martial proceedings. Gen. Gorbatoffsky sent seconds, some time ago to Gen. Fock, but he failed to secure permission to fight a duel.

Gen. Smirnoff was acting commandant of the Port Arthur fortress dur-

FINANCES OF THE DOMINION

Show a Prospective Surplus of $19,000,000 for Current Year.

Ottawa, Ont., March 18.—W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, delivered his annual statement in parliament yesterday. He had predicted a surplus of $19,000,000 for the current year, but on account of heavy expenditures on the trans-continental railway on capital account this would be all absorbed and $12,000,000 added to the public debt. For the coming year $33,000,000 will be required for the trans-continental railway. The only change in duties was on tobacco and cigars, which is not for revenue purposes, but to adopt a single excise stamp in future instead of three. Canadian tobacco and imported tobacco will in future have the same stamp.

OWN TEETH CUT OFF NOSE.

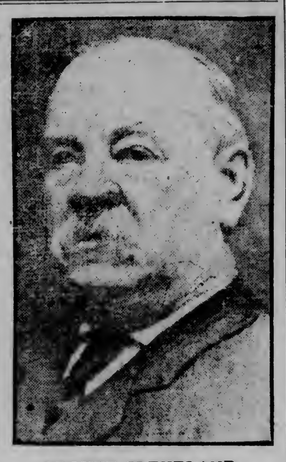
Butcher's Organ of Smell Severed by His Own False Plate.

Frankfort, Ky., March 18.—Adolph Kraizel, a local butcher, who is subject to fits, while standing in front of a restaurant, was seized with a sudden stroke of giddiness and pitched forward to the pavement. His false teeth fell out of his mouth, striking in such a position that his nose was caught between the jaws of the teeth, severing the organ of smell. Bystanders rushed to his assistance, but found that his head had driven the sharp teeth together and that his nose was hanging by a shred.

BOY TORTURES HIS COMPANION AT STAKE.

Suffern, N. Y., March 18.—Russel Shuart, 10 years old, is in a critical condition suffering from burns received when an older boy while playing Indian tied him to a tree and built a fire under his feet. The boy's screams attracted men who were working nearby and he was rescued, but not until he was so badly burned that it is feared he will lose at least one leg. The boy who is accused of setting the fire has disappeared and is being hunted in earby cities.

GROVER CLEVELAND, THE ONLY EX-PRESIDENT NOW LIVING, IS 71 YEARS OLD



GROVER CLEVELAND,
Only Living Ex-President, Who Celebrates His 71st Birthday in Excellent Health Wednesday.

Celebrates His Birthday While Staying at Lakewood, N. J.

Is in Excellent Health—Refuses to Discuss Politics.

New York, March 18.—Grover Cleveland is quietly celebrating his seventy-first birthday at Lakewood, N. J., today. The twenty-second and twenty-fourth president of the United States, though past the allotted three score years and ten, took a long walk yesterday and seemed to be in excellent spirits.

This morning Mrs. Cleveland and the children came over from Princeton to spend the day with him. Each one of the children brought some present, and it is understood that the Princeton students will send the former president a congratulatory telegram.

"I have not felt so well in many a day," said Mr. Cleveland, as he walked in the lobby of the Lakewood hotel yesterday. "Why, I took a longer walk today than I have taken in months. I feel fine. In fact, I believe I am in much better physical condition than I have been for a long, long time."

Has Lost Much Flesh.

Mr. Cleveland has undoubtedly lost a good deal of flesh, but his medical advisors say that he is now in better health than he has been for some months. The former president has come here to recuperate and the length of his stay depends entirely upon the condition of his health.

"How about the national questions of the Democratic party?" Mr. Cleveland was asked.

He made it plain that he would not care to discuss political issues. "I don't see what I can say that will be of public interest," he said to one of his friends.

The manager of the Lakewood hotel is preparing a surprise for Mr. Cleveland. He has ordered an enormous cake baked, and will decorate it with seventy-one candles, and will put it on his table at luncheon.

From all parts of the country congratulatory telegrams are pouring in. Hundreds of these have gone to Princeton, as their senders did not know of his visit to Lakewood.

Whenever Mr. Cleveland appears in the lobby of the hotel he is at once seized by friends wishing to shake hands with him.

MAYORALTY CANDIDATES

For St. Paul, Are McKibbin, Republican, Lawler, Democrat.

Lawler's Victory Overwhelming; McKibbin Had 1,424 Majority.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph McKibbin will lead the Republican hosts at the election, May 5.

Daniel W. Lawler will be the Democratic standard bearer.

This is the verdict of the voters who waged one of the hottest battles of ballots in local politics in a decade.

Lawler's victory over Louis Nash was overwhelming, though Nash surprised his friends by his showing.

McKibbin won out by something like 1,300 majority. Hoffmann, his nearest competitor, put up a splendid fight and only the majorities rolled up by McKibbin, in the First, Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh wards saved the banners of the wholesaler.

The Eighth also responded to the McKibbin call and rolled up a small majority.

Hoffmann carried the Fifth, Sixth and Twelfth wards and nearly broke even in the Second, Third, Fourth and Ninth wards.

The total vote for McKibbin is 11,702, as compared with a total Republican vote of 8,003, two years ago. The total vote for Lawler was 8,437. His plurality over Louis Nash was 5,979. McKibbin's plurality over Luis G. Hoffmann was 1,424.

IOWA HERCULES

Can Unload Eighty Tons of Coal in Ten Hours.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, March 18.—A new strong man has been found at Moorland, a small town ten miles from this city, in John J. Ebl[illegible], whose feats of strength and endurance are marvels. He is a tiler, well read and a man of "iron and steel muscle." By choice a bachelor, he cooks his own meals and lives in primitive fashion, subsisting on plain foods, and avoiding all dainties. During the Lenten season, now on, he abstains for seven weeks from eating meat, but this in no wise affects his endurance or strength.

He recently unloaded a car of coal, containing twenty tons, in one and a half hours. He has a record of unloading eighty tons in ten hours, and is willing to wager that he can unload ten tons an hour for several hours. His record for lifting dead weight is 1,000 pounds, and he has repeatedly carried 600 pounds of cement at one time.

THE EMPEROR REFUSES TO PARDON STOESSEL.

St. Petersburg, March 18.—The emperor yesterday confirmed the death sentence passed upon Gen. Stoessel and the court's recommendation for commutation of the sentence to ten years' imprisonment. The former commander of Port Arthur ineffectually petitioned for a full pardon.

POLICEMAN KILLED.

Chicago, March 18.—Edward C. Heffernan, a special police officer, was shot and killed last night, and J. L. Morlin, a bystander, was seriously wounded by Donald Starr, whom the officer had ejected from the elevated station at Jackson Park avenue, the terminus of the South Side elevated road. Starr, who was intoxicated, then shot himself, inflicting a wound which will probably prove fatal.

THE DEMAND FOR COPPER

Causes Producing Companies to Sell 100,000,000 Pounds Ahead.

It Marks a Vast Improvement in the Copper Trade.

New York, March 18.—The Times today says: The demand for copper has so increased that copper producing companies have sold ahead to the extent of 100,000,000 pounds. This marks a vast improvement in the copper trade.

Of these sales for future delivery it is said that the United Metals Selling company has orders covering 50,000,000 pounds, one of the large independent producers orders for 30,000,000 and other producers for 20,000,000 pounds.

Within the last two days the price, which had receded fractionally under 13 cents, has again become firmly established at that figure and yesterday sales were made at that price. Orders ranging from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 pounds are said to have been placed in fairly large numbers recently by domestic consumers. One of these orders for the larger amount was held up by the suspension of the Knickerbocker Trust company, which was the banker for a power plan contsruction enterprise, for which this copper had been ordered. The order will now be filled as the trust company is to reopen.

LABOR LEADERS PREPARE FOR FIGHT OF THEIR LIVES

ARRIVAL OF WARSHIPS AT HAITI BRINGS RULER OF ISLAND TO HIS SENSES

President Nord Alexis Abandons Uncompromising Attitude.

Grants Refugees Permission to Leave Republic in Safety.

Paris, March 18.—Official advices received here from Haiti indicate that the arrival at Port Au Prince of foreign warships has produced the desired effect upon President Nord Alexis. M. Carteron, the French minister, cables that the government has abandoned its intransigent attitude; that the reembarkment of the refugees has been authorized and that safe conducts have been granted for the departure of Gen. Firmin and the other revolutionary agitators, who had taken asylum at the legations and consulates at Port Au Prince and Gonaives. M. Carteron gives much credit for this improved state of affairs to the active intervention of M. Borno and the minister of state, who was the first to counsel this course of action. All danger of an attack on the legation of consulates is now considered at an end.

Germany in Accord.

Berlin, March 18.—The Associated Press is authorized to state that the German foreign office is fully in accord with the viewpoint of the United States regarding the situation in Haiti, as set forth by Secretary Root. There never was any intention on the part of Germany to intervene in the internal affairs of the Haitian republic. It is the firm resolve, however, of Germany to protect her subjects trading in Haiti, and she will insist also upon the inviolability of her legation and consular buildings.

No complications in the Haitian situation are foreseen here. The report that Germany might possibly declare war upon Haiti is stigmatized here as nonsensical. The most recent advices represent the situation at Port Au Prince as much calmer since the arrival of foreign warships. It is hoped that the presence of the German cruiser Bremen will not be necessary for long, but she will remain until quiet has been completely restored.

MANKOTA DENTIST HONORED.

Mankota, Minn., March 18.—Dr. Paul W. Barney of this city has been asked to give a clinic before the National Dental convention, which meets in Boston on July 28, at Hotel Somerset, and has decided to do so. It is a great honor, as many of the ablest men in the profession will be there and speak.

STEAMSHIP IN COLLISION

The Kron Prinz Wilhelm Struck While Entering New York.

Now Lying at Anchor in Fog Off Staten Island.

New York, March 18.—The big trans-Atlantic steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm, which arrived today from Europe, was in collision with an unknown steamer while coming up the bay. She is now lying at anchor in the fog off St. George, S. I., with a large gash in her stern high above the water line.

No direct report from the steamer has been received and the extent of the damage she sustained is not known. It is believed the collision occurred after the steamer had passed quarantine on her way to her dock. A steamer which has not yet been identified is lying at anchor near the Kron Prinz off the Staten Island shore. The fog is so thick that it is impossible to make out the name of the strange steamer.

The Kron Prinz Wilhelm left quarantine just before 7 o'clock this morning on her way to her dock. No report of any accident having occurred was made at that time. She had on board 392 passengers, of whom 229 were cabin and 163 steerage.

The gash in the Kron Prinz's stern is in the overhang, directly over the name plate. Apparently some other craft crashed fairly into her stern. Several of the plates appear to have been cut through and others crushed.

In response to an inquiry by the Associated Press by Marconi wireless telegraph, Capt. Nierrich of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm sent the following message:

"Crown of Castile ran into us, nobody injured.

"NIERRICH."

The steamer Crown of Castile of the New York & Continental line arrived from Hamburg and Rotterdam last night and left quarantine at 7:17 a. m. today, about 20 minutes after the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and must have overtaken the others while she was moving slowly in the fog. The Crown of Castile is loaded with merchandise, but carries no passengers.

KNOCK-OUT KILLS FIGHTER

St. Joseph, Mo., Man Dies of Injuries Received in Bout.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 18.—"Leck" Allen, a local prize fighter, died today from injuries received last night in a boxing match with Fritz Gutzenberger, professionally known as "Young Rhodes" also of St. Joseph. The match was before the lodge of the Eagles, and was witnessed by policemen and other officers. Allen collapsed in the fifth round and was taken out unconscious. Rhodes was arrested today, and the coroner will hold an inquest this afternoon. Officers of the Eagles lodge may be arrested. The fatal bout was a preliminary to a 15-round go between Tony Haller of St. Louis and Willie McNamara of St. Louis, in which Haller received the decision.

SENATOR NELSON'S SON IS DEAD IN COLORADO.

Conference of Great Importance Begins at Washington.

Plans to Offset Decisions of Court to be Considered.

Will Endeavor to Secure Amendments to Sherman Law.

Washington, March 18.—A conference of far-reaching importance to labor began here today. Participating are President Gompers and the members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, together with the executive officers of the International Trades Unions of America, who met pursuant to a call issued by President Gompers, to consider the consequences of the recent injunction decisions of the supreme court of the United States affecting labor organizations, with particular reference to the Danbury hatters' case, in which the court substantially held that labor organizations were to be considered trusts as much as organizations of capital.

After calling attention to the significance of these decisions, Mr. Gompers stated that the conference was for the purpose of "taking such action as the importance and merits of the subject dealt with may be considered and determined as setting forth the position and demands of labor." The court's rulings, he pointed out, were binding upon all labor organizations until changed or modified by congressional action.

Object of Conference.

The object of the conference, therefore, was to consider the proposed amendments to the Sherman anti-trust act, which are being drafted with a view not of exempting labor organizations from their obligations to the public, but rather to prevent any injustice being done through the operation of law to organizations of laboring men, particularly through injunction. It is desired to so frame the proposed changes in the Sherman law as to meet the requirements of the supreme court's decisions. The proposed amendments are the result of recent conferences at the White House between President Roosevelt and others, and it is hoped to secure remedial legislation along these lines at this session of congress.

President Gompers today stated that matters of importance to every union man would be discussed and an effort made to formulate plans to offset the rulings of the various courts regarding injunctions and boycotts.

There are 117 national and international trade unions in America, and practically all of them were represented by one or more delegates at today's meeting. The conference, which was held behind closed doors, will continue several days.

"HONEST JIM" IS RE-ELECTED

Blacksmith-Mayor of an Aristocratic Suburb Gets Bigger Majority.

New York, March 18.—"Honest Jim" Reilly, the village blacksmith of North Pelham, one of New York's most popular suburbs, was re-elected president of the village yesterday for the third time by the largest majority he has ever received. The women and children of the village made an enthusiastic campaign in his favor, the reason for their activity being that Reilly organized a uniform police force and rid the village of toughs, who formerly congregated on the street corners and made insulting remarks to women.

When Reilly was first elected the village was heavily in debt. He has paid off every cent of it and there is a snug balance in the treasury. He refused to announce a platform or make any promises. Aristocratic Pelham has been inclined to scoff at the unlettered blacksmith, but his sterling honesty, force of character and executive ability has been so clearly demonstrated that many of the wealthy residents lined up for him at the polls yesterday.

His political success has made no change in the blacksmith. He works at his anvil every day.

MONKEY DEBUTANTS NEXT.

Tea to be Given to Introduce Simian to Society.

Chicago, March 18.—Enter the monkey. Up to date, Chicago's society circles have indulged in almost every flight of entertainment which the mind might picture to further its schemes of entertainment and charity. It has joined hands with the East in its boy debutantes; the East has linked arms with Chicago in its living pictures, and now Chicago is to snatch from the East the one idea which to date has remained its exclusive property. Now allow us to present Mr. Monkey.

The coming out of Mr. Monkey will take place at the stage tea, which is to follow the presentation of "Cad, the Cannibal King," at Powers theater, next Thursday. The debutante is described as being 'one of the homeliest little animals you ever saw—just about big enough to put in your pocket."

GROVER CLEVELAND, THE ONLY EX-PRESIDENT NOW LIVING, IS 71 YEARS OLD

GROVER CLEVELAND,
Only Living Ex-President, Who Celebrates His 71st Birthday in Excellent Health Wednesday.

Celebrates His Birthday While Staying at Lakewood, N. J.

Is in Excellent Health—Refuses to Discuss Politics.

New York, March 18.—Grover Cleveland is quietly celebrating his seventy-first birthday at Lakewood, N. J., today. The twenty-second and twenty-fourth president of the United States, though past the allotted three score years and ten, took a long walk yesterday and seemed to be in excellent spirits.

This morning Mrs. Cleveland and the children came over from Princeton to spend the day with him. Each one of the children brought some present, and it is understood that the Princeton students will send the former president a congratulatory telegram.

"I have not felt so well in many a day," said Mr. Cleveland, as he walked in the lobby of the Lakewood hotel yesterday. "Why, I took a longer walk today than I have taken in months. I feel fine. In fact, I believe I am in much better physical condition than I have been for a long, long time."

Has Lost Much Flesh.

Mr. Cleveland has undoubtedly lost a good deal of flesh, but his medical advisors say that he is now in better health than he has been for some months. The former president has come here to recuperate and the length of his stay depends entirely upon the condition of his health.

"How about the national questions of the Democratic party?" Mr. Cleveland was asked.

He made it plain that he would not care to discuss political issues. "I don't see what I can say that will be of public interest," he said to one of his friends.

The manager of the Lakewood hotel is preparing a surprise for Mr. Cleveland. He has ordered an enormous cake baked, and will decorate it with seventy-one candles, and will put it on his table at luncheon.

From all parts of the country congratulatory telegrams are pouring in. Hundreds of these have gone to Princeton, as their senders did not know of his visit to Lakewood.

Whenever Mr. Cleveland appears in the lobby of the hotel he is at once seized by friends wishing to shake hands with him.

MAYORALTY CANDIDATES

For St. Paul, Are McKibbin, Republican, Lawler, Democrat.

Lawler's Victory Overwhelming; McKibbin Had 1,424 Majority.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph McKibbin will lead the Republican hosts at the election, May 5.

Daniel W. Lawler will be the Democratic standard bearer.

This is the verdict of the voters who waged one of the hottest battles of ballots in local politics in a decade.

Lawler's victory over Louis Nash was overwhelming, though Nash surprised his friends by his showing.

McKibbin won out by something like 1,300 majority. Hoffmann, his nearest competitor, put up a splendid fight and only the majorities rolled up by McKibbin in the First, Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh wards saved the banners of the wholesaler.

The Eighth also responded to the McKibbin call and rolled up a small majority.

Hoffmann carried the Fifth, Sixth and Twelfth wards and nearly broke even in the Second, Third, Fourth and Ninth wards.

The total vote for McKibbin is 11,702, as compared with a total Republican vote of 8,003, two years ago. The total vote for Lawler was 8,437. His plurality over Louis Nash was 5,979. McKibbin's plurality over Luis G. Hoffmann was 1,424.

IOWA HERCULES

Can Unload Eighty Tons of Coal in Ten Hours.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, March 18.—A new strong man has been found at Moorland, a small town ten miles from this city, in John J. Eide, whose feats of strength and endurance are marvels. He is a tiler, well read and a man of "iron and steel muscle." By choice a bachelor, he cooks his own meals and lives in primitive fashion, subsisting on plain foods, and avoiding all dainties. During the Lenten season, now on, he abstains for seven weeks from eating meat, but this in no wise affects his endurance or strength.

He recently unloaded a car of coal, containing twenty tons, in one and a half hours. He has a record of unloading eighty tons in ten hours, and is willing to wager that he can unload ten tons an hour for several hours. His record for lifting dead weight is 1,600 pounds, and he has repeatedly carried 600 pounds of cement at one time

THE EMPEROR REFUSES TO PARDON STOESSEL.

St. Petersburg, March 18.—The emperor yesterday confirmed the death sentence passed upon Gen. Stoessel and the court's recommendation for commutation of the sentence to ten years' imprisonment. The former commander of Port Arthur ineffectually petitioned for a full pardon.

POLICEMAN KILLED.

Chicago, March 18.—Edward C. Hefferman, a special police officer, was shot and killed last night, and J. L. Merlin, a bystander, was seriously wounded by Donald Starr, whom the officer had ejected from the elevated station at Jackson Park avenue, the terminus of the South Side elevated road. Starr, who was intoxicated, then shot himself, inflicting a wound which will probably prove fatal.

THE DEMAND FOR COPPER

Causes Producing Companies to Sell 100,000,000 Pounds Ahead.

It Marks a Vast Improvement in the Copper Trade.

New York, March 18.—The Times today says: The demand for copper has so increased that copper producing companies have sold ahead to the extent of 100,000,000 pounds. This marks a vast improvement in the copper trade.

Of these sales for future delivery it is said that the United Metals Selling company has orders covering 50,000,000 pounds, one of the large independent producers others for 36,000,000 and other producers for 20,000,000 pounds.

Within the last two days the price, which had receded fractionally under 13 cents, has again become firmly established at that figure and yesterday sales were made at that price. Orders ranging from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 pounds are said to have been placed in fairly large numbers recently by domestic consumers. One of these orders for the larger amount was held up by the suspension of the Knickerbocker Trust company, which was the banker for a power plan contsruction enterprise, for which this copper had been ordered. The order will now be filled as the trust company is to reopen.

LABOR LEADERS PREPARE FOR FIGHT OF THEIR LIVES

Conference of Great Importance Begins at Washington.

Plans to Offset Decisions of Court to be Considered.

Will Endeavor to Secure Amendments to Sherman Law.

Washington, March 18.—A conference of far-reaching importance to labor began here today. Participating are President Gompers and the members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, together with the executive officers of the International Trades Unions of America, who met pursuant to a call issued by President Gompers, to consider the consequences of the recent injunction decisions of the supreme court of the United States affecting labor organizations, with particular reference to the Danbury hatters' case, in which the court substantially held that labor organizations were to be considered trusts as much as organizations of capital.

After calling attention to the significance of these decisions, Mr. Gompers stated that the conference was for the purpose of "taking such action as the importance and merits of the subject dealt with may be considered and determined as setting forth the position and demands of labor." The court's rulings, he pointed out, were binding upon all labor organizations until changed or modified by congressional action.

Object of Conference.

The object of the conference, therefore, was to consider the proposed amendments to the Sherman anti-trust act, which are being drafted with a view not of exempting labor organizations from their obligations to the public, but rather to prevent any injustice being done through the operation of law to organizations of laboring men, particularly through injunction. It is desired to so frame the proposed changes in the Sherman law as to meet the requirements of the supreme court's decisions. The proposed amendments are the result of recent conferences at the White House between President Roosevelt and others, and it is hoped to secure remedial legislation along these lines at this session of congress.

President Gompers today stated that matters of importance to every union man would be discussed and an effort made to formulate plans to offset the rulings of the various courts regarding injunctions and boycotts.

There are 117 national and international trade unions in America, and practically all of them were represented by one or more delegates at today's meeting. The conference, which was held behind closed doors, will continue several days.

ARRIVAL OF WARSHIPS AT HAITI BRINGS RULER OF ISLAND TO HIS SENSES

President Nord Alexis Abandons Uncompromising Attitude.

Grants Refugees Permission to Leave Republic in Safety.

Paris, March 18.—Official advices received here from Haiti indicate that the arrival at Port Au Prince of foreign warships has produced the desired effect upon President Nord Alexis. M. Carteron, the French minister, cables that the government has abandoned its intransigent attitude; that the reembarkment of the refugees has been authorized and that safe conducts have been granted for the departure of Gen. Firmin and the other revolutionary agitators, who had taken asylum at the legations and consulates at Port Au Prince and Gonaives. M. Carteron gives much credit for this improved state of affairs to the active intervention of M. Bornu and the minister of state, who was the first to counsel this course of action. All danger of an attack on the legation of consulates is now considered at an end.

Germany in Accord.

Berlin, March 18.—The Associated Press is authorized to state that the German foreign office is fully in accord with the viewpoint of the United States regarding the situation in Haiti, as set forth by Secretary Root. There never was any intention on the part of Germany to intervene in the internal affairs of the Haitian republic. It is the firm resolve, however, of Germany to protect her subjects trading in Haiti, and she will insist also upon the inviolability of her legation and consular buildings.

No complications in the Haitian situation are foreseen here. The report that Germany might possibly declare war upon Haiti is stigmatized here as nonsensical. The most recent advices represent the situation at Port Au Prince as much calmer since the arrival of foreign warships. It is hoped that the presence of the German cruiser Bremen will not be necessary for long, but she will remain until quiet has been completely restored.

MANKOTA DENTIST HONORED.

Mankota, Minn., March 18.—Dr. Paul W. Barney of this city has been asked to give a clinic before the National Dental convention, which meets in Boston on July 28, at Hotel Somerset, and has decided to do so. It is a great honor, as many of the ablest men in the profession will be there and speak.

STEAMSHIP IN COLLISION

The Kron Prinz Wilhelm Struck While Entering New York.

Now Lying at Anchor in Fog Off Staten Island.

New York, March 18.—The big trans-Atlantic steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm, which arrived today from Europe, was in collision with an unknown steamer while coming up the bay. She is now lying at anchor in the fog off St. George, S. I., with a large gash in her stern high above the water line.

No direct report from the steamer has been received and the extent of the damage she sustained is not known. It is believed the collision occurred after the steamer had passed quarantine on her way to her dock. A steamer which has not yet been identified is lying at anchor near the Kron Prinz off the Staten Island shore. The fog is so thick that it is impossible to make out the name of the strange steamer.

The Kron Prinz Wilhelm left quarantine just before 7 o'clock this morning on her way to her dock. No report of any accident having occurred was made at that time. She had on board 392 passengers, of whom 229 were cabin and 163 steerage.

The gash in the Kron Prinz's stern is in the overhang, directly over the name plate. Apparently some other craft crashed fairly into her stern. Several of the plates appear to have been cut through and others crushed.

In response to an inquiry by the Associated Press by Marconi wireless telegraph, Capt. Nierrich of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm sent the following message:

"Crown of Castile ran into us, nobody injured.

"NIERRICH."

The steamer Crown of Castile of the New York & Continental line arrived from Hamburg and Rotterdam last night and left quarantine at 7:17 a. m. today, about 20 minutes after the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and must have overtaken the others while she was moving slowly in the fog. The Crown of Castile is loaded with merchandise, but carries no passengers.

KNOCK-OUT KILLS FIGHTER

St. Joseph, Mo., Man Dies of Injuries Received in Bout.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 18.—"Leck" Allen, a local prize fighter, died today from injuries received last night in a boxing match with Fritz Gutzenberger, professionally known as "Young Rhodes" also of St. Joseph. The match was before the lodge of the Eagles, and was witnessed by policemen and other officers. Allen collapsed in the fifth round and was taken out unconscious. Rhodes was arrested today, and the coroner will hold an inquest this afternoon. Officers of the Eagles lodge may be arrested. The fatal bout was a preliminary to a 15-round go between Tony Haller of St. Louis and Willie McNamara of St. Louis, in which Halier received the decision.

SENATOR NELSON'S SON IS DEAD IN COLORADO.

Washington, March 18.—Senator Nelson late yesterday received a telegram announcing the death of his son, Henry S. Nelson, at Colorado Springs. He left at 5:30 for Alexandria, Minn., to which place the remains will be taken for burial.

"HONEST JIM" IS RE-ELECTED

Blacksmith-Mayor of an Aristocratic Suburb Gets Bigger Majority.

New York, March 18.—"Honest Jim" Reilly, the village blacksmith of North Pelham, one of New York's most popular suburbs, was re-elected president of the village yesterday for the third time by the largest majority he has ever received. The women and children of the village made an enthusiastic campaign in his favor, the reason for their activity being that Reilly organized a uniform police force and rid the village of toughs, who formerly congregated on the street corners and made insulting remarks to women.

When Reilly was first elected the village was heavily in debt. He has paid off every cent of it and there is a snug balance in the treasury. He refused to announce a platform or make any promises. Aristocratic Pelham has been inclined to scoff at the unlettered blacksmith, but his sterling honesty, force of character and executive ability has been so clearly demonstrated that many of the wealthy residents lined up for him at the polls yesterday.

His political success has made no change in the blacksmith. He works at his anvil every day.

MONKEY DEBUTANTS NEXT.

Tea to be Given to Introduce Simian to Society.

Chicago, March 18.—Enter the monkey. Up to date, Chicago's society circles have indulged in almost every flight of entertainment which the mind might picture to further its schemes of entertainment and charity. It has joined hands with the East in its boy debutantes; the East has linked arms with Chicago in its living pictures, and now Chicago is to snatch from the East the one idea which to date has remained its exclusive property. Now allow us to present Mr. Monkey.

The coming out of Mr. Monkey will take place at the stage tea, which is to follow the presentation of "Cad, the Cannibal King," at Powers theater, next Thursday. The debutante is described as being 'one of the homeliest little animals you ever saw—just about big enough to put in your pocket."

JOHNSON IS A FAVORITE

N. F. Hugo Says Southern Democrats Want Him for President.

State Representative N. F. Hugo, who has just returned from a trip to Mexico and the South, says he found Johnson sentiment strong all through the Southern states. He today expressed it as his opinion that Minnesota's present governor would be selected by the Democratic party to head the ticket this year. This may be taken as an unprejudiced opinion, for Mr. Hugo is an enthusiastic Republican.

"I am firmly convinced that Johnson would be able to poll 30 to 40 per cent more votes than Bryan, as opposed to the Republican nominee, whoever he may be," said Mr. Hugo. "I visited points in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Colorado and Texas. In every one of these states there seems to be an overwhelming sentiment in favor of Johnson. The people are tired of Bryan. They want new blood. I was surprised to find what a following the Minnesota man has outside his own state. I understand the same sentiment is pretty strong all through the South, and from Eastern reports Johnson will get some delegations from the Atlantic coast states. I really cannot see how Bryan is going to get the nomination.

"Business conditions through the South are rather quiet just now. I found Old Mexico dead. There is very little doing there. Dullness in all circles in Mexico is largely due to the big slump in copper. Business conditions in that section depend largely upon the mines, and the copper properties play an important part in their calculations."

PRAISE FOR THE BRIDGE

German Eugineers Say Duluth Structure is Best in World.

Albert Enderlen, a mechanical engineer from Gustavsburg on Mainz, and Immanuel Koelle, city engineer of Bremen, Germany, pronounce Duluth's aerial bridge the greatest device of its kind they have seen in their travels through Europe and America. Herr Enderlen and Herr Koelle arrived in Duluth this morning to inspect the engineering devices of the city. They are in the United States as representatives of the German government and are paying particular attention to machinery used in docks, canals and for the handling of material.

The German engineers called on City Engineer T. F. McGilvray this morning and were shown over the aerial bridge, which was the first point of interest to men of their craft, to which they were directed in Duluth. They were taken over the structure and shown the plans und specifications. The workings of the trucks were explained and they were given all other information they desired.

When the inspection was over, they were not stinting in their praise. They said there are a number of transporter bridges in Europe, but none of them compare to the Duluth bridge in mechanism and fineness of detail.

This afternoon, Herr Koelle and Herr Enderlen will inspect the Missabe ore docks and, if they can spare the time, will also visit the plant of the Great Northern Power company. On account of lack of time, they will not be able to visit the iron ranges to look over the mining machinery, in which they also take an interest.

From Duluth, they will go to the Soo, where they will look over the St. Mary's locks and the plant of the Lake Superior Power company in the Canadian Soo. They will work back to the Atlantic coast through Cleveland, Niagara Falls and Buffalo, where they will inspect docks and power plants. Their trip through America covers the East and Middle West, Duluth being the farthest western point they visited. On their return to Germany, they will report to the German government on their findings, with a view that modern American devices and improvements may be adopted in the German Empire.

State Auditor Iverson will be represented at a hearing in the probate court, before Judge Middlecoff, tomorrow in the matter of the estate of ex-Governor Frank W. Higgins of New York, to urge the increase of the inheritance tax on the valuation of the portion of the estate in Minnesota. Several months ago an inheritance tax was levied to the amount of $15,000 on a valuation of $900,000 on the property in St. Louis and adjoining counties which belonged to the Higgins estate. Since that time the state auditor has revalued the property on a higher basis, claiming it is worth about $2,000,000 instead of $900,000.

With only two and one-half days remaining from this noon to the close of the 10-day campaign for 1,000 new members for the local branch of the Y. M. C. A., 676 names had been added to the lists.

Up to this noon the average of 100 new members per day was nearly reached and the committees which have been doing so valiant work to hit the 1,000 mark within the time limit were confident that they would have the required number when the campaign closes Friday night.

In the last two days the committees have been redoubling their efforts, if such a thing is possible, and the canvass which is being conducted has never before been equalled in its thoroughness. Two of the committees have already secured their quota of new members, while another committee is certain to hit the 100-mark by tonight.

The local members of the Y. M. C. A. are watching the canvass with great enthusiasm and every single new member secured increases their hopefulness.

SENT BOYS TO STEAL

Mrs. Annie Peterson Arrested for Her Part in Burglary.

Because she wanted the police to get hold of Louis Costello, the 14 year-old chum of her son of the same age, Mrs. Annie L. Peterson is said to have told the police, she sent her son, Peter, and the Costello boy to burglarize the store of Dominick Tiunaitis at Twenty-eighth avenue west and Fourth street, Sunday night. Mrs. Peterson was arrested this morning on a charge of petit larceny, arraigned in municipal court and her hearing set for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The two boys were arrested Monday, and they are said to have admitted burglarizing the store and securing a ham, three pounds of butter, four pounds of coffee and three pounds of pork, which they turned over to Mrs. Peterson. The boys claimed that the woman had sent them to enter the store.

Mrs. Peterson was brought to the police station this morning and, though she pleaded not guilty, she is said to have admitted the charge. She said, the police claim, that she wanted to get rid of the Costello boy, who was making his home with her son, and to do so, she planned to get him into the toils of the law. At the same time, she sent her own son to municipal court.

Young Costello is the adopted son of James Costello of 1 Wicklow street. The present scrape is not the first, in which he has been implicated. He was paroled by the juvenile court about a month ago, and is said to have promptly stolen $15 from his foster-mother and run away. He returned to the West end, picked up with the Peterson boy and made his home with the Petersons. The two boys will go before the juvenile court and Mrs. Peterson will tell her story to the municipal judge.

"He was the man, beyond the shadow of a doubt," declared W. W. Allen, a well-known citizen of the West end and one of the judges of the primary election in the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward, this morning, as he pointed his finger at Michael T. Kane, defendant in the action brought by the state on an indictment charging Kane with voting illegally in the precinct in question and in the First precinct of the Seventh ward, Dec. 17 last.

Mr. Allen's declaration was given in an emphatic manner, under cross-examination by M. H. McMahon, attorney for Kane, and caused a stir of interest about the court room.

It required only an hour to select a jury acceptable to both the state and the defense for the trial of Kane on the second indictment in connection with the alleged election frauds.

Five jurors for the defense and three for the state were excused on peremptory challenges. A few more were excused for actual or implied bias.

The first witness for the state was City Clerk Cheadle, whose testimony was preliminary, to establish the fact that there was an election held in the various wards and precincts of the city Dec. 17 last.

W. W. Allen was the first witness whose testimony was of interest. He claimed that he saw M. T. Kane at the voting place in the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward shortly after noon, Dec. 17; saw him register and vote. The witness did not know what name the defendant voted under, but remembered that Kane registered from the Esmond hotel.

Mr. Allen claimed to be well acquainted in the precinct, and that he knew the faces of all those entitled to vote there. He said he never saw Kane before the afternoon of the primary election, and did not see him afterward until he, the witness, identified Kane in the county jail as the man that voted under the circumstances referred to.

Under cross-examination, Mr. Allen admitted that his son is assistant jailer at the county jail, where Kane is confined. He claimed that he remembered Kane particularly because of his peculiar actions; that the defendant did not seem to know his residence until prompted by somebody else, and that when he was given a ballot he did not seem to know what to do with it. Mr. Allen claimed Kane was the only man who voted in the precinct Dec. 17 that displayed the peculiarity which attracted the witness' attention. Mr. Allen also stated that he identified Kane as the man whom he saw vote, as soon as he, the witness, saw the defendant in the county jail, about the time the last grand jury met. He also made the statement in the opening paragraph of the foregoing article.

Mr. McMahon sought to shake the witness, but Mr. Allen, who is about 76 years of age and who does not wear spectacles, claimed that his eyesight is good and that he has a good memory for faces. The statement by the witness that he never could forget the faces of Mr. McMahon and Mr. Norton caused some amusement.

Mr. McMahon kept up a steady fire of objections to the testimony this morning, and succeeded in keeping from the evidence a number of details that might have been construed as damaging to the defense.

It is presumed that the defense will be practically the same as in the former trial under the first indictment, that Kane will seek to establish an allbi to the effect that he could not have been anywhere near the West end voting places during the afternoon of Dec. 17.

TROUBLE IS EXPECTED

Rumors are persistent of approaching trouble between the vessel owners and the boat handlers. It is said that the more radical of the vessel owners are opposed to organized labor and that an effort will be made at the coming meeting of the vessel owners to go on record for the open shop on the lakes.

This would not apply to all branches of the lake employes. No trouble is anticipated between the marine engineers and the vessel owners in effecting a wage settlement. Many of the engineers have already signed, according to the statement of one of the officers of their union.

The cooks, firemen and affiliated laborers are the branch of lake vessel employes that are credited with being more or less liable to have trouble in settling for the coming season.

It is said that the conservative members of the association do not favor the attempt to enforce the open shop among certain classes of employment. They anticipate that the radical and the conservative members of the association will oppose each other at the forthcoming meeting.

The longshoremen and the tugmen are meeting in Cleveland today. Local sentiment says that there will be no trouble in arriving at an agreement for the season.

There is a rumor to the effect that the pay of the lake captains will be placed upon a monthly basis, instead of a yearly basis as has been the custom heretofore.

William F. Yates, national president of the Marine Engineers' Benevolent association will reach Duluth this afternoon. A meeting of the marine engineers will be held this evening. The coming of Mr. Yates has no connection with any rumored trouble between the lake masters and the engineers, according to the statement of an officer of the engineers' union this morning.

They say Mr. Yates is coming here more for social than business purposes, and that there is no anticipation of any difficulty in arriving at a settlement between the masters and the engineers.

WILL CARE FOR AGED WOMAN.

Clan Stewart will tonight entertain at a benefit dancing party at Folz hall, for Mrs. Dalgleish, who has been under the care of the Clan for about a year past. A large number of tickets have been sold for the event and the members of the Clan expect to realize a good sum.

Mrs. Dalgleish is 80 years old and alone in Duluth, as far as relatives are concerned. She had money some years ago, but lost it all in a bank failure and since has been dependent on friends. Clan Stewart took up her case a year ago and since then has supported her.

The Clan has now decided to take care of the aged woman for the rest of her life and the funds to be raised tonight will go toward that purpose.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of Chapter Regent is Presented at Meeting.

At this afternoon's meeting of the Daughters of Liberty chapter of the D. A. R. which was held with Miss Ensign of East Second street, the history of the chapter was presented by the regent, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge. The chapter was organized in April, 1897, and during the eleven years of its existence it has been quietly at work in the city doing much good. The regular study programs were devoted to American history. The chapter furnished a room in St. Luke's hospital at the time of the building, and has since maintained the room. It has contributed to Continental hall at Washington, and it maintains visiting committees to keep in touch with the needs of the Bethel Rescue home, the Children's home and St. Luke's hospital in this city. The outlook for the chapter and the aims it has in view were touched upon by Mrs. Woodbridge. This resume of the work was the annual report of the regent.

During the afternoon there was a reading by Mrs. Charles d'Autremont and a vocal number by Miss Ruth Markell. The guest of honor was Mrs. Loyhed of Faribault, state regent.

OPENING OF NAVIGATION

Expected to be Later Than Usual This Season.

Summary of the Outlook in Different Lines of Commerce.

Grain shippers, coal dealers and men prominent in the ore shipping business all unite in predicting a late opening of navigation this year, in spite of the small amount of ice in the lakes, and a quiet season.

A number of prominent vessel agents, coal dealers, ore shippers and grain exporters were seen by Herald representatives this morning, and their views on the situation were all along the same line.

If the predictions of local representatives of the large coal companies are to be believed, there will not be an early movement of coal to the Head of the Lakes this season. There is no need for an early shipment, and the fact that boats are loading at the Erie ports does not presage an early season.

Bills of lading for the vessels that are loading have been received by local coal agents. This, they say, does not indicate that the vessels will start unusually early, as the bills of lading are always sent to the consignee anywhere from one to two months before the vessel clears.

Nut coal is the only size of coal that is short at the Head of the Lakes. All of the coal companies report an abundance of coal.

There is an especially heavy supply of soft coal on the docks at the present time. One company will clean up on nut coal this month, but the other companies report a sufficient supply on hand to last until a late opening of navigation.

Tug men also believe that navigation will be late in opening this season. They will not begin to prepare for the opening until the first or second week of next month. They have received no orders as to the early arrival of coal boats, and are inclined to believe that coal will be late in arriving.

Local iron mining authorities say they are not in a position to estimate, even roughly, what the movement of iron ore out of the Minnesota district will be this year. They know, in a general way, that shipments will run much lighter than last season, but are unable to say what the percentage of decrease will be. Estimates run all the way from 25 to 40 per cent. Probably the season's shipments from the Minnesota ranges will be under the 20,000,000-ton mark. The total may fall considerably below that.

Grain men estimate that by the middle of April, when it is thought that navigation on the lakes will be underway once more, there will be something like 15,113,000 bushels of grain in store here, ready for shipment to Eastern ports.

At the same time last year, there was somewhere in the neighborhood of 18,-184,000 bushels of grain awaiting shipment, in Duluth elevators and warehouses. Of this amount a small percentage was afloat in the boats which wintered here.

It is figured then that the amount of grain awaiting shipment this year at the opening of the shipping season will be about 1,000,000 bushels less than at the same time a year ago.

These figures, which have been given, include all grains, except corn, of which very little is received at this market.

In store at Duluth now are 8,618,000 bushels of wheat, 1,092,000 bushels of oats, 492,000 bushels of barley, 18,000 bushels of rye and 3,743,000 bushels of flax. It is estimated that between now and April 15, the total stocks of grain here will be augmented by at least 1,250,000 bushels, which will make the total amount in store at Duluth by the opening of navigation, the amount mentioned above, 15,-113,000 bushels.

MURRAY'S FACE GETS HIM AWAY

No Fine for Irishman Who Celebrated St. Patrick's Day.

Pat Murray's face may never land him a fortune, but it was an asset when he appeared in municipal court this morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. In all the grist, Pat's was the only unmitakably Hibernian phiz. Pat was without remorse. He smilingly admitted celebrating the day of his patron saint, figuring that he had a right to do so. He had lost his shamrock in the midst of the festivities, but his face carried him through without any credentials as to his nationality. "Suspended sentence," said the judge, and Pat grimmed with glee.

John Fremling, a recent arrival from Brainerd, had a mistaken impression of the character of lower Lake avenue, and because he didn't know enough to keep it to himself, he'll do about a double turn at the county jail. He was arrested last night for objectionable actions, and in court expressed the opinion that there are no decent people down there anyway. He drew thirty days, while Charles Evenson, who was with him, was let down with a ten-day term.

Fred Anderson and William Rogers, vags, have been hanging around the city for some time, doing nothing. It was reported to the police that Anderson had 'frisked" a lumberjack of about $15, but Anderson indignantly denied the charge. He was given thirty days, and Rogers got away with twenty.

At this afternoon's meeting of the Daughters of Liberty chapter of the D. A. R. which was held with Miss Ensign of East Second street, the history of the chapter was presented by the regent, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge. The chapter was organized in April, 1897, and during the eleven years of its existence it has been quietly at work in the city doing much good. The regular study programs were devoted to American history. The chapter furnished a room in St. Luke's hospital at the time of the building, and has since maintained the room. It has contributed to Continental hall at Washington, and it maintains visiting committees to keep in touch with the needs of the Bethel Rescue home, the Children's home and St. Luke's hospital in this city. The outlook for the chapter and the aims it has in view were touched upon by Mrs. Woodbridge. This resume of the work was the annual report of the regent.

During the afternoon there was a reading by Mrs. Charles d'Autremont and a vocal number by Miss Ruth Markell. The guest of honor was Mrs. Loyhed of Faribault, state regent.

Spring Medicine

The best is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the best because it does the most good.

While it makes the blood pure, fresh and lively, it tones the stomach to better digestion, creates an appetite, stimulates the kidneys and liver, gives new brain, nerve and digestive strength.

An unequaled list of cures—40,366 testimonials in two years—proves its merit.

Mrs. J. F. Gee, 50 Gould Street, Stoneham, Mass., says: "In 25 years experience I have never known Hood's Sarsaparilla to fail, for spring humors and as a general blood purifier; it cures scrofula, eczema; has no equal as a general spring medicine. It gives me genuine satisfaction to say this."

Sarsatabs—For those who prefer medicine in tablet form, Hood's Sarsaparilla is now put up in chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs, as well as in the usual liquid form. Sarsatabs have identically the same curative properties as the liquid form, besides accuracy of dose, convenience, economy,—there being no loss by evaporation, breakage, or leakage. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

ON THE IRON RANGES

FIRE MATTERS ARE DISCUSSED

Betterment of Department is Considered by Virginia Council.

Virginia, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire department matters consumed most of the time of the city council last evening. On recommendation of Chief Thayer, Frank Donnelly was appointed as regular fireman and the volunteer force was reduced from fifteen to three. These three are George Holcomb, Ever Hawkinson and James Lavick. They will sleep at the fire hall and this will make a force of seven men ready to respond to any fire alarm during the night. The chief was instructed to connect the basement of the new fire hall with the sanitary sewer and the city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for furnishing seven firemen's uniforms.

The matter of purchasing a rock crusher and road roller again came up but was deferred. The city attorney reported that the owners of the land on the hill had agreed to allow the city to take all the rock it needs free of cost.

Mayor Hawkinson reported that the United States postoffice inspectors who were here last week wanted permission from the city to place iron posts in the streets to support the letter boxes when free mail delivery is established, and that he and four of the aldermen had signed a paper granting such permission.

President Osborn brought up the question of building a sidewalk to the cemetery and on motion the matter was referred to the street and alley committee to investigate and report.

W. H. Dunning made application for the position of assistant to the health officer and the application was referred to that official.

The bond of City Treasurer Pratt was received and referred to the city attorney. The street commissioners reported that certain sidewalks on Chistnut street and Wyoming avenue should be condemned but no action was taken.

HIBBING COUNCIL CHANGES.

Old Members Retire and New Ones Assume Their Duties.

Hibbing, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old and the new members of the village council held brief sessions last night, the former to turn over things to its successors and the latter to assume office then adjourn until next Monday night, when it is expected the various appointive officers will be named by President Weirick.

Judge Brady swore in the new councilmen and other elective officers and there was a general exchange of felicitations. The new council consists of President H. R. Weirick, Recorder Miles Gundsey and Trustees Hayes, Roddy and Rogalsky.

BASKETBALL INTEREST AWAKENING IN EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Basketball affairs are in the ascendance now, after a long rest. The Eveleth Independents are planning to bring the Proctor Y. M. C. A. team up here for a game Saturday evening. A return game will probably be arranged with the same team. The Hibbing high school team will play the Eveleth team in the former city, either March 27 or 28. From indications the game in this city will be kept up and not allowed to lag. If the local team makes good in these two games, it will try to arrange games with other outside teams.

MILITIA SCHEME IS GIVEN BOOST

Eveleth Council Will Maintain Armory If Company is Formed.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night will be remembered by the young men of this city, for at its meeting the city council passed the resolution to maintain an armory if a company can be organized. Before the resolution was passed, a number of prominent people gave their opinions on the subject, and Lieut. Col. Rosche of Duluth, who came up here especially for the meeting ,explained to the council in detail the working of a militia company and all other necessaries which the company would need. It is very probable that the Vail hall will be secured as an armory, and that the lockers necessary will be placed on the ground floor. A petition signed by seventy-one men, asking that the resolution be passed, was presented to the council. The action of the council is heartily approved by the great majority of voters.

A committee of three was appointed to confer with the city attorney in regard to the ordinances. The city attorney was instructed to write to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway about extending the platform along the depot tracks, as the accommodations in that line are very meager.

There was quite a discussion about the fire protection in the public buildings and churches. Fire Warden Johnson told of his investigation in that matter. At the high school four new goags have been installed, as a result of the investigation.

The sewer question took up quite a bit of time last evening. Ex-Alderman Sax spoke to the council about the need of sewers and the present condition of the old sewers. There is great need of a sewer to help drain the water, as the outlet of the present sewer is not adequate.

TO KEEP GOOD ORDER.

Reported Oliver Mining Company Will Have Peace Officers.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to an official of the Oliver Iron Mining company, who does not care to be quoted, the mining company is planning to install within a month in each of their locations upon the range a man whose sole duty it will be to keep the peace there and guard the interests of the residents, much as a police officer does in a city.

The three locations, the Spruce, Adams and Fayal, are to have a man each. These men will be responsible to the company, who is organizing this "location force" and placing them on a systematic basis. The men are to be uniformed and men of experience.

The company's action is doubtless due to the many acts of violence that have occurred on their locations in the various range towns.

BOARD TO ORGANIZE.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow night the new board of supervisors for Mesaba Mountain township will meet in the township hall to organize and elect the new chairman of the board according to the new code. In the interim Capt. D. A. Springer is acting as chairman. The board will consist of D. M. Mouser of Sparta, Capt. Springer and Thomas Trengrove, recently elected.

PITMAN ROLLS TO DEATH.

Anton Matilla, Young Finn, Fatally Injured at Biwabik.

Biwabik, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral was held here yesterday afternoon of Anton Matilla, aged 22 years, who died in the local hospital from injuries received last Thursday at the Hector mine.

Matilla was working on the steep side of the pit, using a drill. A rock of some proportions was loosened above him and came tumbling down. Some of the miners say that it either struck his hand or the drill, while others assert that it really hit the board on which he was standing. Matilla, at any rate, was knocked from his footing and rolled down the incline for some distance and then fell the sheer thirty-five feet to the bottom of the pit. He was taken to the Biwabik hospital in an unconscious condition and did not rally until his death on Saturday. He was badly bruised about the chest and other parts of the body. Deputy Coroner Seeley investigated the case and decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Deceased had not been long in the country. His only known relative in America is John Mattila, who is employed in the same mine.

DULUTH CONCERN TO FURNISH PIPE

For Extending Present Water System of City of Ely.

Ely, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night awarded the contracts for the labor and supplies entering into the extension of the sewer and water systems east from points along Fourth avenue. William Vuoti of Ely secured the contract for the labor. His bid was $9,831.32. There were three other bidders as follows: E. Engle, Duluth, $13,291.05; Pastoret & Lund (Two Harbors, $10,836.48; Albert Kolstad, Ely, $10,867.

The firm of Marshall, Wells & Co. of Duluth was awarded the water pipe contract at their bid price of $28.25 per ton. The Standard Salt & Cement company will furnish the sewer pipe used for $836.13. James B. Clow & Sons secured the contract for the hydrants, $29.25, while the contract to rthe valves went to the Northwestern Foundry company of Minneapolis at $13 each.

The council also decided last night that it would ont be able to build the firehall for which there was such a demand. The matter may be further considered.

SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES

Of Two Harbors Are Amply Provided With Proper Exits.

Two Harbors,, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to the report of the committee on buildings and grounds to the city council last night, the churches and schools of the city, with the exception of the Hiawatha school, are well provided in the way of exits, the doors all swinging out, but there is room for considerable improvement of the conditions in halls and hotels. Some of the hotels were found to be dangerous because there were not sufficient stairways connecting with the different floors, no hose connections on the upper floors and no fire escapes whatever. The owners will be forced to comply with the law forthwith.

Mayor Rothuss urged the council to make provisions for a city market, where the farmers might dispose of their supplies. The recommendation was turned over to the streets and alleys committee.

CAPT. NICHOLAS SETTLES

Blind Pig Question in Practical Manner at Mohawk Location.

Aurora, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. T. J. Nicholas solved the blind-pig question at the Mohawk mine location yesterday, as far as that location is concerned. A brewery teamster drove out with ten kegs of beer. Nicholas spotted him, and when the teamster had delivered one keg, turned the horses around and started the other nine kegs toward Aurora. The teamster cursed and swore, but he did not deliver his beer.

BIWABIK ORDERS METERS

Placed in Use to Ascertain Cost of Present System.

Biwabik, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to ascertain just what the water service is costing patrons and whether it should be sold by meter measurement or a flat rate, the council voted last night to place a number of meters in service. From the result it will be determined just how to fix the charges.

Village Attorney Don C. Anderson admitted he had run up against some legal knots in endeavoring to plan to enforce the laying of service water and sewer pipes, and assessing the cost against the property owners. He will look into the matter further.

The question of curbing Main street was informally discussed and the village attorney instructed to look up the law and determine what proportion of the cost, if any, must be assessed against the abutting property.

GOES TO COLERAINE.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Fahey has gone to Coleraine, Minn., where he will take a position in the Oliver Iron Mining company's office at the Holman mine. During the greater part of the past year, Mr. Fahey held a clerical position at one of the Corrigan-McKinney company's mines on the Menominee range.

DR. ADAMS LECTURES.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lyceum course attraction last night in the Vail opera house was Dr. H. V. Adams, whose subject was "The Grapes of Gold."

The audience was impressed by the speaker's earnestness and what they lacked in numbers they made up for in enthusiasm and interest.

Supt. B. O. Greening of the public schools has returned from his annual teacher-securing trip.

BIWABIK REVIVALS.

Biwabik, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—An old time religious revival is being held here in the Methodist church and the indications are the work will prove highly successful as no little interest is being awakened in the efforts to bring about conversions.

The services are under the direction of Rev. O. Suver, who now is in charge of both Biwabik and Aurora, and he is being assisted by Dr. E. C. Clemans, the presiding elder of Duluth. Dr. W. E. J. Gratz of Two Harbors, and Mrs. M. J. Kreidler, deaconess.

Lady Woolston Now Slender.

On her last visit to New York the charming, titled English kinswoman of the Van Horn Mentors of Rhode Island was quite plump—even fat—yes, downright fat. This visit she is beautifully slender, but neither exercising nor dieting did it, she says.

Here is her advice to her American cousins, who would safely and quickly take off a pound or so of fat a day and keep it off as desired:

Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of this simple trio of home remedies: ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Syrup Simplex. These articles cost little, may be obtained at any drug store, and can be mixed at home by any one.

"There isn't a wrinkle nor a stomach ache in a barrelful," concluded her ladyship. That is, she meant all that, though her language was much more elegant, of course.

JONNSON STRONG IN NORTH DAKOTA

Leaders Are Deserting Bryan for the Minnesota Candidate.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 18.—That sentiment in North Dakota is overwhelmingly in favor of Governor John A. Johnson for president is asserted by Col. Joseph Kelly of Devils Lake, who was in Grand Forks yesterday. Mr. Kelly is one of the leaders of the Democratic party in the state, and has stood by Bryan in other campaigns. He declares Bryan cannot be elected, and that it would be unwise for the Democratic party to nominate him in preference to Governor Johnson.

"Governor Johnson would carry North Dakota by an overwhelming majority if nominated for president by the Democrats," said Mr. Kelly. "Since he was indorsed by the Minnesota central committee, and his friends have declared him a candidate, North Dakotans generally have decided in favor of him, and there seems to be little question that he will have a majority of the delegates to the convention in Grand Forks on March 25. It is not certain, however, that the convention will instruct for any one. Bryan's followers may be allowed the privilege of an uninstructed delegation, even if Johnson has a majority, rather than there should be a split in the party.

"Among the leaders of the party who do the work in campaigns the sentiment is almost unanimous in favor of Johnson. His nomination would mean much to the Democrats of North Dakota. Governor Johnson has fulfilled his pledges to the people and has their fullest confidence. He would be conservative, and I have no doubt would be a stronger man in the presidential chair than William J. Bryan. Bryan can never hope for a united Democracy, and we must look to some one like Johnson to lead us to victory."

GOVERNMENT AFTER PHILLIPS

Convicted Embezzler Charged With Defrauding Through the Mails.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel A. Phillips, general manager of the Great Northwest Fiscal agency was arrested Tuesday on a warrant sworn out by C. C. Houpt, United States district attorney, charging him with using the mails to defraud. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Spencer and held in $2,500 bail, which was furnished by Andrew Lindholm.

Phillips was recently convicted of grand larceny in the first degree in the state district court, and was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment by Judge Bunn. He is out on $15,000 bail, pending appeal from the sentence.

In the latest action against Phillips it is charged that he devised a scheme to defraud by mailing to John H. Lledman of Grove City, Minn., a circular offering to furnish him, for the sum of $45, with one share of the par value of $50 in the Co-operative Construction company of St. Paul.

The circular was sent out, it is alleged, by Phillips in his capacity as general manager of the Great Northwest Fiscal agency.

Good For Everybody.

Mr. Norman R. Coulter, a prominent architect, in the Delbert Building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter, as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c at all drug stores.

CORN PROVES FATAL.

Causes Blood Poisoning and Henderson Merchant Dies.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. M. Simmer, a prominent merchant of Henderson, Minn., died at the city hospital, following an operation made necessary by blood poisoning originating from a corn between two of the toes on his right foot.

Two weeks ago the corn began giving trouble, and blood poisoning developed. He came to St. Paul and consulted a specialist, who decided that the leg was infected up to the knee, and amputation was decided upon as the only possible way to save Mr. Simmer's life. The operation was performed Friday and Sunday the patient died.

Mr. Simmer was 51 years of age and is survived by a wife and five children.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Lari Hosser, who, playing the part of a deputy United States marshal from Cleveland, caused the arrest of a number of railway employes at Lima, Galion, and Crestline, was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary by Judge Quail Tuesday. After making his "arrests" and handcuffing his prisoners, he would deliberattly rob them.

William H. Sorsby, the American minister to Bolivia, who was stricken with paralysis in January, is now practically recovered. He left La Paz for the coast to recuperate.

William Jennings Bryan was chief orator and guest of honor at the St. Patrick's Day banquet of the Irish Fellowship club at Chicago, Tuesday. His speech which was on signs of the times came at the end of a lengthy program and it was far past midnight when he began.

RETURNS SUIT FOR SUIT.

Des Moines, March 18.—William Rooks, sued last week for divorce by his pretty, blue-eyed wife, Lillian, commenced an action against Fred Linkfield for damages of $20,000, alleging that Linkfield alienated the affections of Mrs. Rooks.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON TO SPEAK.

Huron, S. D., March 18.—Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, will deliver the address at the opening of the state fair in this city Sept. 3. Secretary McIlvaine is arranging for special trains for that day and also each day during the fair and indications point to an unusually large attendance with greatly increased exhibits in every department.

BREAKFAST WITHOUT COFFEE

might seem a hardship to some, but when the harm done by caffeine—the drug in coffee—is considered, its absence should be counted a good thing.

Another "good thing" is

th health-beverage, made from wheat, skillfully roasted to bring out the delightful flavour and the food-elements of the grain.

In making Postum, the vital phosphates, placed by Nature up under the bran-coat of the wheat, are carefully retained for rebuilding worn-out brain and nerve cells.

Postum builds up what coffee tears down, and

"There's a Reason"

STILL HAS BUILDING

St. Louis County Owns Structure at State Fair.

County Exhibit May Include Mining and Shipping Interests.

Whether the St. Louis county exhibit at the state fair this year will be in the general agricultural exhibit building by itself, will depend largely upon the nature of the display the arrangement committee decides on. This county has a building of its own on the fair grounds, but in the opinion of local authorities it is hardly suitable for an exhibit alone, because it is not in line with the other exhibits of this kind.

Since there has been so much talk in Duluth regarding having this county represented at the state fair in a fitting manner this year, some wonder has been expressed locally as to what has become of the St. Louis county building on the fair grounds. While this structure has not been used by the county for a few years past, the county has not lost title to it, although the state fair management has been using it for its own; and renting it out as a restaurant. It is understood that half the rent has been given St. Louis county every year, however. Title to the building has never been transferred, and the county will have no trouble in getting back the structure for its own uses if it so desires.

It is believed that a purely agricultural exhibit would be more effective in the same building with the other agricultural exhibits, but if St. Louis county decides to have other than her agricultural resources represented, the arrangement committee probably will decide upon the county building, which would be large enough to allow space for agriculture, mining, shipping and other industrial exhibits. The building could be made a center of attraction, if enough time and money were devoted to the enterprise, for the whole Northwest is interested in Duluth and the mining and shipping interests, and a good exhibit of the steel and vessel interests in connection with that of agriculture, would, it is believed, be a strong drawing card.

Mr. John Riha, of Vining, Ia., says "I have been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. I have used them myself with fine results." Sold by all druggists.

SHORTAGE HAS BEEN MADE GOOD

Former State Oil Inspector Pays Over $6,000 Into Treasury.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Irregularities amounting to $6,199.95 have been found in the accounts of J. A. McDermott, state oil inspector, and he has paid over that amount into the state treasury. In answer to the demand for information and in order to quiet some of the sensational stories afloat because of the examination, Public Examiner Schaefer transmitted the following partial report to Governor Johnson:

"Sir: I have the honor to report that the investigation of the state oil inspector's department during the incumbency of J. A. McDermott for the priod from Feb. 1, 1905, to Oct. 21, 1907, is practically concluded and the same will be transmitted when the final report is complete.

"The report shows a discrepancy in the accounts of the inspector's office for which he is personally responsible of $6,199.95. His attention having been called thereto, he stated that he had been following the precedent established by his predecessor and supposed that the same was a perquisite of the office.

"When informed that there was no statutory provision in support of his contention, he immediately promised to account for the money and has since, from time to time, pending the completion of this report, refunded the entire amount in question.

"I make this partial and preliminary report in answer to the demand of the public for information and in justice to Mr. McDermott, who, from the beginning, has expressed himself as perfectly willing to account for every cent for which he might under a proper interpretation of the law by this department be held liable.

"A. SCHAEFER."

Naturally the scandal in the oil department has called attention to the administration of former inspectors and the claim is now made by those in charge that Former Oil Inspector Fenton Warner left no books or accounts by which any irregularities, if such existed, during his tenure of office could be traced. They say the books are missing.

SENATOR WHYTE PASSES AWAY

Famous Maryland Man Dies at the Age of 84 Years.

Baltimore, March 18.—United States Senator William Pinckey Whyte died at his home in this city last night.

Senator Whyte was taken ill while in Washington last Thursday and returned home as soon as possible. Erysipelas developed and his condition became worse, although his physicians gave out encouraging statements until yesterday afternoon.

Senator Whyte, who was affectionately referred to and addressed as "Governor" by nearly every one who knew him, had been in public life since 1847. He was born in this city Aug. 9, 1824, and was the son of Joseph and the grandson of Dr. John Campbell Whyte. His maternal grandfather was the famous lawyer and orator, William Pinckey. He engaged in business for two years, following which he graduated at law at Harvard in 1845. His political career may be said to have begun with his election to the house of delegates of the Maryland legislature of 1847-48, since which time he has held nearly every office in the gift of the people of his state. He was state comptroller 1845-55 and ran for congress in 1857, but was defeated. He was delegate to the national convention of 1868 and the same year was appointed United States senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Reverdy Johnson, upon the latter's appointment as minister to Great Britain.

He was governor of Maryland 1871-74, and in the following year was elected United States senator. He became mayor of Baltimore in 1881 and attorney general of Maryland in 1887. In 1900 he became city solicitor. The then governor, Edwin Warfield, appointed him United States senator in 1905, the unexpired term of the late Senator Arthur P. Gorman and the current legislature elected him Senator Gorman's successor for the term ending March 3, 1909. He was the last survivor of the senators who voted against the fifteenth amendment to the United States Constitution.

The late senator was a man of most engaging personality and was devoted to his family. He was twice married, but died a widower. He was the leader of the Baltimore bar and was successful in criminal cases.

STUDENTS OUT ON BAIL.

Fifteen of the Ann Arbor Boys to be Tried Friday.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 18.—All the students arrested in a riot at the Star theater are at liberty, but fifteen of them had to furnish $1,000 bail each, after being led into Justice Doty's court and back to their cells like hardened criminals, handcuffed and under a heavy police guard. Three students pleaded guilty on a charge of loitering and were fined $4.65 each. The fifteen who gave bail will have their examinations Friday morning on a charge of rioting. As soon as the boys were arraigned and their bail was fixed, local business men came to their aid with offers of bail, the required amount being promptly furnished in each case.

At a meeting of students last night, it was decided to raise money by popular subscription to reimburse the owners of the property which was damaged in Thursday night's riot on condition that the criminal charges against the students be dismissed.

HUGE BIBLE CLASS IS PLANNED BY JOHN D., JR.

New York, March 17.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has formed a Bible class organization which promises to include all the Bible classes in the country.

The first meeting of the association will be held in the auditorium of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, the Rockefeller church, on April 3. Nearly every Bible class in New York will send a representative.

It is Mr. Rockefeller's belief that purity of the men of the future depends upon the Bible classes more than upon the church. He is in favor of having every Bible class adopt the "big brother" plan of work, which has produced such successful results in the Rockefeller class.

The plan is both simple and effective. Each member of the class pledges himself to act as a big brother to one or more unfortunate young fellows whose environment is such as to prevent them rising from their sphere in life. Mr. Rockefeller believes in a more practical Christianity than that expounded by the average church. He believes men should be helped, not by gifts of money, but by the practical help one brother can extend to another.

THE OPEN SHOP.

Possibility That Restaurants and Hotels Will Fight for It.

The possibility of restaurant and hotel owners in Duluth starting a fight for the open shop with the cooks and waiters was discussed at a meeting of the Cooks and Waiters' union, held last evening in Kalamazoo hall.

There has been some talk of instituting the open shop, but the union does not think anything will come of it. Both employers and employes seem to be fairly well satisfied with existing conditions, and it is considered doubtful if the employers will care to start a fight of this kind.

SPERRY WILL COMMAND FLEET

When It Starts From Frisco to Encircle the Globe.

Washington, March 18.—Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry will be commander-in-chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet when it leaves San Francisco in July to encircle the globe. This was decided on by President Roosevelt and his cabinet yesterday.

Rear Admiral Evans, on his personal request, will be relieved of the command at the conclusion of the big naval review at San Francisco, May 8. The admiral considers this the completion of the work he was assigned to do—take the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific coast. Admiral Evans retires in August.

To Rear Admiral Thomas comes the honor of commanding the fleet on its visit to Puget Sound, and until the homeward journey begins. He has been second in command during the voyage and retires in October.

These retirements make possible two promotions to the grade of rear admiral, and these are to be filled by the advancement of Capt. Seaton Schroeder and Capt. Richard Wainwright, who will command respectively the third and fourth squadrons of the fleet and Rear Admiral Emery the second.

Admiral Sperry, who is to bring the "big sixteen" back to the Atlantic coast by encircling the globe, has had long and distinguished service in the navy. He is a native of New York, but is accredited to Connecticut in his appointment to the naval academy. He became a rear admiral in May, 1906. During the war with Spain, Admiral Sperry was equipment officer in the New York navy yard. Afterward he was given command of the Yorktown in Philippine waters and directed the movements of the landing party on the Eastern shore of Luzon, which is now regarded as one of the most thrilling adventures of the campaign against Aguinaldo.

UNCLE SAM BRINGS SUIT

Against Great Northern Under Stock-in-Transit Law.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States District Attorney C. C. Houpt has filed complaints in the United States circuit court in nine suits which he has instituted against the Great Northern Railroad company for alleged violations of the federal law providing that cattle in transit shall not be allowed to go longer than thirty-six hours without food, water or rest.

Twenty-two separate violations of the law are cited in the complaint in the nine suits, and as each is punishable by a fine of $500, conviction on all the offenses enumerated would entail fines aggregating $11,000.

It is alleged in the complaints, which cover shipments of cattle from various points in Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota to Chicago, that in some instances the cattle were not given food or water for fifty hours.

It is also alleged that the company was not prevented from complying with the provisions of the law by reason of storms or other unforeseen obstacles.

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lawrence Hope was struck and instantly killed by the Omaha flyer as he was crossing the tracks at Post Siding Tuesday morning. Coroner Miller was notified and after making an examination, turned the body over to relatives.

Mr. Hope had been a resident of St. Paul for the past twenty-five years and was proprietor of a jewelry store at 252 East Seventh street. He was a thirty-second degree member, K. C. C. H. of the Masons, and a past master of Ancient Landmark lodge No. 5, and was also a member of the Royal Lodge of the Mystic Shrine. MOE HOST AT BANQUET

West End Merchant Entertains His Co-Workers and Friends.

The Gathering at the Spalding is a Delightful Affair.

Employes of the John J. Moe & Sons company department store, in the West end, and rperesentatives of the local newspapers and wholesale houses, were entertained at a banquet in the Spalding hotel, last evening, by John J. Moe, president and general manager of the company.

This was the first banquet under the new firm name of John J. Moe & Sons Company, but when the West end department store was known as Johnson & Moe, it was Mr. Moe's custom to gather his co-workers and a number of other friends of the establishment together at a little spread.

As one of the speakers put it, the banquet last evening was not only the first under the new name, but was the most successful ever held..

About sixty persons sat down to the table, the banquet being served at 8 o'clock in one of the cafes. The tables were prettily decorated with carnations and ferns. An interesting program of speeches was given during the evening.

Mr. Moe spoke of the gathering of his employes as "a little family party," and had many words of praise and appreciation for his co-workers and friends of his establishment. He told of the success of the firm under the old name, and how, under the new, he always hoped to merit the patronage and friendship of his patrons of the past. Mr. Moe spoke glowingly of the great future in store for Duluth, and the West end particularly. As one speaker remarked during the evening, there were those who predicted failure for Mr. Moe when he started so pretentious an establishment so far from the center of the city, but time has shown that his business judgment was sound.

"The possibilities of success," said Mr. Moe, "are within the reach of every man who sets out with the will and the vim to do things, and who deals fairly and squarely with all."

In closing, Mr. Moe paid a high tribute to his assistants, some of whom had been with him for the past fifteen years, and hoped that the cordial relations which had always existed in the past would continue in the future.

Bentley P. Neff, secretary and sales manager of F. A. Patrick & company, gave an interesting talk on the relations between the merchant and his employe and the essentials for success in merchandizing. Mr. Neff said in part:

"To the employes of this enterprising concern I would speak for a moment. Upon you depends to a most material extent the future welfare and advancement of your company. The buying public value your merchandise and size up your store very much from the way the goods are presented, and from the manner in which you conduct yourself while making the sale. Therefore, it should be your cheerful duty to study how best you can serve the interests of your employers for in serving their best intersts you are serving your own as well."

Short speeches were also made by G. W. Preston of the News-Tribune, George M. Jensen of the West End Advertiser, J. C. Wesenberg of the West Duluth Ekko, J. J. Moe, Jr., W. J. Moe, A. H. Moe, L. L. Pidcoe and A. B. Nelson of Marshall, Field & Company, Chicago, Alfred O. Anderson, advertising manager for Moe's, and W. J. Hayes of The Herald.

After the speech-making, the company repaired to the parlors of the hotel, where a musical program was enjoyed.

FUGITIVE BROKER

Carried Off $50,000 in Cash and Securities Worth $100,000.

Boston, Mass., March 18.—Convincing proof has been discovered, it is said, that Cardino F. King, now a fugitive from justice, at the time of his departure from Boston, took from his office and his Brookline home a large amount of negotiable securities and cash, totaling $100,000. Most of the cash, estimated to be in the neighborhood of $50,000, lawyers for clamoring investors claim, was money given him by clients for the purchase of listed stocks which were never delivered nor actually bought.

It is also known that the missing financier was in communication with his office boy here by long-distance telephone as late as last Thursday afternoon.

One of the last of King's transactions in Boston, and said to be the transaction directly responsible for his sudden disappearance, was the protesting of a sight draft for $2,615, which had been accepted by King. The Erie Preserving Company of Buffalo had drawn on him for that amount. King wired President Fenton of the preserving company that he had no money to meet the draft, and Fenton promptly sent on the amount to cover the draft, so as to bolster up King's credit. King failed to use the money to care for the draft, but is said to have put it in his pocket. This transaction brought President Fenton to Boston, and then came King's disappearance.

INSANE WOMAN

Jumped to the Stage and Joined in the Dancing.

Wilmington, Del., March 18.—There was an exciting scene on the stage of the Garrick theater, a vaudeville playhouse, here that was not on the bill. The hubbub was created by a woman inmate of the Delaware Hospital for the Insane making her appearance in an impromptu act.

Mrs. Collins, matron of the hospital, escorted six women patients to the theater to witness the performance. All were orderly until the orchestra struck up a lively air for the "turn" of Billy Farnon, dancer. Inspired by the music, one of the patients jumped from her seat and, running down the aisle, made a flying leap on the stage. She just grazed the head of the pianist.

The insane woman then joined in the dancing. The audience was in a tumult, but the woman was finally removed from the stage by the matron and the attaches of the playhouse. The other patients made no demonstration.

Southern Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Oregon, and Washington will assist in forming these colonies.

THEY DECIDE UPON HOSPITAL

Swedish Lutherans Will Build $100,000 Structure in Duluth.

The hospital board appointed at the annual meeting of the Lake Superior district conference of the Swedish Lutheran church, held at Virginia early in January, met last evening at the parsonage of the Bethany Lutheran church, 2305 West Third street, and decided to build a $100,000 hospital in Duluth.

A permanent organization of the board was perfected, and the following officers were elected: Chairman, Rev. Carl G. Olson of the Bethany Lutheran church; vice president, Rev. John A. Krantz of the Elim Lutheran church of West Duluth; secretary, Rev. Carl Solomonson of the First Swedish Lutheran church, and treasurer, H. Iverson of Carlton.

A committee, consisting of the four officers and Otto Johnson of Duluth was appointed to draw up articles of incorporation and will present them to the members at the next meeting, which will be held at the same place, on April 6. Rev. Olson, Rev. Solomonson and H. T. Lofgren, the latter of Superior, were appointed as a committee to decide upon a location for the structure. They will look over available sites in both the East and West ends.

The institution, which will accommodate at least 100 patients, will be built from funds raised by public subscription. While it will be open to the general public, it will remain under the auspices of the Lake Superior district of the Swedish Lutheran churches.

THOUSAND FOR AN EYE.

Man Injured in Personal Encounter Given Damages.

Cando, N. D., March 18.—In the district court a case that attracted considerable interest was the personal damage suit of Martin Jacobson vs. H. P. Codor. The complainant alleges that Codor entered a barn on the farm where Jacobson was working and assaulted him in such a manner that Jacobson lost sight of one of his eyes and partially the hearing in one of his ears. Every foot of the ground was vigorously fought by the attorneys and consumed two days' time. Jacobson asked damages in the sum of $2,000. After being out over seven hours, the jury returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff for 1,080.

EAST GRAND FORKS IS GETTING LID THESE DAYS.

East Grand Forks, Minn., March 18.—Mayor Hugh Dunleavy put the lid on tight in East Grand Forks Monday. Since the mayor took office, the saloons had been allowed to keep open day and night, except from 5 a. m. Sunday to 5 a. m. Monday. The new order requires strict compliance with the law requiring saloons to be closed at 11 at night, and to be closed until 5 a. m. next morning.

Orders have also been issued to close up all the resorts in the redlight district. Gambling in saloons is also on the list of the condemned, although there has been a few infractions of this regulation for weeks. Officers have been been instructed to arrest all who violate the rules.

TWO PARTNERS BANKRUPT.

Winona, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Voluntary petitions in bankruptcy have been filed by Edwin Rice, Jr., and Annie E. Rice as individuals, and as co-partners at Oronoco, Olsted county. Nervous Headache.

Professor C. Weitemeyer, Jersey City, N. J., who is the oldest music professor in that city, has been cured of nervous headache by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, taken regularly as prescribed.

In a recent letter Professor Weitemeyer wrote: "I have used Duffy's Malt Whiskey for twenty years and believe it to be all you claim for medicinal and home use. I know your whiskey cured me of rheumatism and nervous headache which my profession subjected me to. By taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly I am in the best of health today."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

Sold by druggists, grocers and dealers, or direct. $1 per bottle. Write Dr. Curran, Consulting Physician, for a free illustrated medical booklet containing a few of the many convincing testimonials received from grateful men and women who have been cured, and free advice. ALDRICH BILL'S BAD ASSOCIATIONS.

There is justification for the popular suspicion of the Aldrich currency bill. It comes from Aldrich, in the first place, and everybody knows what his associations are, and what he represents in congress. The best that is claimed for it is that it is a makeshift, when nearly everybody agrees that a revolutionary change in currency and banking methods is needed. It makes railroad bonds the basis for currency, too, and that is a move with possibilities most mischievous.

The friends of the bill, too, do not win it much popular esteem, nor do the methods that are being used to bolster it up. For instance, Collier's Weekly recently published a letter written by one P. S. Ridsdale, Wilkesbarre, Pa., to a newspaper correspondent, offering to bribe him for procuring the publication of interviews favorable to the bill. Enclosed was a digest of the splendid qualities of the bill and a series of arguments for it. The correspondent was asked to put these arguments into the mouths of prominent citizens, that they might appear to be quoted to that effect. In return for this service to Mr. Ridsdale the correspondent was to receive $10 for each story of about half a column placed in the big city papers and $2 for each article placed in any city or town papers, in addition, of course, to the regular compensation paid by the victimized newspapers for the articles published.

Now Mr. Ridsdale will find few correspondents willing to partake of his bounty. They are paid by their employers, the newspapers, and few of them are in the business of betraying them to please the Ridsdales who are constantly trying to tempt them. Besides, if one of them did try it, the editors who received the matter would spot the game instantly, and give the correspondents some very sharp comments upon such practices.

But it shows that somebody is very much interested in bolstering up support for the Aldrich bill, and the methods used warrant the increase of public suspicion of the measure.

Again, the "Keystone News Bureau," of Philadelphia, which is not generally known as a responsible source of real news, is offering to supply newspapers with free news matter, most of which consists of generalities and interviews favoring the Aldrich bill. The Herald has not been honored, but the Detroit Journal reports receiving a communication from this bureau, offering it a "news item" under a Washington date stating that union labor is rallying to the support of the Aldrich bill because it believes that if the bill is not passed there will be no prospect of employment this summer. This appears to be a veiled threat that if the interests do not get the Aldrich bill they will withhold employment. President Glover of the Riggs National bank of Washington is quoted as saying that without financial legislation there will be millions out of employment.

Coming from such auspices and urged by such methods, the Aldrich bill is a good thing to let alone.

But it will probably pass, at that, and will be the chief and only flower of the congressional shrub this year.

NO MEAT INSPECTION CHANGES.

We are getting accustomed to announcements from Washington about what congress is not going to do. The only trouble seems to be that there is such a conspicuous absence of announcements about what congress is going to do, that the prediction that it is not going to do anything is very strongly supported.

The latest intimation is that there will be no changes in the meat inspection act which went into effect July 1, 1906. Senator Beveridge had proposed two amendments, both of which would have strong popular support, but neither of which is pleasing to the packers. One provides that the expense of inspection shall be borne by the packers instead of by the government. This is not vitally important. The public pays it either way. If the government stands the expense it comes, either directly or indirectly, out of the people, while if the packers paid it they would tack it onto the price of meat immediately, with a little more for good measure. On the whole, perhaps it is better to leave it as it is. Vegetarians are the only people that have any right to complain, since all the rest of us use meat and would have to pay the expenses through our meat bills if the costs were assessed to the packers.

The other amendment is more important, and it is one that will some day be adopted. That provides that the date of canning shall be placed on all canned meats. The good in that is obvious. Nobody cares to buy canned meat that is too old, yet if there is no date upon the can there is no way of knowing how old its contents are. When business is good very likely there is no chance for canned stuff to become aged; but when business drags it can't help becoming old, and there is no doubt that the packers sell it just the same. It is easy, however, to see why the packers might reasonably complain of such a provision. People would insist upon having very up-to-date goods, and they might refuse perfectly good meats because they were dated a few months too far back. This would prove costly, not only to the packers but to retail dealers.

However, the interests of the public should be first considered in these matters, and if the public needs protection against ancient goods, congress ought to pass a law compelling the date of canning to be placed upon the can. But we have got along fairly well for some time without it, and if congress does not see fit to provide this protection at this time we can wait a little longer.

The packers put up a very pathetic plea against both of these amendments on the ground that they are just getting back the trade they lost because of the agitation of a couple of years ago, and that any revival of a demand for additional legislation would do irreparable injury to the export trade. The argument is not logical, since the only amendment affecting the quality of meats would tend to reassure foreign buyers by showing that our government is doing its best to see that they get good and fresh meat products. However, it seems to have weighed sufficiently with congress, in spite of its lack of logic.

A ROMANCE OF THE NORTH WOODS.

The Herald salaams in token of profoundest respect for the editor of an esteemed contemporary, Uno Lindstrom of the Duluth Swedish Posten, in recognition of his parentage of one of the most diverting and thrilling romances that have yet come out of the north woods, and in congratulation upon his fortunate but narrow and vastly ingenious escape from one of the ever-present dangers of the woodland wilds.

It seems that Mr. Lindstrom and an associate were inspecting some land north of Duluth the other day. To quote Mr. Lindstrom, who relates the stirring story, "we were walking through the woods at an early hour in the morning, when we were suddenly face to face with four large hungry looking wolves. We had no guns and were at a loss to know what to do. We had never seen any wolves before, running wild in the woods, and did not expect a visit from them."

Visitors, however, are not always announced, and especially is this true of unwelcome ones. There stood the hungry habitants of the woods, red jaws gaping wide, red tongues licking red chops in lickerish anticipation of an editorial feast. What to do? Presence of mind is a precious pearl, and the men whom the wolves had picked out for an early breakfast had it. They promptly climbed a convenient tree.

The wolves, in baffled rage and with increased pangs of hunger irrtating their none too amiable dispositions, circled around the trunk of the hospitable tree in a dizzy dance, flecks of foam dotting their wide muzzles and hungry howls shattering the woodland silence. They refused to go home. Suggestions that breakfast might be ready and getting cold in their cavern domiciles failed to move them. Soothing phrases like "Nice old wolfy! Poor old Lupus!" failed to mend their evil tempers. They stuck persistently and hopefully at the foot of the tree. What to do?

Again presence of mind bestirred itself, and human intelligence rose superior to brute instinct. Mr. Lindstrom's companion, Charles Peterson of Superior, had a packsack. In the sack were a rope and a hatchet. These implements, in the hands of men of ingenuity and cunning, proved the salvation of the treed editor and his companion, and the undoing of the wolves.

Mr. Peterson pulled the rope and hatchet out of the packsack, handed the hatchet to Mr. Lindstrom, and made a noose in the end of the rope. He let this down, and one of the wolves snapped at it viciously. The next moment Mr. Wolf was snared fast, and dangled at the end of the rope. Mr. Peterson calmly pulled him up within reach, Mr. Lindstrom as calmly dispatched him with the hatchet, the noose was loosed and a dead wolf dropped to the ground. One! Again the trick was successfully played, and a second dead wolf lay at the foot of the tree. Two!

And so it went. In a twinkling four vicious, dangerous and hungry wolves were turned into four stark, stiffening carcasses. The men descended from the tree in triumph and skinned the wolves. Bearing the pelts, worth $15 apiece at the county auditor's office, they marched complacently home again to tell the story.

Can you beat it?

A LESSON FROM THAW.

Before we bid a regretless farewell to the Thaw people, of whom the public has acquired quite an amplitude, thank you, it may be well enough to draw one more lesson from the episode.

That lesson is not entirely a moral lesson. It has quite as much to do with physical well-being as with moral health.

It has been noted that at his first trial, Harry Thaw was a wreck—physical, moral and almost mental as well. He was sallow, broken and cringing. He lounged over two chairs, and huddled himself back in a lifeless mass of bones and flesh; a mere caricature of a man.

But when he appeared at his second trial, after a year and a half in jail, he was another man. He walked briskly, sat erect, and gave close and intelligent attention to what went on about him. His cheek had the glow of health and his eyes were clear and keen with animated attention.

What made the difference?

Not alone the imprisonment, though that involved the rest. But when he appeared at his first trial Thaw's condition was the result of years of dissipation: of fast living, late hours, expensive eating, much drinking—of dissipation of all kinds. His nerves were gone, his mind was clouded, his strength had vanished. He was the mere shadow of the man he should have been at his years.

The change that took place in him shows what nature will do if you give it a chance. For a year and a half he spent his time in prison. He kept regular hours, because he had to. He did not dissipate, because he could not. He took exercise, because it offered a change from the dull routine of prison life.

This happened through no virtuous resolution of Thaw's. If he had not been put in prison he would probably have continued the life that his inherited wealth enabled him to live. He had no aim in life except to have a good time, and his idea of a good time was to spend his time and money on dissipation. The inevitable result was degeneration—moral, mental, physical. Nature's laws are inexorable; they are always enforced; they can't be evaded or violated. Thaw's condition when arrested was the penalty of his attempt to run counter to those laws.

If nature punishes, it also rewards. It rewarded Thaw by giving his health back, even though he had earned that kindness by no intentional effort of his own. He lived regularly, normally, wholesomely, because he was compelled to. Yet nature recognized it just the same, and paid him for it as it always does.

The case of Thaw, sordid and unpleasant though it is, teaches a powerful lesson for right living.

Winter really seems to have set in in earnest.

Guess Mr. La Follette handed Mr. P. Wealth a few yesterday!

Congressional inaction is the ill wind that blows nobody good—except the interests.

Too bad good old Fighting Bob can't have back a double decade of his youth, so he could take the fleet the rest of the way around the world.

If La Follette should be nominated by the Hearst party and the Populists he might make the other candidates figure a bit, for he has a large following in both of the old parties.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Ever play the new game 'Diable?'" asked R. T. Dailey of Chicago, at the St. Louis hotel yesterday.

"I went to a party in my home city, where everybody indulged in the latest French importation. I said to my wife then and there, positive like, that any good lawyer could have had us all sent out to Mattewan or any other first class resort for people affected with irregular movements in the thought register.

"You know the game, don't you? They have two sticks attached to each other by a string. You are supposed to catch a kind of spool on this string and keep it balanced on the string, throwing it up and down in the air. Five minutes of this game will make any up to date parlor look like moving day in Kansas. Furniture repairers and upholsterers ought to give the Frog who invented the game a pension.

"One large fat lady—there is always at least one at every social gathering—become infatuated with the game. She got located, as they say, west of the Rockies. She made a center rush through the portieres, in search of the rolling hoop, carrying these decorations in her wake. Just as Bill Taft swept Ohio, when she stumbled and spoiled several weeks' salary in cut glass, and we rang for the snielling salts. That was the first round.

"Next a little, thin and nervous woman became hysterical over the fascination of the bounding hoop. She cleaved a Paris-imported screen in a head-on collision. I could plainly see that the parlor decoration would henceforth be consigned to the hired girl's boudoir. It was really a shame to waste money that way.

"Next a big, beefy stockholder in some dividend paying corporation assayed the little trick of keeping the hoop balanced on the bounding string. He did right well, too—in a way. I thought that I had witnessed the destruction of enough art to satisfy my anti-plutocratic sentiments; but when this heavy-footed boy got to toying with the elusive hoop, it was to the safety deposit vaults with all the valuables.

"First, he did a Swedish polka in the center of the drawing room. Have you ever imagined a bovine in a china shop? There you have it. The crepe de chun—is that correct?—was rudely denuded from the garment of a trembling debutante. Trailing garments were ripped and slashed by the efforts of this fat man to play a game that wouldn't have furnished mental stimulant for 'Minnie, the wild girl.'

"In a wild effort to lunge for the hoop he pulled down the chandeliers on our heated brows. Then he upset a Louis de something vase, became embroiled with the punch bowl and finally wound up in a sitting posture with the gold frame of a picture furnishing a halo for his red face.

"Perhaps some of the little courtesies were neglected by the hostess at the parting. I must confess that we were all a little excited. I think that the mash, the husband of the woman who gave the party, was just a trifle dazed at the wholesale destruction of the family heirlooms. If the party had been a coming out function for a Drexel boulevard debutante, it could hardly prove more expensive. We all felt guilty.

"Since then I have never attempted to play the game. If you are a family man and your wife ever attempts a 'diable' party, hasten, friend, hasten, and have the family possessions insured."

Guests of the Lenox were highly amused yesterday by the appearance of an inebriated Irishman wildly pursuing a little dog, whose stump of a tail was bound round, not with a woolen string, but with a bow of orange ribbon. It was the work of some practical joker, and it certainly had the desired effect on the mulled son of ould Ireland. He stood as much chance of catching the dog as Carrie Nation has of becoming an honorary member of the Daughters of the Revolution. Towser would have fared badly could the careening admirer of Saint Patrick have fastened his itching digits upon him, just at the place where collars are supposed to fit snugly.

George Nutting, at the Lenox, who hails from Nebraska way, states that things are looking well for Governor Johnson, should he come out and announce his candidacy for the job of writing annual messages and entertaining rural visitors. Mr. Nutting is for Johnson, strange as it may seem. He seems to think that many people, even in the cornhusking state, are weary of the leadership of the "peerless one."

Since a misguided traveling man presented the girl at the Lenox cigar counter with an ornament in the shape of a silver owl, with green eyes of ominous shade, no one has been able to win a game with the bones. The ornament is supposed to be a mascot, but it has proved to be a hoodoo, for not only have brother members of the U. C. T. lost expense money in vainly trying to prove that the mascot is supposition, but the donor of the gloomy owl lost several simoleons in a futile attempt to draw one smoke. He finally purchased a cigar.

THE WEATHER.

With the first of April only two weeks away, winter is showing much discouraging tenacity. More snow came last night and today, though it did not get as cold as was expected. Last night's lowest temperature was 15 degs. and yesterdays highest was 24 degs. This morning a light snow was falling and it was mild and pleasant. The weather man says the snow is likely to keep up tonight, when it will turn colder with the thermometer down toward zero, and that tomorrow will be fair.

A year ago today it was dark, cloudy and damp.

The sun rose this morning at 6:15 and set tonight at 6:17, making 12 hours and 2 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of condition: "Snow fell during Tuesday or last night over most northern states due to a low pressure area of considerable intensity which moved from Wyoming to Oklahoma during the past twenty-four hours. The barometer has risen decidedly in the west and extreme Northwest, attended by colder weather in those sections. Zero temperatures continue in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Northern Alberta. Areas of high barometric pressure overlie Oregon, Washington, Manitoba, Florida and New England states. Snow flurries may be expected in this locality this afternoon and tonight with somewhat lower temperature tonight; Thursday the weather will doubtless be generally fair."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

MERRY JINGLES.

Yonkers Statesman: Bill—Do you find it hard to dodge that bill collector now?

Jill—Sure; harder than ever. He goes about in an automobile, you know.

Chicago Tribune: Bjornstjerne Bjornson had just been christened.

"We're a little curious to know," said his parents, "what the spelling reformers will do when they tackle that name."

Thus far, however, his distinguished name has escaped mutilation.

Puck: Office Boy—I bought our fair typist a bunch o' posies fer her desk today.

Messenger Boy—Wot did youse loosen up like dat fer?

Office Boy—Tryin' ter bait de old man ter fire de chesty bookkeeper.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: She—I am sorry you didn't ask father for me yesterday.

He—But you said he was in a dangerous temper.

She—Yes, but he said this morning that he wished he'd seen you yesterday.

Chicago Tribune: Mr. Billus—I wish I could find some way to make the hair grow on that bald spot of mine.

Mrs. Billus—Don't do it, John. That's the only feature you've got that ever semes to smile.

Washington Star: "I, sir," remarked the self-important statesman, "was never approached with a proposition of graft in my life."

"That fact," answered Senator Sorghum, "may be a recognition of your honesty. And then again it may be a reflection on your influence."

Baltimore American: "Has Billy another new spring suit?"

"Yes."

"What tailor did he go to?"

"He didn't go to any. He went to a lawyer."

Houston Post: "And what is that lever for?"

"That is to use when I run over a pedestrian."

"You press that and stop your machine?"

"No, indeed! I jam my foot on it and it turns my number up against the tonneau so that it cannot be read while I make my get-away."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: You can always forgive an ancestor how he got his money when it comes to you.

Being in love is being not quite insane enough to go into an asylum.

There's a heap of fun in just letting other people spend their money trying to buy it.

An honest man gets so puffed up about it he might be more agreeable is he stole something.

A man can save a lot of money by having so many bad habits he can't afford to get married.

Anarchism a Baffling Problem.

Philadelphia Record: It is quite as impossible to keep anarchists out of the country as it is to keep bacilli out of milk. The anarchist does not bring his anarchy hither in his handbag or wear it anywhere on the outside of his anatomy. He has it secretly betowed inside of him in his disordered mind. The professional mouthing anarchists who make the preaching of anarchism an occupation and a means of livelihood can be dealt with, but the wretches who strike first and talk afterward, if they talk at all, furnish one of the most baffling problems with which civilized society has to deal.

Deserves to Stick.

Baltimore American: It is pleasant to welcome a new light and frolicsome phrase, and recently a congressman performed a public service by saying: "Theodore Roosevelt has the backing and support of every man who believes that the best way to get pure water is not to paint the pump, but to clean out the well." If this is original, it deserves to stick.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••John Watrous of Cairo, Mich., who contemplates the removal of his tub and pail factory to Minnesota, stated today that both Minneapolis and St. Paul have offered him better inducements than Duluth, but he still inclines toward this city, and with a little more encouragement, would locate here. The factory will employ seventy-five men the year round.

•••Work on the Spalding hotel will be resumed shortly. F. W. McKinney has resigned as secretary of the company, and Neil McLachlan, Jr., has been elected in his stead.

•••Miron Bunnell was elected president at the first meeting of the new board of public works. Mr. Edwards will not act as clerk in future, other important matters requiring his attention. A secretary will be appointed.

•••The St. Paul Pioneer Press will in future have its Duluth office in the west wing of the Fargusson block. Half of Richardson, Day & Co.'s office has been rented by A. C. Weiss, the local business manager.

•••H. G. Selby is visiting his sister, Mrs. Dr. Brown. Mr. Selby is much improved in health and looks quite himself again.

•••Chief Hathaway of the fire department left last evening for St. Paul, and from there will go to Cleveland to the national convention of fire chiefs.

•••James Butchart of the Merchants hotel has the only French-Canadian cariole in the city. These pretty little sledges are universally used in Lower Canada and are much better suited to deep snow and rough roads than the high running cutter.

•••Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Thora Hanson and J. F. Bredeson, both of Duluth, on March 26, at the Swedish Lutheran church.

•••The West Superior steel works are to be located in section 21, but as yet the exact site is not known. The capital stock of the concern will be $2,500,000. The plant will not be fully completed under two years.

•••Secretary Frye has reported favorably to the senate upon a bill of much importance to Duluth, and which, if it becomes law, will make Duluth a port of appraisal as well as a port of entry. The bill also creates the "collection district of Duluth," with Duluth as headquarters.

•••The Ely Iron Home is the latest candidate for public favor.

•••There is a party growing up in this state whose members will never be satisfied until A. DeLacy Wood consents to become their candidate for governor.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Long Prairie Argus: We do not see why there should have been any opposition to Governor Johnson in this state. He has certainly merited and earned the support of his party in the state, as he has twice won a great victory in one of the strongest Republican states in the Union and given the people a good administration. His party should therefore be willing to do him the honor of giving him the delegation in his own state. Since Bryan has thus entered Governor Johnson's state to stir up opposition, Mr. Johnson is warranted in going into other states to oppose Mr. Bryan.

Sauk Center Herald: To an unprejudiced observer it looks as though the Bryan forces made a mistake in not permitting Minnesota to endorse its "favorite son" as Taft did in the case of New York and Indiana.

Luverne Herald: There should have been no opposition from any Minnesota Democrat to the endorsement of Governor Johnson as an available and worthy candidate of his party for the presidency. The Democrats of Minnesota certainly owe Governor Johnson such meager tribute for service rendered, and the failure to give it gladly and unanimously cannot but work injury both to Bryan and to the state party. The members of any other party in any other state in the Union would gladly have accorded to a favorite son what Governor Johnson's friends asked for him. As matters stand the Bryan element of the party has forced a fight which the governor's friends must take up and carry to the finish.

Grand Rapids Independent: Good for Bill Bryan. He is either getting broad-er minded or he is not so backward in exhibiting his bigness. His action in calling off the opposition to Johnson in Minnesota will do more to keep the Democratic party in this state united than any act he could do. While Bryan's principles and politics may not be in accord with this writer's views, we admire him for his display of real greatness.

Crookston Times: Governor Johnson was entitled to the unanimous endorsement of the committee. Every instinct of gratitude should impel the Democrats of Minnesota to accord him whatever favors his desires would indicate. He has been the only man the party has produced in Minnesota who has been thought worthy of national honors, if we except possibly ex-Governor John Lind and Charles Towne, and the small potato politicians who opposed the resolutions of indorsement have undoubtedly opened up a ruction which will take away any hopes that might have existed for future Democratic success in the state.

Marshall News-Messenger: With the popularity of their governor, whose personality is about all there is to Democracy in Minnesota, one would suppose the party would be a unit in endorsing a candidacy that would make the state Democracy something more than a local name, even though its patriotism did not soar high enough to suggest a feeling of statehood pride. But it was evident that the leaders in the movement of revolt thought more of being on record for Bryan "first, last and all the while," with chances for the loaves and fishes if the peerless one wins, than any glorification of the state or party.

Warren Register: There are ardent Bryanites who hold that the Minnesota delegation to the Denver convention ought to cast a complimentary vote for Johnson, whether he is a candidate or not, as he has well earned at least that much recognition from the Democracy of this state; on the other hand, some who prefer Johnson to Bryan aver that Bryan has a cinch on the nomination anyway, and that therefore the Minnesota delegation might as well take their medicine with the best grace possible and cast a solid vote for the peerless one. For our part, we look for an instructed delegation for Johnson, for if he be wholly passed up by his home state this year his name is not likely to be heard in future campaigns at all.

"THE MAN OF THE HOUR"

Again Plays to a Crowded House at the Lyceum.

When William A. Brady wanted to book "The Man of the Hour" for one solid week in Duluth, even Manager Marshall of the Lyceum doubted his good judgment, and it was feared the city would not support a dramatic offering for that length of time. The wisdom of it was shown last evening, however. On the original engagement here a few weeks ago, the company played four nights to crowded houses, and last evening, on its return from the West, the Lyceum was again packed. Practically every seat in the house was taken.

"The Man of the Hour" is a big, wholesome, natural drama of American life, which every man and woman can appreciate and enjoy. The plot is clean and stirring, and there is plenty of action to it. There were many in the audience last evening who saw the play on its last engagement here and they seemed to enjoy it the second time more than they did the first.

There is only one change in the company. Jane Aubrey now has the role of Cynthia Garrison. Without any disparagement of her predecessor, the change certainly has not weakened the company. Miss Aubrey is a charming young woman with more than the average endowment of good looks, and she fills the role in a most capable manner.

The play will be repeated this afternoon and tonight, and it can safely be recommended as a standard dramatic attraction which offers something more than a means of killing time.

Viola Allen Coming.

Viola Allen will come to the Lyceum, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 31 and April 1, in a play of exceptional strength and unusual interest, that has created a vast amount of discussion both in London and New York. "Irene Wycherley" touches trenchantly upon a phase of life that has provided the stage with much of its material, but Anthony P. Wharton, the author is claimed to have given his story the quality of originality and to have presented it in crisp dialogue and vivid action seldom mastered by the playwright. Liebler & Co., who again direct Miss Allen's tour have provided a company which includes such names as Edwin Arden, Paul McAllister, Grant Stewart, John Glendenning, Nellie Thorne, Marie Wainwright and Mrs. Sam Sothern.

There will be a matinee Wednesday.

Green Room Gossip.

"Over the Sea," sung by Charles Dorrance in the opening chorus of the "Red Feather," is said to be the gem of the opera. Mr. Dorrance plays the part of the boatman and has met with great success. "Red Feather" will be at the Lyceum, matinee and night Saturday.

The Wiora Sisters, who are dancing their way to popularity at the Metropolitan this week, come from Budapest, and it was from Austria-Hungary that "The Merry Widow," the light opera which has taken the Eastern cities of the United States by storm and which has become world-wide for its "waltz," came. The Wiora girls are familiar with all the dances of Europe. They know the dances of the salons and the gypsy camps. At every performance they show how the "Merry Widow Waltz" is done.

Will of James Oliver of South Bend Filed for Probate.

South Bend, Ind., March 18.—The will of the late James Oliver, the richest man in Indiana, was filed for probate yesterday in the St. Joseph circuit court. The fortune is reported to be from $50,000,000 to $63,000,000. The bulk of the estate is left to Joseph D. Oliver, son of the deceased, to be administered by means of a trust fund. The beneficiaries named in the will are as follows: Mrs. Joseph D. Oliver, $25,000; George Ford, son-in-law, $25,000; J. D. Oliver, son, income of $25,000 a year; Mrs. George Ford, daughter, income of $25,000 a year; nephews and nieces of six brothers and sisters, whose names are not mentioned, $1,000 each.

In addition to the bequest, the trustee is directed to pay Joseph Oliver, son, and Mrs. George Ford, daughter, upon request a sum not to exceed $100,000, providing, however, that no payment shall be made which shall diminish the amount of the trust estate to such an extent as to impair its ability to earn a sufficient net income to pay the sum of $50,000 a year to the son and daughter.

The estate will eventually be distributed among the grandchildren when the youngest, Gertrude, shall have reached the age of 30 years.

TRAGEDIES REVEALED

List of Cases Aided by Bethel is Heart-Rending.

Suffering Caused by Many Men Out of Employment.

A family of seven. Five children, father very sick, mother takes in washing and does any kind of work she can find.

A woman with six children deserted by her husband. She works at anything she can do.

A family of six. Mother sick and father in hospital in another city.

A family of seven. Mother not able to work and father out of work for five weeks.

A family of six. Mother goes out washing. Father sick and not expected to live.

A family of twelve, children are small. Father sick.

A family burned out last fall, husband out of work.

Stranger in the city with four small children, husband out of work.

A woman with five children forsaken by her husband.

Widow with seven children, only one of whom is able to help her.

Old woman who is sick and not able to care for herself.

Old woman, sick in bed for years and helpless.

Widow with three small children.

Widow with eight children, one a baby six months old.

In a vague fashion Duluth people realize that there are many men out of work in Duluth, and that suffering is resulting therefrom, but a list of the families aided by the Bethel authorities during the last few weeks gives an insight into the suffering caused by the lack of employment.

"They are neither dissipated nor careless, but simply poor and needy," say the Bethel authorities, and the list with the simple statement of their needs, is most appealing.

The list could probably be added to. Those mentioned in the list are only those who have appealed to the Bethel for aid. There are many others who have been too proud to ask for help. Others have been assisted by friends and neighbors. Others have come to the Salvation Army and the humane society, while others have suffered in silence not knowing that there were places where they could go for help.

Every case on the list is a little tragedy in itself.

ing the siege and at the time of its surrender to the Japanese. After his return to Russia he prepared a secret report of the defence of Port Arthur, which was the basis of the indictments on which Lieut. Gen. Stoessel, Lieut. Gen. Fock and Major Gen. Reiss were tried for their lives before the supreme court-martial. Gen. Stoessel was accused of cowardice and incapacity, and Gen. Fock, according to the indictment, displayed thorough incapacity and want of judgment.

The outcome of the trial was the sentencing to death of Gen. Stoessel, which finding was later commuted to ten years imprisonment, while Gen. Fock was ordered to be reprimanded for a disciplinary offence.

Gen. Smirnoff also was on trial before the court-martial charged with having failed to remove Gen. Fock from his command, although he suspected an agreement between Generals Stoessel and Fock to surrender the fortress. He was acquitted of this charge.

INFANT STRIPPED

Of Its Clothing in Court Room by Indignant Woman.

New York, March 18.—In the Queens county court, Long Island City, yesterday, Judge Humphrey gave Mrs. Ruth Ettrick possession of her 15-months-old baby girl.

Mrs. Marie Ucherman, who had cared for the baby since its birth, fought the case, and when the decision was given against her, she laid the child across her knee.

"What are you doing?" cried the startled mother.

"I am taking my clothes off your child," said Mrs. Ucherman, with her lips fast on a bunch of pins which she had been deftly extracting. "The court has awarded you your baby, but the clothes belong to me. I made them with my own hands. Not one stitch shall you have."

Deftly Mrs. Ucherman wriggled the crowing youngster out of its slip. Off came its petticoat with another twist, Mrs. Ucherman flipped the baby over, unhooked a pin here, slipped a fold there, and, staring hard at the court, loosed three ends—"Madam," ejaculated the court, "will you kindly step into the seclusion of my chambers before you exercise the last stitch of your rights?"

Mrs. Ucherman walked proudly across the courtroom, with the baby under her right arm, its two fat legs pounding the air behind, while Mrs. Ettrick's friends rushed out to find garments for the baby.

DELAY YOUNG CASE.

No Decision Before April 6, as Court Will Take Recess.

Washington, March 18.—The supreme court may delay handing down a decision in the case of Attorney General Young until April 6. On Monday, after the opinions had been announced, Chief Justice Fuller stated that from Monday next there would be a recess of court for two weeks to April 6 to consider cases already heard. While there are likely to be some opinions announced next Monday, it is believed here that the Young case will not be among them.

THE LABOR SITUATION

More Than 200 Men Still Appear Daily in Bread Line.

Two hundred and five men were in the bread line at the Bethel this morning. The number every day now passes the 200-mark. The faces, however, are constantly changing, new ones taking the places of old, as the men secure employment and get in a position where they do not have to depend upon charity for their food. The bread line will be continued indefinitely.

Conditions are much the same with the labor bureaus now as they were a week or two ago, but no very great variety of jobs is offered.

It will not be long now before railroad work will open a field for hundreds of men in this district, but when this time arrives the logging camps will have broken up for the season and there will be even a larger number of men in town than at present. Lumberjacks are floating into Duluth every day now. Most of the camps are still in operation, and will not close until weather conditions make it imperative.

The lockout situation remains unchanged. Between 1,500 and 2,000 men are still idle on account of the open shop fight. There are no indications of an immediate settlement. Building operations will be quite active in Duluth this spring, and it is expected that many of the unemployed men will then be given work. Contractors say they are having no trouble getting non-union men, who are also expert mechanics. The Duluth Builders' exchange will will hold its annual dinner and meeting at the St. Louis hotel, this evening, and the open shop fight probably will come up for discussion.

STUDIED BIG TIM SULLIVAN

If you have ever seen Louis Hendricks act the part of Horigan in the "Man of the Hour," you have looked upon as perfect a prototype of "Big Tim" Sullivan, the idol of the Bowery and the lower East side of New York, as the actor's art can produce.

Mr. Hendricks says that he took Tim Sullivan for his inspiration. Daily he hiked to Tammany hall and bearded the lion in his den. He studied Big Tim from every angle. He studied his merry moods, for Big Tim is often genial—but most of all he tried to see the boss when he was afire with rage; when he truly exhibited the dominant force that gave him the right to be called the boss.

The boss in the "Man of the Hour" typifies brute force in politics. Mr. Hendricks says that brute force and dominant strength, rather than diplomacy and cunning have made Tim Sullivan one of the biggest forces in the corrupt political life of New York. He fights hard, he crushes his enemies with his own fists, or with the rude forces at his command. The man who opposes him is lucky if he does not feel the personal wrath of the vicious influences that are aligned in support of the boss.

All those Tammany hall bosses are brought up in a hard school, says Mr. Hendricks. They are men with little education, but with great natural shrewdness. They will fight at the drop of the hat, most of them, and are intensely loyal to their friends. In playing the game of politics they are willing to accept the under side of the game, as well as the political spoils and graft.

Mr. Hendricks says his characterization of the boss is as true to life as he can make it. He says that brute force and physical violence are employed in New York politics. Brains, of course, are the dominating force, but the man from whom the inspiration of Horigan was taken is the type of a man who never hesitates to employ personal violence, to use his burly physique to gain his end. That's Horigan, too.

A Reliable Remedy for the Whiskey and Beer Habit

Very few men become drunkards because they like liquor. It is frequently the moderate drinker, who before he realizes his condition, has become a drunkard. The nervous system, having become accustomed to stimulants, is unable to do the same amount or quality of work without liquor, hence the victim drinks more and more. This is a state of disease and should be treated by Orrine. It destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink is not missed. There is no loss of time or detention from work when it is used.

Orrine is prepared in two forms: No. 1, the secret remedy which can be used in food or drink without the knowledge of the patient. No. 2 for those who take the remedy of their own free will. Both forms are guaranteed. A registered guarantee in every box.

Treatise on how to cure drunkenness free on request. The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C. The price of either form is $1 a box, making the cost of the complete cure less than one-tenth what it is usually charged at sanitariums, with a guarantee that the expense will be nothing unless a cure is gained. KANE JURY DISCHARGED

Failed to Reach Verdict After Deliberating All Night.

Is Being Tried Again on a Different Indictment.

The jury in the case of the State against Michael T. Kane, indicted for voting under an assumed name in the first precinct of the Seventh ward, at the primary election, Dec. 17 last, after deliberating all night, failed to reach an agreement, and was discharged at 9:30 o'clock this morning. It is understood that seven jurors favored conviction, and five stood for acquital.

The state will proceed to try Kane on a second indictment, charging him with repeating his vote, and a jury is now being drawn for that purpose. It is charged that the defendant voted at the election in question at both the first precinct of the Sixth ward and the first precinct of the Seventh ward.

Kane's testimony in his own behalf was given yesterday morning. He was given a severe cross-examination yesterday afternoon, but the state did not shake his testimony to any material extent. Kane claimed that the state's witnesses, Hertson, Anderson, Sorenson and Rudberg were mistaken in their identification of him as one of the men they saw voting at the first precinct of the Seventh ward on the afternoon of Dec. 17.

Support was given Kane's claim of an alibi by Sergeant Harry Hutchings, who is in charge of the recruiting station here of the United States Marine corps. Sergeant Hutchings testified that he stopped at the St. James hotel about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon of Dec. 17, and that Kane accompanied him to the recruiting station. Hutchings claimed that to the best of his knowledge Kane was not out of his sight from 1:30 o'clock until 3:15, at which time Kane and the other recruits left on the Omaha train for San Francisco.

Two other witnesses for the defense, Otterson and Whitney, testified that they were members of a party of men that left the Esmond hotel, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Dec. 17, took a street car at Twentieth avenue west and rode to Twenty-third avenue west, where they got off and walked to the voting place in the first precinct of the Seventh ward. Both witnesses claimed that Kane was not in the crowd. Both testified that so far as they knew Ben Vail was not in the crowd; that they were not acquainted with him then. Otterson admitted that he paid the fares for the crowd, and that Whitney was the only member of the party that he knew. The state sought to show that Otterson was taking the party up to the polling place in the first precinct of the Seventh ward to vote them.

P. D. Boyle, a bartender in Mulligan's saloon in the building adjoining the St. James hotel, claimed that he was walking west on Superior street the afternoon of Dec. 17, and that between 1 and 2 o'clock he met Kane near the St. James hotel and talked with him about fifteen minutes.

A COUPLE STRANDED.

With Dog, Started to Walk From Indiana to Dakota.

Chicago, March 18.—The story of how he and his wife and a small fox terrier started to walk from Terre Haute, Ind., to North Dakota to take up a claim was told today by Frank Ford, 26 years old, and his wife, Sophia, 23 years old, who were found by a policeman. They were given money for breakfast and carfare to the bureau of charities.

When Ford and his wife were found their shoes were worn out and their feet were bleeding. Ford said he had a brother in North Dakota, but that he did not know the exact place.

HOSPITALS INSPECTED

Two West Duluth Institutions Did Not Comply With Law.

Stand Pipes and Hose on Every Floor Are Demanded.

Dr. D. Graham, proprietor of the Duluth hospital, and Mrs. Haldora Olson, who conducts a private hospital for women, were yesterday served with notices that they must comply with the state law relative to fire protection in hospitals and asylums. Inquiry develops the fact that other private hospitals in the city have been served with similar notice, and indicates that the city officials intend to carry their reforms in the matter of fire protection appliances to those places.

The state law requires that all hospitals shall be provided with standpipes, whether outside or inside of the buildings, with sufficient hose to reach all rooms on the upper floors of the hospitals. The hose must be attached to the stand-pipes and ready for use at all times.

The fire department officials claim that too little care is used by the proprietors of hospitals for women, or other private hospitals, for the protection of their patients in case of fire. The local authorities may order anything in the way of fire escapes, ladders, etc., but the state law requires the stand-pipes and hose, and it will be enforced in all such places.

YOUNG MEN ARRESTED

Caught by Police With Sleigh Load of Brass Fittings.

Are Clained to Have Stolen Them From Ironton Plant.

For three months the police of West Duluth have been trying to get evidence against Pat Luska and Walter Kilby, who were suspected of having stolen some valves, lubricators and parts of a dynamo from the abandoned iron works at Ironton. This morning they caught them with part of the goods which they had hauled down the river on a sled and had hidden in a roothouse back of Luska's home.

Some of the brass fitthgs have been identified by William Dunn, watchman at the iron works, but there are several iron chains whose owners are not known.

Pat Luska, who has been before the juvenile court on former occasions and has been out on parole lately, is now 18 years old, so he and Kilby, who is 23 years old, will be tried in the municipal court on a petty larceny charge.

Many plants on the bay and river, and even the Boat club's branch, are said to have suffered from thieves during the winter, and Luska and Kilby are suspected of having had a hand in some of the thefts.

SUPERIOR NEWS

IRISHMEN DINE.

Annual Banquet of Irish American Club is Great Success.

The eleventh annual banquet of the Irish-American club of Superior was held last night at the Hotel Superior. It was the most successful affair of the kind ever held by the club and more than 500 guests were present.

A large delegation of Duluth Irishmen went over in a special train and returned in the same at the close of the banquet.

An excellent program of Irish music, songs and recitations was arranged for the occasion. The principal address of the evening was delivered by C. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, who dwelt on the struggles and sacrifices made by the Irish people to retain the faith of St. Patrick. He gave a brief review of Irish history, from the time of the landing of the saint on the island and the great missionary work which has been performed by the Irish people in the spreading of that faith all over the world. Mr. O'Brien is a very able and forceful speaker, and his address last evening was greatly enjoyed.

Frank McNally of Superior recited "The Fighting Race" in a splendid manner, and had to respond to an encore. T. W. McManus of Duluth was called on and recited a stirring piece, entitled "Pontenoy." Frank Kane of the East end and James Dickson gave Irish songs and had to respond with encores. During the banquet an orchestra played Irish airs.

W. D. Dwyer, the past president of the club, acted as toastmaster of the evening.

James Bardon gave a short talk on his recent trip to Ireland, which was very interesting.

Altogether the event was one which will long be remembered by all present.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. M. McCabe; vice president, W. P. Walsh; secretary, T. A. King; treasurer, P. J. Mungavin.

HOT MAYORALTY FIGHT.

Superior's Municipal Primaries Promise Interesting Developments.

With the approach of the primaries, politics in Superior is beginning to warm up, and there is a heated contest between the two Republican candidates for the mayor's chair. Mayor Victor Linley has announced that the principal plank in his platform is the enforcement of the law, and if he re-elected the lid shall be put on Superior as it never has been before.

Alderman Frank Crumpton, candidate of the opposition, claims that the leading issue is not that of the lid, and the saloon element is said to be giving him its entire support.

This year's primaries promise the fiercest fight Superior has ever had in a municipal campaign.

Board Elects New Secretary.

At a meeting of the Superior board of trade, last evening, J. Emerson Greenfield was elected secretary-treasurer in the place of A. N. Lent, resigned. Mr. Lent occupied the position for many years. Mr. Greenfield is in the land business, but has had experience in the handling of grain.

Miss Alluna Christie Dies.

Miss Alluna Christie, aged 40 years, died at her home, 1123 Villard avenue, yesterday morning. The funeral will be held from the residence Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The decedent was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Lute Christie, who were among the pioneer settlers in Old Superior. She had been ill for a long time. For fourteen years the decedent was associated with her father in the publication of the Superior Times, a weekly paper, and she conducted the paper for four years following her father's death. She was active in church circles and had a wide circle of friends. The decedent is survived by four sisters and one brother.

Happenings in the Council.

The council, last evening, directed the board of public works to make preliminary arrangements for the paving of Grand avenue between Belknap street and the normal school. The street will be paved to a width of twenty-four feet with brick. The city printing contract caused a little stir among the aldermen, and Mayor Linley declared that the contract must go to the lowest bidder. The matter was finally referred back to the printing committee to investigate the bids and report at the next meeting. The council received a petition for the opening of Sixteenth street from Baxter avenue to an intersection with Lamborn avenue, northward.

BETTING ON THE RACES

Coming Meeting of National Jockey Club May Witness Arrests.

Public Utilities Commission in District of Columbia is Proposed.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The spring meeting of the Washington Jockey club opens at Bennings race track on Monday, March 23. This marks the opening of the season of running meetings in the United States for the year of 1908. The outcome of the races here is being anxiously awaited in every stable and on every breeding farm, not only in the United States, but throughout the world. The reason for this unusual interest in the Washington meeting is found in the fact that the city authorities are determined to break up betting. For three years past, bookmakers have not been permitted to maintain their stools upon the pool lawn, but have been required to move about among the patrons of the sport, and to book their wagers while on the move. Last fall the chief of police of Washington, acting under instructions from the municipal authorities, arrested one of these perambulating bookmakers, under the charge of setting up a gaming table. The case was fought by the city authorities on the one hand, and the Bookmakers' association on the other, through the various courts until it reached the court of appeals, which tribunal, a few days ago, handed down a decision, in which the ground was taken that, inasmuch as the offender was not charged with making a regular book, with all the tending paraphernalia, but that on the contrary, it was shown that he simply accepted wagers from such bettors that accosted him in his walks about the grounds, he did not therefore violate the law, and should not be punished.

In spite of this decision, the chief of police announces that he will instruct his men to arrest every bookmaker who may be seen accepting wagers from patrons of the track. It is expected, however, that the turf men will endeavor to obtain an injunction, restraining the police from interfering with them. If some such course is not adopted, the spring meeting of the National Jockey club will probably mark the end of the racing business in the national capital.

In the meantime strenuous efforts are being made in New York to secure the adoption of legislation to prohibit betting in any form upon the tracks and race courses in the Empire state. It is claimed that this activity on the part of the anti-race people in New York, combined with the efforts to break up the sport in the District of Columbia, threatens a serious blow to the industry of thoroughbred horse breeding, for unless wagers upon races are permitted, races will not be run, and without the excitement of watching the highest type of thoroughbred members of the equine family contending against each other, there will be no demand for the horses themselves, for the simple reason that the thoroughbred, bred for speed and stamina, is of practically no value for carriage purposes, nor at all for commercial uses, and the demand for saddle horses has grown less year by year in the same ratio that the automobile has increased in popular favor.

Efforts are being made in congress to establish, in the District of Columbia, a public utilities commission, with powers and duties similar to the two commissions which control the affairs of the public service corporations in the state of New York. Reports from all sections of the Empire state indicate that the utilities commissions are doing a power of good for the patrons of the corporations which control public franchises, whereas, in the District of Columbia, under the eye of the national government, there is absolutely no control, except when congress sees fit to enact direct legislation. The street car service on some of the lines of this city is equal to the best of any community in the world. On the other hand the management of some of the other lines seem to pay no regard whatever to the needs of their patrons, and as those patrons are absolutely mute, being deprived of franchise, in matters of municipal legislation, their complaints receive scant consideration. The proposed commission will, if the present plans are perfected, have complete control of all matters pertaining to the conduct of the street railway systems, the gas and electric lighting plants and the score of other public utilities essential to city life. It is the intention of the framers of the measure to relieve the district commissioners of all jurisdiction over such franchises, and to make the board of public utilities supreme, from whose decision no appeal shall lie. Unlike most proposed legislation affecting the interests of the people of Washington, this measure seems to meet with very cordial approval, not only from the people, but from the authorities also, nor does there seem to be a very strong disposition towards opposition on the part of the corporations directly affected.

The police court of the District of Columbia handed down a decision in the so-called Harper case last week which has an important bearing in every city, town and hamlet in the country. Mr. Harper is a druggist of the highest standing, who is also the president of one of the national banks of this city. For many years he has been engaged in the manufacture of a so-called headache cure which was exceedingly popular. But soon after Mr. Wiley's forces had been organized for the purpose of enforcing the pure food and drug act, samples of the remedy were examined and the analysis showed them to contain poisonous drugs in dangerous quantities. A warrant was sworn out, a jury empanneled and after three weeks a verdict was rendered which found the druggist guilty and which upholds the validity of that measure. Of course the case will be appealed, and inasmuch as it was a test it may even go to the United States supreme court for final review. Should this prove to be the case, some years must elapse before the opinion of the highest tribunal will be handed down. In the meantime other cases of like import against the compounders of distilled spirits who refuse to brand their products in accordance with decision of the attorney general are pending and must be tried, before the authorities of the department of justice and the agricultural department can proceed to enforce the law in entirity.

Manufacturers of medicines and rectifiers of liquors seem to rest secure in the belief that they complied with all the terms of the law when they changed their labels. But while the department has avoided banners and brass bands in its preliminary steps towards the enforcement of this most important legislation, a force of inspectors is constantly in the field. Samples by the ton are put away on the shelves of the bureau of chemistry, and evidence against violators of the law has been accumulated by the ream and will be available to the prosecuting officers as soon as a judicial opinion has been rendered which will enable the work of enforcement to proceed without hitch. When that time comes, it is more than likely that prosecution will begin in every federal court in the land and it will astonish the people to find how much of their favorite liquor, branded as pure rye, old gin, or fine rum, is nothing more than the concoction of highwines, flavoring extracts and coloring matter.

An amusing story comes from New York in connection with a recent publication of two volumes by two very prominent men. Something of a sensation was caused some time ago by the issuance from the press of D. Appleton & Co., of a volume by Chancellor Day of the Syracuse University, entitled "A Raid upon Prosperity." That volume upholds some of the biggest corporations in their methods of business and covertly and none the less forcibly attacks the administration in dealing with corporations and individuals. More recently the Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, issued through the same publishing house a volume entitled "Current Issues." He had a number of copies of the volume sent to his office which as usual were wrapped in a folder on the front of which was printed the title of the book and the name of the author. Mr. Shaw wrote his name on the fly leaf of a number of these which he sent out as presentation copies to the president, the different members of the cabinet and some other friends. Then he sent for a fresh supply and as he proceeded to indict a few presentation remarks upon the fly leaves of the second batch his attention was attracted to the back of the folder, upon which he found in large type a glowing advertisement of Chancellor Day's book. He hastily summoned the publishers on the telephone and demanded that every copy that had been sent to the bookseller should be recalled, and that new folders should be supplied which would be free from the objectionable advertisement. But the damage had been done. The president and all the members of the cabinet have their copies of Mr. Shaw's interesting volume carrying with it a well displayed advertisement of the "Raid on Prosperity" by the brilliant chancellor of the University of Syracuse.

W. S. Taylor is Taking Testimony in Standard Oil Company Case.

Walter S. Taylor, district court reporter for Judge W. A. Cant, has been called to Cleveland, O., to take testimony in the largest and most important legal battle that the government has ever instituted in the courts of this country. The case is that brought by the United States for the dissolution of the Standard Oil company and the prosecution is in the hands of Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, special attorney appointed by the government for the purpose. The importance of the case and the work of taking stenographic notes and transcribing the large amount of testimony that will be offered, are said to require the service of expert men and in legal circles it is regarded as no small recognition of ability that Mr. Taylor has been selected. During Mr. Taylor's absence on his special work Robert Martin, a court reporter from Chicago, is taking testimony in Judge Cant's room.

CHARGES ARE CONTRADICTED

Employe of Submarine Company Says He Never Approached Hobson.

Washington, March 18.—The statement of Representative Richmond P. Hobson of Alabama before the special committee of the house investigating the charges of Mr. Lilley, that he had been approached by a representative of the Electric Boat company, who offered to use his influence with the speaker to have Mr. Hobson placed on the naval affairs committee if he stood "right" for submarine, was contradicted before that committee yesterday by Lawrence Spear, the former naval officer who Mr. Hobson said had spoken to him. Mr. Spear said he had not made any promises to secure the influence of Speaker Cannon or any one else and that he never tried to influence them; in fact, he said, he did not know the speaker.

Mr. Spear claimed that his company had never received an order from the department except as the result of successful competition.

The other two witnesses of the day were A. A. Erly and Frank B. Lord, two of the newspaper men who Mr. Lilley charged he had been warned against as in the pay of the Electric Boat company. They both denied that they were ever in the pay of the company, although they said they had done some special work for Mr. McNeir, one of the attorneys for the company, in the way of getting out some feature stories on submarines, for which they had been paid. Both witnesses testified that they had lost their positions as the result of Mr Lilley's charges. Mr. Lord characterized the statement of Mr. Lilley of an interview with him as "unqualifiedly, absolutely and deliberately untrue." The committee adjourned until Thursday.

BETTING ON THE RACES

Coming Meeting of National Jockey Club May Witness Arrests.

Public Utilities Commission in District of Columbia is Proposed.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The spring meeting of the Washington Jockey club opens at Bennings race track on Monday, March 23. This marks the opening of the season of running meetings in the United States for the year of 1908. The outcome of the races here is being anxiously awaited in every stable and on every breeding farm, not only in the United States, but throughout the world. The reason for this unusual interest in the Washington meeting is found in the fact that the city authorities are determined to break up betting. For three years past, bookmakers have not been permitted to maintain their stools upon the pool lawn, but have been required to move about among the patrons of the sport, and to book their wagers while on the move. Last fall the chief of police of Washington, acting under instructions from the municipal authorities, arrested one of these perambulating bookmakers, under the charge of setting up a gaming table. The case was fought by the city authorities on the one hand, and the Bookmakers' association on the other, through the various courts until it reached the court of appeals, which tribunal, a few days ago, handed down a decision, in which the ground was taken that, inasmuch as the offender was not charged with making a regular book, with all the tending paraphernalia, but that on the contrary, it was shown that he simply accepted wagers from such bettors that accosted him in his walks about the grounds, he did not therefore violate the law, and should not be punished.

In spite of this decision, the chief of police announces that he will instruct his men to arrest every bookmaker who may be seen accepting wagers from patrons of the track. It is expected, however, that the turf men will endeavor to obtain an injunction, restraining the police from interfering with them. If some such course is not adopted, the spring meeting of the National Jockey club will probably mark the end of the racing business in the national capital.

In the meantime strenuous efforts are being made in New York to secure the adoption of legislation to prohibit betting in any form upon the tracks and race courses in the Empire state. It is claimed that this activity on the part of the anti-race people in New York, combined with the efforts to break up the sport in the District of Columbia threatens a serious blow to the industry of thoroughbred horse breeding, for unless wagers upon races are permitted, races will not be run, and without the excitement of watching the highest type of thoroughbred members of the equine family contending against each other, there will be no demand for the horses themselves, for the simple reason that the thoroughbred, bred for speed and stamina, is of practically no value for carriage purposes, nor at all for commercial uses, and the demand for saddle horses has grown less year by year in the same ratio that the automobile has increased in popular favor.

Efforts are being made in congress to establish, in the District of Columbia, a public utilities commission, with powers and duties similar to the two commissions which control the affairs of the public service corporations in the state of New York. Reports from all sections of the Empire state indicate that the utilities commissions are doing a power of good for the patrons of the corporations which control public franchises, whereas, in the District of Columbia, under the eye of the national government, there is absolutely no control, except when congress sees fit to enact direct legislation. The street car service on some of the lines of this city is equal to the best of any community in the world. On the other hand the management of some of the other lines seem to pay no regard whatever to the needs of their patrons, and as those patrons are absolutely mute, being deprived of franchise, in matters of municipal legislation, their complaints receive scant consideration. The proposed commission will, if the present plans are perfected, have complete control of all matters pertaining to the conduct of the street railway systems, the gas and electric lighting plants and the score of other public utilities essential to city life. It is the intention of the framers of the measure to relieve the district commissioners of all jurisdiction over such franchises, and to make the board of public utilities supreme, from whose decision no appeal shall lie. Unlike most proposed legislation affecting the interests of the people of Washington, this measure seems to meet with very cordial approval, not only from the people, but from the authorities also, nor does there seem to be a very strong disposition towards opposition on the part of the corporations directly affected.

The police court of the District of Columbia handed down a decision in the so-called Harper case last week which has an important bearing in every city, town and hamlet in the country. Mr. Harper is a druggist of the highest standing, who is also the president of one of the national banks of this city. For many years he has been engaged in the manufacture of a so-called headache cure which was exceedingly popular. But soon after Mr. Wiley's forces had been organized for the purpose of enforcing the pure food and drug act, samples of the remedy were examined and the analysis showed them to contain poisonous drugs in dangerous quantities. A warrant was sworn out, a jury empanneled and after three weeks a verdict was rendered which found the druggist guilty and which upholds the validity of that measure. Of course the case will be appealed, and inasmuch as it was a test it may even go to the United States supreme court for final review. Should this prove to be the case, some years must elapse before the opinion of the highest tribunal will be handed down. In the meantime other cases of like import against the compounders of distilled spirits who refuse to brand their products in accordance with decision of the attorney general are pending and must be tried, before the authorities of the department of justice and the agricultural department can proceed to enforce the law in entirity.

Manufacturers of medicines and rectifiers of liquors seem to rest secure in the belief that they complied with all the terms of the law when they changed their labels. But while the department has avoided banners and brass bands in its preliminary steps towards the enforcement of this most important legislation, a force of inspectors is constantly in the field. Samples by the ton are put away on the shelves of the bureau of chemistry, and evidence against violators of the law has been accumulated by the ream and will be available to the prosecuting officers as soon as a judicial opinion has been rendered which will enable the work of enforcement to proceed without hitch. When that time comes, it is more than likely that prosecution will begin in every federal court in the land and it will astonish the people to find how much of their favorite liquor, branded as pure rye, old gin, or fine rum, is nothing more than the concoction of highwines, flavoring extracts and coloring matter.

An amusing story comes from New York in connection with a recent publication of two volumes by two very prominent men. Something of a sensation was caused some time ago by the issuance from the press of D. Appleton & Co., of a volume by Chancellor Day of the Syracuse University, entitled "A Raid upon Prosperity." That volume upholds some of the biggest corporations in their methods of business and covertly and none the less forcibly attacks the administration in dealing with corporations and individuals. More recently the Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, issued through the same publishing house a volume entitled "Current Issues." He had a number of copies of the volume sent to his office which as usual were wrapped in a folder on the front of which was printed the title of the book and the name of the author. Mr. Shaw wrote his name on the fly leaf of a number of these which he sent out as presentation copies to the president, the different members of the cabinet and some other friends. Then he sent for a fresh supply and as he proceeded to inflict a few presentation remarks upon the fly leaves of the second batch his attention was attracted to the back of the folder, upon which he found in large type a glowing advertisement of Chancellor Day's book. He hastily summoned the publishers on the telephone and demanded that every copy that had been sent to the bookseller should be recalled, and that new folders should be supplied which would be free from the objectionable advertisement. But the damage had been done. The president and all the members of the cabinet have their copies of Mr. Shaw's interesting volume carrying with it a well displayed advertisement of the "Raid on Prosperity" by the brilliant chancellor of the University of Syracuse.

The case is that brought by the United States for the dissolution of the Standard Oil company and the prosecution is in the hands of Frank B. Employe of Submarine Company Says He Never Approached Hobson.

Washington, March 18.—The statement of Representative Richmond P. Hobson of Alabama before the special committee of the house investigating the charges of Mr. Lilley, that he had been approached by a representative of the Electric Boat company, who offered to use his influence with the speaker to have Mr. Hobson placed on the naval affairs committee if he stood "right" for submarine, was contradicted before that committee yesterday by Lawrence Spear, the former naval officer who Mr. Hobson said had spoken to him. Mr. Spear said he had not made any promises to secure the influence of Speaker Cannon or any one else and that he never tried to influence them; in fact, he said, he did not know the speaker.

Mr. Spear claimed that his company had never received an order from the department except as the result of successful competition.

The other two witnesses of the day were A. A. Erly and Frank B. Lord, two of the newspaper men who Mr. Lilley charged he had been warned against as in the pay of the Electric Boat company. Both witnesses testified that they had lost their positions as the result of Mr Lilley's charges. Mr. Lord characterized the statement of Mr. Lilley of an interview with him as "unqualifiedly, absolutely and deliberately untrue." The committee adjourned until Thursday.

WILLIE FOULS HART.

Louisville Man Gets Decision in Fourth Round.

Hot Springs, March 18.—Before a large St. Patrick's day crowd, Marvin Hart of Louisville was awarded the decision in the fourth round over John Wille of Chicago on a foul. The men had agreed to break clean. Immediately following a clinch and as Hart was stepping back unprotected, Wille swung a hard right to the ear, sending Hart sprawling. Hart was unable to respond and his ear may be seriously injured. "Doc" Hollum of Memphis, acted as referee.

FATALITIES IN THE RING

Philadelphia Boy Dies and Another Fighter Cannot Live.

Philadelphia, March 18.—In an amateur boxing tournament following the regular performance at the Bijou theater here last night, Willie Robinson, aged 19 years was killed while boxing with Charles Wolf of the same age.

Robinson and Wolf, who were friends, had been in the ring only 35 seconds when the latter struck Robinson a severe blow over the heart. Robinson collapsed and became unconscious. The physician in attendance failed to revive Robinson, and he died on the way to a hospital.

South St. Joseph, Mo., March 18.—"Leck" Allen was so severely beaten in a boxing contest before a local club last night when he was knocked out in the fifth round by "Young Rhodes" that he was taken to his home early today in a dying condition, physicians saying he could live only a few hours. Allen was recently pardoned from the penitentiary by Governor Folk. He had been sentenced as the ringleader in a plot to blow up the Buchanan county jail with dynamite.

WIGGINS LOSES TO JOE MUNCH

Duluth Roller Skater Collapses in Eighth Lap of Race.

Walter Wiggins weakened last night in the final heat of the race with Joe Munch of Minneapolis for the roller skating championship of the Northwest and lost out, the Flour City man finishing strong and showing his right to the title.

The first heat last night, the second of the race, went bad for Wiggins. He took a fall in the second lap and couldn't recover the distance he lost, Munch taking the heat in 3:05 for the mile.

The third heat, which was necessitated by Wiggins having won Monday night, was a pretty contest for eight laps. The men raced close together, Munch setting a strong pace. Wiggins went through seven laps, but in the eighth he collapsed and had to be carried from the floor, Munch finishing the mile and taking down the money.

CONKLIN AND GARDNER

Win Their Games in the Amateur Billiard Tournament.

Chicago, March 18.—Fred Conklin of Chicago defeated J. F. Poggenburg of New York last night in the fifth game of the national amateur championship tournament by a score of 400 to 229.

Conklin opened with a run of fifty. Poggenburg did not play strongly only reaching the double figures six times in his twenty-five innings.

E. W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., yesterday defeated Clarence Jackson of Chicago in the fourth game of the tournament, the score at the end of the game standing 400 to 260. The game was not of a sensational character, the highest run, 63, being scored by Gardner in his second time up. Jackson played brilliantly in spots, but in several instances spoiled a good start by apparently over-anxiety. On the other hand, Gardner played a careful, safe game.

BURNS WINS WITH BLOW

Jem Roche Goes Down Before American in One Round.

Knock-Out is Only Blow of Any Consequence Struck.

Dublin, March 18.—Tommy Burns, the American heavyweight champion, made short work of Jem Roche, the Irish champion, in their contest last evening at the Theater Royal for the world's heavyweight championship. Practically only one blow was struck, Burns knocking Roche out when hardly more than a minute of the first round had been completed, by a short hook to the jaw. So quickly did the end come that the great crowd which filled the theater in the expectation of seeing the Irishman put up a good fight for the title, hardly realized what had happened.

When the men entered the ring it was evident that the sluggish Roche was no match for the more experienced Burns. They sparred for less than a minute, the Irishman acting altogether on the defensive, and the American endeavoring to find an opening. Then Burns feinted quickly put a short sharp right to the jaw, and Roche went down. He was badly dazed and although he struggled to regain his feet, was unable to do so before the fatal ten was counted.

Immediately after the count, Roche got to his feet, but staggered about the stage. When he had recovered himself he went over smilingly to congratulate the winner. He had met a better man.

The fight was for a purse of $7,500, which was put up by a syndicate of which Richard Croker, the former Tammany leader, was a member, and for a side bet of $2,500. In addition Burns had $7,000 on himself at odds of 3 to 1. The ringside betting was 7 to 2 on the American.

The blow which decided the fight was the only one of any consequence during the minute and thirty-eight seconds the men were in the ring. The crowd which shortly before had cheered Roche to the echo and greeted him with airs "From Wexford," were so taken back that after a few angry hisses, they went quietly out of the theater.

Burns said of the fight that it was the easiest he ever had. He went in, he added, to make it as short as possible, as he had too much money at stake at long odds to take any chances.

He had expected, however, that the fight would go a few rounds, although he was never in doubt as to the final result.

Burns stated that he was willing to give Roche another chance, if sufficient inducements were forthcoming. He is now considering an offer provisionally made by the Dublin syndicate for a match with "Bill" Squires under the same terms as that with Roche.

The scene in the theater was remarkable. There were seats for 3,000, and every one was occupied. It was a most enthusiastic crowd, and Roche received a great reception when he entered smiling and with a confident air. The orchestra struck up "The Boys of Wexford," the spectators joining in the chorus. Burns had been watching the preliminaries, and carelessly whistled the "The Star Spangled Banner." He was also well received, but his reception was insignificant with that given Roche, when Croker announced the contest.

Mr. Croker, who was in a box at the ringside, had to acknowledge the tremendous cheering that greeted him.

The two heavyweights came to the ring in their street clothes, and a quarter of an hour was occupied in making preparations for the fight.

On the stroke of the gong, Burns jumped to the center of the ring, which was an 18-foot affair, and started his usual tactics of trying to draw out his opponent. This seemed to annoy Roche, who angrily struck down Burns' arm and then covered his face with both gloves to protect it from a threatened blow. Burns, however, was looking for a better chance, and a moment later he feinted with his left and shot his right over to the jaw, which was unprotected. The Irishman went to the canvas, but not heavily. He slid along on his side and then rolled over, face downward. Very few of the spectators, even those on the stage, were quick enough to see how it was done, and there were cries of "Fake."

There was no doubt, however, that Roche went in to do his best, but he was outclassed and altogether too slow for a man of Burns' quickness and craft. Roche said last night, after he had somewhat gotten over the suddenness of his defeat:

"He did it too quick, that's all."

Burns, when questioned whether he would meet Roche or Squires again, replied:

"I will fight any one if there is enough money in sight."

Tommy Burns, world's heavyweight champion, picked up another quince yesterday, squashed it in less than a minute and drew down about $15,000 for the few seconds' work. Pretty soft for Tommy, to whom nothing looks better than a big bunch of money easily earned.

But how tough such things are on the crowd! There were about 3,000 people in the arena yesterday. Some of them paid more than $25 for seats, and they had expected to see a good fight. They had hardly become settled for the bout, when Roche went to the floor and the referee counted him out.

Roche was even a more discordant false alarm than Bill Squires. Squires was in a strange country before a strange crowd, in a new climate, when he went down before Tommy Burns at San Francisco. Yesterday Roche had everything with him and Burns was the invader. There was only one blow struck, and the big hulk toppled before the American.

Such things cannot be helped, but they don't raise the game any. Pugilism is probably killed in Ireland for some time to come, especially where foreigners are concerned. In England things will not be as they were before Burns arrived. He has showed them up, taken their money, and should be ready to leave them to their own devices now.

This talk of Burns giving Roche another chance, and also fighting Squires in England, is all pure rot. Burns has a perfect right to get the money, of course. But when he makes the public fool for such affairs as those with Squires, Moir, Palmer and Roche once, he should be satisfied. He lets his mercenary tendencies get away with his good judgment. He has a fight waiting on this side of the water now, and it isn't likely to be a fiasco. Jack Johnson is anxious to fight him. The big dinge is probably the only heavyweight outside of Jeffries who could cope with Burns, and he is entitled to a match. Tommy can get a big purse from Western promoters for the bout, and if he is so sure of his ability to beat Johnson, he ought to be ready to sail across. The fight public has had about enough of his easy-money route, via dubs, and wants to see him in a real battle.

C. E. Houck of Ironwood, who is reorganizing the old Tri-State County Fair and Racing association, should get the glad hand of welcome from lovers of horse racing. There's nothing like an organized circuit to boom the harness horse game, and Duluth's sport needs the booming it can get. Of course, the other towns proposed don't compare with Duluth in size, but this city is not a proven horse race town. It has been out of the game too long. There are no larger towns to be banded into a circuit, and the ends of Duluth would be served by joining with the little burgs.

Horse racing has been neglected too long in Duluth. Good men have hold of the game here now, and their efforts are showing results. The string of Duluth horses promises great things during the coming summer, in local matinees and on campaign. Duluth horsemen would know just where they were at on a circuit. As it is, they just depend upon scattered county fairs during August and September for racing their horses, and Duluth has nothing during those months.

Antigo, Rhinelander, Ironwood, Ashland, Duluth and Hibbing all look like good race-horse towns. Some of them are already proved. They all have enthusiastic horsemen, in whom the public could place faith. Mr. Houck shouldn't have a very hard task in lining up the circuit, and Duluth horse owners are inclined to give him every support and encouragement.

"Wix" Tredway, the former Duluth pitcher, is in the Copper country, where he is to be married this week. The marriage yoke will replace the yoke of organized baseball, announces Wix to a Copper countray newspaper man, and Virginia is to enjoy his permanent residence and the benefit of his baseball ability. He denies with scorn the report that he is to play in the Northern league. The fans of Duluth liked Wix, despite his faults and erratic pitching. They will miss the chance to "kid" the blonde boy from the grandstand, and his face may be missed, though his pitching ability may not be.

ELKS TO GORE GRIP CARRIERS

Big Indoor Baseball Event of Year Saturday Night.

The indoor ball game between the U. C. T. and the Elks at the armory Saturday night is to be the big event of the year of its kind. The two teams are getting in condition, a warm degree of rivalry has been generated and the battle will be for all the glory there is in it.

Most of the Commercial Travelers are also Elks, but that doesn't cut any figure with them. They are going in to wallop the baseball representatives of the antlered herd and do it right. It will be the first game for the Elks' team and they don't intend to go down to defeat without a worthy struggle. With all the experience of the grip carriers, the Elks think they have a fine chance and are going in with a rush. They have some pretty lively old-time ball players in the line-up and the team looks good on paper.

There isn't much doing in indoor circles otherwise. The All-Star team has disbanded and the proposed series with Hibbing fallen through. Some of the stars of the team must soon leave for their training camps and they couldn't remain for the full series. The Universal Millers may take Hibbing up and play a series of games for the championship of Northern Minnesota.

The Elks and Commercial Travelers will line up Saturday night as follows:

Elks—	Position.	U. C. T.
Ed Melby	p.	George Mason
Burgen	c.	Vern Culbertson
McCellom	1b.	Charles Wilson
Helle	2b.	Joe Parker
Welsh	3b.	Charles Whitmore
Hastings	rs.	Frank Parker
Krieger	ls.	Hans Wahl
Hawkins	rf.	Paul Reamer
Bennett	lf.	Byron Culbertson

LONG LEAD IN Y. M. C. A. LEAGUE

Horak's Team Holds First Place With Others Trailing.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Horak's	8	3	.727
Noon class	5	6	.455
Deighton's	5	6	.455
Night class	4	7	.364

Horak's 5:15 class team continues to hold the lead in the Y. M. C. A. Basketball league, and as the close of the race approaches the interest in the league affairs becomes more intense. The noon class five and Deighton's 5:15 class team are still running strong, but Horak has a lead of three full games, and it will be hard for them to haul him down to their level.

Horak's five last night won a good game from the night class team. Mapp's boys played good basketball, but the 5:15 class forwards were busy shooting for basket all the time, and their accuracy won. The score at the finish was 25 to 15. Monday night Deighton's team defeated the noon class team by a score of 25 to 21 in a hard-fought game. The result put the two fives in a tie for second place.

Tonight the two 5:15 class teams will meet, and the game promises to be a hard one. Deighton's men have been coming up strong and they will work hard against the leaders.

LOST HIS LITTLE $150 IN A GOOD LUCK BAG.

Creston, Iowa, March 17.—Never again will John Diffenbaugh place his trust in clairvoyants and good luck bags. He has sworn out a warrant for the arrest of Prof. Faye, a clairvoyant, who is accused with having swindled him out of $150 and disappearing, officers having been unable to find the professor.

Diffenbaugh says the clairvoyant induced him to deposit $150 in a "hotipaquanti," or good luck bag, from which it could not be lost or stolen. The bag was returned to Diffenbaugh with orders not to open it until 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. When the bag was opened it contained nothing but worthless paper.

FARMS FOR PUBLIC.

Government Will Place Western Lands on Market May 1.

Washington, March 17.—The government, on May 1, will place on the market 2,135 farms and will allow purchasers ten years to pay for them.

The area of the farms will range from ten to 160 acres, and they are made available by the completion and development of the irrigation projects in the West. The farms are in Nevada, Oregon and South Dakota.

In South Dakota, 175 farms will be available in tracts of eighty acres, and in Wyoming, 200 on the North Platte project and 200 on the Shoshone project, costing from $600 to $1,200.

QUITS STAGE FOR CHURCH.

Robert Downing, Veteran Actor, Converted at Revival.

Washington, March 17. — Robert L. Downing has forsaken the stage for the church after thirty years behind the footlights. He was "converted" in the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist church, where a revivial has been in progress for five weeks. He has already been urged to conduct evangelistic services in Washington, and is preparing for the work.

MINERS ESCAPE DEATH.

Remembering Old Drift, Ten Men Flee to Safety From Cave-in.

Butte, Mont., March 17.—Word from the Southern Cross mine, near Anaconda, tells of the thrilling escape of ten miners from death in a mammoth caveln. The cage does not run at night, and while they were at work they heard the ground above them cracking. The warning was shouted along the level and the men sought safety in flight. One of the men who had worked there for some time thought of an old drift, and they made their way to the surface in the nick of time. The ground settled from the surface to a depth of ten feet, completely filling the 160 and the 300-foot levels.

"HORNED" BY CATFISH.

Blood Poisoning Fatal to Young Boy at Griswold, Iowa.

Griswold, Iowa, March 17.—Being "horned" by small catfish which he and a young friend were catching in a pond caused the death of Henderson Lary, a 12-year-old boy. Shortly after the lads had been wading in the water and handling the fish, young Lary become ill. Local physicians, who were called, could not diagnose the disease. He began to swell at every joint and lancing at the knees, wrists and elbows was necessary. An Omaha physician pronounced the fatal illness blood poisoning, induced from the injuries from the catfish and the stagnant water of the pond.

SEPTUAGENARIANS WED.

Bride and Bridegroom Were Students at College Sixty Years Ago.

Waterloo, Iowa, March 17.—The memories of years long gone past were awakened in the hearts of two octogenarians by the publication of a series of articles on Sharon college, Ohio, in the Caldwell, Ohio, Leader, and as a result the author, William Ross, of Caldwell, and Mrs. C. L. Hussey of Independence, Ohio, were united in marriage a few days ago at Zanesville, Ohio.

Mr. Ross and Mrs. Hussey were students at Sharon college sixty years ago. They became separated but the friendship of their younger days was renewed after the publication of the articles located each other, and they decided to link their lives. They met at Zanesville and were married, though each is past three score years and ten. In spite of their advanced years, however, they are hale an dhearty.

Woman's Watchword Is Modesty.

Whatever threatens woman's delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits disease of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which most physicians think necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty.

Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters of consultation being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Such consultation costs you nothing whether you take treatment from Dr. Pierce or not.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It enables women suffering from "female weakness," prolapsus uteri, retroversion, anteversion, and other displacements of the organs distinctly feminine, to cure themselves right in the privacy of their homes. Pelvic catarrhal drains, painful or irregular periods, backache, frequent headaches, weak nerves, dragging-down pain or distress in the lower abdominal, or pelvic, region, gnawing sensation in stomach, dizziness, or faint spells, and kindred conditions and symptoms are cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a secret or patent medicine, against the use of which most people of intelligence naturally object, but is, in fact, the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and experienced physician in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments and who is not afraid to publish all its ingredients, as he does, on its bottle-wrapper, attesting the correctness of the same under oath.

"Favorite Prescription" is the one medicine for woman's delicate ailments which contains neither alcohol nor harmful, habit-forming drugs, being a pure glyceric extract of curative principles found in our most valuable native, medicinal roots, as attested by many of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this PROVEN REMEDY OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

S.S.S. A HARMLESS VEGETABLE REMEDY CURES BLOOD POISON

Not only its proven ability to cure, but its absolute safety as a remedy has made S. S. S. the most generally used of all medicines for the treatment of Contagious Blood Poison. Unlike the strong mineral medicines, which cover up the outward signs and shut the disease up in the system, there to carry on its deadly work upon the delicate and vital organs, S. S. S. strikes directly at the source, and by purifying the blood of the last mite of virus, completely and satisfactorily cures the trouble.

Contagious Blood Poison is a most insidious and destructive disease. Its virus entering the healthiest circulation will soon change the blood to a poison-steeped and infectious fluid, which stamps its pollution on every part of the body. The mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair begins to come out, copper-colored spots appear on the skin, the glands in the groin swell, and as the blood becomes more thoroughly impregnated with the poison, sores and ulcers break out on the flesh and the bones become diseased. So in a case where the virus has been allowed to run unchecked in the blood, the patient finds himself diseased from head to foot with this loathsome disorder.

S. S. S. is made entirely of roots and herbs of the forests and fields. It does not contain a particle of mercury or potash or any other harmful mineral to injure the delicate parts of the system, impair the digestion, corrode and irritate the lining of the stomach, or in any other way injure the health. It is Nature's blood purifier, harmless in its action and certain in its good results. S. S. S. removes the poison from the circulation, enriches the blood, and safely and permanently cures Contagious Blood Poison. It builds up and strengthens the system by its fine tonic effects and leaves the patient not only cured of the disease, but also in possession of glowing, robust health. If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison, S. S. S. is your most certain reliance; an honest medicine, and because of its vegetable purity, a safe remedy for persons of any age or condition. We have a special home treatment book which explains fully the different stages of the disease, and suggestions that will be helpful to you in the treatment of your case. We will be glad to send this book free of charge, and our physicians will also give you any special medical advice or direction free, if you will write us. S. S. S. for sale at all drug stores.

S. S. S. CURED HIM.

I first knew of my Blood Poison six years ago, and I was treated for two years by blood specialists, who treated me with no good results, so I gave them up and started to use S. S. S. When I commenced its use I was covered with sores and eruptions and was very weak and rundown. Today I am myself again and my skin as clear as a baby's. I know it made a positive cure for me of Blood Poison in the very worst form, and I am making it my business to have my friends use it as I did, and already two of them are having wonderful results in the way of a cure. They are troubled with the same disease I had, and I know it will do for them what it did for me. I am today a living testimonial of the efficacy of S. S. S. in cases of advanced Blood Poison.

Hoping you will keep up your good work I will close wishing you success.

Yours truly, HARRY BARRETT.

MOORHEAD'S OLDEST MAN.

Andrew Gunderson Celebrated His 87th Birthday on Monday.

Moorhead, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Monday was the eighty-seventh anniversary of the birth of Andrew Gunderson of this city. He was born at Eidvald, Norway, March 16, 1821. He came to this country in 1872, coming direct to Moorhead from Norway. He ranks with J. B. Blanchard among the very earliest settlers in this vicinity, and is only a month or so younger than Mr. Blanchard. The once strong and vigorous man is now bent and feeble, but he has many good friends who will watch over his declining years. Mr. and Mrs. Gunderson are probably the oldest couple now residing in Moorhead.

GREAT MEET OF FARMERS

Called Out by Farmers' Institute Held Tuesday at Crookston.

Many Interesting Subjects Are Discussed in Convincing Manner.

Crookston, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The farmers' institute held in this city yesterday, more than anything that ever transpired in this section, demonstrated that the farmers of the Red River valley are thoroughly alive to the meeting's importance.

A large gathering was expected, but the crowd taxed the capacity of the city hall and scores had to stand up during the addresses both morning and afternoon. It is estimated that during the day between 400 and 500 farmers attended the institute, and they came from nearly every township in Polk county, and many were here from outside the county.

R. A. Schultz of LeRoy discussed the raising of strawberries and small fruits and later gave a talk on the culture of apples and small fruits. C. W. Hale gave a very interesting address on sheep raising and clover culture, and Prof. L. P. Harrington of the Crookston school of agriculture talked relative to how life on a farm could and should be made attractive to the boys and girls.

Prof. C. E. Brown of the poultry department of the Crookston state farm discussed the poultry question thoroughly and Superintendent William Robertson gave a short general talk. C. O. Carlson made one of the most interesting talks of the day on dairying and showed how, during the month of January last he had made $167 net profit from thirty-five cows, a herd which had been worked up during the past years from several cows which brought him from but $18 to $60 per year gross. He had simply bred from the best and sold off the poorer animals. He has no thoroughbred stock.

At noon the farmers were given a dinner by the business men and the entire gathering was so fruitful and satisfactory and plans were laid for a meeting of farmers in Crookston once a month during the year.

It was the most gratifying gathering of farmers ever held in Crookston and points towards better things in the way of diversified farming in the Red River valley.

LAKE BURSTS ITS BANKS; GOING DRY

Strange Phenomenon Reported From Scandia Valley Country.

Little Falls, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—B. P. Swanson, a well-known farmer of the Scandia valley town, who was here yesterday, brought the news of a strange phenmenon taking place in that section Saturday, when a lake literally ran dry.

Stanchfield, a body of water one and one-half mile long and one-half mile in width, with an average depth of about fifteen feet, covering the corners of sections 1, 2, 11 and 12 of Scandia Valley town, burst through its banks, Saturday afternoon, at a point where a small outlet has carried away surplus water, and in a few hours left the bed of the lake practically dry.

Mr. Swanson states that the outlet has heretofore been but a small creek, but that the washout has made a channel seventy-feet in width and thirty feet deep. The water from the lake was carried over low and swampy land to the Crow Wing river, two miles away.

This lake is fed by numerous springs and it is thought, with the ice very solid, and the outlet not large enough to carry off the surplus water, the eating away of the banks near this outlet was the neutral consequence. The bed of one-half of the lake is about six feet higher than the half in which the outlet is located. This probably gave the water a tremendous force when once started through the outlet. Mr. Swanson states that trees, stumps and everything in the path of the water avalanche was carried into the swamps.

The lake was well stocked with fish and at the time of the washout many fish houses were located on the ice by farmers in the vicinity.

The noise made by the rushing water, it is said, could be heard for a distance of two miles.

TO DEVELOP COUNTRY.

New Colonization Company Formed for Northern Wisconsin.

Cumberland, Wis., March 18.—The leading real estate men of Northern Wisconsin, including Albert B. Wedke of Cumberland, president; J. Harding Brown of Eau Claire, secretary, and G. A. McDermid of Eau Claire, have joined in the organization of the Northern Wisconsin Colonization company. The company is incorporated for $100,000, with offices located at Cumberland.

The purpose of the organization is to lead desirable emigrants to locate in Northern Wisconsin. The president of the company, Albert B. Wedke of Cumberland, has made a special study of the emigration problem. In order to get a more thorough understanding of the matter, he made a special trip to Europe that he might study the people there in their own environment, that conditions here might be made as nearly like those of their native country as possible. The object is to secure the better class of emigrants. Every inducement will be offered to lead the artisan and more desirable population of European nations to settle in these open lands of Northern Wisconsin.

MILLIONS IN RESOURCES.

Showing Made by Ten Trust Companies in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., March 18.—The total resources of the eleven trust companies of Wisconsin, as shown by a compilation of reports to the commissioner of banking, as of Feb. 14, is $10,286,129.83. Nearly half of this is loaned out on read estate and collateral security. Nearly $2,000,000 is invested in bonds and over $1,500,000 is in trust fund securities. The sums due the trust companies from banks aggregate over $700,000.

The largest liabilities are deposits, $2,500,000. The capital stock is almost $5,500,000.

KILLING DURING BLIND PIG RAID

Bloody Scene Enacted in Illegal Joint at Marmath, N. D.

Marmath, N. D., March 18.—One man killed, one badly wounded and several hurt was the record of a sensational raid of a blind pig here.

The man who was killed is Richard Traversie. He was shot through the hips and died soon after arriving in this city for treatment. Charles Prendergast was shot in the foot and it is believed amputation will be necessary. Other inmates of the blind pig received bruises in the fight attending the raid.

First reports of the affair stated that officers went to the place and were defied by the Prendergasts, one of whom runs the place. It was stated that a pistol battle was fought and that Traversie was one of the first men to be hit by a bullet. Bert Prendergast, who was in the fight, said that the trouble started over a feeling of jealousy some of the blind piggers and gamblers entertained toward his brother Charles. On the night of the shooting a crowd entered Prendergast's place looking for the proprietor, Charles Prendergast, but he was not there. Bert Prendergast said that he was running the place for his brother and the crowd began to grow abusive. Two of the men began firing at the feet of a negro porter to make him dance and presently they all filed out to find the other Prendergast. The brother said that he closed the place and hurried to warn Charles, at the same time picking up some friends on the way.

Both forces met and in the fight Prendergast said that the crowd got a bad beating. The Prendergasts and their friends then repaired to the blind pig where a little later another battle was fought. Prendergast said that several of the crowd that had been in the place got some officers to make the raid and promised to help them.

In the pistol battle that followed Traversie was shot, Charles Prendergast was struck over the head and the brothers were placed under arrest. Charles tried to escape and was shot in the foot.

NAVIGABILITY OF RIVER.

An Important Hearing is Being Conducted in Fargo.

Fargo, N. D. March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great interest attaches to the public hearing, which began in the United States court room today, held under the direction of the United States war department, to determine the question of the navigability of the Red River between Breckenridge, Minn. and Grand Forks, N. D. The hearing grew out of the application made to the department to have the stream declared non-navigable. Commercial clubs of Fargo, Grand Forks and other interested places have delegations present to oppose the idea of closing the river to navigation and the hearing is arousing much interest. It is conducted by army officers and witnesses are being examined.

IS KILLED IN IDAHO.

Sad Fate of Sandstone Man Who Was Temporarily Out West.

Sandstone, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received here that one of Sandstone's old settlers, Chris Woesner, was killed last week at Boise City, Idaho. He went out there a short time ago to assist his son-in-law on the construction of a state building, and intended to soon return to his family here. Six days of good temper in every box of Cascarets. Six days when you feel at your best; no headache, no dullness. Are they worth ten cents?

It is folly to talk of the "laxative habit."

The habit lies in eating the wrong sort of food, and too much of it. And in getting too little exercise.

While you do that, you must give the necessary help to the bowels in some other way.

Else there is always a penalty.

Here is the way to avoid it:

Eat coarse food in moderation. Eat plenty of fruit, many green vegetables. Drink no alcohol. Walk ten miles per day.

Those are Nature's ways for keeping the bowels active.

The next best way is Cascarets.

Cascarets, better than anything else, supply the place of laxative foods and of exercise.

They do what right living would do. And they do it just as gently, just as naturally. They are vegetable.

You'll need them just as long as you live in-doors, and eat rich foods; and no longer.

Take them as you take food—when you need it. Carry a box in your pocket, and take one Cascaret at a time. That's better than to suffer and wait.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

The Market is Steady During a Rather Quiet Session.

Flax is Dull and Closes Unchanged in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 18.—Wheat was rather quiet during the session of the market today, but the tone was firm throughout the session and the closing prices were strong. All of the American markets showed slight gains over yesterday's close.

News from the Southwest continued bullish today and the cables were firm. Offerings from Argentina were somewhat lighter than they have been.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to ½d higher, Berlin ⅛c lower, Budapest ⅞c higher and Antwerp ⅝c higher.

The May option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, Minneapolis and New York, ¼c higher in Chicago and ⅜c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ¼c higher in Duluth and New York, ⅛c higher in Chicago and Minneapolis and ⅜c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅞c higher in Chicago and ½d to 1¼d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛@⅜c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a quiet tone to the speculative wheat market at the opening and values were unchanged, followed by the sharp advance, prices gaining ½d to ⅝d. The weakness in America yesterday was offset by the fact of shorts covering, prompted by the fewer first hand La Plata offerings, and lighter speculative offerings. During the morning, easiness developed on the continued improvement in the Russian crop news, further reports of rain in India and prices there declining, and more pressure to sell La Plata wheat at the port of St. Vincent and values lost ¼d to ½d. At midday, the market was quiet with prices unchanged to ¼d higher than Tuesday.

"Corn was quiet and ¼d higher in sympathy with the firmness in America yesterday. During the morning the market was without change and was entirely neglected.

"Wheat cargoes quiet with buyers reserved. Corn cargoes steady but quiet."

Car receipts at Duluth were 80 against 131 last year, and at Minneapolis 329 against 370 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 379 against 501 last year. Chicago received 18 against 7 last year. Winnipeg received 101 against 66 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 582,000 bus., last year 669,000 bus. Shipments 342,000 bus., last year 202,00 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 350,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 555,000 bus., last year 932,000 bus. Shipments 651,000 bus., last year 486,00 bus. Clearances of corn were 169,000 bus.

Wheat was dull in the Duluth market during the day, with prices firm. May wheat opened ⅜@⅝c higher at $1.06¼, advanced to $1.06⅝, declined to $1.04⅞ and closed at $1.06, a gain of ⅛@¼c over yesterday. July wheat opened late at $1.05¼ and closed at $1.05¼ nominal, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Durum wheat was unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Good Demand Gives Wheat Firmness, With Offerings Light.

Chicago, March 18.—There was only a trade in wheat here at the start today, but the market was firm influenced by a good demand by commission houses and a lack of offerings. The cables contributed to the firmness, having followed the advance of yesterday in this market. May wheat opened ⅛@⅜c to ⅜@½c higher at 95⅝c to 95¾c and sold up to 96⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 357 cars against 541 cars last week and 968 cars a year ago.

The high notch for May was 96¾c. The market eased off in the last half of the session on profit-taking, and much of the earlier advance was lost, May going down to 95¾c. The strength of corn, however, held the market steady, the close being at an advonce for May of ¼c at 95⅝@95¾c.

Corn was strong. Unsettled weather, firm cables and small receipts gave the market a decidedly bullish tone. The May delivery scored a new high mark for the crop at 67⅛@67¾c. Opening at an advance of ⅛c to ¼c at 66¾c to 67¼c, it touched the high point but reacted later to 67c. Local receipts were 94 cars with two of contract grade.

The demand for corn carried the price of the May option up to 67⅛@67¾c. The market continued very strong until the close. May closed 7⅛c higher at 67½c.

Oats were very quiet, but firm along with wheat and corn. May opened ¼c higher, at 54¼c and sold at 54⅜c. Local receipts were 181 cars.

Provisions were firm, an advance of 10c in the price of live hogs influencing the tone. May pork opened 10c higher at $12.37½; lard was 2½c higher at $7.07½, ribs were up 5c at $6.82½.

Close: Wheat—May, 95⅝@95¾c; July, 90¼c; September, 87⅝c. Corn—May, 67½c; July, 64⅛c; September, 63⅝@63¾c. Oats—May, old, 53¾@53¾c; May, 53⅝c; July, old, 48⅜c; July, 46⅛c; September, 28¼c. Pork—May, $12.50; July, $12.90. Lard—May, $8.02½; July, $8.25; September, $8.47½. Ribs—May, $6.90; July, $7.20; September, $7.42½. Rye—Cash, 82½c. Barley—Cash, 59@86c. Timothy—March, $4.15. Clover—March, $20.85. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 97½@98¾c; No. 3 red, 96½@98¾c; No. 2 hard, 97½@98¾c; $1.04¼; No. 3 hard, 95½c@$1.02; No. 3 spring, 95c@$1.00. Corn—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 62¾@63c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat a Little Firmer While Stocks Show an Increase.

Minneapolis, March 18.—The first increase recorded in Minneapolis stocks for some time appeared today. The week opened with stocks off 50,000 bushels. Monday's and Tuesday's heavy runs and the fact that millers received much winter wheat therein enabled the elevators to take in 75,000 bushels, wiping out the loss and showing stocks 25,000 bushels heavier for four days. Minneapolis received 329 cars today against 370, Duluth 50 against 131. Of today's total 172 of the Minneapolis cars contained winter wheat and with western and durum 265 cars other than spring wheat appeared in all. Dullness ruled the market. The snow storm was taken as likely to make receipts lighter, but advices were that the moisture was good for the winter wheat crop. May opened at $1.06@$1.06⅛, high, $1.06⅝, low, $1.05¾, closed, $1.06¼; July closed, $1.04⅞.

Cash wheat sold better and prices were a little firmer. No. 1 northern brought 1¼ to 1½c over May. No. 2 sold at 1c under the poorer lots, but the best went at ½c to ¾c under. Millers and elevators bought. No. 1 northern closed at $1.07½ spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.05@1.06¾ spot, $1.05 to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.00 to $1.03. No. 3 yellow corn, 60¾@62¼; No. 3 white oats, 50@50c; No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

Barley was unchanged in general tone. Malting grades sold at 80c, 83c and 84c. Poor feed stuff went as low as 63c. Closing range, 63c to 85c.

Flax was more firmly established on the Duluth May basis and was in good demand closing $1.16⅜.

Bran was firm at $21.25@21.75 in bulk.

No change was made in flour. Millers reported good small lot demand and shipping instructions coming in better but no large orders and no foreign inquiry except for very low grades. Shipments, 54,801 barrels. First patents, $5.35@6.50; second patents, $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.30@3.40.

Grain Gossip.

The Minneapolis Market Record says: "With the primary movement maintaining a fairly liberal volume, taking price and conjecture into consideration, and a most promising outlook in the winter wheat country, to say nothing of a possible early seeding of the spring wheat crop in the Northwest, the statisticians who have been forecasting a pinching of supplies are having a hard time to maintain their position."

Copper Gossip.

Hayden, Stone & Co. to Walter W. Carr: The opening was a little higher for our coppers with trading active and well distributed. A further advance of 17s 6d in London metal prices had a favorable effect on coppers early. Activity was in Boston Consolidated, North Butte and Greene Cananea. When the New York became weak our market reacted in sympathy with it and became dull. We look for a dull trading market to continue.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Opened Higher, But Slumped Under Heavy Offerings.

Cut in New York Central Dividend Caused the Drop.

New York, March 18.—Considerable business was transacted at the opening of the stock market today, on a rising scale of prices. Rock Island and Erie rose a point and the generally active list about half as much.

Stocks continued to be bought until gains of a point or more were quite numerous. Atlantic Coast Line led the rise with 2 points. The market commenced to waver and then broke abruptly on heavy sales for both accounts. The previous advances were wiped out under this pressure and some material losses were registered. Illinois Central dropped 2 points below the previous day's close, New York Central 1⅝, and St. Paul, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting, United States Steel preferred and North American 1.

The cut in New York Central dividend from a 6 to a 5 per cent rate was responsible for the drop in prices. The decline brought in brisk buying orders and the price losses were generally recovered. The rally however, did not hold and stocks generally went back to the lowest prices before noon. Pennsylvania fell 2⅝, Reading 2 and Union Pacific, St. Paul and Great Northern preferred 1½. Bonds were steady.

The decline came to a pause by noon and slight rallies on dull trading followed. Toward 1 o'clock the market showed signs of yielding again.

The market closed unsettled. Stocks were unloaded on a rapidly descending scale of prices in the late market. The operations to sustain prices came under suspicion of covering heavy realizing sales. New York Central broke 4 points, Pennsylvania, Reading, Union Pacific and the Hill stocks 3⅛ to 3¾, Delaware & Hudson 2⅝, St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Texas & Pacific, United States Steel preferred, Republic Steel preferred, North American and American Smelting 1½ to 2. Hasty covering by shorts caused some fitful rallies at the last.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 18.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 8 points on lower Liverpool cables than expected, the relative steadiness of that market being considered by many as indicating that yesterday's local reports of spot weakness were exaggerated. They seemed to be mostly from shorts, however, and prices eased off soon after the opening under a renewal of bear pressure and scattering liquidation being only a point or two over last night's final during the middle of the morning.

Spot closed quiet, 5 points lower; middling uplands, 11.00; middling gulf, 11.15. No sales. Futures barely steady. Closing bids: March, 10.07; April, 10.07; May, 10.12; June, 9.97; July, 9.88; August, 9.70; October, 9.55; Dec, 9.58.

INVESTIGATORS ARE RESTING

The school board's own committee of investigation and inspection is resting today.

The members during the last twenty-four hours have not been visiting any of the public schools, in their personally conducted tour to ascertain what the dangers of fires and panics are, but have been applying themselves in their offices, catching up the business which they practically waived for two days, while flitting from school building to school building.

Tomorrow the committee—Directors Barnes and Stevens, Supt. Denfeld and Chief Engineer Larson—will take up its work of inspection again.

It is proposed to visit the Washington, Central high school and other buildings in the center of the city tomorrow.

It is understood that the committee will have several recommendations to make to the board of education when it makes its report to that body, but the committeemen refuse to divulge what those recommendations will be. They all agree, however, that they have not found, thus far in their travels, any dangerous laxity in the conduct of the school buildings.

PUTS COIN IN MOTION.

Dave Maki Shot in $90 in Three Days.

Shooting his money right and left with a lavish hand, Dave Maki, a Finn from Aitkin, managed to slide $90 over Duluth bars in three days. He had $25 of his brother's money in his keeping and $10 of that went with $80 of his own, before the brother complained to the police and Dave was picked up yesterday afternoon.

When arrested he had $15 of the $105, with which he struck Duluth. When he landed last Saturday, he deposited the whole thing with a bartender at the O. K. bar. His brother owned $25, and since Saturday he had been trying to recover it. Yesterday he called in the police in desperation, and Dave was rounded up. He had $15 in his clothes, the bartender still had $3 and the rest had passed into circulation. He handed what money he had over to his brother, promised to pay the rest, and got away with a charge of drunkenness. He pleaded guilty and drew a suspended sentence.

LARGE DAMAGES ASKED.

Damages in the sum of $50,000 are asked by the plaintiffs in two personal injury cases that are on trial before Judges Ensign and Cant in the district court today.

Tony Pintar is suing the Pitt Iron Mining company for $25,000 damages for the loss of one eye and the impairing of the sight of the other. Pintar claims that his injury was caused by a premature explosion in a mine at Hibbing, due to a defective fuse. This is the second defective fuse that has been on trial in the district court of this county within the past year. The first case resulted in a large verdict in favor of the plaintiff. Pintar is represented by Theodore Hollister and L. H. Corcoran and the mining company by Howard T. Abbott.

In Judge Cant's room Frank J. Quirk seeks to recover $25,000 from the Great Northern Railway company for the loss of a foot under an ore car on the Allouez ore docks in 1906. S. A. Anderson is Quirk's attorney. J. A. Murphy and C. H. Crownart represent the company.

CROMWELL WILL NOT APPEAL

"We have every confidence in Judge Cant and are willing to abide by his decision unless he intimates that there is some point where he might like to see carried to the supreme court," said J. L. Cromwell this afternoon, in speaking of the Second ward election contest.

The decision in the Cromwell-Bloedel contest is expected at any time now, Judge Cant having had the matter under advisement for several days. If it is adverse to Mr. Cromwell, it will not be appealed and the Democrats will then cease their opposition to the two appointments of Mayor Haven. There is, however, every prospect of the council deadlock being broken next Monday night, and everything being amicably adjusted.

ORCHARD SENTENCED.

Caldwell, Idaho, March 18.—Stating that he believes that Harry Orchard, in his testimony in the trials of W. D. Haywood and George A. Pettibone for the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, told the exact truth, attempting to conceal nothing, Judge Fremont Wood, in the district court today recommended that the state board of pardons commute Orchard's sentence of death to imprisonment in the state penitentiary. The sentence of death was pronounced in accordance with the plea of guilty entered by Orchard last Tuesday when arraigned. Judge Wood presided at both the Haywood and Pettibone trials.

SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENT.

The St. Patrick's day entertainment held at the Cathedral auditorium last evening was attended by a capacity house and the splendid program which had been prepared was carried through without a hitch. The event was considered one of the most successful entertainments of the kind ever held in the city.

One of the best features of the program was the drama "Among the Breakers," put on in a creditable manner by some of the best local talent. The cast of characters follows:

Hon. Bruce Hunter, Vincent Grady; Clarence Hunter, his ward, William Casey; David Murray, keeper of Fairpoint light, Leo Hackett; Peter Paragraph, agent of the press, Charles Kelley; Scud, Hunter's colored servant, Thomas McGraw; "Mother Carey," a reputed fortune teller, Miss Ella Stringer; Bess Starbright, her protege, Miss Agnes Poirier; Biddy Dean, the Irish girl, Miss Jennie Grady; Minnie Daze, Hunter's niece, Miss Eunice Brotherton.

The St. Patrick's address was given by Rev. John Ryan, D. D.. It was an eloquent and finished oration, instructive and entertaining.

During the intervals between the literary numbers, Irish airs were played by Paul's orchestra.

BENEFIT FOR SKI RIDERS

A benefit ski tournament for the Duluth riders will be held at Chester hill next Sunday afternoon, and it is expected some more spectacular work will be shown by the stars. The proceeds of the affair will go to Ole Feiring, John Evenson, Gustav Bye, John Mangseth and Olaf Larson, who represented Duluth in numerous tournaments through the Northwest this year.

A contest between Ole Feiring and John Evenson, the two greatest riders in Duluth, will be one of the features of the event. Barney Riley, the Coleraine "boy wonder," will go against Arnold Olson in a contest, also. Riley and Olson are the champions in the boys' class in their respective localities and their jumping should be worth seeing.

Paul Braaten of Battle Lake, Minn., champion of Norway from 1899 to 1903, will be one of the contestants in next Sunday's tournament. Braaten has not competed in a tournament here this year and lovers of the sport are anxious to see what he can do on the Duluth hill. Carl Junnum, Ole Westgard and Ole Mangseth of Coleraine will also compete.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

La Crosse, Wis., March 18.—The Rev. Dr. J. Irwin Smith, organizer of the Presbyterian church in Western Wisconsin and Minnesota and father of President William Smith of Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, died yesterday at Cedar Rapids, aged 82. The body will be brought back to the scene of his early labors and will be buried at Oak Grove cemetery here tomorrow after services at the First Presbyterian church of La Crosse, one of the many which he organized. Dr. Smith was also a former professor at Gale university, Galesville, Wis.

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 18.—Henry Knute Nelson, son of Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, died here yesterday of consumption after a long illness. He was 37 years of age.

Philadelphia, March 18.—Joseph G. Darlington, a leading dry goods merchant of this city, died today at his home in Haverford, a suburb. He had been ill for only a week and death was unexpected. Mr. Darlington was twice president of the Union League and took an active interest in civic affairs. He was born in Pittsburg and was about 65 years old.

Rome, March 18.—Cardinal Casalia Del Drago died in this city yesterday. He was born in 1838 and was created cardinal in 1899.

TWO DAYS TO SAY GOODBYE.

How long do you think it ought to take to say goodbye to your sweetheart?

That was the question that the recruiting officials were called upon to decide. They had just enlisted a young man by the name of Knute Johnson of Hibbing. Then he informed the officials that he had neglected to say goodbye before enlisting in the army.

"How long would it take you to say goodbye," asked one of the officials. The love-smitten recruit thought a week would be cutting the farewell space pretty short. The official, who, by the way is a bachelor, said twenty-four hours would be an eternity.

Some of the other officials came to the aid of the man in love, and a compromise of two days was decided upon. Knute can go back to Hibbing and say sweet farewells, but he musn't overstay his time, for if he does, some rude soldier will interrupt. He is a soldier now.

ARGYLE SALOON BURNS.

Crookston, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Klondike saloon building at Argyle, Marshall county, was burned to the ground yesterday. It was a wooden building belonging to the C. J. Bennewetz estate, and the saloon was run by Charles Lezie. The total loss is about $3,500 with $1,000 insurance on the building and $1,000 on the contents. The fire had gained such headway when discovered that it could not be extinguished.

LA FOLLETTE'S SPEECH ALL ROT, SAYS BANKER.

Chicago, March 18.—James B. Forgan, president of the First National bank of Chicago and chairman of the currency committee of the American Bankers' association, in an interview today relative to the speech of United States Senator La Follette of Wisconsin in the senate yesterday said that the senator was false in his assertions and a panderer to class prejudice.

"The speech as quoted was rot," said Mr. Forgan.

Mrs. Kate McQuinn of 1905 West Second street is slowly recovering from a severe attack of tonsolitis.

OFFICIALS VISIT CITY

Omaha Plans Extensive Improvements for Duluth Terminals.

Also Plans Better Train Service for Near Future.

Better train service and more extensive terminals for Duluth are planned by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road. A party of officials of the company were in the city late yesterday afternoon, arriving on a special train, and looking over local terminals. They spent most of the day in Superior, where improvements are also planned. In both cities, it is understood, a considerable amount of money will be spent in enlarging terminal facilities.

In the party were: W. A. Gardiner, president; J. T. Clark, vice president; A. W. Trenholm, general manager; S. G. Strickland, general superintendent; T. W. Kennedy, superintendent; H. M. Pearce, freight traffic manager; George H. Mac-Rae, assistant general passenger agent, and George Blondel, general roadmaster.

While plans for proposed improvements are not fully matured, they are far enough along to give assurance that they will be carried out this spring and summer. The betterment of the train service probably will be brought about within the next thirty days. This betterment will be in the service between Duluth and Chicago, and doubtless will consist in an additional train being put in service, making two passenger trains a day each way. There will also be changes in the time of trains.

The cost of the 100 miles is estimated at $6,000,000, there being much rock work and many miles of the road will cost $70,000 a mile. The largest bridge will be that across the inlet to Kaien Island which will be 1,200 feet long, with a central span of 300 feet.

DEMOCRATS ARE ACTIVE

Keen Contest in North Dakota Over Presidential Indorsement.

Next Week's Convention Promises to be a Lively One.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—County conventions of the Democrats of North Dakota are being held in every section of the state this week and the contest for the control of the various delegations being waged between the Johnson and the Bryan followers is keen. The state convention is less than a week off, and this fact has aroused the Democrats to action in all sections. The convention will, judging from present indications, be the largest every held by the party in North Dakota, as the interest awakened since the fight on the presidential nomination is widespread and means that every county in the state will be here with a full delegation.

There has been considerable discussion of late as to the possible chair-

SUPPOSED TO BE A MINE OWNER

Man Arrested, for Stealing Jewelry, is J. E. Boeck.

San Francisco, March 19.—The man arrested here yesterday by detectives on the strength of a photograph as J. Edward Burke, a New York jewery buyer, wanted for theft of $165,000 worth of pearls and diamonds, is J. E. Boeck, and that for the past year he has been in Nevada where he was supposed to be a wealthy mine owner.

He became interested in a mine in connection with J. H. Seamans of Reno and Goldfield, and visited this city recently in company with Seamans, when the two occupied apartments together at the hotel.

On two occasions Seamans reported to the police of this city the loss of jewelry from his apartments. Once in Reno Seamans permitted Boeck to have the key to his safe deposit box, on the pretext that he wished to deposit mining stock therein. It has been discovered by Seamans that $20,000 worth of jewelry belonging to his wife is missing from the box.

Seamans last night identified Burke as Boeck and when pawn tickets aggregating $2,000 were found on Boeck's person by the detectives and the jewelry they represented traced to the pawnshop, it was found to be Seamans' jewerly.

Boeck says that he is willing to go back to New York to face the charges against him there without extradition papers.

DISCUSSION OVER REPORT

Of Wage Scale Committee Occupying Attention of Miners.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 19.—The convention of the United Mine Workers of America today took up by sections the report of the scale committee submitted late yesterday afternoon. This report recommended that the miners be allowed to sign a new wage scale with the operators by districts, the minimum demand to be the present wage scale and conditions and local differences to be adjusted by the district conventions. The adoption of the report will practically continue for another year beginning April 1 the same conditions that have prevailed during the past two years, with the exception that the operators must sign by districts and not individually.

The first question raised in the discussion of the committee report today was whether districts would be permitted to sign a scale with the operators prior to April 1 when the present scale expires. It was stated by members of the committee that such was intended to be the tenor of the report, and it was adopted. Discussion of the first sections of the report of the committee indicated that it would continue for several hours at least, and that the report as submitted to the convention would be adopted.

The convention changed the place of its next meeting from St. Louis to Indianapolis.

RATE OF DISCOUNT

Of the Bank of England is Reduced to 3 Per Cent.

London, March 19.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England was reduced today from 3½ to 3 per cent.

Beyond causing a feeling of cheerfulness, the announcement of the reduction made little improvement in prices, dealers in consols having discounted this step yesterday in advancing the quotations in these securities by nearly half a point. American shares, which started weak, improved to well over parity in anticipation that the lower discount rate would cause a firm opening in New York.

MEN LAID OFF.

Nashville, Tenn., March 19.—Five hundred men who were employed in the locomotive department of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway shops here, have been laid off in the last few days. Orders were issued to the effect that on account of decrease in business and the intention of the road to decrease expenses on every hand, the action was necessary.

LEGISLATION PROPOSED BY THE PRESIDENT NOT ACCEPTABLE TO LABOR

SETH LOW,
President of the Civic Federation, Whose Conference With President Gompers in Trying to Arrange for Legislation Acceptable to Labor, Was Without Result.

Difference of Opinion is Threatening to Overthrow Program.

Conference Between Low and Gompers Was Unavailing.

President Will Not Urge Legislation to Indorse Boycott.

Washington, March 19.—Details of the conference held between Seth Low of New York, president of the Civic Federation, and Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, which are slowly coming to light, indicate that labor is not yet committed to legislation about to be urged by President Roosevelt along the lines recommended by the Civic Federation. That there is a difference of opinion that threatens to overturn the program was learned from an authoritative source.

Mr. Low is said to have returned to New York much discouraged. He had expected to be able to harmonize the points on which the labor interests, represented by Mr. Gompers, failed to conform with the program of the Civic Federation.

Officials Withhold Support.

The officials of the American Federation of Labor are said to be withholding their support from the pro-

Miss Crawford, who is well-to-do, says that Butler's parents died when he was a boy. He was brought up in her father's family. She got to entertain such a motherly feeling for him that she determined to have him as a son.

HUMMEL A FREE MAN

Once Famous Criminal Lawyer Released From Prison.

Whirled Away in Auto on Arrival in New York.

New York, March 19.—Abraham H. Hummel, the lawyer who was sentenced to serve a year in the penitentiary for conspiracy in connection with the Dodge-Morse divorce case, was released from prison today. His term was reduced to about ten months by the allowances made for good behavior. Hummel had been notified that he could leave the island on the workhouse boat at 7 o'clock this morning, but he chose to wait until a little later, when the regular boat would make a special trip across the river for him. Dressed in dark clothes of the latest style, which he had ordered in anticipation of his release, Hummel entered the boat in company of his nephew, Abraham H. Haffenburg. Arriving at the pier on the New York shore they made a quick dash to a waiting automobile and were whirled away before anyone could put a question to Hummel. It is said that arrangements have been made by Hummel's friends for him to sail for Europe within a few days. His health has been very poor since he has been in the penitentiary and it is in hopes that it may be restored that the proposed European trip is to be undertaken.

CHINESE LOSE THEIR LIVES

Two Laundrymen Missing After Fire Destroys Place of Business.

Pittsburg, March 9.—A Chinese laundry, at Ben Avon, a suburb, was destroyed by fire early today and the proprietors, Pop Lee and Jim Young, are believed to have been burned to death. Efforts to find the Chinamen have been futile. The fire was caused by a sudden pressure of gas.

Running through the streets a citizen awakened other residents in time to save their homes from possible destruction by fire, as the gas pressure was general. In a number of homes the stoves were found to be white hot and the walls ready to burst into flames.

TWO PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Alleged Wreckers of the Ladysmith Bank Held for Trial.

Cashier of Bank Will Enter His Plea in the West.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 19.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Madison, Wis., says: G. E. Newman, president of the Ladysmith National bank, a wrecked institution, and Former Assemblyman Leroy McGill, vice president of the bank, both indicted by the federal grand jury here, on the charge of making false bank reports to the United States government, appeared before Judge A. L. Sanborn today and entered a plea of not guilty. The trial will be held at Eau Claire in June. Bail of $2,000 was furnished.

J. A. Corbett, cashier of the bank, who was also indicted, is in the state of Washington, and arrangements are made for him to enter his plea out there without coming here until June.

PSYCHOLOGY OF BONNETS

Will be Discussed by Milliners at Chicago Convention.

Chicago, March 19.—The psychology of bonnets is the chief subject of consideration at the convention of the National Milliners' association today and tomorrow in the Masonic temple here, according to Mme. Hunt, president of the association. In making the announcement, President Hunt said:

"There certainly is a psychology of hats, entirely aside from the facts that the souls of the majority of women are in their hats. If every woman would only look in the glass when trying on hats, and instead of giving her undivided attention to the hat would study the outline of her face as seen under the hat, she would then look with scientific approval or disapproval upon the hat. So few women do that, you know. Fit the hat or bonnet to the face and you will always look up-to-date and be a fashion plate, not only in one's own fancy but in the public's eye as well."

Mme. Hunt then said the chief object of the convention will be to impress that very thing on the milliners present from every part of the country.

A READING DIVIDEND.

Philadelphia, March 19.—The directors of the Reading company declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent on the second preferred stock.

"DUTCH JOHN" HEYMAN SHOT

Is Man Who Prepared "Chuck" Wagon Breakfast for President.

Hugo, Colo., March 19.—John Heyman, familiarly known as "Dutch" John, who became celebrated as the man who prepared the famous "chuck wagon" breakfast for President Roosevelt on his last western trip, was probably fatally shot here last night in a quarrel with two men. He was taken to a hospital in Denver for treatment. Deputy Sheriff Lou Brockway and Bert Cook had words with Heyman, who was employed as watchman at the Union Pacific station. It is said that Cook drew a revolver on Heyman and while the latter was disarming Cook, a shot was fired at him. The bullet penetrated his body. Brockway is under arrest charged with firing the shot.

FLOOD HITS PITTSBURG AND NEARBY POINTS WITH SURPRISING SUDDENNESS

Water in Rivers Reaches Danger Point and Rises Rapidly.

All Streams on Rampage; Streets and Cellars Flooded.

But Few People in Lowlands Able to Save Goods.

Pittsburg, March 19.—With surprising suddenness another flood of the rivers is being experienced in Pittsburg and vicinity today.

At 10 o'clock this morning the stage reached the danger mark of twenty-two feet, and the water was rising seven-tenths an hour.

According to the local United States weather bureau a possible stage of thirty-three feet is expected here early tomorrow.

If the prediction of the forecaster materializes, the suffering and damage that will result to this city and vicinity will be wholesale. Should thirty-three feet of water come, it will lack but three and a half feet of the great flood of March 15 last.

All small streams are on the rampage today. Streets and cellars in the suburbs are covered with water. High gum boots, improvised rafts and small skiffs are at a premium. Thousands of women and children are prisoners in their homes.

The lowlands of this city are inundated, and owing to the quickness with which the high water came, few persons were able to take the precaution of saving valuable goods.

Railroad schedules are badly disarranged on account of the water and heavy landslides.

SKIP FALLS DOWN SHAFT

One Man Killed, Two Injured at Old Osceola Mine.

Calumet, Mich., March 19.—One man was killed today and two seriously injured by a falling skip down No. 6 shaft of the old Osceola mine, the cable attached to the car breaking and precipitating the car and its contents several hundred feet on three men working below. Frank Samanski is dead. John Rodetta is severely injured and may not live.

WORKMEN FIGHT HIGH IN THE AIR

St Louis, March 19.—Charles Haviland and Albert Hale, iron workers, fought on the iron girders on the sixteenth story of the new National Bank of Commerce building at Pine street and Broadway yesterday. The interference of others saved them from falling to the street. For five minutes the battle waged on a steel beam eighteen inches wide. Haviland was severely cut about the face and had to be treated at the dispensary.

RUSSIAN IS ARRESTED

By Chicago Police on Suspicion of Being Bomb Thrower.

Believed to Have Sought Life of Czar at St. Petersburg.

Chicago, March 19.—A morning paper today says: Suspected of having sought the life of the czar by throwing a bomb at the Tsarskoe Selo palace in St. Petersburg, more than a month ago, Ankodine Ziteso, late of Kishinev, was taken into custody yesterday by the Chicago police.

The crime the police believe Ziteso guilty of took place within twenty yards of the palace. The instrument of destruction was thrown by a man closely resembling Ziteso. The bomb fell short of its mark and exploded, killing three civilians.

The bomb-thrower apparently vanished. The Russian secret police, however, claim to have traced him to New York, and then to Chicago, where they assert he lived at 646 Austin avenue. Ziteso was arrested at that address.

Repeated efforts of the police officials to examine Ziteso were futile. Although the man cannot speak English, an interpreter who questioned him in Russian could learn nothing.

At the Austin avenue house it was learned that Ziteso had lived there apparently without friends, but was well supplied with money. He did no work, and spent the greater portion of his time reading in his own room.

KING HAAKON'S NEW CABINET

The late ministry resigned last week because a vote in parliament showed it could retain office only by favor of the coalition parties, which it was not willing to do.

DENIED BY PRESIDENT

Executive Says He Never Engaged Man Named Archibald.

Who Claims He Was Sent to Investigate Coast Defenses.

Washington, March 19.—Secretary of the Navy Metcalf and Admiral Capps were among those who appeared today before the submarine boat investigating committee, to testify in relation to the charges made by Representative Lilley of Connecticut, that wrongful methods had been used by the Electric Boat company to secure legislation in congress. The committee had planned in consonance with the request of Representative Hobson, to call Mr. Hobson's secretary, Edgar Clarkson, as the first witness today, but the appearance of the secretary of the navy and Admiral Capps in response to invitations from the committee changed this plan.

Both Secretary Metcalf and Admiral Capps brought with them navy department documents and records as requested by the committee.

Affidavit Presented.

Mr. Lilley presented to the committee an affidavit, signed by Clement E. Adams and dated Bridgeport, Conn., March 13, 1908, in which Mr. Adams swears that while he was engaged in business in the city of Washington, during the summer of 1906, J. F. Archibald, represented to him that he was a war correspondent for Collier's Weekly and that he had been appointed by the president of the United States to visit certain cities and towns on the Pacific coast and to report to the president upon the condition of the coast defenses in that section. M'EWEN MAY LOSE $2,700

As Result of Effort to Help Former Inspe McDermott.

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Sp The Herald.)—William E. seems to be in a fair way to $2,700 as a result of the report lic Examiner Anton Schaefer c crepancy of $6,199.75 in the acc John A. McDermott, former s inspector. Mr. McEwen, on his own statement, tried to slip into the state treasury $2,700 which the public examiner said Mr. McDermott did not have any right to.

Mr. McEwen certified under oath that the $2,700 was current inspection fees and it appears that way on his books, and naturally also on the books of the state treasurer and the state auditor. Mr. McEwen says now that he was only fooling when he put that in his records, but C. C. Dinehart, state treasurer, and S. G. Iverson, state auditor, decline to juggle their records. They insist that the records show that the $2,700 is all inspection fees collected by Mr. McEwen. They assert that there is still $2,700 coming from Mr. McDermott, and that the $2,700 that Mr. McDermott gave to McEwen to put back in the treasury must stay there. The only way Mr. McEwen can get it back is by act of the legislature.

TO LIE BESIDE FIRST LOVERS

Bodies of Dead Couple to be Buried Near Former Spouses.

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although deeply devoted to each other during the eight years of their married life, Louis and Mary Larson of 257 Forquer street, Chicago, are each to be buried beside their first loves. Mr. Larson is the father of James A. Larson, assistant secretary of state.

Mrs. Larson, who was 49 years old, died of pneumonia Monday morning at 6:30 o'clock at the Larson residence, and her husband, who was 79 years old, overcome by grief and worry, succumbed to the same disease at 3 p. m. Tuesday within thirty-three hours.

In accordance with a compact between the couple, Mrs. Larson's body will be buried Thursday in Forest Home cemetery beside that of her first husband, Charles Coban, while the body of Mr. Larson will be interred in Graceland cemetery on Friday in a grave beside that of Amelia Erickson-Larson, his first wife.

STRAIGHT FOR THE MILK

Was Fly Going Carrying on Its Legs 100,000 Diseased Bacteria.

New York, March 1.—That the woman who wishes to prevent typhoid fever and various infantile diseases, in her family, will do well to make a large investment in window and door screens for the coming summer, was one of the lessons the women at the meeting of the food investigation committee of the Consumers' league learned yesterday afternoon.

"Flies are among the most dangerous of disease conveyors," Dr. John B. Huber told the audience, "and one fly which was examined was carrying on its legs 100,000 diseased bacteria and making straight for a bottle of milk.

"That was the testimony of Dr. Jackson, the expert. Flies spend their days gathering up germs and get into houses at night to distribute infection in food," Dr. Huber said.

"Typhoid is an autumnal disease appearing most frequently in October and looking back it will be found that flies were most prevalent at the time of its inception."

Fire was discovered about 8 o'clock this morning in the two-story frame dwelling house at 2?6 Wellington street, owned and occupied by Josias Mackowiak. The roof was burned off and the building badly gutted. Much of the furniture was ruined by fire and water. The damage could not be estimated, but it is only partially covered by insurance.

Were McEwen's Methods in Turning Over McDermott's Moneys.

St. Paul, March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today State Oil Inspector W. E. McEwen said that his books, showing the money paid by Mr. McDermott, were open for inspection, and as far as he was concerned he was satisfied with his position, no matter what stand was taken by the treasurer or any other officials.

"What I did in the premises, and the method in which the shortage was covered into the treasury," said Mr. McEwen, "was done after a conference with Public Examiner Schaefer, and later with the knowledge and full approval of Governor Johnson. No one can accuse me of subterfuge in this matter. Everything has been proper and above board, and my books and receipts show the moneys in question to have been turned into the treasury."

William C. Heilbron, special examiner of the public examiner's department, was seen today and questioned respecting the charge that there had been considerable delay over the investigation of Mr. McDermott's books. He said:

"On Nov. 4 last, the secretary of state wrote Mr. Schaefer, the public examiner, requesting him to make an examination of the oil inspector's department during Mr. McDermott's incumbency. Mr. Schaefer turned the matter over to me and authorized the investigation. A few days later I called on Mr. McDermott and requested that the books and records of his office be turned over to me.

"He requested me to wait a few days, and I did so. He kept putting me off from time to time, until Dec. 31. I wrote an official letter to Mr. Schaefer notifying him that I could not get the books and records. I requested some action be taken on his part, and in response, on or about Jan. 6, I received the books and records. A few days later I informed Mr. Schaefer that there were certain discrepancies in Mr. McDermott's books.

"The examination was delayed because of the lack of certain records, and these had to be duplicated by reports from deputies. This accounts for a large part of sixty days in completing the report. As a matter of fact, the report was completed on or about March 5. I simply make this statement in justice to Mr. Schaefer, who was not in anywise responsible for the slightest delay in the examination."

TWO BOYS DROWNED.

Amherst Junction, Wis., March 19.—Fred and William Miller, 13 and 9 years old, respectively, sons of Louis Miller, were drowned yesterday while playing on the ice of a pond near here.

Women Outlive Men.

Statistics gathered during the past ten years in the United Kingdom show that the women who lived over a hundred years exceeded the men by nearly 85 per cent. Long life in either sex, however, is largely a matter of health, and the odds are entirely in favor of the robust. For those who are sickly and delicate, we recommend a fair trial of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and if its wonderful record of cures during the past 54 years means anything, it certainly means that it will greatly benefit you also. It is well worth the trial, at any rate. We guarantee every bottle absolutely pure, so there need be no hesitancy in trying it in cases of sick headache, bloating, heartburn, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, colds, grippe, female ills, or spring fever. It is for sale by all druggists, grocers and dealers.

TAUGHT SON HOW TO FIGHT.

In the March American Magazine Lincoln Steffens writes of "U'Ren, the Law-Giver," the legislative blacksmith of Oregon and the tools he has fashioned for Democracy.

"As a boy," says Mr. Steffens, "William U'Ren didn't fight. But when, at Nevadaville, Colo., David Radcliff called Willie U'Ren a liar. Willie consulted his father. The father reflected a moment, then said in a way the boy never forgot:

"'Never hunt a fight, boy, but never run from one; never suffer a wrong or injustice.'

"The next day Willie U'Ren hunted the fight he had avoided. He found Davie; Davie didn't care to fight then. But another boy accommodated Willie. Johnnie Badger, the fighter of the school, licked Willie that day; and the next; and the next. Willie came back for his daily licking till his father happened to hear of it.

"'What's the matter, William?' he asked. 'Can't you lick that boy?'

"'Not yet,' said William, 'but I will some day.'

"The father took his boy in hand, taught him how to use his fists and—Willie went to school and licked Johnnie Badger. 'And then,' U'Ren says, 'we became good friends.'"

GOOD WORK BEING DONE

Friday Will End Y. M. C. A. Campaign for New Members.

Committees About 200 Short of the Desired Number.

Kilchil	120
Taylor	61

Fenton	108
Thompson	98
MacGregor	113
Ross	55
Miser	43

Total	770

Tomorrow is the last day of grace in the Y. M. C. A.'s campaign for new members. Up to this noon, the committee having charge of the work had succeeded in landing 770 applications, and hoped to at least touch the 800 mark by tonight. The names given are those of chairmen of the committees.

To reach the 1,000 mark, the workers will have to get 230 applications tomorrow. They will put forth every effort to accomplish this, and hope, by leaving no stone unturned, to get the required number. A good many possible applicants have been holding off until the last minute and it is hoped there will be enough to swell the grand total to 1,000.

After tomorrow, March 20, yearly membership in the Y. M. C. A. will cost $12, but prospective members have until Friday night to get in under the old basis of $6 a year. This is considered remarkably low, in view of the advantages that will be offered in the new building.

ARE TURNING AWAY GUESTS

All the Principal Hotels in Duluth Are Crowded.

Every large hotel in the city was crowded with guests last night. Shortly after 6 o'clock last evening, the St. Louis began turning prospective guests away. Some of the help gave up their rooms to accommodate the regular patrons of the hotel.

It was almost the same at the Lenox. That hotel has been filled throughout the week, and last night every room was taken. The Spalding was comfortably filled also last night, although it was not found necessary to turn any one away.

The McKay found it necessary to shift some of the "fixtures" of the establishment to make room for some of the people who applied for lodging. There is an unusually large number of commercial travelers in town at the present time, which accounts for the large number of guests at the hotels.

DULUTH MAN IS "LEADING LADY"

At Amateur Performance Given at Theater in Chicago.

BIG SHOVE TO FRONT

Given to Prosperity the World Over During Past Week.

Financial Situation is Reported Better Than for Three Years.

New York, March 18—Prosperity received a great shove to the front during the past week all over the world, and especially in the United States.

The financial situation is far better than it has been at any time for the last three years. The volume of currency ready to be used is greater than at any period in the history of the United States, and all that is now holding in check business activities is the lingering fear of the bankers as to demands upon them from depositors, this causing holding up of funds that should be doing work in the channels of commerce.

Their fears are unfounded, and as each day passes they will see more clearly that their dangerous hour has passed for years to come.

The volume of currency in this country today is at a maximum. The volume of business has been reduced far below the volume which the amount of currency available can safely sustain. We have today the reverse of the situation of 1906 and 1907. Instead of business being above the safety line it is now far less than can be safely carried by our currency issues.

It is now sure to improve and continue to improve with absolute safety for years to come. If the late stringency caused loss to some it has brought useful lessons to the bankers and to business men generally. It will, for a long time in the future, produce good results to the country at large as the currency of the people will not be placed at the disposal of promoters of the large cities, as it has been for the past five years. The surplus and reserve funds of the financial institutions of the interior will find employment nearer home, and such employment will do far more for the growth and prosperity of the country than if in the hands of the stock and real estate speculators of the largest cities.

On a Safer Basis.

The business of the country will be transacted on a safer basis for the next four years than for the four years last past, as many abuses of finance have been exposed, and if not now corrected can at least be avoided.

Again, the steady increase in the production of gold will soon produce another increase in prices, and this inevitable result will stimulate activities and at the same time protect investors from loss of recorded values to a very great extent.

Four hundred millions of dollars, new money, coming each year out of the earth, will break the back of any bad times in any two years. Such worldwide and prolonged periods of commercial and financial distress as the world experienced in 1857, 1873 and 1893 cannot exist in face of these new conditions of large money supply by nature. An adverse wind may lower the tide for a brief period, but the rush of the ocean is all the greater when it returns.

The world has accepted gold as the standard of value, and that standard is increasing in quantity every hour of the day and night.

It will continue to increase as mine after mine is opened up, each one adding its contribution to the funds of the world.

Twelve months from now the whirl of last October, caused by the vacuum at New York, will be as far in the past, measuring by its effect upon existing conditions, as the South sea bubble of George Law.

The railways are doing better this month, and this week, quick to recognize the bettering of commercial and financial affairs, the managers have ordered many renewals of construction work, much repairing of tracks, cars and motive power.

Cotton Improving.

Cotton is doing still better, and steel and iron are more active, while far below their great record of last year. The next thirty days will witness a rebound from the conditions of January, as marked and as complete as was the depression of November. The Bank of England this week, in its returns, showed plainly the necessity to all bankers who love a profit to put out their money. More than £900,000 sterling increase in reserve for one week and the discount rate only 3½ per cent per annum was a shot that went around the world and has shattered high money rates from London to Bengal. The prediction is now made by well-posted financiers that a 2½ per cent discount rate in London will be operative by June next.

Low money rates in Europe mean continued purchases of American productions, extensive buying of American securities and rapid lowering here of rates for money as we add Europe's gold to our own steadily increasing production of the metal. In this situation it is nonsense to think for a moment that this country is going to have dull times this year. Given our normal crops, we will have as good times by autumn as we had in 1906 and 1907. With bumper crops and our greater volume of currency, which we have assured, business will break all records this fall and winter. It will get better with every month of spring and summer. It has been for three months only checked by the timidity and fear of the bankers, and those factors are rapidly disappearing.

Good Premiums.

The state of New York on Wednesday last offered for sale $5,000,000 4 per cent state highway improvement bonds and the offers to purchase aggregated $51,950,000 or more than sixteen times the amount of the bonds offered. The bonds brought from 106.456 to 109. The premiums on the bonds amounted to more than $400,000 net to the state. Could there be anything more indicative of the pressure of money for investment than this statement of prices and offerings for these bonds? Railway men are once more able to arrange large financial offerings, and, with the rapid enrollment of labor upon pay lists of active work, the demands of larger consumption will return to the various branches of trade.

Thirty days' absorption of cotton goods at the same rate of the spring of 1907 would put every mill in New England upon full time, and it more than probable that by May 15, such absorption will be in full progress.

Building operations all over the country are feeling the benefit that comes with the spring, and interviews with contractors and material men from the South, the West and from Atlantic states all certify to improvement and look well for greater work in the near future.

The steel interests and their allies, the machinery manufacturers, are finding the large foreign demand to be particularly good, and the benefit of this foreign trade by giving it the same attention as has been devoted to our home customers, and once we have control or even a fair share of the foreign demand for our manufactures it will, as it is doing even now, keep mills and factories running when home demand slackens materially. The motto should be: No neglect of home trade, but active cultivation of the trade we can obtain from customers abroad.

WITNESSES SENT TO WOODS

Men Who Complained Against Agents Are Given Work.

The witnesses who appeared before the council last Monday night to make complaints against the methods of certain employment offices in Duluth, have been sent to the woods.

The special committee appointed by the council to investigate the employment office frauds, held a meeting last evening, and the agents agreed to either send the men to work at once or refund their money.

The committee will make a report to the council Monday evening.

AN UNCERTAIN COMPLIMENT.

Kansas City Times: James J. Hill, the railway magnate, on a recent visit to Kansas City, said of a certain rise in stock quotations:

"It looks well, but I am afraid it is dubious. Yes, it is dubious. It reminds me of the Turkish bashaw and his wife.

"A Turkish bashaw lay dying. He summoned to him the youngest and fairest of his forty-six wives, and said to her in a low, weak voice:

"'Put on your richest costume, your most brilliant jewels. Deck your hair with pearls, brighten your finger tips with henna.'

"The young wife blushed. Even in her grief she was flattered.

"'And why, my lord,' she said, 'do you desire me to make this sumptuous toilet?'

"'So that Death, when he comes,' the man replied, 'seeing you so very beautiful, may perhaps carry you off instead of me.'"

The Crest of Quality

THE above stamp stands for the top-notch of garment value. It means suitable materials carefully selected, both visible and invisible. It insures perfection of cut and a skillful assembling of the parts to procure grace of outline, smoothness of detail and durability which every careful dresser demands. Therefore, when you buy a garment bearing our label, you are not spending your good money for experience, but rather for the pleasurable consciousness of being faultlessly attired. At the same time, the prices are no higher than you would pay elsewhere—except when the goods have more quality; then it pays twice over to pay the difference.

As a rule, our prices are lower for equal quality goods—they are never lower than good quality can be sold for, nor higher than good quality should be sold for.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

MRS. MARY MEYER.

MRS. MARY MEYER, Thomson Avenue, near Shell Road, Winfield, L. I., N. Y., writes:

"I have been annoyed with a cough for years. Often it was so bad that I could not sleep half the night. Many people thought I had consumption.

Consumption Was Feared

"A woman recommended Peruna to me two years ago. I began to take Peruna, and now I am perfectly free from a cough. I am glad to say that Peruna cured me entirely.

"I take Peruna occasionally, when I do not feel well, and I also give it to my children.

"Peruna is the best medicine for coughs and colds. I have told many people how much Peruna has helped me."

Mrs. Hettie Green, R. R. No. 6, Iuka, Ill., writes as follows of the efficacy of Peruna:

"Last November I had catarrh and felt so miserable I thought that I would go into consumption.

"I tried so many doctors and medicines, but nothing did me any good, only Peruna.

"After I began the use of Peruna I began to improve in every way. My head did not hurt so much, my stomach is all right, my bowels are regular, my appetite good, my complexion clear, my eyes are bright and am gaining in flesh and strength.

"I think Peruna has no equal as a catarrh remedy."

Peruna tends to lessen the cough, decreases the expectoration, strengthens the patient, increases the appetite and in many cases procures sound, refreshing sleep.

MISS BEULAH B. BROOKE.

Miss Beulah B. Brooke, 409 12th St., N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have suffered from weak lungs and catarrhal troubles for four years brought on by many neglected colds, but on the recommendation of a friend I gave Peruna an honest trial and I am pleased to state that it restored me to perfect health. There is not the slightest trace of catarrh in my system and my lungs are perfectly sound.

Weak Lungs for Years

"I unhesitatingly give this testimonial."

Mrs. William Hohmann, 569 N. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child. After a while it got so bad I had to cough both winter and summer. Finally, I burst a blood vessel in my throat from the strain of coughing, next a blood vessel in my stomach, so I kept getting worse and doctoring, and even then could get no relief. I thought, and everybody else, that I had consumption.

"Reading the papers about Peruna I decided to try it, without the least bit of hope that it would do me any good. But after taking three bottles I noticed a change. My appetite got better, so I kept on, never got discouraged.

"Finally I seemed not to cough so much, and the pains in my chest got better. I am well now. I cannot tell you how grateful I am, and I cannot thank Peruna enough. It has cured where doctors have failed. People who think their consumption better give it a trial."

MISS JOSIE SCHAETZEL.

Miss Josie Schaetzel, General Delivery, Appleton, Wisconsin, writes:

"I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs in very short order, and it was not long until it developed into a serious case of catarrh. Every morning I would raise a lot of phlegm, which was very disagreeable. My digestion was poor and my lungs sore.

"After a few doses of Peruna I began to mend, and felt that if I kept on taking it, it would not be long until I would be well. I was right, for in four weks I was well again.

Consumption Prevented

"I think Peruna is a grand medicine, and wish to add my testimony to the many others you have."

The fight against consumption is becoming a national problem.

Everywhere we hear of sanitariums established at the expense of the state for the treatment of the vast army of consumptives.

The open air treatment, fresh air and sunlight, are recognized by the medical profession generally as being the greatest necessities in the treatment of consumption in all its stages.

Dr. Hartman has for many years advocated the fresh air treatment for consumption. At the same time he has recognized Peruna as a useful palliative for the many distressing symptoms which accompany the white plague.

The promptness with which Peruna relieves a fresh cold, and even removes chronic colds, is well known. This ranks Peruna as a reliable prophylactic against consumption.

CHILDREN ARE EXPOSED

Horace Mann School to be Fumigated by Health Officials.

Many Lakeside People Submit to Ordeal of Vaccination.

Between running down cases of smallpox reported by suspicious people, fumigating exposed places and vaccinating exposed people, the health department officials are jumping sideways taking care of smallpox. There is no epidemic, but several cases of dangerous exposure have been reported and every precaution is being taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

The Horace Mann school, Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street, will be fumigated Saturday morning. Two cases of smallpox have been reported in that district this week and one family had several children attending the school. There is no particular cause for alarm, but precautionary measures will be taken, nevertheless. The school will be thoroughly fumigated Saturday morning, and when the children return Monday all danger of smallpox will have disappeared.

Scratches are quite the thing in Lakeside. The discovery of a series of cases of smallpox in the Enquist family at Forty-eighth avenue east has aroused the entire district as the exposure was dangerous. The Lakeside school has been thoroughly fumigated and residents in the suburb, who cannot show a good scar, have had physicians inoculate them with virus. The health department officials are keeping a close watch on Lakeside and, with no more exposure, no spread of the disease is expected.

"People don't consider their neighbors in dealing with smallpox and fail to report the disease," said Dr. Murray this morning. "Fully 90 per cent of the cases brought to our attention are reported by neighbors of the victims. People fear quarantine more than smallpox and the result is they endanger everybody with whom they come in contact."

NO BOOZE IN COUNTY JAIL

Charlie Mitchell Can Keep Straight in Just One Place.

Charlie Mitchell knows of but one place where he can't get booze. Just out of the county jail last week after a sixty day term, he goes back today for sixty days more. He just can't leave the red stuff alone when he is unfettered. He had only been out of jail two days last week, when he was arrested for vagrancy. The judge thought he ought to have a chance, so he was let go. This morning, he was back in court. His condition was terrible when he was picked up yesterday. The booze had all the better of him and he couldn't navigate. He weakly murmured something this morning about breaking his violin and quitting music, by which he makes his living, but the booze has too firm a hold on him and he's a wreck. He'll drink no more for sixty days, though.

William Quirk shook life a leaf in a gale as he arose to answer to his name. He pleaded guilty to drunkenness, but his voice didn't need to make the plea. His head was swathed in bandages and he was undoubtedly sick. He said he had an operation on his head at the hospital yesterday and took a drink of booze afterwards to steady his nerves. It didn't take much to knock him out and he went under hurriedly. He pleaded for a chance to get out this morning, but the court thought a short term and the services of a doctor would be more merciful and he was given five days in the county jail.

George Thrana is a subject for the Uplift society. He's a clean-cut fellow, with his fondness for drink his only fault. He provides well for his family, treats them kindly and works pretty regularly, but he can't control his thirst. He was given a sentence of $10 or ten days and an effort will probably be made to straighten him out.

NEVER REACHED BUTTE.

Pat Moran Killed While Beating His Way to Western Town.

Larimore, N. D., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patrick Moran, aged about 31 years, and said to have relatives in Chicago, was killed here last night while trying to beat his way to Butte, Mont., on the Oriental Limited of the Great Northern. Moran and another patron of the brake beams had boarded the train at Grand Forks. When the train pulled up at the water tank here after leaving the depot the cars came together with a jolt that hurled Moran from his position on the trucks and he fell under the wheels, being caught before he could get out of the way. Both legs were taken off and Moran died from the shock and loss of blood, although he was carried into the depot and medical aid summoned. An effort is being made to locate his relatives.

The count's daughter-in-law is in St. Petersburg. She said today that she had received no notification of her father's illness and that she thought the reports were exaggerated.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The annual March banquet, which has come to be one of the delightful events of the early spring season, was given last evening by the women of Pilgrim Congregational church. The affair was a sunflower banquet, and in the detail of decoration and menu the brilliant color scheme suggested by the gay flower was carried out. The church parlors were made gay with numberless sunflowers of skillful manufacture. Tall birch bark baskets held clusters of the long-stemmed flowers. The walls and ceiling were festooned with them. Single blossoms were laid on the cloth and silver candelabra lighted the tables. The place cards were in the form of sunflowers in natural colors which opened to display the printed menu. In the salad and other details the flower which gave the banquet its name was suggested.

Presiding at the tables were Mesdames W. I. Prince, W. H. Cole, George Gray, Nichols, W. A. McGonagle, John Heimick, C. W. Ericson, Hart, E. D. Field, C. A. Duncan, Edward Berg, Oscar Mitchell, Van Wagner, N. J. Allen, Robert Smith, W. W. McMillan, M. Jenks, N. H. Maynard, Dr. Mary McCoy, Miss Roe, Miss Blodgett and Miss Lippett.

The list of toasts was most happily arranged. C. E. Lovett presided as toastmaster. "The Pacels Post" was the subject of the first toast by J. W. Reynolds. Letters from United States senators and men of national reputation were read as a part of this toast and were of much interest.

In response to a request sent out some weeks ago by the committee in charge on this question, replies were received from many men prominent in national life. In many cases an evasive reply was considered most diplomatic. In other cases the man was not reached, but directly or indirectly replies were received from Senator Jeff Davis, H. W. Watterson, Senator Moses E. Clapp, John A. Johnson, Booker T. Washington, Fred A. Busse, H. C. Lodge, Reed Smoot, W. B. Heyburn, J. Adam Bede and Knute Nelson. The reading of the replies was one of the most interesting features of the evening.

In his communication, Senator H. C. Lodge voiced his approval of the bill. He wrote tersely: "I can only say that I favor the parcels post recommendations of the postmaster general and shall vote for the bill embodying these recommendations if it comes up in the senate for action."

Booker T. Washington in a conditional answer "favors the scheme as being possible of more economical conduct in the hand of the government," although in his opinion "with the exception, perhaps, of the Panama canal, the most important achievements of our country have been the result of individual initiative and private enterprise."

Governor Johnson was unable to comply, "not only because of lack of time, but for the further reason that a single sentiment, unaccompanied by argument frequently leaves public men in a position entirely different from that which they intend to assume."

The above was also the view on limited expression of Senator Moses E. Clapp. Senator Knute Nelson thinks there is a sentiment against it in Minnesota.

W. B. Heyburn, United States senator, stated that he was opposed to parcels post legislation as now proposed. Reed Smoot said, "A general parcels post would be a menace to the further growth of the great West."

Replies were received from the secretaries of H. W. Watterson, Senator Jeff Davis and Mayor McClelland of New York, all of whom were unable to reply personally.

J. Adam Bede's reply was heard with especial interest, and it is given in full:

Your letter of March 2, asking for a few remarks on the question of 'Parcels Post' is to hand.

"Under the existing law, the post-office department is authorized to transmit packages weighing not more than four pounds.

"The general proposition now before congress and the country is, whether the size of the package to be transmitted shall be increased from four to eleven pounds. The country merchants stand unitedly against it on the ground that such policy would throw nearly all the business into the hands of the catalogue houses of the great cities. However, the popular sentiment seems strongly in favor of the suggested change in our postal laws.

"The local proposition is to carry parcels over the rural routes only, and such parcels would not necessarily be limited to eleven pounds, but might be of a considerably greater weight.

"The local parcels post could be easily installed, and seems very desirable from every point of view, as it would help the country merchant to reach his patrons, and at the same time increase the earnings of the route carrier, thus making it possible for the government to increase his pay without causing a deficit in the treasury.

"The only objection that has been raised to it is, if the carrier had his wagon loaded down with parcels, it would take him longer to deliver the mail, but this could doubtless be remedied by shortening the routes.

"The proposition for a general parcels post is more difficult of installation. It would in a measure turn mail coaches into express cars, and thereby cause millions of investment in the beginning, as the present cars have not the capacity for such business.

"Another difficuty is the vast extent of our continent, and the fact that Americans have not been educated to do public business by zones. If a parcels post were put on a paying basis without creating postal zones, so that a package could be sent from Duluth to Superior, or from Duluth to San Francisco for the same charge, then the postage would have to be placed so high that the express companies could underbid the government in the thickly populated Eastern state, while the government would get the losing business in the thinly populated Western states.

"It is quite probable, therefore, that if this system is ever installed it must be by zones, perhaps the same zones as the railroads now use in reckoning time.

"No other nation of any such extent has established a parcels post, and it is useless to use Switzerland or Germany for any comparisons, as their territory is relatively so small.

"I might state that the real cause of the opposition by the country merchant is that about half of all country purchases are now made of catalogue houses. This is true in regard to hardware, farm machinery, and other goods of that kind that are shipped by freight. If to this were added the convenience of sending dry goods by mail, the country merchant feels that he would be wiped off the earth, and that that would be a detriment even to the farmer himself.

"This whole movement is but one phase of the evolution of commercial life to which all interests will ultimately adapt themselves. For what the people want they finally get, and no one who has given careful study to the matter can still doubt that both a general and local parcels post will be worked out by the American people.

"With kind regards, I am, very truly,

J. ADAM BEDE."

"The Honest Sunflower 2" was the subject of a delightfully witty toast by Rev. Alexander Milne, pastor of the church, and the other speakers were Watson S. Moore, who had for his subject "The Outsider," and Dr. A. C. Taylor, who spoke on "The Home."

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. T. J. Davis, chairman of the committee at large, and Mrs. George Macomber, Mrs. A. W. Frick, Mrs. A. E. Walker, Mrs. H. B. Paul, Mrs. W. J. Stevenson, Mrs. M. L. Jenks, Mrs. Edward Paddock and Mrs. Shultz.

LAST MEETING.

Ibsen Class Concludes Reading of "Peer Gynt."

The last meeting of the year of the Ibsen class of the Twentieth Century club was held this morning at the club room of the library. The reading and discussion of "Peer Gynt" was completed. The reader at this short course of Ibsen has been Miss Laura Frankenfield, and in her splendid interpretation of this difficult drama she has been most satisfying and the many members of the club who have attended the class conder it one of the finest courses ever offered by the club. A short course of Ibsen readings will be arranged for next year and the leader will be Mrs. Marvin McLaren.

Mrs. H. C. Marshall, for many years chairman of the Literature department of the club was re-elected unanimously at the short business meeting which followed the regular session.

Mrs. E. H. Loyhed of Faribault, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and a prominent club woman of the state, was a guest at this morning's meeting. Mr. Loyhed has been identified with the Federation work of the state for many years and she is well known to many of the local club women. She spoke very informally at the conclusion of the regular study this morning upon the value of club work and the place it is occupying in woman's life today.

Church Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the church parlors.

Church Concert.

Miss Freida Weenaas, soprano; Alex Enna, tenor; Oliver Colbentson, violinist, and Walter Smith, pianist, appeared in a concert last evening at the First Danish Norwegian Methodist church, and a large audience was present and greatly enjoyed the program presented by the musicians. Miss Weenaas was heard for the first time since her arrival in Duluth in the numbers, which included "Jerusalem," by Gounod, and two Greig numbers, she gave much pleasure. Mr. Enna's numbers, as usual, were well received and the program in its entirety was a worthy one.

Home Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Augusta L. Goetz, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. S. B. Goetz, and W. A. Nonnamaker, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 425 Sixth avenue east. The house was prettily decorated in green and white, and the marriage service was read, at 4 o'clock, by the bride's father. The wedding music was played by Miss Monetta Goetz, sister of the bride. The bride wore a pretty gown of cream-colored cloth and carried bride's roses. A wedding supper followed the ceremony. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. L. S. Stap of Minneapolis, aunt of the bride, and Rev. C. E. Maves of Superior.

Mr. Nonnamaker is a teacher of science in the Technical high school of the city, and with his bride will be at home in Duluth.

Dies in Canada.

Mrs. A. M. Angus of 418 Second avenue east left yesterday for Winnipeg. She was summoned there by the death of her sister, Mrs. A. L. Goodman, formerly of this city. Mrs. Goodman's death occurred suddenly at Stonybrook, Saskatchewan. Mrs. Angus will meet Mr. Goodman at Winnipeg, and they will take the remains to Ontario. Mrs. Goodman's former home, for burial. Mrs. Goodman was well known in Duluth, where she resided for several years, and her death will be a great shock to her many friends. During her residence in this city she was prominent in the church work of the First Methodist church.

Costume Party.

The costume party, last evening, at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association was a delightful affair and a large number of the members and their friends were present. The pleasing variety of the costumes added much to the pleasure of the evening, fifty of the guests appearing. The hostesses were: Miss Russell, assistant secretary, and Miss Frank, Miss May Bell, Miss Alice Drew and Miss Mary Ceska. An informal program was given, including musical numbers by Miss Elizabeth Morton and Miss Hyland and a reading by Miss Kathleen Watterworth.

The plan of seats for the Sembrich concert, to be given at the Methodist church, Tuesday evening, March 31, will be open to the advance subscribers only tomorrow at Chamberlain & Taylor's. Upon the following day the plan will be open to the general public. There is much interest in the concert, which will be one of the most important musical events of the season.

PRESIDENT WILL NOT MAKE FIGHT FOR PURDY.

Washington, March 19.—Should it be the purpose of Senator Knute Nelson to oppose to the point of preventing confirmation the appointment of Milton D. Purdy as district federal judge in Minnesota to succeed Judge William Lochren, there is a strong chance that the president may feel impelled to take up a new man. While the White House declines to discuss the matter, it is generally understood that the president would avoid such a fight as the senior Minnesota senator would be able to put up. Not that he lacks the courage, but rather because in his opinion the case is not on calling for extreme measures. Efforts will be made, it is said, in fact a movement in that direction has been under way for some time, to induce Senator Nelson to "let up" on his hostility to Purdy.

If these efforts are crowned with success, Purdy's name probably will go to the senate, but if they should rail, the president is more than likely to pick a new man.

POISON AND HANGING

West End Woman Makes Doubly Sure of Ending Life.

Is Found Dying by Her Sixteen-Year-Old Daughter.

After drinking a poison potion, the effects of which a human being could not survive, Mrs. Johanna Edin, 2132 West First street, became so afraid that her attempt at suicide would be unsuccessful that she hanged herself to a bed-post, with a strap, and was found in the agonies of death by her 16-year-old daughter, yesterday afternoon.

When she beheld her mother's plight, the girl swooned, but her first outcries brought other members of the household to Mrs. Edin's bedroom. They untied the strap which held her to the bed, and summoned Dr. C. L. Haney, but the efforts of the physician could not save her from the poison, and she died at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Edin had been suffering from heart trouble for some time and during the past week had been particularly miserable. However, at luncheon time yesterday she said she felt much better and insisted on arising from her bed and eating with the family.

During the meal, the ailing woman appeared to be very cheerful. She chatted pleasantly during the entire meal and gave those around her no reason to suspect that she was planning to end her life.

After luncheon, she retired to her bedroom, on the plea of resting, and a short time afterward, when her daughter, Tillie, went to inquire after her mother's condition, she found Mrs. Edin hanging to the bed post, a leather strap around her neck. The effect of the poison and the strap around her neck had cruelly distorted Mrs. Edin's face, and the sight proved too much for the girl. After she had recovered from her first faint, the girl could not be consoled, and the physicians found it necessary to administer to her as well as to her mother.

Although Mrs. Edin was released from her position and put under the care of the doctors, with all possible dispatch, it was impossible to save her life. She had not been hanging by the strap a great length of time, but the poison she swallowed had done its work. She drank a mixture of several poisons, although muriatic acid predominated. The empty bottle was found at her bedside.

For months Mrs. Edin had been suffering with heart trouble and her condition was such that physicians could not give her any hope of recovery. Despondency over her condition undoubtedly furnished the motive for suicide.

The coroner was notified and the remains were removed to an undertaking establishment.

Mrs. Edin was 50 years old. She leaves a husband, Hans Edin, three daughters, Mrs. Hulda Isaacson of Superior, Mrs. Jennie Oberg and Miss Tillie Edin, and one son, Hugo Edin, aged 10 years.

No funeral arrangements have been made as yet.

the deponent, Mr. Archibald said to him later, that he had visited certain cities and towns on the Pacific coast and had reported thereon to the president; that he had appeared before certain chambers of commerce, boards of trade and other associations of business men and citizens in various cities and towns and states on the Pacific coast, had addressed them upon the advantages to be gained by the purchase by the United States government of submarine torpedo boats and that certain petitions and addresses made to congress and the members thereof by those different organizations were caused by the efforts of Archibald. At a later period, according to the affidavit, Mr. Adams showed to Archibald a newspaper article on the subject of submarine torpedo boats wherein the Lake submarine boat was criticised and Archibald said that he was the author of the article; that he wrote the same, and that the criticism of the Lake boat therein contained was incited and caused by a request to him made by Lawrence Y. Spear, an officer of the Electric Boat company, and that the request was acceded to by Archibald because he (Archibald) was under obligations to Spear and the Electric Boat company.

Denied by President.

Accompanying the affidavit was the following letter from President Roosevelt denying that Archibald was ever appointed or employed by him or, as far as he knew, appointed or employed by any one connected with the administration:

"The White House, Washington, March 18, 1908.—My Dear, Mr. Lilly: Referring to our conversation of this morning, Mr. Archibald never was appointed or employed by me nor, so far as I know, was he ever appointed or employed by any one else connected with the administration. Some time about a year ago he came in and saw me for about two minutes and said that he was going to make an investigation of the questions of submarine defense on the Pacific, especially, I believe, in reference to Puget Sound, and that he was immensely interested in the subject, having been a war correspondent for various papers, and that he would like to send me a report of what he found. I answered him that, of course, I should be very glad to receive such a report from him or any other man who might investigate the subject. He sent me a letter on the subject some weeks later, which I transmitted to the secretary of the navy. I have transmitted dozens of similar letters from men who have told me of investigations that they have made or of facts they have found or suggestions which they believed were important. It is the usual course. It was followed in this instance exactly as in all other cases. Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

CLAIMS BREACH OF CONTRACT

American Carbolite Company Brings Suit to Recover $48,938.

The American Carbolite company has started an action in the district court of this county to recover $48,938.45 from the Electro Chemical & Developing company.

The amount sued for is based on two claims, one for $24,829.25, alleged to be due under the defendant company's agreement to pay all bills and liabilities incurred in the construction of the American Carbolite company's plant at West Duluth, and the second for the expense incurred for the productive materials and supplies now on hand.

The American Carbolite company claims that the Electro Chemical & Development company has failed to carry out its part of the contract, and that the plaintiff has been damaged to the extent of $48,938.45.

A writ of attachment on the defendant company's property was issued yesterday by Judge Dibell. The Electro company was incorporated in South Dakota.

JOHNSON IS THEIR HOPE

Washington People Look Upon Him as the Logical Candidate.

George D. Shepley Says He is Only Man Who Can Win.

George D. Shepley of Washington, who is at the Lenox today, says Minnesota's indorsement of John A. Johnson as its candidate for president, will meet with the approval of many of the conservative Democrats of the East, as well as many of the politicians of Washington.

"The East regards John A. Johnson as the logical candidate to oppose the Republican nominee," says Mr. Shepley. "Never before has William Jennings Bryan encountered the opposition that is opposing his nomination in the East. Other sections of the country are joining the cry of opposition that sees in the nomination of the 'Peerless leader' a foreordained defeat for the Democratic party."

Old line Democrats, according to Mr. Shepley, desire above anything to see the party united. They see a chance for victory with Johnson or Judge Gray, or possibly one of the other of the candidates as banner leader. But they want, above immediate victory, to see the party reinstated on the old lines of organization that obtained before Bryanism and free silver rent the party into two bitterly opposed factions.

Mr. Shepley believes that Johnson can carry a good majority in the New England states. He also believes that he will poll a large number of votes throughout the East. He is strong in the South. In the Northwest, Mr. Shepley believes that Minnesota's governor would run ahead of any candidate that the Republicans could nominate. What nominee, he asks, could poll as many votes as it is reasonably sure Johnson can secure?

"Eastern men have their eyes on Mr. Johnson," says Mr. Shepley. "They believe he is the only man who can lead the party to victory. They see in Bryan's nomination nothing but certain defeat. They believe that should Bryan see the wisdom of stepping aside and giving his support to the Johnson boom, the party would be reunited upon a solid basis, with the chances of victory the brightest since 1890. The Eastern wing of the party sees no possible chance of Mr. Bryan leading the party to victory.

"If John A. Johnson is nominated, and the East believes he will be if he will consent to allow his name to be used, both the conservative press and the conservative members of the party see a very good chance of a Democratic victory."

HORSES BREAK THROUGH ICE, BUT ARE RESCUED.

Onamia, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—T. D. Anderson and son, Tom, had quite an experience while hauling logs on the ice from Cove to Mayo's mill this week. Just at the entrance to Cove bay one of the teams broke through the ice, where there was about eight feet of water, but fortunately the team was unhitched from the load, and the other team was hitched to them and the horses that broke through were hauled out one at a time. The ice is unsafe to haul over now.

What Shall be Done to Effect Their Reformation?

To the Editor of The Herald:

What shall we do about all the wicked children that are growing up around us? I never heard, when I was a child, such filthy language as my children have heard when going and coming from school. West Duluth has many bad children, but it is not the only town or city that has them. Swearing is a common occurrence. How is it that there are such bad children? It is easy to find out. Parents do not try their best to improve their offspring, because, as a rule, they are also bad, and how can the bad teach the bad? To improve the bad children there should be a law that in the public school the law of God should be taught. Why should we allow these wicked children to grow up without any knowledge of God? When these children fall into sinful ways, who is to blame? The children are not to blame, but the blame will fall upon the school system, and upon parents, and if the parents are ignorant about the law and what is right, they can not be blamed. If anyone would go from family to family and inquire from the parents only these two questions, "Do you know the commandments of God? Do you read the Bible to your children and teach them how to serve God with a clean heart?" I am sure that perhaps there would be one in ten that knew the commandments of God, and perhaps there would be only one in twenty that had ever taught God's pure words to their children. Then what can be expected of this generation, if the weeds can grow over the wheat?

What good can only one day a week do in Sunday school, when perhaps one-half of the children never go there; and even if some children go to Sunday school, if their home is wicked, the few words of God that the children hear is hardly of any use. It is just about the same as pouring water upon a goose, it falls off. Then what can be done to help the parents know their duty, that they are the builders who will crown the coming generation either with God's glory or with sin and shame?

MAY INVESTIGATE N. Y. ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Albany, March 19.—In the legislature yesterday Senator Martin Saxe of New York introduced a concurrent resolution providing for a legislative investigation of the conduct of the office of the attorney general of the state during the administration of its present incumbent, William S. Jackson, of Buffalo, especially with reference to receiverships of banks and trust companies. Mr. Jackson was elected on the Democratic-Independence League ticket in November, 1906, and has been in office since Jan. 1, 1907.

The general impression about the capitol is that the resolution will be adopted and the investigation will be instituted.

BRANCH FOR THIS CITY

Fruit Despatch Company Will Make Duluth Distributing Point.

Arm of "Fruit Trust" Will Establish Office Here.

The Fruit Despatch company, which is the distributing arm of the United Fruit company, is about to open a branch in Duluth which will have for its territory not only this city and Superior, but the Minnesota iron ranges and the Michigan Copper country as well.

L. W. Detrick of Chicago, superintendent of the company's branches, is in the city now, making arrangements for the opening of an office here. It is likely that one of the company's old men in the service will be sent here to look after the business of this branch, which is destined to be one of no slight importance.

Heretofore the Fruit Despatch company's trade in this section has been handled from the Twin City offices, but the growing importance of this market and its territory has impressed the officials of the big concern of the necessity of a headquarters in Duluth. The company will probably secure offices on commission row or in some location near at hand. A suite in the new Sellwood building has been mentioned in connection with the coming of the Dispatch company.

While the advent of the Fruit Despatch company will outwardly represent only an office here, with a manager and his assistants, it will really mean that a large business will be carried on from this city. The Fruit Despatch company handles fruit in car lots only, and all of its transactions are with wholesalers and commission merchants, so that the concern has no need of warehouses.

The United Fruit company, of which the Fruit Despatch company is an auxiliary corporation, is the largest handler of fruit in the world. It is sometimes referred to as "the fruit trust."

WOMAN ENDS LIFE.

Beautiful New Yorker Shoots Herself While in Telephone Booth.

New York, March 19.—Mrs. Helen Daenzer who conducted a school of instruction in embroidery and other fine needle work in Brooklyn, shot herself to death last night in a telephone booth after summoning an acquaintance to care for her body. The report of the revolver and the dying groans of the suicide were carried over the wire to the man who answered her call, but before he could reach the address given, the women was dead. Across a writing pad in the telephone booth, she had written:

"Somebody will come to identify me. Excuse me for making all this trouble."

Mrs. Daenzer was a handsome woman of 30 years and had a profitable business. She was married a year ago but three months after the wedding she separated from her husband. She lately complained of severe headaches to her mother and only — the ground of ill health can the latter account for the suicide.

MUSIC STUDENTS

Should Have Steady Nerves.

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive, and any habit like coffee drinking may so upset the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practice next to impossible.

"I practice from seven to eight hours a day and study Harmony two hours," writes a Mich. music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could practice only a few minutes at a time and Mother said I would have to drop my music for a year.

"This was terribly discouraging, as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided I would test it for awhile.

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never tasted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music.

"I now practice as usual, do my studying and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began.

"I cannot too highly recommend Postum to musicians who practice half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my appreciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others.' "There's a Reason."

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

Superintendent Denfeld Makes Strong Plea Before Builders.

Fifth Annual Dinner of Exchange is a Big Success.

The feature of the fifth annual dinner of the Duluth Builders' exchange, held last evening at the St. Louis hotel, was an address by Supt. R. E. Denfeld of the city schools, advocating industrial education in the local schools, and in schools all over the country. He made a strong plea for both industrial and agricultural training in addition to the classical, and said such training should begin in the lower grades.

The dinner was a very successful affair from every viewpoint. About 250 men were present, including several from the Twin Cities. The contractors and architects of Duluth were most in evidence. The program of toasts was a good one, and everything ran as smoothly as a well-oiled machine. W. I. Prince acted as toastmaster. He was introduced by A. H. Hall, president of the exchange. Other speakers were Roland D. Haven, A. V. Williams, secretary of the state association; Dwight E. Woodbridge, secretary of the citizens' committee in the present open shop fight; Clyde W. Kelly, architect; William Rhodes of the St. Paul exchange and Eugene Young of the Minneapolis exchange. John L. Martin was down on the program for two songs, and he so pleased his audience that encores were demanded. The open shop controversy was scarcely mentioned at any time during the evening.

Mr. Prince, in his opening remarks, said that Duluth was just entering into the greatest decade of building in her history. He asserted that this city is the most important of any in the United States of its population, and predicted a rapid growth in population.

Mayor Haven congratulated the exchange on the successful year it has just gone through, and said the dinner was a fitting climax to such a year. He predicted that Duluth would develop into the greatest commercial and industrial center of the Northwest. He told of the importance of the city in a commercial way, and gave an interesting and surprising array of figures showing the magnitude of the business of the local port. He expressed the hope that existing labor difficulties would be amicably adjusted in a manner satisfactory to everybody concerned.

A. V. Williams gave some interesting facts about the work of the state association, and outlined legislation the association is working for, both state and national. The association now has 586 firms as members, and fifty cities and towns are represented in it. The employers' association, affiliated with it, has a membership of 450 firms.

Mr. Denfeld Talks.

Supt. Denfeld traced the evolution of man from the cave-dwelling stage down to the present great industrial era. The present day he called the factory stage. Work is accomplished not so much through trades as through processes, he said. The world is confronted with a vast system of competitive production. It is a day of industrial division. The linotype has taken the place of the compositor; machinery does the things that used to be done by hand, and the great problem of the age, he declared, was to train young men and women to meet these wonderfully revolutionized conditions.

There have been three epochs in the development of mankind, he said—house, handicraft and factory. The world is now in the factory epoch, he declared, and confronting a problem such as no century has ever before seen.

"We must look beyond the wall of protection," he said, "and stand in the markets of the world, delivering goods as orders come to us. Goods are made to order these days, and not merely to increase a stock on hand. The question is, what are our public institutions, such as the common schools, doing to meet present conditions? Our educational aim must broaden. The hand and eye must receive training, as well as the intellect.

"The spirit of service to mankind is moving us today. A socialized democracy is calling us to the front. If we are to become an industrial nation, we must reach down to the school system. We cannot teach the trades there, but we can give young men and young women the key to that transformation of industry that forms our great problems. We can lay a broad and deep foundation suitable to bear the weight of any structure the demands of the times induce us to build upon it.

"What Duluth needs, and what the whole nation needs, is the establishment of industrial and agricultural branches in the public schools, in addition to the classical. There should be workshops in every school, even down to the lower grades, and we should have industrial and agricultural high schools. Children should be given tools to work with, a knowledge of material, and training in applying these things to the industrial problems of life. Studying over arithmetical problems hatched out by some theorist in his closet is not all that is necessary. The children should be given problems that are applicable to actual industrial conditions, and allowed to work them out with a practical end in view.

"One sad fact that confronts our efforts today is that every community is struggling by itself in this movement. It is not national in its scope. We must pull together to make this movement national. We must make haste in getting the great work started. Better citizenship will result. The problem of today is the manipulation of material that surrounds us. We need expert teachers in industrial education. The first step in the accomplishment of industrial training is industrial education.

"Only a small percentage of our children are in need of classical training. Statistics show that the big majority need industrial and agricultural education. Our educational system will not be complete until we have industrial high schools, and agricultural high schools. The farmer of today must understand the soil, be able to make a chemical analysis, etc. Different conditions confront him than confronted his ancestors.

"It is not economy to run our schools only nine months in the year. Industrial and agricultural schools should be open here and elsewhere day and night. We need practical scientific courses and competent instructors."

The Open Shop.

Dwight E. Woodbridge spoke briefly of the work of the citizens' committee. He said it was no trifling job to stand as members of the exchange had stood in the open shop controversy, running the risk of losing old friendships and severing old associations. He asserted that the exchange had done remarkable work, and that there had been no backsliding. The old saying that in unity there is strength was shown to be true in this instance. He expressed the hope that visiting contractors would get good results from their study of the local situation. The committee, he said, had met daily since late in November, and at all times kept in close touch with public sentiment. In no case, he declared, have the people desired a change from conditions established in the open shop controversy. He said he hoped to see the time when Duluth would become as well known for the open shop as it has been well known in the past for the closed shop.

William Rhodes told briefly of the history and work of the St. Paul exchange, and extended the greetings of the St. Paul organization. Eugene Young Minneapolis indorsed what Supt. Denfeld had said in regard to industrial education, and told of successful experiments in this line that were being conducted at the present time in Minneapolis.

Clyde W. Kelly said the history of the architects dated from the building of the pyramids along open shop lines. He said the architecture of Duluth would be a credit to any city, and congratulated the courthouse commission and county commissioners in deciding on the grouping plan. He thought it an important step in the direction of "the city beautiful."

Given Up to Die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists.

ENCOURAGING INDICATIONS

Of Increased Railroad Activity Shown in Orders for Steel.

Cleveland, March 19.—The Iron Trade Review says: The awarding of contracts by the national government and municipalities and the buying of wire, tin plate and other products manufactured by interests more or less directly connected with the farmers, continue to be the main support of the market, but the decision of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad to begin upon the building of 2,500 steel cars and seventy locomotives at its Milwaukee shops is an encouraging indication of increased railroad activity. In some finished lines, especially structural material and malleable castings, there is a rather surprising number of small orders, and in many cases prompt delivery is insisted upon. The activities of the Steel corporation show a slight increase and some of the large independent interests report orders for the first half of March amounting to fully 10 per cent more than for the first half of February. The Steel corporation is continuing the work of last year and other improvements are contemplated, but for the whole year have not yet been considered.

The American Sheet & Tin Plate company expects to have 76 per cent of its total capacity in operation next week, only 5 per cent less than the capacity in operation one year ago. The demand from canners and other large consumers is heavy, and in wire products there is also a very active demand.

The building of the new equipment by the St. Paul railroad will require a considerable tonnage of billets, steel under frames, gray iron and malleable castings and boiler tubing. Buying by railroads during the week has not been heavy, but we note the sale of 25,000 kegs of spikes.

The pig iron market is dull. The coke market is weak and there is very little activity. The fear of a strike of coal miners has had little other effect. The old material market is not active and prices are irregular.

RUSSIAN TERRORIST DIES.

Geneva, March 19.—Gregory Gerschunin, the Russian Terrorist, died here yesterday from consumption. He spent the last few days of his life in a hospital. Gerschunin's health had been undermined by his long terms of imprisonment, but despite his ill health he continued to work against the Russian government until he broke down completely.

Chronic Form of Indigestion

Fickle appetite.

Weight and fullness after meals.

Fermentation of food, forming wind and gas.

Bowels constipated, urine highly colored.

Headache, sleeplessness, loss of vigor, palpitation of the heart.

This is intestinal indigestion caused by sluggish liver action and consequent fermentation of food. Relief is obtained in a few hours by use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, which cure thoroughly by means of their direct and specific action on the liver and bowels.

Mere stomach medicines and aids to digestion will never cure this most serious form of digestive troubles. With the liver awakened by use of Dr. A. W. Mr. A. W. Dodge, of No. 196 Baldwin St., Pontiac, Mich., States:

"I used Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills for constipation and indigestion, which had bothered me for years. Their action on the liver and kidneys was most thorough and satisfactory, and as a result I have since been in the best of health."

RESULTS TELL.

There Can Be No Doubt About the Result in Duluth.

Results tell the tale.

All doubt is removed.

The testimony of a Duluth citizen

Can be easily investigated.

What better proof can be had?

James Root, railroad engineer, formerly living at the corner of Michigan and Twentieth avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "I cannot do otherwise than endorse and recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. The benefit I derived from the use of this remedy, several years ago, has proved satisfactory and lasting. When I got my first box I was in a bad shape. I was suffering from severe pains and soreness in the small of my back and through the hips. The kidney secretions were unnatural and contained a heavy sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills brought relief promptly, and as I have stated, this relief has been permanent. I also used Doan's Ointment for itching hemorrhoids, and the relief was prompt and effective. This remedy brought just as prompt and lasting relief as did Doan's Kidney Pills. I told of my case in a testimonial given over six years ago, and I am glad to confirm that statement."

MEMBER OF THE BOARD

Although He Lives All Year Around in Paris.

Local Grain Exchange Boasts of Seat-Holder Abroad.

Realization of the importance of Duluth and some of its institutions is brought home now and then by just such things as a posted notice in the trading room at the board of trade notifying the members that Charles Louis Dreyfus of Paris, France, seeks the transfer of the membership in the board held by E. Dreyfus, also of Paris, to his own name.

It is possible that to many residents of Duluth the news that a business man of France, who lives all the year in his dear Paris and seldom comes to this country, holds a membership in the Duluth board of trade, is surprising intelligence.

Indeed some members of the board did not know it themselves, and became informed only this week, when the secretary posted the notice of the request for the exchange of membership, as prescribed by the rules of the organization.

For several years E. Dreyfus has been a member of the Duluth exchange and while he is going to retire from the board now, his membership will still be retained by a member of his family.

To be sure, M. Dreyfus has never been seen yelling himself hoarse in the local pit, or taking part in the little hoaxes which the traders perpetrate when the market is dull, but he has been a sure-enough member just the same.

Edouard Dreyfus is a prominent man in Paris, and so is Charles Louis Dreyfus, who succeeds to his membership. The name was a household word in this country some years ago, because of the world-wide interest in the case of the now famous and exonearted Capt. Dreyfus of the French army. It is understood that both Edouard and Charles L. Dreyfus are related to the captain, but only distantly.

Duluth is an important grain market—the largest flax market in the world—and seats on its grain exchange are held in many parts of this and other lands.

man of the state convention, and among those most prominently mentioned is Governor John Burke. Though himself a candidate for renomination, there is no opposition, and his appointment as chairman is almost certain. While Burke is known to be quite favorable to the candidacy of Johnson, the Bryan men, it is understood, are satisfied to have him as the chairman.

Two county conventions were held on Wednesday. In Nelson county the delegation named was not instructed, while in Ramsey county instructions given are for Bryan. The action of the Nelson county convention in not instructing the delegates is explained by the fact that the delegation is solid for J. P. Lamb as the delegate to the national convention. It is generally believed that the delegates are divided in their opinion as to who should receive the indorsement of North Dakota as the presidential candidate.

The fight by the Johnson men to control the state convention is going on merrily, and the local boosters of the Minnesota governor are well satisfied with conditions up to the present time. Ramsey county, it is said, was not figured upon as a Johnson factor.

North Dakota is entitled to eight delegates in the national convention, and these eight are distributed about the state, one for each judicial district. In the First judicial district, comprising Grand Forks and Nelson counties, there are three candidates for the place—J. Nelson Kelly of Grand Forks, Dave Gorman of McCanna and James Lamb of Michigan.

In the Second district, comprised of Ramsey, Rolette, Benson and Towner counties, E. B. Page of Leeds is out for the delegation, and is said has the solid backing of Benson county. Bryan men are not yet assured that Page is with them, and it may be that Mayor Schultz of Leeds will be in the field against him.

From the Third judicial district, M. A. Carmody of Hillsboro, it is understood, will head the delegation to the state convention. He, however, is not a candidate for the national delegation. M. A. Hildreth of Fargo is the likely representative of that district.

No candidates have been heard from as yet in the Fourth judicial district, which is comprised of Richland, Sargent, McIntosh, Ransom and Dickey counties.

The Fifth district has several candidates, among them being H. Winterer of Valley City, Charles Claus of Jamestown and Jones of La Moure county. The Fifth district is composed of Barnes, La Moure, Eddy, Foster, Griggs, Logan and Stutsman counties.

I. P. Baker has appeared in the field as a candidate from the Sixth district. As yet no candidates have come out from the Seventh and Eighth districts.

There are a goodly number of candidates in the field for the place on the national Democratic committee. Among those who have appeared already are Col. Joseph Kelly of Devils Lake, William Collins of Bottineau, John Bruegger of Williston, Ed Cole of Fargo and Max Whipperman of Hankinson. H. D. Allert, the present incumbent, is not a candidate for re-election. He has been on the committee the past four years.

Walsh County Republicans.

Adams, N. D., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The convention of the Republicans of Walsh county was held in this city yesterday. Delegates to the state convention were named, and it is understood that this delegation will be solid for F. H. Sprague of Grafton as the national committeeman from North Dakota to succeed Alexander McKenzie.

The convention passed resolutions in favor of Taft, with the Roosevelt an policies, refusing to stand for anybody else. The following are the delegates to the state convention: G. H. Hagen, E. S. Peterson, J. H. Fraine, S. Talleck, I. L. Leward, G. Hill, J Miller, T. Johnson, R. Torgerson, H. M. Johnson, G. Asseldt, George A. Johnson and A. Larson.

The indorsement of Mr. Sprague as a candidate for national committeeman puts the Walsh county delegation in the insurgent list.

A REVISION OF THE TARIFF

Indorsed in Platform of the Iowa Republican Convention.

Des Moines, March 19.—The Iowa Republican convention yesterday elected four delegates-at-large to the national convention, instructed them to vote for Taft, indorsed Senator William B. Allison by a vote of 647 to 546, and approved the plank of the Ohio platform calling for a revision of the tariff at a special session of congress.

Allison people dominated the convention from its opening to its closing, and had things their own way throughout. The Cummins people, although defeated in the convention, took special delight in having, as they declared, forced the standpatters to indorse a plank calling for revision of the tariff, and they made a point of frequently reminding the Allison people of the fact.

INDICT LADYSMITH BANKERS.

Madison, Wis., March 19.—Indictments have been returned by the federal grand jury against several officials of a Ladysmith, Wis., bank in connection with its failure several years ago. The names of those indicted are withheld until arrests can be made. United States District Attorney Wheeler was exonerated by the jury from blame for not prosecuting those just indicted.

Sale of Silk Taffeta RIBBONS

A very opportune purchase of pure silk taffeta ribbon was made by our buyer when in New York city. During the past three or four months some of the most important ribbon manufacturers have had to sacrifice stock for cash—others have sold hundreds of thousands of dollars worth at public auction to realize needed funds. Our buyer chanced to be in New York while one of these large sales was in progress, and knowing that the style tendencies were towards solid colors, felt safe in making this enormous purchase—100 cartons, containing 8,000 YARDS of 5 and 5½-nch PURE SILK TAFFETA RIBBON, in all the new Spring colorings for 1908. These will be offered to you on THURSDAY at 8:30 A. M., at the ridiculously low price of 18c—5-inch; 21c—5½-inch widths. Goods which never sold at less than 35c and 39c. Part of these goods are on exhibition in our show windows. See the colorings. Note the quality of the goods, and take advantage of this opportunity to buy ribbons before Easter at almost half price.

This is not only an opportunity for our customers, but will be a grand chance for some of the smaller retail stores. We are retailing these goods at less than Jobbers' Wholesale Prices.

HER SIGHT RESTORED.

Girl Travels Alone to Germany, and Operations Are Successful.

New York, March 18.—Word was received at the offices of a magazine for the blind in this city Monday that after thirty years of blindness and a journey to Europe, alone, to undergo an operation as a last resort, Alice Hollis, of Port Huron, Mich., has had her sight restored by a specialist on the continent, and will shortly return to America. Miss Hollis became blind when a young girl, entering the blind school of Michigan at an early age, becoming proficient in music there, and later entering the music teaching profession. By this means, although sight was totally wanting, she was able to support herself as well as her mother during the latter's declining years. Hearing of a case similar to hers cured by a German specialist, she carefully collected her resources and sailed from New York on the steamship Satendam, Feb. 12, last. The letters now received from her state that two operations have been successful, the sight of one eye being completely restored, while the other, for which less hope was held out, would be available for use with the simple aid of ordinary lenses.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts of the aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed the great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to all women sent free. Address

THE NEGLECTED MAJORITY.

Supt. Denfeld, chief of the Duluth public school system, told the Builders' exchange some very important facts about modern views of education at its fifth annual banquet last night.

Perhaps the most vitally practical point made in his talk was that of world-competition for the disposal of products. He showed that the nations of the world are constantly competing for markets, and that the commercial supremacy and ultimate prosperity of this nation depend upon its ability to meet this competition. Our European rivals are conducting their schools so that they produce trained workmen whose skill will enable them to make manufactured products that will sell readily and profitably. The schools of this country are doing little or nothing, in a systematic, practical way, to provide its workmen with similar training. It is true that we have manual training, but most of it comes in high school courses that are not reached by half the pupils, more than 50 per cent of whom are compelled to drop out of school and go to work before they come to the high school grades. This is sorry treatment of those who are to become skilled workers, since most of them are forced out of school with almost no practical training of hand and eye and mind that will lay the groundwork for an industrial career.

Mr. Denfeld said that the American people must be taught to drop the old-fashioned idea that all children can be provided with "higher education" and put into the professions. Already the professions are so overcrowded because of this habit that the average rewards are probably no greater than in industrial work, if they are so great. The fault is not alone with parents and pupils, however. Part of the blame should be laid at the doors of those who permit the continuance of an educational system designed almost wholly to produce material for colleges and the professions. The system must be revolutionized, turned upside down, and without losing sight of the need of training part of the pupils to enter the professions, it must devote its chief attention to the majority that is now almost wholly neglected.

The old individualistic life of farm and home taught boys and girls practical things, but that life is almost gone. A boy on a farm learned to use his hands skillfully and to develop his mechanical ingenuity to meet the many little emergencies that arise. A city boy learns nothing of the sort. If it were not for his play, his hands would become useless. Yet from the boyhood of the city come most of the men who are to fill the shops and factories.

Society owes its young people more than it is giving them. It is its duty to itself to see that its educational system shall be practical and meet the needs of the majority instead of sacrificing the majority to the minority. Mr. Denfeld told a part of the citizens of Duluth last night what the need is. All of the citizens should know it; all should interest themselves; and all should see to it, by the use of their united strength, that our boasted pubic school system shall begin to take into consideration the crying needs of the neglected majority.

A DANGEROUS POWER.

The Herald has always believed, and has frequently stated, that there is matter in the "Directory of Directors" worth the careful study of the American people.

The "Directory of Directors" gives a list of the directorships of the various large corporations—railroad, commercial and industrial—of the country. It shows—and this has been often exploited—that there is a little crowd of directors whose memberships run through an amazingly long list of corporations. One man is found to be a director in nearly a hundred companies, another in only a few less than that, and so on down the list. This showing has been most largely used to prove that no man could honestly attend to the duties involved in so many directorships. That is not the meat of it, however.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin has been studying this "Directory of Directors," and he found the meat of it This is the community of interest that exists between all of the great corporations. It proves that there is a "System," as Tom Lawson said; a gigantic, powerful, far-reaching system with ramifications through all the important industries of the country. It proves that the tendency toward concentration of power has gone further than appears on the surface; that in fact a few men control the great bulk of the business of the country. Not only the business, but the transportation, so that men interested in great corporations which seek to dominate the field and crush competitors are also powerful in railroads whose favoritism is the greatest factor in the destruction of competition.

At the center of this widening circle of power are the two greatest banking systems of the country—The National City bank of New York (Standard Oil) and the Morgan financial institutions. These two banking systems are allied by an exchange of directors. Thus the whole system is merged in a common cause through control of directorships.

Senator La Follette showed in his speech on the Aldrich bill that there are twenty-three directors of the National City bank (Rockefeller) and thirty-nine directors of the National Bank of Commerce (Morgan). Examination of these directorates shows that they are closely knit together. The business partner of the head of the Morgan group is found on the directorate of the Standard Oil bank. One of the leading directors of the Standard Oil bank is a director of the Morgan bank.

And, beyond this, the sixty-two directors in these two great banking systems are also directors in a very large percentage of the great railroad and industrial corporations. Senator La Follette, from his study of the "Directory of Directors," found that less than a hundred men control the industrial life of the nation, and among the hundred are the fifty-two directors of the two great Wall street banks. For instance, fourteen of the directors of the National City bank are at the head of fourteen great combinations representing 38 per cent of the capitalization of all the industrial trusts of the country. This is but one item in the showing of the tremendous power of this group of magnates.

There are people—many of them—who believe that last fall's panic was deliberately manufactured by this "System." Certainly it has the power to manufacture panics whenever it desires. It is too much power to leave in the hands of men seeking personal gain.

What are we going to do about it?

THE NORSEMEN.

France is preparing to pay tribute to the bold and vigorous Norseman, who roamed the seas so restlessly and so resistlessly many centuries ago, by officially commemorating the founding of Normandy by Rolf in 912. This thousandth anniversary of the instillation into the French race of a fresh and powerful strain of new blood is to be properly observed, and as a preliminary the government is going to send a commission to the reputed birthplace of the hardy Rolf in Norway, to get photographs and to make a study of early viking remains.

These adventurous warriors and bold voyagers do not, as a rule, receive so much consideration as they should have from those who are now benefitting from their enterprise. It should be remembered that they were fearlessly navigating the seas in a day when the rest of Europe cowered in ignorant fear of the mysteries of the deep. They sailed away on their conquering tours, and left their marks wherever they touched. They over-ran the British isles, settled in Normandy, supplying a race of people which, in the Norman conquest of England, added a strain to the race and language that gave both much virility that persists to this day. They formed the beginning of the Russian empire, and put Scandinavian monarchs on its throne; they settled in England, and made matters exceedingly uncomfortable for the Saxon kings; they harried the coasts of Europe, first for plunder, next for settlement. They passed on to the nearby islands, then to farther ones: the Orkneys, Shetlands and Hebrides; thence to Faroe, Iceland and Greenland. Merely by way of curious pursuit of excitement, some of them sailed southward and stopped awhile in Massachusetts five centuries before Columbus saw the light of day.

Prof. Rasmus B. Anderson of Madison, Wis., the well known Scandinavian-American writer, the editor of Amerika, is advocating the observance of the anniversary in this country also, and the thought is a good one. He suggests that a fund be raised for a monument to Rolf, the famous viking, to be set up somewhere in Minnesota, and this, too, is an excellent idea. The plan is to erect a "bauta," the old-style monument of the heathen Norsemen, which consists simply of a great unhewn shaft. One such bauta has been set up in Fargo in honor of Bjornson.

Surely Rolf—or Rollo, as some prints name him—is entitled to widespread recognition. His life is one of the most thrilling chapters that come down to us from days when life was far more thrilling than it is today. The story of how he captured Rouen and led his daring forces up the Seine to the very gates of Paris, where he forced Charles the Simple to cede to the Norsemen forever the province that became Normandy, is well worth reading, not only because it is a stirring tale but because of its far-reaching effects upon European life in subsequent ages.

THE BANK DEPOSIT GUARANTY.

There are always two sides to every question, and it is not good to view one side alone, even though one is convinced that it is the right side. This is true of the plan of government guaranty of bank deposits, in which The Herald firmly believes.

Says a banker: "The plan is theoretical, and, I fear, impractical. That cannot be determined without trial, and trial will take a long time and cost much money. The proposed assessment of one-half of 1 per cent on deposits would cost a bank with deposits of $6,000,000 fully $30,000, which is a good deal of money. If, after giving up that money to the guaranty fund, it develops that in times of panic depositors forget that the guaranty plan insures them, and still clamor for their money, conditions will be just as they are now, and the chief aim of the plan, to reassure the public so that it will not run upon the banks and thus to permit the banks to continue loaning money to keep business going, will fail. If it fails, the expense of the plan goes for nothing. Naturally a bank which feels itself to be absolutely sound and impregnable will object to paying out money to support a theoretical plan which it does not itself need."

The reluctance of such a bank to entertain the proposal is easily understood. Yet the end in view is the public interest and the common good. If there is reason to believe that government guaranty of deposits will bring about stability, security and public confidence, and will do away with the mad, unreasoning fear of bank depositors in times of panic, it should by all means be adopted. It is theoretical, because it has never yet had a fair trial. The only way to find out whether it will do what it promises to do is to try it; and it promises so much good that ultimately, beyond any question, it will be tried. It is being experimented with now in one state, Oklahoma, and much will depend, no doubt, upon its effect there.

Thus far no valid argument against the plan has been presented. The theory that it would encourage unsafe and dishonest banking is absurd, and is rejected as such by all thoughtful bankers. The claim that it makes sound, impregnable banks bear a share of the losses from weaker institutions is better, but we hope that if the plan is adopted it will lead the stronger banks to pay more attention to the weak ones, and will thus put all of them upon a sounder and more equal plane. The claim that it would make the safe country banks bear the losses from city banks that indulge in hazardous speculations is not good argument, because the city banks must contribute in proportion to their size and because, as The Herald views it, the public does not propose to permit banks to gamble with trust money any longer. Very few of them do now, and the fact that the general average of banking integrity is so high renders the risk of loss so small that the plan should not prove as expensive as now seems possible.

At least, the plan is fair subject for discussion, and both sides should be heard. Discussion should be based, however, upon the theory that it is the public's interests, and not those of the banks except indirectly, that are to be considered.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The soul kiss promises to be a menace to commercial regularity. At first it was thought that art would be the only division of human endeavor that would be seriously shaken by the soul kiss. But if one is to believe James Hollister, Hudson, Wis.—that former Gretna Green of Minnesota couldn't-waiters—was the scene of a novel collision of industry and the soul kiss.

Just as the train was about to leave Hudson, said Mr. Hollister at the Lenox yesterday, a young man beat it to the platform of the chair car. There on the platform stood his affinity. His soul mate greeted him with open arms. There was little preliminary sparring. They clinched at the beginning and stayed until they were finally broken by rude persons who were afraid the train would fail to make up the lost time.

At first it was thought that the osculation attention was merely one of the "don't fret, dear," kind. Here is where the conductor and brakeman erred. It was a soul kiss, pure and simple. The conductor was in the act of sending the train away when the young man reached his affinity on the platform. Out of common courtesy and sympathy that all the world holds for a lover, the conductor delayed in giving the go-ahead order. Two minutes were ticked off by his watch. Then the conductor began to grow impatient. He thought it couldn't last much longer, but he was decidedly wrong.

Five minutes, and the train men were beginning to wonder why the delay in starting. Heads emerged from windows, and the soul-kissers began to be the target for remarks. "Break," yelled the brakeman—it was quite in his province—but the soul-osculators paid no attention to the command of the brakeman or to the envious remarks of the crusty commercial travelers. They thought only of themselves.

Seven minutes, yet not a move to break away on the part of the soul mates. Now the indulgence of the conductor was slowly growing into wrath of a consuming nature. Yet what could he do? If he gave the signal to start the train, one of the soul mates would probably be run over. It is a very serious thing to destroy a soul mate, and the conductor hesitated.

Ten minutes. High art and soulful endeavor were certainly putting plebian industry in the hired-help class. For ten long minutes the train had waited. At last the patience of the conductor was exhausted. The soul-kiss must terminate.

The conductor chose two of his huskies, for he believed that such ardent clinging would be difficult to break. Nor was he wrong in his premises. It was necessary to get a hammerlock on the masculine soul mate before he could be separated from his affinity. But the trainmen were persistent, and finally the soul kiss was only a glorious memory. Mr. Hollister advocates a federal law forbidding the soul kiss at railroad depots.

A man at the St. Louis yesterday demanded brown eggs for breakfast. He didn't have any dark-brown taste in his mouth, so consistency was not the reason why he asked for a darker brand of eggs than is usually handed out to the morning diner. He was a chicken fancier, from up in Wisconsin, and claimed that the dark-brown eggs were superior to any other.

John Van Slyke, at the McKay, who is from St. Paul, says that the Republicans have an excellent chance of defeating the Democrats in the St. Paul mayoralty election. He believes that the business men and the voters with the best interests of the city at heart will support McKibbin. Lawler, the Democratic nominee, will have the support of the machine, he says.

Mr. Van Slyke points out that the people all over the country are showing a disposition to cast aside boss rule. St. Paul has been under the high-handed rule of the O'Connor faction for some time. The gang has not used Sunday school methods to secure the election of its candidates, he says, but this year Mr. Van Slyke believes that the people are aroused to the real issue at stake, and will not consider the candidates so much as the real deeper side to the approaching election.

If McKibbin is elected, Mr. Van Slyke believes he will give the city a business administration that will result in the saving of a good deal of money. The real issues of the coming election, it would appear, are not the personal worth of the two candidates, but rather the people which they represent. Mr. McKibbin has promised the city a clean administration. There seems no reason why he will not be able to fulfill this promise, if he is elected.

Mr. Lawler has likewise promised the city an efficient and honest administration. Yet Mr. Van Slyke seems to doubt the ability of the Democratic nominee, in case of election, to carry out his pre-election promises.

THE WEATHER.

It was brilliantly clear and beautiful this morning, though the north wind had a chilling touch in its breath that made it a little hard to realize that April is near. It warmed up when the sun got higher, however, for the sun is now too close to permit very much cold weather, temperature was 2 degs. above zero, and yesterday's highest was 22 degs. The weather man looks for fair and warmer weather tonight and tomorrow, and says that tonight's lowest will be about 10 degs. above zero.

A year ago today, after a light snowfall in the night followed by mist and rain, it cleared away and the snowbanks started in rivers of slush down the hill.

The sun rose this morning at 6:13 and sets tonight at 6:19, making 12 hours and 6 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The low pressure area central Wednesday morning over Oklahoma has apparently divided forces, one section moving to Southern Arizona, and the other to the North Atlantic coast, snow or rain resulting over the lake region and Northeastern states during the past twenty-four hours. The barometer has risen decidedly in all Central and Western states attended by colder weather over Ohio, Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys, Western lake region and Middle Rocky mountains. It is generally somewhat warmer in Western Canada, due to southerly winds there. The barometer is highest over the Eastern Dakotas, Eastern Nebraska and Idaho. Fair and milder weather may be expected in this locality tonight and Friday."

1904--ECHOES OF HARMONY--1908.

Rush City Post: Harmony is a grand thing to talk about when everything is coming your way.

Zumbrota News: We arise to endorse the suggestion of the Cannon Falls Beacon that the way to get harmony in this state is to have a few funerals and bury some of the prominent (?) politicians.

Royalton Banner: How fickle a thing is memory. It is but a few short years ago that the press of the state, outside of the postmaster-editors of the Third district, were clamoring for the scalp of Joel P. Heatwole, and they were unanimous in declaring him a servile tool of Jim Hill's. Personally we believed those charges were true and furthermore we believe that he would again become Jim's man Friday should he ever be elevated to the executive chair of this great commonwealth. Let us have harmony, but not at the expense of honor and principle. There are worse things to be feared than Democratic governors.

Northfield News: Must a man because he has made an honest and conscientious fight for a candidate be barred from future consideration because a few have a peculiar sort of harmony they are trying to put on the market? Sometimes the price paid to "harmonize" a few men is excessive.

Verndale Sun: Who said the Minnesota Republican brand of Harmony was not spelled with a big H?

Ortonville Herald-Star: Hell and harmony, both beginning with "H," seems to confuse some of our leading Republicans. To the ash heap with 'em.

Hibbing Tribune: The Minneapolis Journal is an eloquent advocate of harmony and a brilliant practicer of Hades.

Paynesville Press: The usual number of Republican papers of the state are now busy manufacturing excellent ammunition for the Democrats in case their favorite is not nominated for governor.

Le Sueur News: The word harmony is cut from the pages of the political dictionary of Minnesota.

Sauk Center Herald: Minnesota Republicanism is ripped up the back by gubernatorial contentions, while North Star Democracy has a Kilkenny fight on its hands about the presidency. Harmony, how many crimes are committed in thy name.

Pine City Pine Poker: There's too much talk about harmony and too little of the article.

Nominee and Platform.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Brooklyn Eagle is apparently a bit inconsistent in declaring that while Governor John A. Johnson is a good man, he would, if nominated by the Denver convention, be placed on a bad platform, and would not, therefore, be a good candidate. It is difficult to imagine how Governor Johnson could be nominated without a majority in the convention that would assure the adoption of a platform in keeping with Johnson's ideas. If a majority could be found for Johnson, it seems reasonable that the same majority would stand firm for a Johnson platform. What the Eagle fears is the nomination of Johnson on a Bryan platform. It stands to reason that the adoption of a Bryan platform will mean the certain nomination of Bryan to stand on it.

Democrats in every part of the country are looking to Governor Johnson as an available candidate. This sentiment is not confined to the so-called "conservative" element of the party, but is noted also among the men who are friendly to Mr. Bryan and his policies, but who feel that Mr. Bryan would have small chance of election. The nomination of Governor Johnson is by no means an impossibility, and it is to be regretted that a paper of the high standing of the Brooklyn Eagle, which admits the worth of Johnson, and his qualifications for the presidency, should condemn the Johnson movement at the outset through fear that the Minnesota man, if nominated, would be placed upon a weak platform.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a woman smiles it can mean anything, except what it seems to.

Nine times out of ten when a girl can't like you it's because her father does.

Maybe the old-fashioned rawhides did not educate the boys so well, but it trained them better.

A man can make a great deal more for himself being the architect of somebody else's fortune.

End of Franchise Grabbing.

Kansas City Star: The proposed constitution of Michigan provides that no franchise can be granted by any city without a three-fifths vote on a referendum. Under the charters embodying the commission form of government recently adopted in several cities a referendum vote in franchise grants is provided. Eventually it will dawn on the gentlemen in charge of public service corporations that the day of franchise grabbing is past.

Has To.

Nashville American: See the man.
Why does he work so hard?
He is a married man.

Almost!

Chicago News: People who try to exchange nothing for something are almost as numerous as those who try to get something for nothing.

By accident a large plate glass window was broken.

EAU CLAIRE REPUBLICANS HAVE SPRUNG DARK HORSE.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 19.—The Republicans of this city have sprung a dark horse for the mayoralty nomination in the person of Henry Hudson, a colored man, who is a merchant. His platform is "a square deal for all." No candidate filed for the Republican nomination, so Hudson's name will have to be written in the blank spaces. This makes three candidates: Frawley, Democrat, and Richard Loether, Independent, being the others.

TO SET ASIDE DEED.

Old Man Alleged to Have Acted Out of Right Mind.

Crookston, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hendrick Dalgren of the town of Garden, a man 84 years of age, about one year ago deeded an eighty-acre tract of land to Mrs. Breta Peterson for some consideration, and now his friends wish it returned to him, claiming that he made the transfer when not mentally responsible and as the result of undue influence.

Ole O. Bakke, Gunnar Hagen, D. D. Brodahl, L. P. Solberg, A. M. Oswald and others have been here with Attorneys Lavik of Fertile for Dalgren, Attorney H. A. Johnson of Crookston for Mrs. Peterson bringing action to set aside the conveyance before Judge Watts.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TENSTRIKE MAN DUPED

Alleged to Have Been Victimized by Woman He Loved.

Said to Have Paid Her Debts, Then Been Jilted.

Crookston, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Thompson of Tenstrike has lost all faith in womankind, and believes Cupid is about the most wretched shot on record, according to a current report. While his experience did not cost him a fortune, only about $150, he is reported to be mad at the fair sex. It is said he became enamored of a dressmaker of Red Lake Falls and day before yesterday repaired to that city to meet his "affinity." The young woman was willing to cast her lot with him—but she had a few debts about town which must first be squared. Mr. Thompson produced six crisp $10 bills and the debts were squared.

Then there were some hats and other necessaries that must be forthcoming at once and Henry dutifully "dug up" about $40 more. Then the two came to Crookston and engaged apartments at a leading hotel. The man had the check to the young woman's trunk, the two intending to leave last evening for Tenstrike. During the forenoon the two did some more shopping at Henry's expense. That afternoon the young woman feigned weariness and said she would take a nap while Henry took a stroll about the city. Henry carelessly left the check for the trunk on the bureau in his room.

His "affinity" stole in while he was absent and "swiped" the check, ordered a hack, had the trunk taken to South Crookston and boarded the train for Fargo, or some point farther away. When Henry returned and could not find his "affinity" he grew suspicious and discovered that the trunk was also missing. He swore that all women were false, and after missing his first train, took the next one back to Tenstrike, a dejected, distrustful man.

His "affinity" has not yet been heard from, but is probably opening dressmaking parlors in some distant town.

"ROARING WELL" NOW RUMBLING

It Did Before the Frisco Quake, Indicating Seismic Trouble.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 19.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Beloit, Wis., says:

"The roaring well" on the Charles Lathers farm northeast of Beloit, which preceded the San Francisco disaster, is again emitting ominous rumbling noises and a strong wind from its cavernous depths, and residents of Rock county fear another awful catastrophe in some portion of North America. This well began roaring a few weeks before the San Francisco earthquake and ceased at exactly the hour of the quake.

ABOUT HALF INSURED.

Sufferers by Braham Fire Are Pretty Heavy Losers.

Braham, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The figures sent out yesterday on the fire which swept the town early yesterday, giving the loss at about $90,000, with $35,000 insurance, are practically correct. The Braham Mercantile company, in whose establishment the fire started, was the heaviest loser. The establishment was in a big frame building, and this burned with great rapidity, being a total loss. The concern's loss is estimated at $50,000, with about $25,000 insurance. Other losses and insurance follow:

Fred Friberg, drugs, $2,000; insurance, $1,500.

Tri-State Telephone company, $1,500; no insurance.

A. Johnson, confectionery, $2,500; insurance, $750.

Fred Heffelworth, $1,200; insurance, $600.

Edward Nordquist, $500; no insurance.

First National bank, $2,500; insurance, $2,500.

A. G. Ristine, $500; no insurance.

Severin Maatson, $500 (postoffice); no insurance.

Crosby, $500; insurance, $250.

Dr. Swenson, $800; no insurance.

WILL CHANGE ICE RINK

Into Armory for Use of Thief River Falls, New Company.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The large covered ice skating rink that was erected near the city hall this winter by Angell & Co. will be closed for the season this week. The proprietors will at once begin the work of removing the ice floor and will place a good hardwood floor in lieu of the former.

This is for the purpose of having it in readiness for the initial drills of the newly organized militia company in this city. It is probable that the whole building may be remodeled in order to fit it up for all kinds of large gatherings, as the city is singularly lacking in a commodious hall. Time was when the opera hall was sufficiently large for the accommodation of the usual crowd, but now more modern and complete facilities must be provided for the numerous meetings and conventions that so frequently convene at this point.

NEWSPAPER MAN SHOOTS

Himself Through Chest and It is Feared Will Die.

St. Peter, Minn., March 19.—J. M. Wiser a former Twin City newspaper man and more recently city editor of the Mankato Review, is lying at the point of death at the St. Peter state hospital for the insane. About two weeks ago Mr. Wiser attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself through the chest. The bullet passed through his body a few inches above his heart, but did not cause death. Later he was removed to the local institution, and his condition has become very serious. The chances of his recovery are extremely remote.

TRIPLETS BORN—ALL GIRLS.

Madelia, Minn., March 19.—Mrs. John Brevig, living five miles north of here, has given birth to triplets. The babies are all girls. Two of them weigh four pounds each and the third six pounds. The attending physician reports all in good health and with every chance for living of ordinary babies. These are the first triplets ever born in this vicinity.

NEW BENEFIT SOCIETY

Organized at Red Jacket to Include Only Surface Workers.

Calumet, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A benefit society was recently formed in Red Jacket, which is somewhat unique in fraternal circles in that it includes only persons working on the surface. A number of business men have joined the organization and several surface employes of the various mining companies have also enrolled themselves as members.

It is called the Slovenian-Croatior Benevolent society, and at a recent meeting the following officers were elected: President, John Malnar; vice president, Mike Barich; secretary, Frank Polsel; treasurer, Philip Stimetz; assistant secretary, Mike Sunich.

The society agrees to pay $50 monthly to any member who is sick or laid up by injury. No death benefits are paid. No miners, trammers, timbermen or other underground employes may become members of the organization, the idea being to eliminate hazardous occupations.

WILLIAM CHELLEW SANE.

Lunacy Commission Says Mining Captain is in Right Mind.

Houghton, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Chellew, a well-known mining captain of Calumet, was pronounced sane by a lunacy commission in the probate court, appointed by Probate Judge George C. Bentley, to act upon a petition signed by a daughter of Mr. Chellew to have his sanity enquired into. Mr. Chellew was given a very thorough examination by three well known physicians who have made a special study of insanity, and a large number of friends and acquaintances were brought into court to testify as to his actions and demeanor during the past several months.

After a careful examination the commission announced its inability to see anything wrong with Mr. Chellew, so far as his sanity was concerned, nor in their estimation was there any derangement of his mental faculties. It was evident to all that as the result of injuries sustained by being hit by a fall of rock while at work underground, some time ago, Mr. Chellew is subject to excitement and irritation, but there was nothing, so far as the commission could see that warranted his being pronounced mentally unbalanced.

THOUGHT HE WAS WEALTHY.

Duluth Man Gets Such Opulent Ideas, He is Pronounced Crazy.

Bemidji, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Johnson, who claims that his residence is Duluth, was yesterday committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls.

Johnson has been stopping at the Lakeshore hotel for some time past and recently became possessed of the idea that he was a man of much means; that he had several millions in the old country and was now, at the present time rolling in wealth here and that he was possessed of many hundreds of acres of land in New York Mills, this state. As he was not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, he was taken into custody as being mentally unbalanced and was brought before the insane board.

Deputy Sheriff Arne Solbery took Johnson to Fergus Falls yesterday afternoon.

CARS BEING ROBBED.

Brainerd Police Have Tough Gang to Wrestle With.

Brainerd, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A gang of car robbers is working in the local Northern Pacific yards, and police railroad detectives are working hard to run them down.

The private car of General Manager Gemmell of the Minnesota & International was broken into Tuesday night and some clothing and other things belonging to the porter, Henry Sathers, taken, along with some of the supplies in the car. A few nights ago several freight cars were broken into and considerable of value taken.

THIEF RIVER FALLS MAN ATTEMPTS TO KILL SELF.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While laboring under mental excitement, Andrew Hagen, a resident of North Main street, attempted suicide by cutting his throat. Some friends were calling on his family and he and others were engaged in conversation, when he suddenly left the room and within a few moments had made the attempt on his own life in an adjoining room. It is supposed that he will recover, as the physicians succeeded in staunching the flow of blood ere the man's life was lost. The real reason for the act is not known.

GOING TO EUROPE.

Menominee, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Ecker, formerly the superintendent of the Chaska Sugar company at Chaska, Minn., but now superintendent of the Menominee River Sugar company of this city, and Mrs. Ecker will leave Friday for New York, where they will sail for Europe. They will spend four months at Hamburg, Berlin, Dresden, Vienna, Munich and other places of interest in Germany and then return to Menominee about Aug. 15.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

CHARGED WITH ARSON.

James Worcester, While Drunk, Alleged to Have Fired House.

Anoka, Minn., March 19.—James Worcester has been bound over to the grand jury until the October term of court under $400 bonds on a charge of arson in the second degree. It is alleged that he hired a team about a week ago and was driven to the home of his brother, where he stopped a short time. He carried a jug with him which, it is said, contained kerosene, and ordered the driver to drive slowly. He soon caught up with the team, and after they had gone a short distance the house was seen to be on fire. Worcester was intoxicated at the time.

IMMENSE WATER POWER

Of Menominee River to be Developed by Big Company.

Menominee, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Backed by the unlimited capital of its stockholders, the Menominee Light & Tractiaon company has purchased the rights of Former Mayor William Holmes, and will commence to develop the immense water power of the Menominee river by building a $400,000 power plant at Chappee Rapids, four miles from this city, and transmit the electric current to Menominee and Marinette, Wis., for light and power purposes.

Employment will be given to hundreds of men building dams and the power plant during the coming summer. The interurban street car line, between Menominee and Escanaba, which was surveyed several years ago, will be built as soon as the right of way can be secured.

Within fifty miles of this city the Menominee river develops 60,000-horse power, all of which can be utilized and transmitted to Menominee and Marinette. Chappee Rapids will develop 10,000-horse power, which will be utilized by Menominee and Marinette manufacturers.

SWITCHMAN IS KILLED.

BEMIDJI TAXPAYERS HAVE SECURED ANOTHER ELECTION.

Bemidji, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Believing that the result of the recent election to vote on the proposition for bonding the Independent school district of Bemidji in the sum of $35,000 for the purchase of a site for a new schoolhouse and the erection of a school building was not the true sentiment of all of the legal voters of the district, a number of the heaviest taxpayers in the district petitioned Graham M. Torrance, clerk of the school district, to call another election for the purpose of again voting on the proposition.

Pursuant to this petition Mr. Torrance has issued a notice for an election to be held on Friday, March 27, at 4 o'clock p. m., when the voters will again be given an opportunity of voting for or against the purchasing of the proposed site and the erection of the building.

COULD NOT SAVE GIRL.

Moorhead Man Tries to Rescue Her From Red River.

Moorhead, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bertha Breitner, a domestic employed at the home of Oscar Hallenberg of this city, lost her life in the Red river Tuesday afternoon while after a pail of water. She was 25 years of age, and her home was in Parkers Prairie, Minn. She had resided in Moorhead for the last three months.

Miss Breitner had gone to the river near which the Hallenberg residence is situated, for a pail of water and in some unknown way fell in. Albert Hanson saw the unfortunate girl fall and hurried to the place, jumping in after her. When he got to place where the girl was, however, she struggled so that his efforts to save here were ineffectual.

When help arrived the rescuers thought both were drowned, but Hanson revived after some time. Miss Breitner, however, was beyond aid.

Beans are Nature's choicest food. Better than meat—cheaper by far

You don't eat enough of them, because beans cooked at home are not cooked rightly. And cooking takes too long.

Beans, to be digestible, must be factory cooked.

It requires a fierce heat to break down their fibre, and you can't apply it. That's why your beans are heavy.

Ours are baked 90 minutes at 245 degrees.

Let us cook for you. We are experts on beans, and we have the facilities

Ours is the accumulated knowledge of 47 years applied to baked beans and tomato sauce. No wonder we know.

We bake in live steam. That is why our beans are all baked alike without bursting. They are nutty, yet mealy.

And we bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together, and secure a delicious blend.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

Then we get better beans than you get. And we pay seven times what some beans cost to get them.

We use only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown.

Our sauce is made from vine-ripened tomatoes. It costs us just five times what some sauce is sold for. But to that sauce is due Van Camp's superlative zest.

You eat beans once a week now, maybe. You'll eat them daily when you know

You will eat them because of their food value. Because they are appetizing—delicious. What else do you know that compares with them?

You will serve them because they are convenient. A dozen cans in the house means a dozen meals always ready.

But be sure to get Van Camp's. Other brands are not like them.

OBJECTS TO VALUATION

State Thinks Higgins Estate in Minnesota Was Undervalued.

Hearing Started Before Probate Court of This County.

Judge J. B. Middlecoff of the probate court is conducting a hearing today in the matter of the revaluation of the property of the Frank W. Higgins estate within the boundaries of Minnesota, for the purpose of fixing the inheritance tax to be paid by the heirs of the ex-governor of New York.

When the estate was probated in this county, Robert Whiteside and Benjamin Myers of this city were appointed appraisers to make a general inventory of the estate.

For the purpose of determining the inheritance tax to be paid the state of Minnesota, the court appointed Joseph Sellwood and C. A. Congdon to appraise the values of the mineral lands and C. L. Rakowsky to appraise the value of the city property included in the estate. The total valuation returned and on which an inheritance tax was paid was $368,000. The tax amounted to $15,000.

The state auditor objected to the valuation of the estate on the ground that it was not high enough. The state claims that the property was undervalued, that it was worth nearer $2,000,000 than $368,000.

The present hearing is for the purpose of determining whether the valuation established by the appraisers shall remain or whether the valuation shall be increased as the state claims it should be to conform more nearly with the actual value of the property.

Some preliminary matters were taken up this morning in connection with the hearing, and an adjournment was taken until this afternoon, when it was expected that evidence would be offered by the state and by the heirs.

The state is represented by Attorneys Peterson and Cosgrove from Attorney General Young's office, and Jaques & Hudson represent the estate.

PRAISE FOR ROOSEVELT

Given by Andre Lardieu, Foreign Editor of the Temps.

Paris, March 19.—The Temps today publishes an article on "President Roosevelt," from the pen of Andre Lardieu, its foreign editor, who has just returned to Paris from America, where he was received by Mr. Roosevelt three times. After picturing the president's youthful vigor and his love for the struggles against wrongs and abuses, M. Tardieu quotes from the president's utterances to him, especially in connection with his "crusade." The president declared his struggle against plutocracy was because he was an enemy of socialism and anarchy. "I am, after my fashion, a conservative," M. Tardieu quotes Mr. Roosevelt as saying, "and it is for this I combat the abuses of plutocracy. I know the people in Wall street denounce me as a Judias Iscariot, but it is because I speak the language of truth to the American people that I think that I am a good patriot. I am not a sentimentalist. Let them attack me; I will defend myself by appealing to the spirit of justice in the country. I will return the blows."

TEN CENTS A MINUTE

West Duluth Man Paid It for Holding Girl's Hand.

Price of Ten Minutes Went to Foreign Mission Fund.

Ten cents a minute for holding the hand of a pretty girl!

That's the price a West Duluth young man paid, the proceeds going toward the fund for foreign missions. He took ten minutes' worth, and paid the young lady $1.

This was one of the many novel means employed by the young women of the Queen Esther circle of the Asbury M. E. church to earn money for foreign missions. Each young woman was expected to earn $1, and as she turned over the $1 at the meeting, last evening, she told the means employed to earn it.

The young woman in question, when it came her turn, announced that she had earned her dollar by allowing a young man to hold her hand for ten minutes, at the West Duluth skating rink. The young man, when interviewed by a Herald reporter, this morning, gallantly asserted that it was cheap at the price.

Others had earned their dollar by blacking shoes, beating rugs, shampooing hair, making and selling candy, and giving music lessons, but none of them could compete for novelty with the young lady who so enticed a young man by her charms that he gave her 10 cents a minute for the privilege of holding her hand.

Refreshments were served and a musical program was given by several members of the church. Dr. A. A. Shannon sang "Anchored," Miss Eva and Daisey MacLyman sang a duet, Mrs. Emil Zauft played the overture from the "Bohemian Girl," Ray Abbott sang "The Mad Dog," the words of which are taken from the "Vicar of Wakefield," and Miss Melin recited.

More than one hundred people were present at the social, and it was very much enjoyed by all.

The reports were very gratifying, for the circle was never in better standing before. The following officers were elected for this year: Mrs. Henry Hewitt, president; Mrs. Duncan McLean, vice president; Mrs. W. J. Lowrie, secretary, and Mrs. A. Mehn, treasurer. On April 2 the church's annual meeting will be held, when the reports of the officers and different societies will be read.

Young Woman Who Started Webster Fire, Asks Heavy Damages.

Nida Johnson, the young woman who stepped on a match accidentally at the Webster Manufacturing company's plant last August and started a conflagration that nearly destroyed the plant, has begun a suit against the company to recover $30,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received at the time of the fire. Miss Johnson was badly burned about the face and hands, her clothes having been ignited. She claims the company was negligent in permitting the match to get on the floor.

TROUBLES BEGIN ANEW.

Divorce Case of Frank Banack Before Court Once More.

The family troubles of the Banacks will be aired in court again. The former action brought by Mary Banack for a divorce from Frank Banack was dismissed recently, as the parties made up, but Mrs. Banack claims that her husband has left her again, and she intends to start a new action, as the court refuses to consider contempt proceedings in connection with the first suit instituted by Mrs. Banack. Some time ago the court ordered Banack to pay his wife temporary allmony, and the defendant was brought before the court for contempt when he neglected to pay. Matters were patched up between Mr. and Mrs. Banack, it is claimed, and the case was dropped.

Hotel Taxes Are Delinquent.

A stipulation has been made between the city and the Superior Hotel company whereby it is agreed that the $4,000 taxes against the company's property shall be returned to the county treasurer as delinquent. The hotel company claims that its tax is excessive and illegal and it seeks to restrain the city from collecting the same.

Get Notice to Vacate.

Notices have been served on twenty-five families residing on Connors Point, to vacate the property they are occupying within the next thirty days. The notices were given by the Holding company and will affect practically all the people living between Main street and the bay in the vicinity of the Omaha and the Northern Pacific tracks.

Investigate Registrations.

Because the new registration lists show that over 100 names have been added to the lists in the west precinct of the Third ward, the city officials will make an investigation, with a view of finding out whether there were any fraudulent registrations. The precinct in question is in the portion of the city formerly containing the red light district, and it has been reported that a great deal of colonization has been done there in the efforts to defeat the high license proposition and other interests.

The Diamond's Color.

One of the oldest of the ignorances of science has to do with the colors of diamonds. No chemist or physicist has found out how to explain them satisfactorily. Of course, they are due to impurities of one sort or another. A perfectly white diamond is pure carbon, but a colored stone of the kind must owe its tint to a small quantity of some extraneous substance. The rarely beautiful color of golden grain belt beer is due to pure barley malt. Its value as a food tonic and strength-builder is better known than the value of diamonds. Your home deserves a case. FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

A bean rarebit is just one of her many good hints to housekeepers

"Just the way to use the last of the baked beans! Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of paprika, one-half cupful of milk, and one cupful of cold mashed baked beans. Stir until thoroughly heated, and add one-half cupful of grated soft, mild cheese. As soon as the cheese has melted, serve on small circular pieces of toasted bread or zephyrettes. It may be readily seen that this reelpe is admirably adapted for chafing-dish use."

VACATION NEXT WEEK

School Children Will Get Their Easter Holidays Early.

Some Changes Will be Made in Several Buildings.

When the school children of the city are dismissed by their teachers tomorrow afternoon, they will not be asked to report again until Monday morning, March 30, which means that they are about to enjoy their spring vacation.

Ordinarily the spring vacation in the public school does not come until Easter-time, but this season the educational powers that be have decided that next week is the time, for the reason, it is understood, that some changes are needed in some of the buildings to insure protection against fire and panic.

It is not given out formally that the vacation will be held next week for this reason, but it is pretty generally suspected that the Collinwood horror, and the subsequent local investigations in the schools, have had something to do with the matter.

Members of the special investigating committee, appointed from its own membership by the board of education, declare that thus far in their inspection of the public school system of the city, they have unearthed no great laxity in its conduct or need of changes to lessen the danger of accidents, but it goes without saying that here and there they found places where improvements might be made and the closing of the schools next week will afford the opportunity.

Today the members of the school board's committee resumed its labors, after a day's respite. The inspectors are taking in the buildings in the central part of the city, including the Washington, Central high school, Jackson and some other buildings not very far removed from the business district.

St. Petersburg, March 19.—It is reported that Mlle. Maria Spiridonovo, who was exiled to Siberia two years ago for the murder of the chief of police of Tambov, has escaped and is now in either Australia or New Zealand.

THE ART OF GARGLING.

The proper method of gargling is thus described by a writer in the Medical Record.

"The patient (at first under the guidance of the physician) should sit well back in a chair, take a swallow of water in the mouth and bend the head as far back as possible.

"Now he must protrude the tongue from the mouth (the tip of the tongue may be grasped with a handkerchief) and in this posture with protruding tongue he must try to swallow the water. The physician should control the patient's vain efforts—for it is impossible to swallow under such circumstances.

"The patent has the sensation as if he actually had swallowed the water. Now he must start to gargle, to exhale air slowly. One can see plainly the bubbling of the fluid in the wide open pharynx.

"After gargling this for a while the patient is ordered to close the mouth and quickly throw the head and body forward. Thereby all the fluid is forced through the chaonce and nostrils, washing the throat and nose from behind and expelling all the accumulations that had been present, with great force.

"This should be repeated several times, as the first trial is not always successful and satisfactory. It is an act that must be learned.

"When properly executed the sensation, as the patient will assure you, is that of great relief not had by any other method. It will be wise for the practitioner to try the method first on himself. Even small children who are at all clever learn the method readily and rather enjoy it.

"The method is not by any means a new one, but as it seems, quite forgotten. Some thirty years ago Prof. Hagen of Leipsic taught it to his students. It is well worth reviving."

WHAT ARE YOU READING

In the Woman's Home Companion, Dr. Edward Everett Hale very aptly reminds us of the importance of systematic reading, and sets forth the ground rules for such a sytem, in part, as follows:

"Here we are scattered over 8,000,000 square miles, more or less, and we are making our plans. Into these plans systematic reading shall come, just as certain as sleep or breakfast or dinner or supper. By systematic reading I mean that besides the newspaper and the magazine and the novel there shall be one hour of every day devoted to reading on system. Make it more if you like, though I shall not let you go beyond three hours a day, but one hour at least in a day there must be.

"Thus I take it for granted that you have in your own room, on your own table, your Bible, your hymn book, and some one or two other books which will help you in your daily intercourse with the good God. Each one of you can choose these for yourself.

"You ought to be grounded in a fashion in the history of the town, of the state and of the country. I do not care whether you were born there or not. You must not let any accidental visitor ever ask you what was the origin of things there while you are unable to tell him. Was the place first open to Christian civilization when La Salle came down the river; or when the Hampshire grants were quarreled about; or when Capt. Gray, in the Columbia, came to anchor?

"And you ought to know decently well the history of the state, whether that written history be 300 years old or three months old. Do not let me come into Oklahoma this summer and ask you about the history of the emigration of the Cherokees into the Indian Territory, or the sun worship of the Creeks, and find out that you know no more about it than I do. And side by side with this, and as a basis of this, you must have a decent acquaintance with the history of the United States."

WILL OPEN THE AVENUE

Board May Establish a Stone Crusher on Twelfth Avenue East.

Will Cut Down Hauls for East End Improvements.

If the board of public works can make arrangements with private property owners on Twelfth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets, whereby they will be enabled to cut away a ridge of rocks, which exists on property on the east side of the avenue, they will cut down the expense of street improvements in the East end for the next few years by establishing a stone crusher plant at that point.

Twelfth avenue east is rendered impassable between Sixth and Seventh streets by a ridge of rock, which extends across the avenue, with its highest point about ten or twelve feet above the avenue grade in the middle of the roadway. The ridge is high on the private property on the east side of the avenue, sloping toward the street.

The rock is of the right kind for use on the streets of the city, and the members of the board think that by establishing the portable crusher there the hauls of rock for East end street improvements will be cut down, considerable money saved to the property owners and the avenue will be opened to traffic.

The rock must eventually be cut away when the avenue is graded and the members of the board figure that at this time, when there are so many idle men in the city, they should go ahead. It will not be advisable to place the portable crusher at that point in order to cut away the ridge of rock in the avenue, but if arrangements can be made with property owners to crush rock on private property also, so that there will be work for the crusher for about two years, the action will be taken.

The board is now waiting for the permission of the property owners. They have the crusher and it can easily be taken to that point. If the permission is obtained work will be begun as soon as possible and the plant run as an auxiliary to the rock crushing plant to be put at work on the Point of Rocks on West Superior street.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell, of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3rd our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by all druggists.

WILL IMBED THE TIES IN CONCRETE

Protection to be Given New Pavement on Fourth Street.

In order to do away with the difficulties which have been experienced with brick along the rails of tracks over which the heavy street cars run on streets paved with tar macadam, the board of public works may order the street railway company to imbed its ties in cement, on Fourth street, when that thoroughfare is improved, this coming season.

The arrangement would do away with the bricks on the outside of the rails and bring into use on the street the plan of Assistant City Engineer Wilson, which calls for a wedge-shaped line of tar macadam on the outside of the rails, with 6x6 sondstone blocks on the inside of the rails.

The arrangement was used on a portion of Oneota street when it was paved last fall, and it is thought that it will work satisfactorily. It enables the tar macadam covering to be brought flush with the rail on the outside, and the extending of the tar macadam to the bottom of the rails, through the rock foundation, for a distance of about six inches from the outside of the rail, holds the rail firmly and prevents the breaking of the pavement.

It has been the custom of the city to require the street railway company to imbed its ties in concrete on streets where the foundation for the pavement was also concrete. On Fourth street, however, the city will use a rock foundation, but require the street railway company to imbed its ties in concrete.

When the big cars began running on Second street last summer with more frequency than before, they played havoc with the pavement. The vibrations threw the bricks out of place and the city officials have about concluded that only by imbedding the ties in concrete can the track be properly steadied. The steadying of the street car tracks on streets paved with tar macadam has always been a problem, and it is believed a solution has now been reached. The result of the experiment on Oneota street will be determined when the snow leaves, and then a decision will be reached on the requirements for Fourth street.

RAILROAD CLERKS DRIVE BEER WAGONS.

St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—The brewerles operated today with diminished forces because of the strike instituted yesterday resulting from factional differences in the beer drivers' union. Railroad clerks who have lost their positions by reason of the retrenchment recently instituted by various roads, are being employed in large numbers to take the places vacated by the brewery strikers and men are being hired regardless of union affiliations.

Representatives of the breweries and representatives of the strikers appeared before the state board of mediation and arbitration today to present to that body the merits of each side of the controversy.

WILL OPEN THE AVENUE

Board May Establish a Stone Crusher on Twelfth Avenue East.

Will Cut Down Hauls for East End Improvements.

If the board of public works can make arrangements with private property owners on Twelfth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets, whereby they will be enabled to cut away a ridge of rocks, which exists on property on the east side of the avenue, they will cut down the expense of street improvements in the East end for the next few years by establishing a stone crusher plant at that point.

Twelfth avenue east is rendered impassable between Sixth and Seventh streets by a ridge of rock, which extends across the avenue, with its highest point about ten or twelve feet above the avenue grade in the middle of the roadway. The ridge is high on the private property on the east side of the avenue, sloping toward the street.

The rock is of the right kind for use on the streets of the city, and the members of the board think that by establishing the portable crusher there the loads of rock for East end street improvements will be cut down, considerable money saved to the property owners and the avenue will be opened for traffic.

The rock must eventually be cut away when the avenue is graded and the members of the board figure that at this time, when there are so many teams in the city, they should go ahead. It will not be advisable to move the portable crusher at that point in order to cut away the ridge of rock in the avenue, but if arrangements can be made with property owners to crush rock on private property also, so that there will be work for the crusher for about two years, the action will be taken.

The board is now waiting for the permission of the property owners. They have the crusher and it can easily be taken to that point. If the permission is obtained work will be begun as soon as possible and the plant ran as an auxiliary to the rock crushing plant to be put at work on the Point of Rocks on West Superior street.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Yes long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell, of Howell's American School Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3rd our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day it was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not be down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave and it afforded prompt relief. Two more doses later, he was fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only saved the life of our little boy." For sale by all druggists.

WILL IMBED THE TIES IN CONCRETE

Protection to be Given New Pavement on Fourth Street.

It is to do away with the difficulties which have been experienced with rock along the rails of tracks over which the heavy street cars run on streets paved with tar macadam, the board of public works may order the street railway company to imbed its ties in cement, on Fourth street, when that thoroughfare is improved, this coming season.

The arrangement would do away with the cracks on the outside of the rail and bring it flush to the street. The plan of Assistant City Engineer Wilson, which calls for a wedge-shaped line of tar macadam on the outside of the rails, with 6x6 sandstone blocks on the inside of the rails.

The arrangement was used on a portion of Onoota street when it was paved last fall, and it is thought that it will work satisfactorily. It enables the macadam covering to be brought flush with the rail on the outside and the extending of the tar macadam to the bottom of the rails, through the rock foundation, for a distance of about six inches from the outside of the rail, holds the rail firmly and prevents the breaking of the pavement.

It has been the custom of the city to require the street railway company to imbed its ties in concrete on streets where the foundation for the pavement was also concrete. On Fourth street, however, the city will use a rock foundation, but require the street railway company to imbed its ties in concrete.

When the big cars began running on second street last summer with more frequency than before, they played havoc with the pavement. The vibrations threw the bricks out of place and the city officials have about concluded that only by imbedding the ties in concrete can the track be properly steadied. The steadying of the street car tracks on streets paved with tar macadam has always been a problem, and it is believed a solution has now been reached. The result of the experiment on Onoota street will be determined when the snow leaves, and then a decision will be reached on the requirements for Fourth street.

RAILROAD CLERKS DRIVE BEER WAGONS.

St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—The breweries operated today with diminished forces because of the strike instituted yesterday resulting from factional differences in the beer drivers' union. Railroad clerks who have lost their positions by reason of the retrenchment recently instituted by various roads, are being employed in large numbers to take the places vacated by the brewery strikers and men are being hired regardless of union affiliations.

Representatives of the breweries and representatives of the strikers appeared before the state board of mediation and arbitration today to present to that body the merits of each side of the controversy.

PRETENDS INSANITY

Lars Toneson Tries to Work Government for Transportation.

Spotted by W. H. Dean, Must Pay Own Fare to Norway.

Lars Toneson, a Norwegian, 39 years of age, was willing to pose publicly as a crazy man if in exchange he could get free transportation to Norway, but when it came to putting in his time for two or three weeks in the county jail, he objected, and virtually admitted the plea of insanity was only a ruse to have the United States government deport him.

Occasionally an alien tries to beat the government in this fashion. Inspector-in-Charge William H. Dean of the local immigration office has been long in the service, however, and with the experience he has had, and the opportunities of making a study of human nature that come his way as inspector, he is well fitted to block their plans in this respect, no matter how cleverly laid they may be.

Toneson, a big, husky-looking fellow, appeared yesterday afternoon in Mr. Dean's office. Toneson himself had nothing to say, but two friends who were with him volubly explained how he came to this country eleven months ago, landing at New York; how he came to Duluth almost immediately, and how he had been dependent upon friends for a living ever since, because he could not work on account of insanity. After sizing up the man, Mr. Dean suspected all was not exactly as it should be, and submitted the three to a cross-examination that would have aroused the envy of District Attorney Jerome. It didn't take him long to convince himself that Toneson was only shamming, but how to get him to admit it was the next question.

He seized the telephone, called up the county jail, asked for the sheriff in a loud voice, and having been connected with that individual said, so that every one in the immigration office could hear:

"I have a man here I want you to hold in jail for three or four weeks. Get a cell ready for him, will you? I'll send him right up. What's that? Oh, yes, crazy as a bed bug. You'll have to put him in the padded cell, and keep the irons on him. He seems a pretty strong, husky sort, and I would suggest that you keep him down to a bread and water diet, feeding him about once a day. That will tame him down a little. All right. Goodbye."

By this time Toneson had forgotten all about being insane. His one thought was to keep out of jail, and his intelligent flow of language would have convinced any jury of his sanity. He protested loudly against going to jail, saying he preferred to remain at the home of his friends until the order of deportation came. Mr. Dean explained that the government could not take up the case until he, Toneson, became a public charge, and that he was not a public charge when depending upon the charity of friends.

He said that being imprisoned in the county jail on an insanity charge would make a public charge. Toneson's two friends also looked alarmed when the jail was mentioned, and protested against the rule. They finally were virtually forced into an admission that all they wanted was to beat the government, and were ordered out of the office. This is not the first time that an effort has been made to work Mr. Dean for free transportation, but up to the present time these efforts have proven unsuccessful.

ART SACRIFICED FOR MODESTY

High School Girls Shy at Wearing Doublet and Hose.

The senior class of the Central high school numbers no young woman who is willing to wear the masculine apparel that history and precedent has ascribed to dainty Rosalind. Because no feminine member of the class is willing to wear the clothes that Rosalind wore in the forest of Arden, "As You Like It," the play selected for the senior class presentation will not be given.

At the meeting of the class yesterday the subject was discussed. Every girl in the class modestly declined the part. Some thought they wouldn't look nice or dignified, while others pleaded lack of histrionic ability. So the historic doublet and hose will stand between a presentation of the Shakespeare comedy.

At the present time the members of the class are bent upon securing another play. Perhaps it will be by a less famed author, but it will not have any undesirable doublet and hose woven into the plot.

THE SIMPLE COMMENCEMENT

Graduation Exercises Will Not be Show of Fine Clothes.

No feathers that are too fine, or flowers, for the fair girl graduates.

This edict of the board of education was made known to the members of the senior class of the Central high school at a meeting held by the students yesterday afternoon.

This is really only a reiteration of a stand taken by the board of education a year or two ago and is designed to protect the children of the poorer people from embarrassment at commencement time, caused by a tendency of the graduates endowed with wealthy parents to deck themselves out in finery which the rest of the class could ill afford to exhibit.

In times gone by the sweet girl graduates were in the habit of vieing with each other at commencement time to see which could appear in the finest gown and carry the most flowers. This contest worked a hardship, the school board decided, on the poorer citizens whose daughters were seniors. Not to allow their children to outshone by any of the others, the parents would often go beyond their means in decking out the graduate of the family, and even then the outlay of some of her classmates would make her outfit appear cheap and tawdry.

So the school board decided to inbob flowers and fine clothes. The graduates must be dressed simply; their parents must give them no flowers and the board of education will not do so.

Unequaled as a Cure for Croup.

"Besides being an excellent remedy for colds and throat troubles, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is unequaled as a cure for croup," says Harry Wilson of Waynetown, Ind. When given as soon as the croupy cough appears, this remedy will prevent the attack. It is used successfully in many thousands of homes. For sale by all druggists.

KUEHNOW ON STILL HUNT

Secretary of Duluth Club Will Get Western League Recruits.

Not All Men Signed Will be Ordered to Report.

A. W Kuehnow, secretary of the Duluth Baseball club of the Northern league, will leave Saturday for Omaha and Sioux City, where he will invade the Western league clubs' training camps to look over some probable cast offs. He has promises of a pitcher from Omaha and a first baseman from Sioux City. The first baseman was in the Iowa State league last year, fielded well and batted about .250.

On his return from the trip, Mr. Kuehnow will announce the names of the men he will have to report at Aurora April 25 for the spring training games. He has already signed up over thirty men, but not more than fifteen will be ordered to report. He has sized up the men pretty well and only those who are pretty certain to make good will be ordered to report.

Four good catchers have been signed up and one of them will be turned loose, two being played in the outfield, Charley Beard, Doc. Voss and Manager Morrow are all able to play the outer gardens with more or less success and three will probably all be retained. McAlorey, who caught for Calumet last year, has also been signed, but it isn't very likely he will be taken on. He's a fine catcher, but weak with the stick, and Duluth wants sluggers.

Josie Krick and Jim Haney of last year's team will have little trouble in landing on the pitching staff. Guy Mannley, who was recommended by Bill Armour of the Toledo team, is figured on as one of the regular twirlers, and the man to be secured at Omaha is also good for Class C. Young Taylor, who pitched one game for Duluth last year, may be taken on again and another young pitcher, who lives in an Iowa town, has been recommended. He will report at Omaha next week, while Mr. Kuehnow is there, and will work out with the Omaha Western leaguers for the benefit of the Duluth man. Harry Wright, the young fellow from Indiana will probably be ordered to report also. Four pitchers will be carried during the year, so some are sure to get the galvanized bucket. There are several other pitchers under contract, but they will probably never see Duluth.

The Sioux City recruit is expected to make first base without trouble, though Cronke, the Chicago prairie leaguer, may be sent to Aurora for Morrow's inspection. For second, George Bell will come from a Michigan league. He fielded .925 at second last year and batted .288, so nobody is worrying about him. Jimmy Leighty will be on the job at short, with Williams at third again, though the latter may be displaced by a man named King.

Muggsy Monroe refuses to come across for the money offered and will probably not report. He will not be missed, as Harry Morgy, Rick Wright, another man from Waterloo, Ind., and the catchers will be available for the outfield. Fifteen or sixteen men will show up at Aurora, and by the time the team reaches here, it will be down to twelve or thirteen men. The schedule will be out some time this week. It will have about 168 games, beginning May 14 and ending Sept. 7. It is so arranged that the Canadian teams will be in the United States for the American holidays and the American teams in Canada for the Canadian holidays. The arrangement will give the league more holiday dates than any league in the United States and isn't a bad feature, from a financial viewpoint.

ORDERS EXAMINATIONS.

Boxers Must be in Good Physical Condition in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 19.—Following the death of Willie Robinson, who was killed by a blow while boxing with Charles Wolfe at the Bijou theater, here, Tuesday night, Director of Public Safety Clay issued orders yesterday to the police to permit no man to participate in any boxing contest or tournament in this city, without first having been carefully examined by a physician. The cause of Robinson's death has not been determined.

FIGHTER ARRESTED.

"Young Rhodes" is Charged With Killing "Leech" Allen.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 19.—A coroner's jury, last evening, found that Leek Allen, a local prize fighter, who was killed in the fifth round by Fritz Guntlisberger, known as "Young Rhodes," in a fight here last night, came to his death from hemorrhage of the brain, caused by overaction. Guntlisberger is under arrest charged with manslaughter in the fourth degree.

The managers of ball teams in the Northern league will do well to look to one thing this year. Let them stick close to the salary limit and not try to load up on high priced players toward the end of the season, or there'll be a wreck of one baseball ship and a few backers of ball teams will be swimming to dry land through a sea of debts.

The salary limit of the Northern league is $1,200. The class of ball isn't as fast as if it were $2,000. It isn't as fast as Duluth and Winnipeg deserve, but, on account of the geographical position of the two cities, they can do nothing but get in a four-club league and have the best ball they can without going bankrupt. It wouldn't be fair to Fargo and Brandon to raise the salary limit. They are small towns and their home attendance and grand-stand receipts will not boost their total receipts sufficiently to allow them to have anything but teams within the salary limit.

Above all things, the fans don't want another runaway race. Winnipeg must have paid about $1,000 a month for its team last year. Duluth, even, paid about $1,400. The two Copper country towns probably kept within the limit and they were outclassed.

It's up to everybody to play close to the limit this year. Duluth is willing and Fargo and Brandon certainly are. If Winnipeg will throw off a few high notions and get down to a real business basis, it will fall into line. Just as soon as a team out for the pennant falls a few games behind, some managers lose their heads and imagine they're millionaires. They go out hiring players, who have no business in a league of this kind. They're bound to wreck the league sooner or later, with such tactics and, if they're wise, they'll never adopt them.

As it is at present, all four towns have pretty fair teams. On paper, they appear to be evenly matched. Some of them are probably over the limit, but not enough to count. If they all keep close to the limit and don't go to hiring high-priced players during the season, the league will go through nicely. Let the magnates fall away from that policy and it will be all day with the organization.

• • • •

It seems that all young ball players want to be pitchers. It takes eight men on every team to one pitcher, but on the ordinary corner-lot nine, every man is a twirler playing in another position for the occasion. When they get so they think they should branch out, most youngsters look for a job pitching. Some survive, others go to the field, but the majority get the tinware early in the game and hike back to the farm.

Kuehnow has already signed six or eight pitchers to try out for the White Sox, but he could get fourteen more if he wanted them and wouldn't need to half try. The letters all make good the writers to have good speed, control, head and everything else that goes to make a pitcher. If most of them were put on the mound, they probably couldn't put a dent in a newly dritted snow-bank.

Every youth has aspirations to become a great pitcher, but nine out of ten are disillusioned before they have been in organized ball more than a week or two.

Local option for Sunday baseball is the latest act proposed by the Ohio legislature. It may not go through, but the bill has been introduced and is being championed by one of the legislators.

It isn't a bad idea. It's hard to enforce any law against the opposition of public sentiment, but harder than any is the Sunday baseball law, which to the fan is what the red rag is to a gentleman cow. The fairminded man doesn't regard baseball as a sport, which should be stopped on Sunday. He thinks it is about as orderly a game as one would care to see and, and as long as the baseball park isn't too near a church, the sanctity of the Sabbath is not violated by the amusement.

By putting it up to the people, the Ohio legislators clear their own skirts. If the people want Sunday baseball, they may have it. In most good, American communities, local option on Sunday baseball wouldn't draw very many votes for suppression. The great bulk of the voting population of most communities is made up of laboring men, who have but one day a week to enjoy the great American sport, and their votes would go for the amusement they think should be theirs.

SWIMMING RECORDS.

Missouri Man Sets Two New Marks at Chicago.

Chicago, March 19.—A. M. Goessling of the Missouri Athletic club, St. Louis, broke two records here last night in the second night's program of the National A. A. U. swimming championship, held at the Chicago Athletic club. Goessling set a new world's mark in the 200-yards breast stroke event, going the distance in 2:46 2-5. The former mark of 2:47 was held by Robertson of England. Goessling's other feat came in the 150-yards back stroke event, which he won in 2:00 1-5, a new American record. The races were held at the Chicago Athletic association and completed the program here. Further events will be held in Pittsburg.

Two other championship events were decided last night, the fancy diving, which was won by Gaidzik of the Chicago Athletic association, and the fifty-yard junior, which went to South of the N. Y. A. C. In a special relay race of 160 yards, a team from the New York Athletic club defeated four swimmers of the Chicago Athletic club.

DIXIE IS THE WINNER.

Power Boat Regatta Opens at Palm Beach, Fla.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 19.—At the power boat regatta, here, yesterday, the Dixie won the five-mile event for Class "D" boats, in 11 minutes, 13 seconds.

The Dolphin won the ten-mile race in the "C. D." class, in 21 minutes, 43 seconds. The five-mile race for boats less than thirty feet in length was won by the limit boat, Irene, in indifferent time.

Class "D" included boats with load water line of thirty feet or more, and in Class "C. D." were boats of various lengths.

SUGAR COMPANY APPEALS.

Menominee, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Menominee River Sugar company has appealed to the supreme court against the verdict which the Menominee circuit court jury rendering in the case of Louis Pecard last October. Pecard was injured at the factory in such a manner that his arm had to be amputated and was awarded $2,750.

GUN CLUB WILL MOVE

New Grounds on Sixty-Third Avenue West to be Occupied.

First Shoot of Club to be Held Early in April.

The Duluth Central Gun club is preparing to open its season early in April, and the clubhouse and traps, now located on the old grounds at Duluth Heights, will shortly be removed to the new grounds at Sixty-third avenue west.

The new grounds are admirably suited for the purposes of the club. The wind, which swept over the old grounds almost continually, was a hindrance to members of the club, and scores were uniformly lower than they would have been on a range better located. The committee which was appointed to find a new site for the traps has acted with the belief that they will remove all difficulties, and this year's shooting will be better than any previous.

The club will probably be incorporated under the state laws very shortly. The matter is now in the hands of an attorney. An increase in membership will probably come before the first shoot, and when the members get together some time in April, they will begin what they believe will be a great season.

FINE WINTER BALL PLAYERS

National Commission After Men Who Played in Outlaw League.

Cincinnati, March 19.—The national baseball commission yesterday directed the secretary to communicate with the seven national agreement players who have been playing in games with clubs in the California State league, which is not under the national management, demanding that they show cause why a fine of $100 should not be assessed against them for participating in such games.

The attention of the commission was called to the fact that certain national agreement players were playing with clubs in that league last fall, and a ruling was made at that time that this must cease. It was announced that a fine of $100 will be inflicted for the first offense and suspension for the second offense. The commission has now been notified that the following players have participated in games with that league after the notice has been promulgated and the secretary is instructed to request the players to show cause why they shall not be fined: Chase of the New York Americans, Moriarity of the New York Americans, Baum of the Philadelphia Nationals, Waterbury of the Boston Nationals, Nelson of the Tacoma club, McHale of the Denver club and Stange of the Newark club.

DEMAREST IS WIZARD.

Chicago Man Breaks the Record for 14.2 Average.

Chicago, March 19.—Calvin Demarest of Chicago defeated E. W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., in last night's match in the national amateur billiard tournament. The score was 400 to 35. Demarest's average was 57 1-7, which breaks all previous amateur records for 14.2 billiards. Gardner's average was 5.

Harry Wright of San Francisco won the game yesterday afternoon against Clarence Jackson of Chicago by the score of 400 to 301. Wright's average was 14 22-27. Jackson's was 11 4-27.

Clarence Jackson is a brother of City Assessor Jackson of Duluth.

SENIORS HONOR MISS WELLS

Class Publication Will be Dedicated to Mathematics Teacher.

The 1908 Zenith, the publication of the senior class at the Central high school, will be dedicated to Miss Agnes E. Wells, teacher of mathematics.

Members of the class held a meeting yesterday and decided to honor Miss Wells, who has always been very popular with the students, who will say farewell to the school in June.

Principal Smith, in an address to the class, said that the board of education had decided that at commencement time an oration, an address by the president and a class play with music would be the best program for the class night, and this outline was adopted.

JAP CONSUL BRANDS WAR TALK AS ABSURD.

Seattle, Wash., March 17.—"War between the United States and Japan is not only impossible but is absurd." Thus sums up T. Tanaka, the new Japanese consul to Seattle, the war talk that has been rampant of late.

"In the first place, my country is carrying a most burdensome debt, which has reached the limit which it can possibly stand. This debt was contracted as a result of the Russian war and we learned a lesson from that war which we are not liable to forget. It costs money to go to war and all we want now is a chance at peace so that we can reduce that debt to a minimum. Times are very hard in Japan and the people are taxed to the utmost.

"The reports that Japanese spies have been caught making maps of the country about Pacific coast cities as well as of the fortification, is ridiculous. We don't want these maps, for the last thing either of the two countries would undertake would be an invasion by an armed force. It would take a thousand transports to bring a Japanese army over here and we could not get the steamers in a dozen years.

"My people likewise appreciate the fact that the Americans are good soldiers and can be made into an army faster than any people in the world. America has vast resources, while we are greatly handicapped in that respect. There will be no war between my country and America, for we have a problem before us now that will take years to solve."

PRETENDS INSANITY

Lars Toneson Tries to Work Government for Transportation.

Spotted by W. H. Dean, Must Pay Own Fare to Norway.

Lars Toneson, a Norwegian, 39 years of age, was willing to pose publicly as a crazy man if in exchange he could get free transportation to Norway, but when it came to putting in his time for two or three weeks in the county jail, he objected, and virtually admitted the plea of insanity was only a ruse to have the United States government deport him.

Ostensibly an alien tries to beat the government in this fashion. Inspector-in-Charge William H. Dean of the local immigration office has been long in the service, however, and with the experience he has had, and the opportunities of making a study of human nature that come his way as inspector, he is well fitted to block their plans in this respect, no matter how cleverly laid they may be.

Toneson, a big, husky looking fellow appeared yesterday afternoon in Mr. Dean's office. Toneson himself had nothing to say, but two friends who were with him volubly explained how he came to this country eleven months ago, landing at New York; how he came to Duluth almost immediately, and how he had been dependent upon friends for a living ever since, because he could not work on account of insanity. After sizing up the man, Mr. Dean suspected all was not exactly as it should be, and submitted the three to a cross-examination that would have aroused the envy of District Attorney Jerome. It didn't take him long to convince himself that Toneson was only shamming, but how to get him to admit it was the next question.

He seized the telephone, called up the county jail, asked for the sheriff in a loud voice, and having been connected with that individual said, so that every one in the immigration office could hear:

"I have a man here I want you to hold in jail for three or four weeks. Get a cell ready for him, will you? I'll send him right up. What's that? oh yes, crazy as a bed bug. You'll have to put him in the padded cell, and keep the irons on him. He seems a pretty strong, husky sort, and I would suggest that you keep him down to a bread and water diet, feeding him about once a day. That will tame him down a little. All right. Goodbye."

By this time Toneson had forgotten all about being insane. His one thought was to keep out of jail and his intelligent flow of language would have convinced any jury of his sanity. He protested loudly against going to jail, saying he preferred to remain at the home of his friends until the order of deportation came. Mr. Dean explained that the government could not take up the case until he, Toneson, became a public charge, and that he was not a public charge when depending upon the charity of friends.

He said that being imprisoned in the county jail on an insanity charge would make a public charge. Toneson's two friends also looked alarmed when the jail was mentioned, and protested against the rule. They finally were virtually forced into an admission that all they wanted was to beat the government, and were ordered out of the office. This is not the first time that an effort has been made to work Mr. Dean for free transportation, but up to the present time these efforts have proven unsuccessful.

ART SACRIFICED FOR MODESTY

High School Girls Shy at Wearing Doublet and Hose.

The senior class of the Central high school numbers no young woman who is willing to wear the masculine apparel that history and precedent has ascribed to dainty Rosalind. Because no feminine member of the class is willing to wear the clothes that Rosalind wore in the forest of Arden "As You Like It," the play selected for the senior class presentation will not be given.

At the meeting of the class yesterday the subject was discussed. Every girl in the class modestly declined the part. Some thought they wouldn't look nice or dignified, while others pleaded lack of histrionic ability. So the historic doublet and hose will stand between a presentation of the Shakespeare comedy.

At the present time the members of the class are bent upon securing another play. Perhaps it will be by a less famed author, but it will not have any undesirable doublet and hose woven into the plot.

THE SIMPLE COMMENCEMENT

Graduation Exercises Will Not be Show of Fine Clothes.

No feathers that are too fine, or flowers, for the fair girl graduates.

This edict of the board of education, was made known to the members of the senior class of the Central high school at a meeting held by the students yesterday afternoon.

This is really only a reiteration of a stand taken by the board of education, a year or two ago and is designed to protect the children of the poorer people from embarrassment at commencement time, caused by a tendency of the graduates, colored with wealthy parents to deck themselves out in finery which the rest of the class could ill afford to exhibit.

In times gone by the sweet girl graduates were in the habit of vieing with each other at commencement time to see which could appear in the finest gown and carry the most flowers. This contest worked a hardship, the school board decided, on the poorer citizens whose daughters were seniors. Not to allow their children to outshone by any of the others, the parents would often go beyond their means in decking out the graduate of the family, and even then the outlay of some of her classmates would make her outfit appear cheap and tawdry.

So the school board decided to taboo flowers and fine clothes. The graduates must be dressed simply, their parents must give them no flowers and the board of education will not do so.

Guy Mackey, who was recommended by Bill Armour of the Toledo team is figured on as one of the regular twirlers, and the man to be secured at Omaha is also going to Class C. Young Taylor, who pitched six games for Duluth, last year may be secured at Omaha and another comer pitcher, who lives in an Iowa town has been recommended. He will report at Omaha next week, while Mr. Kuehnow is there and will work out with the Omaha team. Harry Wright, the young fellow from Indiana will probably be ordered to report also. Four players will be carried during the year, so it is said, but they will be seasoned hands. There are several other pitchers under contract, but they will probably never see Duluth.

The Sioux City Journal is expected to make fast time without trouble though Crooks of the Chicago Cubs is looking for a second baseman for Morrow's inspection. For second George Bell who came from a Michigan league. He batted .327 at second last year and batted .325 as shortstop a year previous to that. Jimmy Hughes will be on the job at short with Williams at third again, the age the latter may be disputed by a man named King.

Maggy Monroe refuses to come across for the hockey effered and will probably not report. He will not be missed, as Harry Magee, Rick Wright, another man from Waterloo Ind., and the catcher from Wisconsin Dells, Fred Catfield, Fifteen or sixteen such will show up at Aurora, and by the time the team reaches here, it will be down to twelve or thirteen men. The schedule will be four games a week and will have about 108 games, beginning May 11 and ending Sept. 7. It is so arranged that the Canadian teams will be in the United States for the American holidays and the American teams will be in Canada for the Canadian holidays. The arrangement will give the league more holiday dates than any league in the United States and make a big holiday trade from a financial standpoint.

The salary limit of the Northern league is $1,200. The class of ball isn't as fast as it were $1,600. It isn't as fast as Duluth and Winnipeg deserve, but, on account of the geographical position of the two cities, they can do nothing but get in a four-club league and have the best ball they can without going bankrupt. It wouldn't do fair to Fargo and Brandon to raise the salary limit. They are small towns and their home attendance and grand-stand receipts will not boost their total receipts sufficiently to allow them to have anything but teams within the salary limit.

Above all things, the fans don't want another runaway race. Winnipeg must have had about $1,000 a month for its team last year. Duluth, even, paid about $1,400. The two Copper country towns probably kept within the limit and they were outclassed.

It's up to everybody to play close to the limit this year. Duluth is willing and Fargo and Brandon certainly are. If Winnipeg will throw off a few high notions and get down to a real business basis, it will fall into line. Just as soon as a team out for the pennant falls a few games behind, some managers lose their heads and imagine they're millionaires. They go out hiring players, who have no business in a league of this kind. They're bound to wreck the league sooner or later with such tactics and, if they're wise, they'll never adopt them.

As it is at present, all four towns have pretty fair teams. On paper, they appear to be evenly matched. Some of them are probably over the limit, but not enough to count. If they all keep close to the limit and don't go to hiring high-priced players during the season, the league will go through nicely. Let the magnates fall away from that policy and it will be all day with the organization.

It seems that all young ball players want to be pitchers. It takes eight men on every team to one pitcher, but on the ordinary corner-lot nine, every man is a twirler playing in another position for the occasion. When they get so they think they should branch out, most youngsters look for a job pitching. Some survive, others go to the field, but the majority get the chawere early in the game and hike back to the farm.

Kuehnow has already signed six or eight pitchers to try out for the White Sox, but he could get fourteen more if he wanted them and wouldn't need to limit try. The pitchers all make out the writers to have good speed, control, head and everything else that goes to make a pitcher. If most of them were put on the mound, they probably couldn't put a dent in a newly dirtied snow-bank. Every season has aspirations to become a great pitcher, but nine out of ten are disillusioned before they have been in organized ball more than a week or two.

Local option or Sunday baseball is the latest act proposed by the Ohio legislature. It may not get through, but the bill has been introduced and is being championed by one of the legislators.

It isn't a bad idea. It's hard to enforce any law against the opposition of public sentiment, but harder than any of the Sunday baseball law, which to the fan is what the red rag is to a gentleman cow. The farmminded man doesn't regard baseball as a sport, which should be stopped on Sunday. He thinks it is about as orderly a game as one would care to see and and as long as the baseball park isn't too near a church, the sanctity of the Sabbath is not violated by the amusement.

By putting it up to the people, the Ohio legislators clear their own skirts. If the people want Sunday baseball, they may have it. In most good, American communities, local option on Sunday baseball wouldn't draw very many votes for suppression. The great bulk of the voting population of most communities is made up of knocking men, who have but one gas a week to enjoy. The great American sport, and their votes would go for the amusement they think should be theirs.

SWIMMING RECORDS.

Missouri Man Sets Two New Marks at Chicago.

Chicago, March 19.—A. M. Goessling of the Missouri Athletic club, St. Louis, broke two records here last night in the second night's program of the National A. A. U. swimming championship, held at the Chicago Athletic club. Goessling set a new world's mark in the 200-yards breast stroke event, going the distance in 2:46 2-5. The former mark of 2:47 was held by Robertson of England. Goessling's other feat came in the 150-yards back stroke event, which he won in 2:00 1-5, a new American record. The races were held at the Chicago Athletic association and completed the program here. Further events will be held in Pittsburg.

Two other championship events were decided last night, the fancy diving, which was won by Galdzik of the Chicago Athletic association, and the fifty-yard junior, which went to South of the N. Y. A. C. In a special relay race of 160 yards, a team from the New York Athletic club defeated four swimmers of the Chicago Athletic club.

GUN CLUB WILL MOVE

New Grounds on Sixty-Third Avenue West to be Occupied.

First Shoot of Club to be Held Early in April.

The Duluth Central Gun club is preparing to open its season early in April, and the clubhouse and traps, now located on the old grounds at Duluth Heights, will shortly be removed to the new grounds at Sixty-third avenue west.

The new grounds are admirably suited for the purposes of the club. The wind, which swept over the old grounds almost continually, was a hindrance to members of the club, and scores were uniformly lower than they would have been on a range better located. The committee which was appointed to find a new site for the traps has acted with the belief that they will remove all difficulties, and this year's shooting will be better than any previous.

The club will probably be incorporated under the state laws very shortly. The matter is now in the hands of an attorney. An increase in membership will probably come before the first shoot, and when the members get together some time in April, they will begin what they believe will be a great season.

FINE WINTER BALL PLAYERS

National Commission After Men Who Played in Outlaw League.

Cincinnati, March 19.—The national baseball commission yesterday directed the secretary to communicate with the seven national agreement players who have been playing in games with clubs in the California State league, which is not under the national management, demanding that they show cause why as players they should not be assessed the time of the season for participating in such games.

The attention of the commission was called to the fact that certain national agreement players were playing with clubs in that league last fall, and a ruling was made at that time that this must cease. It was announced that a fine of $100 will be inflicted for the first offense and suspension for the second. The commission has now been notified that the following players have participated in games with that league after the notice was issued, and the secretary is instructed to request the players to show cause why they shall not be fined: Chase of the New York Americans, Moriarity of the New York Americans, Baum of the Philadelphia Nationals, Waterbury of the Boston Nationals, Nelson of the Tacoma club, McHale of the Denver club and Stange of the Newark club.

Harry Wright of San Francisco won the game yesterday afternoon against Clarence Jackson of Chicago by the score of 400 to 300. Wright's average was 14 22-27. Jackson's was 11 4-27.

Clarence Jackson is a brother of City Assessor Jackson of Duluth.

Members of the class held a meeting yesterday and decided to honor Miss Wells, who has always been very popular with the students, who will say farewell to the school in June.

Principal Smith, in an address to the class, said that the board of education had decided that at commencement time an oration, an address by the president and a class play with music would be the best program for the class night, and this outline was adopted.

JAP CONSUL BRANDS WAR TALK AS ABSURD.

Seattle, Wash., March 17.—"War between the United States and Japan is not only impossible but is absurd." Thus sums up T. Tanaka, the new Japanese consul to Seattle, the war talk that has been rampant of late.

"In the first place, my country is carrying a most burdensome debt, which has reached the limit which it can possibly stand. This debt was contracted as a result of the Russian war and we learned a lesson from that war which we are not liable to forget. It costs money to go to war and all we want now is a chance at peace, so that we can reduce that debt as much as possible. Times are very hard in Japan and the people are taxed to the utmost.

"The reports that Japanese spies have been caught making maps of the country about Pacific coast cities as well as of the fortifications, is ridiculous. We don't want these maps, for the last thing either of the two countries would undertake would be an invasion by an armed force. It would take a thousand transports to bring a Japanese army over here and we could not get the steamers in a dozen years.

"My people likewise appreciate the fact that the Americans are good soldiers and can be made into an army faster than any people in the world. America has vast resources, while we are greatly handicapped in that respect. There will be no war between my country and America, for we have a problem before us now that will take years to solve."

EIGHT HOURS IS ECONOMY

Raymond Robins Explains Why Short Day Pays Employer.

Raymond Robbins of Chicago spoke before a meeting of the Women's Label league at Fhaten's hall last night, on sociological and labor problems. He declared that the industrial struggle which is being carried on between capital and labor is being opposed more by the smaller professional men, such as lawyers, dentists and the smaller merchants than by any other class of men.

The purchasing power of the working people, he said, is the basis of business everywhere, and as the laboring men get more money, the wealth of the entire community increases. He declared that the eight-hour day is more economical for the employer of the country than the ten-hour day. The longer day makes the worker stupid, heavy and tired, and to get a reaction from the day's work he seeks the grog shop. As a citizen, a father and a husband, he is dead to the world, takes small interest in the doings of the community, and fails in the duties in his home.

Other speakers at the meeting were Rev. J. Lumley of the Plymouth Congregational church of West Duluth, George B. Howley, president of the State Federation of Labor; A. Dickey of Chicago and Mrs. W. A. Warnecka, president of the Label league.

COMMISSION MEN UPSET.

Say They Are Not Responsible for the Level of Prices.

Wholesalers and commission men on Michigan street are a little upset by the inference of an article published in The Herald recently about the cost of living in Duluth, that they have been unjustly maintaining a high level of prices.

"The prices prevailing in the market at the present time are the result of natural conditions and the commission men have had nothing to do with the level," said F. D. Merrick of the Knutsen Fruit company today. "As a matter of fact, the market for many things is quite low at the present time, and I rather think that prices for almost everything will be moderate during the coming season."

This is the scene that strikes the eye of the passengers on all boats passing through the Duluth ship canal. The old shacks on lower Lake avenue do not give the visitor to Duluth a good impression of the city. The efforts of the government to make the piers attractive have not been backed up by the property owners, and the first impressions of Duluth from incoming steamers are not the best.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ANNEXATION WILL PROVE A BENEFIT

To Mining Companies as to City of Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meeting of the Commercial club held last evening in the council chambers had the largest attendance of any for a year past, and several matters of importance were discussed.

A. E. Bickford of the committeee on annexation of adjoining territory to the city made a report and read an exhaustive and carefully compiled paper that he had prepared to present to the mining companies, giving reasons why their interests would be better subserved by joining forces with the city. At the conclusion of its reading the committee was given a vote of thanks and the president was instructed to appoint committees to present the report to the managers of the different mining companies in person. The president stated that he would announce these committees at the next meeting, but appoint them within a day or two so that they can begin work forthwith. It was also decided to endeavor to induce the owners of the Virginia "Sliver" to consent to annexation of that territory to the city.

The committee on a home rule charter made its report and on motion President Metcalfe was authorized to appoint a committee of ten to act in an advisory capacity to the charter commission which may be later appointed by the district court, the idea being that there are several citizens of the city who are not eligible to appointment as members of the commission but who have had valuable experience in such matters. The committee will be named at the next meeting of the club, when the matter of desirable changes in the charter will come up for further discussion.

The banquet committee reported that C. B. Miller of Duluth had been secured as one of the speakers at the affair. Another speaker will be furnished by the State Federation of Commercial clubs, while an effort will be made to secure Martin Hughes of Hibbing to deliver an address. Judge John M. Martin of this city has also consented to speak. The officials of the Eveleth and Biwabik commercial bodies have been invited to attend the banquet as guests of the club as about thirty of the more prominent beusiness men living along the line of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway. It was decided that each member of the club could have the privilege of inviting one guest to the banquet.

The committee on membership reported that ninety membership tickets have been issued to date.

P. E. Dowling and Alexander MacDonald appeared before the club as delegates from the Eveleth Business Mens' association, to endeavor to secure the co-operation of the Virginia in an appeal to the mining companies to assist in suppressing the blind pig evil. After an address by Mr. Dowling, on motion a committee of five was appointed to cooperate with the Eveleth association, as follows: A. E. Bickford, J. H. Fleming, W. E. Hannaford, Mayor Hawkinson and J. P. Chalmers.

Owing to the lateness of the hour and the large amount of business transacted, the proposed discussion of county division was postponed until the next regular meeting, and an effort will be made to have one of the speakers at the forthcoming banquet to make an address on this question.

EXPECT BETTER RESULTS

From Biwabik Fire Department by New Appointments.

Biwabik, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to bring about better results at future fires, Chief William O'Hara has appointed Charles Christian, Ed Verlli and J. H. Silbar captains of the hose carts, and they are expected in case of fire to work more in harmony. During former fires there has been lack of harmony in several instances and for the good of the service the chief believes the appointment of these men who will handle the nozzles in fires will bring better results. The appointments have been confirmed.

The new fire alarm boxes have been installed and the fire whistle is in place at the Biwabik mine, where the electric lighting and water plant is now located. The five boxes are all located on Main street.

DRIVES FAMILY OUT INTO COLD

Two Harbors Whisky Has Brutal Effect on Robert Peterson.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the story told by Mrs. Robert Peterson when she sought refuge for herself and four children at the home of Peter Peterson, a neighbor, five miles from here, Tuesday night, is substantiated, it is expected Robert Peterson will have some explaining to do in court. According to the woman, her husband and the father of her four children came home from Two Harbors much the worse for liquor and abused the whole family, finally winding up his brutal action by forcing them all out of doors in their night clothing. They had to walk through the snow during the bitter cold weather to the home of John Peterson, a neighbor, but no relation, where they were given succor for the night, then brought here. It is expected the charges will be probed and Peterson prosecuted.

Robert Peterson, when not in his cups, is said to be an industrious, hard-working farmer, but when drinking becomes pretty ugly. He has been "posted" in some of the local saloons, but the ban seems to have been raised.

This practically assures that the big mill here will soon be in operation again. The company now has about 15,000,000 feet of logs in the lake here, and is adding to the amount every day. Most of the logs are being brought from the Nett lake district.

Luery claims that Sablotzky has been doing his best for the past two months to keep the affiant Lnery out of the store. It is further charged by Luery that Sablotzky has drawn $7,000 more out of the business than Luery, and that Sablotzky spent from $50 to $75 a week for unnecessary clerk hire.

LEGISLATION PROPOSED BY THE PRESIDENT NOT ACCEPTABLE TO LABOR

gram because the president feels that he cannot endorse legislation which would legalize trade boycotts by the labor unions. The provision of the proposed bill exempting labor organizations from the operations of the Sherman anti-trust law was the medium through which it was intended to secure full endrosement by the American Federation of Labor. At the confereice at the White House, which Mr. Gompers attended, it appeared that organized labor was in complete accord with the program of the Civic Federation. Later, however, Mr. Gompers conferred with some of his associates in the American Federation and the consensus of opinion was that the president in his message to congress should recognize the right of organized labor to withhold its trade from a concern whose manner of conducting its business was inimical to organized labor.

President Will Not Agree.

It is said that the president would not agree to this, and in fact that he was disposed to urge that boycotts should be suppressed by legislation, which otherwise was fair to the labor unions. It was Mr. Low's mission in calling on Mr. Gompers, to show him that the president's message, if it was to have force, must be couched in language in juxtaposition to the decisions of the supreme court on the question. No agreement was reached, and in fact Mr. Gompers indicated that he would prefer that the Sherman anti-trust laws should continue to apply to labor unions rather than consent to a proposition that might effectually stifle, for all time, the boycott as a weapon.

In the meantime the president's ideas in regard to the message he plans to send to congress, urging a general relief measure, according to persons who have discussed the subject with him, have undergone a change. If a message is sent it will not be until after the Civic Federation's bill has been introduced. That measure has been prepared, although its provisions are not yet made public, and it is the plan to have it offered in the house early next week by Representative Hepburn of Iowa. President Roosevelt has not found a senator who approves the measure on whom he is willing to place the responsibility of championing the measure in the upper body. Therefore, the bill will not be introduced simultaneously in both branches of congress. It will depend upon the fate of the bill in the house whether it reaches the senate at all.

That the support of the labor organizations is necessary to the success of the program is the belief expressed by some of the leaders of the house.

Numerous Conferences Held.

Numerous conferences have been held at the capitol between senate and house Republican leaders, at which the prospects of the passage of the relief bill have been considered. Speaker Cannon and Representatives Dalzell and Sherman met senate leaders yesterday at Senator Aldrich's committee room. Although none of those present had seen the bill, it was agreed that only such legislation can pass at this session as meets with general approval among Republicans. If, as has been stated, the bill is drastic, the chances for its enactment are small.

The views of the leaders seem to indicate that a measure might be passed to exempt labor unions from the operations of the anti-trust law if organized labor supports sincerely other provisions of the bill, and that the anti-trust law might be modified so as to legalize traffic agreements between the railroads, provided that such agreements can be divorced completely from pooling devices. Labor leaders, however, are preparing to demand provisions to prohibit the issuance of injunctions without due notice of the proceedings to the persons to be enjoined, and also prohibiting the imposition of penalties in contempt cases which have not been admitted to juries.

DISSOLVING CANCERS

Specialists Tell of Wonderful Cures, Knife Is Useless; Dissolving Process Is Superior.

Cancer can be cured, and can be cured without cutting. That people with cancer have been killed wholesale in the past, there is no doubt about. Cancers are growths and take their origin from depositions of remnances of embryonal cells which have the property to grow and multiply in middle or older age if they are properly stimulated by defective metabolism of the panacreatic gland. Internally you may develop cancer or a tumor in your liver by the use of liquor in former years. Cancer of the bowels and the rectum a man will get if he is or has been troubled with piles, constipation, indigestion or bowel or stomach diseases. Cancer externally develops from a mole, from smoking a pipe, a birthmark or a wart; in fact, these are cancers in embryo and any one having them runs the risk of getting real cancer. A real cancer may be as minute as a pea, but it will itch at times, may form a scab and fester; remember, if this is the case and you have it cut, the cancer will go into your whole body by the blood and lymph stream, and where ever these cells are carried by the blood there will be a growth of cancer established, and if you ever witnessed the agony and excrutiating pains of cancerous people, you ought to learn a lesson and have this cured in time by Experts who make a specialty of these diseases as we. We don't come once every month, for these diseases have to be treated several times a week, and we are here every day in the year and do not travel elsewhere.

This process is not a simple one and can be done only by Experts who have spent their life and labor for the efficiency to cure these troubles, and we do cure them without any pain. Again, operations are very expensive and you risk your life every time you go on the operating table; by these experts you risk neither life nor pay high surgical fees.

Other Troubles Cured by Dissolving and Healing Method.

By this new and successful method we cure Rheumatism, Gallstones, Gravel, Kidney, Liver, Stomach diseases, Blood poison, Syphilis, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Prostatic and Bladder trouble, Nervous debility and Nervousness, Sexual Weakness, Asthma, Catarrh, Lung Trouble, Throat, Ear trouble, and all chronic diseases. It don't cost you anything to consult the specialists, in fact, you are cordially invited to call on them and if your case is curable you will be given a written guarantee of a cure. Concult them from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Sunday from 10 to 1. No. 1 W. Superior St., Duluth.

"Corn was steady at the opening and ¼d higher, followed by a further advance of ½d. Support resulted from the very light offerings, stimulated by the firmness of American cables yesterday, scarcity of American offerings, and a good demand for spot."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Nervous After Active Opening at Moderate Advance.

Chicago, March 19.—There was an active trade in wheat here today. The market was nervous. The opening was firm on a moderate advance in Liverpool, but the market weakened later on quite general selling based on a slump in corn prices. The early tone was also influenced by small receipts in the Northwest. May opened 96¾c to ⅞c higher at 96¾c to 96⅞c, sold at 96⅝c, but declined to 95¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 308 cars against 384 cars last week and 351 cars a year ago.

The market was firm during the latter part of the session on additional "green bug" reports from the Southwest. The close was firm, with May ⅞@⅞c higher at 96½c.

There was a large trade in corn and the market was active and nervous and strong at the opening. May selling at a new high record point, 67⅜c. Later a reaction occurred on profit-taking. May opened ⅝c to ¾c higher at 67⅜c to 67½c and sold off to 66⅝@66¾c. Local receipts were 197 cars with 8 of contract grade.

There was quite a bulge in corn during the last fifteen minutes of trading, due to active covering by shorts. May advanced to 68¼c. The close was excited and strong, with prices at the top. May was up ⅝c at 68¼c.

Oats were very quiet. The market was steady. May opened a shade higher at 51⅜c and sold at 54¼c. Local receipts were 195 cars.

Provisions were fairly active and weak under selling pressure by packing house interests. May pork opened unchanged to 2½c lower at $12.47½@12.50 and sold off to $12.35. Lard was 7½c lower at $7.95. Ribs were down 2½c at $6.87½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Strong Cables Sent Wheat Upward at the Opening.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—Strong cables put wheat up in the early session. Liverpool closing ⅞@⅞c higher started it. Locally the feeling was only steady to a little easier for receipts were about a standoff with a year ago, the figures showing 223 cars against 252, while elevator stocks gained 50,000 bushels and now show an increase of 75,000 bushels so far in the week. Some more green bug reports came from the winter wheat but the crop news was both good and bad and about a standoff. The market was dull but took on life near the close and moved up ½c, closing firm. May wheat opened at $1.06⅝; high, $1.06⅝; low, $1.06¾; close, $1.06¾; July closed $1.05¼; September closed 93¾c.

Better demand was felt in cash wheat. No. 1 northern brought 1¼c over May and No. 2 northern ½c under. For a 50,000 bushel lot No. 1 northern to arrive late in April 2c over May was bid. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.08, spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.06 spot or to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.00@1.00⅝.

No. 3 yellow corn, 61½@62¼c; No. 3 white oats, 51½c; No. 2 rye, 74⅞@75¾c.

Barley was dull and there was only a moderate business in malting grades, but considerable low-grade stuff was cleaned up. Closing range, 58c to 84c.

Flax steady at Duluth May price, with demand only fair. Close, $1.16⅛.

Bran in bulk quotably unchanged Millers' prices, $21.50@21.75.

Larger local mills say business is good, but smaller mills and country millers in Minnesota and the Dakotas report trade dull. There are complaints from Dakota millers that the Minneapolis mills are underselling them in their own towns. The price list is suggested. Shipments, 50,613 barrels. First patents, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.20@3.40.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter and eggs are lower in the market today. The warmer weather and more liberal receipts has resulted in a decline in prices. Apples are higher and cranberries are up. These last are practically out of the market altogether. Nowhere are they available except in very small lots and at high prices.

Copper Gossip.

Hayden, Stone & Co., Boston, to Walter W. Carr: We have held a rather dull narrow market so far today with trading at a standstill at times, Trading confined to few stocks and mostly in small volume. The metal situation is stronger with sales reported at 13¼c. We think the market is a purchase on all soft spots.

• • •

Miller, Boston, to Martin Rosendahl: The local was dull today and without feature. The metal people are still watching the situation as being the index of the copper future. There has been considerable selling of Amalgamated. About equally dividend between short selling and profit taking the issue stands it well and we should say that its action was very strong.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 19.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 4 points, but broke very sharply during the early session under liquidation of May, which was accompanied by general selling and some excitement. May sold down to 9.93, making a new low record for the season and a loss from last night's price of 19 points. Stop-loss orders were caught on the decline, and while heavy covering caused a temporary rally of 6 or 7 points from the lowest, the market continued very unsettled during the middle of the morning, with prices only a point or two up from the lowest.

Spot closed quiet; twenty points lower; middling uplands, 10.80; middling gulf, 11.05; sales, 3,811 bales. Futures closed steady; closing bidys, March, 9.84; April, 9.84; May, 9.96; June, 9.94; July, 9.93; August, 9.76.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

And Closed Steady at Near Top Prices of Session.

Large Selling Orders Caused Drop Soon After the Opening.

New York, March 19.—The tendencies of the opening price movement today were mixed and showed small changes both ways. Reading and American Smelting rose a point. These were the only notable changes and the dealing were small.

Large selling orders appeared in various stocks after the opening, causing the entire list to recede fractionally below yesterday's close. New York Central and Denver & Rio Grande preferred gave way 1, Corn Products preferred 1¼ and Illinois Central 1½. Covering by the short interests and the activity of the bulls brought about a brisk rally which lifted prices higher than at the outset. Union Pacific, Brooklyn Transit and National Lead were heavily bought and rose a point each. Near 11 o'clock the market weakened again.

The downward movement was extended and then gave place to a rally, which also proved unstable. At the extreme International Paper preferred was down 1½ and B. & O., Chicago & Alton, Pressed Steel Car preferred, United States Realty and American Steel Foundries preferred 1. American Smelting and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie got 1½. Brooklyn Rapid Transit 1⅝ and St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Amalgamated Copper and Westinghouse Electric 1. Bonds were heavy.

The market quieted down and was without important changes, although the tone was easier. Chicago Great Western debentures declined 1½. Delaware & Hudson advanced 1.

Aside from a general sag to the market which brought a few stocks back to the low level, speculation was featureless and intensely dull at intervals.

The market closed steady and dull. The downward movement did not exceed the previous ranges and prices then turned upwards again to about the top. General Electric rose 2; Republic Steel preferred, 1¼; American Locomotive, 1⅛, and the Rock Island stocks and Southern Railway, 1, while the Third Avenue fell 2¼ and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred 1⅛.

N. Y. COMMITTEE FAVORS JOHNSON

For Presidential Candidate, is Opinion of Chairman Connors.

New York, March 19.—The Democratic state convention will be held in Carnegie hall, New York city, on April 14, at 10 a. m. This decision was reached today by the Democratic state committee.

With but one dissenting voice the committee adopted a resolution recommending that the delegates to the national convention be uninstructed by the state convention when elected.

Chairman Connors said today:

"An opportunity will be given the members of the committee at today's meeting to express the sentiment of their respective districts as to presidential candidates. Bryan sentiment is on the wane in New York state and it is my belief that not more than three of the fifty-one members of the committee are in favor of his nomination for the presidency.

"Who, in your opinion, is the state's favorite candidate?" Mr. Connors was asked.

"Governor Johnson of Minnesota," was the quick reply.

DOES NOT THINK SUSPECT IS GUILTY.

Chicago, March 19.—Baron A. A. Schilppenbach, the Russian consul in Chicago, held a long conversation at the West Chicago avenue police station here today with Ankodine Ziteso, a Russian who is under arrest on suspicion of having thrown a bomb in St. Petersburg with the intention of killing members of the Russian royal family. Ziteso was arrested yesterday at his home, 606 Austin avenue, on information furnished the police by a butchman. The Russian consul elicited the information that the man had come to America from Russia recently, and arrived in Chicago six days ago. Baron Schilppenbach, however, declared that he doubted the prisoner's guilt, and said that he appeared to have nothing to hide.

CARPENTERS ARE NEEDED

Contractors Will Give Local Men the First Chance.

Members of the Duluth Builders' exchange are going to give local union carpenters another chance to go to work. With the busy spring season approaching, carpenters are in need of more men of this trade. They say they can get all they want from outside points, but prefer, before taking such a step, to give local men a chance to return to work.

There are several hundred union carpenters in the city who have done practically no work since the trouble began last November. Employers believe they are ready to accept employment under the open shop system, and will give them first opportunity. Advertisements to this effect will be inserted in local newspapers this week.

IMMIGRANT'S ORDEAL.

Some Interesting Scenes Along the Gangway at Ellis Island.

A ferryboat has reached Ellis Island with the immigrants from a great steamship. With battered boxes and plethoric bundles its occupants begin to straggle up the gangway that leads to the central detention room.

Inside there is stir and bustle. The doctors, nurses, inspectors spring to their feet, ready and alert, as the immigrants file in. Each immigrant has pinned to his clothing a ticket corresponding to the number of the cage or pen in which he is to wait for examination. They sit there in comparative silence, fearful of the ordeal which confronts them, starting from time to time when some unfortunate is held by the doctors for further examination, breaks into shrill wailing, says the New York Sun.

The Cerberus that guards the gateways of America has three heads, one at each corner of the triangle around which the immigrant passes on his way to the custom inspector. The doctor at the first notes the apparent physical condition of those who pass him. The doctor at the second looks at the scalp and gives the immigrant a careful scrutiny before admitting him to an extreme narrow gangway, blocked by a third doctor with a dripping towel.

While the immigrant stands still the doctor wipes his fingers, stretches them out and deftly turns back the eyelids in search of that bar to admission—trachoma. Any evidence of this disease leaves no option under the law but to ship the immigrant back.

Behind the large central hall is a small apartment set aside for those who have been detained for further examination. Sit there, visible through the wire caging, guarded by a stalwart janitor, watching in misery and wonder the luckier ones pass by.

Presently a woman comes along, of decent appearance, evidently from some English country town. She has passed the first two doctors and is in line for the third. He looks at her, examines her eyelids, wipes his fingers, and just as she is about to pass along seizes a piece of chalk and marks "vision" in great staring letters down the front of her dress. An attendant comes up, catches her by the arm and motions her toward the detention room. She resists, calling after the friend who has preceded her to freedom.

"Let me go," she cries. "My sister is waiting for me."

But there is no time for explanation; she is holding up the line. She bursts into tears, and is half-dragged, half-carried away.

Just then a young man comes hurrying back.

"Have you seen my fader?" he inquires.

An old man inside the pen hails him, waves his arms and bursts into song. The woman stops weeping and stares at him in terror.

"Is that him?" asks an attendant.

"Ja ja, dot's him."

"Well, he can't come; he's drunk, and he'll be kept here a couple of days until he's sober."

Back of the doctors are stationed a number of women inspectors—women with the eyes of hawks. A girl passes the doctors, another, another. No sign is made.

A comely girl steps along the aisle. She has passed the physicians. Her eyes have been examined and found to be free from trachoma. Her general health appears superb. She is about to step on to freedom, when one of the women inspectors hurries after her and lays a hand on her arm.

"One moment, my dear. Are you married?"

"No—yes," says the girl in confusion. "Is your husband with you?"

The girl stammers and stops.

"Just sit down here for a little. You will have to go before the board."

The consulting rooms, where those who have been detained are subsequently examined by the doctors, are below. They have been barred to the public ever since the day, a year or two ago, when a trachoma patient walked off undetected among the visitors. Here a physician is examining a boy of low intellect.

"Of course," he whispers, "this may be due entirely to nervousness and timidity. His intellect is probably normal, but we don't take chances. (To the boy.) Now, Johnny, where do you come from?"

"From home, sir."

"Where is your home?"

"Leicester."

"What is your name?"

"Alfred."

"Alfred what?"

"Alfred, sir."

"What day of the week comes after Saturday?"

Boy gazes at the physician blankly for a moment, makes a sudden dash for liberty, and is stopped short, howling. Held for further examination.

"In the end," says the doctor, "we pass about 90 per cent of those whom we hold for mental examination. Of course, we have to make allowance according to the different nationalities. For instance, we should suspect an Icelander or Scandinavian, who could not read or write to be feeble-minded, whereas in a Sardinian the accomplishment would be almost evidence of hypertrophy of the cerebrum. Again, we should almost certainly reject a German who did not know the days of the week or months of the year, whereas among the Macedonians very few know them. They are about the most ignorant of all who reach us."

The hospital is a large red brick building fronting the immigration offices across the dock. Most of the inmates are pneumonia patients, and in these cool wards through which the air circulates freely the deaths are few.

In a cot in the children's ward sits a little Scotch girl. She is about 5 years of age and is propped up on pillows.

"No need to tell you the nationality of this one," says the nurse in charge, pointing to the flaming red hair, which contrasts strikingly with the pale face. The child's back is curved into a half circle.

"Potts disease," says the nurse. "Yes, congenital and quite incurable. She'll be a hopeless cripple for life—if she survives. She'll be sent back if ever she gets well enough."

Another little girl is reading a picture book.

"I don't know what we'll do with Dorothy," the nurse continues, stroking her hair. "The mother was seized with mania on the ship and tried to throw the child through the porthole. I guess the government will have to detail some one to return with her, unless her mother recovers."

But only half the rejected are sent back for medical causes. There are four boards of special inquiry which sit to adjudicate on other cases.

They delve into the histories and character of all who come before them, cross-examine and interrogate witnesses. The difficult cases go before the commissioner. From him there is the right of appeal to Washington, where rulings are frequently reversed.

LESS ICE THAN ONE YEAR AGO

The Government Report Shows Encouraging Condition on Lakes.

According to the government ice report, there is less ice reported in the Great Lakes now than a year ago at this time. Following is a summary of the report:

"The reports from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau indicate that the easterly winds have moved the fields west over Western Superior, but they are not extensive and are much broken up. Some fields are reported east of Keweenaw Point. Over the eastern portion the fields extend beyond vision, but are not heavy and move with the wind. The ice in Whitefish bay averages about 8 inches and is breaking up. In St. Mary's river the ice softening in the channels where the current is rapid. In Green bay the ice is intact but is covered with water and slush. In Michigan the ice is confined to the extreme northern portion from Grand Traverse bay north to the straits, except an occasional narrow strip along the shore. At the straits the ice averages 12 inches and the conditions have not changed. In Huron the ice fields have decreased and are moving with the winds; over the extreme southern portion the field was moved out by southerly winds but has been moved back by northerly winds and has bridged at the mouth. St. Clair river is open to Algonac. The ice is running out of Lake St. Clair and the Detroit river is open to Lake Erie. In Erie the ice fields have disappeared over the western portion and are now confined to the eastern portion, east of Ashtabula. In Ontario no ice fields are reported; the ice in the harbors is softening.

"In comparison with the same period last season, there is less ice reported in all the lakes. The fields over Eastern Superior are as extensive but not as heavy."

WOULD NOT SWEAR ANY MAN INTO PENITENTIARY

Kane Says Conscience Would Not Let Him Implicate Vail.

Says He Refused to Shift the Blame to Anyone.

"I told Mr. Stevenson that some time I would die; that I had a conscience, and that I would go to prison at Stillwater or anywhere else, but no matter where I went my conscience would go with me, and I wouldn't do any man such a mean trick."

The above declaration was made almost sobbingly by Michael T. Kane this morning, while on the witness stand in his own behalf, and was given in response to a question from his attorney about Kane's alleged statement that Mr. Stevenson urged him to swear Ben Vail into jail.

"I said I would never ask anybody to pity me; that if I committed any crime I am ready to pay for it. I don't want it laid on any other man's shoulders," continued the witness with reference to the conversation with Mr. Stevenson at San Francisco.

The testimony by Kane this morning was practically the same as he gave at the first trial, relative to his movements in Duluth primary election day, Dec. 17 last, the trip to Mare Island, the session in the office of the commanding officer at the naval station, the conversations on the ferry boat, in the hotel at San Francisco and the trip back to Duluth. If anything, Kane went a little more into details as to the conversations in which he claims that every effort was made to induce him to confess that he was put up to illegal voting by Ben Vail of this city.

Served Term in Reformatory.

The state scored a point in the cross-examination of Kane, when the defendant admitted that he served time at the reformatory in Ionia, Mich., in 1895, for a forgery committed at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. He also admitted that for eighteen months of the twenty-two for which he was sent up, he was confined in the insane asylum in connection with the reformatory. The state is said to have had some intimation at the first trial that Kane had been in an asylum, but the fact was not brought out until today.

Kane also stated under cross-examination that he had been in the St. James hotel precinct for only ten days next preceding the primary election, at which he admits voting in that precinct under the name of Mike Kane.

Kane denied that he knew Ben Vail or that he voted more than once in Duluth, Dec. 17 last.

Kane's nervousness is even more apparent at this trial than at the first, and at times he shakes like a leaf.

The defendant declared positively that the word "Duluth" was not mentioned by the commanding officer at the Mare Island station when asking him where he voted. Kane claims that Mr. Stevenson, C. A. Anderson and Sheriff Bates are mistaken in their testimony to the contrary. Kane claims that the word "Baltimore" was not mentioned at the examination before the commanding officer.

During the cross-examination Kane denied that he ever made the statement to the commanding officer to the effect that "the boys were trying to lift the lid in Duluth and he was helping them a little." He claimed he never heard the word "lid" mentioned in connection with Duluth, but admitted that he took quite an interest in the election and knew what the issues were.

Kane's testimony was given, as before, in the narrative form, broken at times by questions. The defendant claimed that he could not remember the facts distinctly unless permitted to tell of the various circumstances connected with the conversations.

County Attorney Norton asked the witness if he "had something up his sleeve," and Kane replied with spirit:

"I've got a lot more up my sleeve that I haven't told yet, and don't you worry, it will come quick enough."

Carl A. Anderson, whom the state claims to be one of the two witnesses who followed the alleged illegal voters from the fourth precinct of the Sixth ward to the first precinct of the Seventh ward, Dec. 17 last, testified against Michael T. Kane yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Anderson was one of the state's principal witnesses at the first trial of Kane, on the indictment charging the latter with voting under an assumed name, and his testimony was practically the same in both trials.

Under cross-examination, Anderson admitted that he had been employed by Dr. Cullum's supporters to do some work on election day in the way of getting the voters to the polls.

According to Anderson, he saw Kane, Ben Vail, a man named Tier and two or three others whom he did not know, on the corner at Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. The witness claimed his suspicions were aroused as to the actions of the men, and he started on foot for the first precinct of the Seventh ward, where he waited until they came in and voted. Anderson claimed that he stood very close to Kane when the latter voted, and looked at him carefully with a view of identifying him later, if necessary to do so. The witness claimed that he noticed in particular a small scar on Kane's right jaw.

Anderson admitted that he went to Superior with the police officials the day following the primary election and that he thought he saw a resemblance in two men to members of the party that voted in the Seventh ward polling place, Dec. 17. He admitted that it afterward turned out that the two men were not the persons wanted.

Anderson claimed that he was employed by the authorities to go to San Francisco to identify the five men wanted for illegal voting here, and that he had not been promised any reward, or a position on the police force.

To Mr. McMahon's query as to what he told Kane about the alleged illegal election, the witness said:

"I told him if he would tell the truth it would probably be better for him. I told him that I thought Ben Vail got him to vote. I did not tell him that Ben Vail was a crook, a thug, or a thief, or that he could get off easy if he testified against Vail."

Anderson was sure that the word "Baltimore" was not mentioned during the conversation at the barracks; in fact, that he did not hear it until the first trial of Kane.

First Assistant County Attorney W. J. Stevenson testified for the state and corroborated Anderson's testimony as to what took place at the Mare Island navy yards, on the ferryboat and in the hotel at San Francisco.

Sheriff Bates' testimony was corroborative of that given by Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Anderson.

S. B. Sorenson and Edward Rudberg, clerks on the election board in the first precinct of the Seventh ward, testified that Kane was one of the men who came into the polling place and voted during the afternoon of Dec. 17 last.

WORKMEN IN FIERCE RIOT

One Man Fatally, Several Others Seriously Hurt at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 19.—One man was fatally injured and a number of others seriously nurt in a riot near the plant of the American Steel & Wire company, on Independence road, in the southern outskirts of the city, today. Fifty men crowded around the gates of the plant seeking employment, word having gone out that additional help would be taken on today. A quarrel started among the men, following the attempt of those in the rear to get closer to the gate, and a general fight began, the men using stones and clubs as weapons. One man was armed with a revolver. He shot down his opponent, who had struck him with a rock. At this juncture a patrol wagon, loaded with police, arrived on the scene. The officers clubbed the rioters right and left. A number of the rioters were found lying unconscious on the ground. Charles Wryclst, one of the rioters, who was shot, cannot recover.

CAMPBELL IN THE LEAD

Duluth Man Has High Score in the Bowling Singles.

Kings of Minneapolis Lead in Five-Men Team Events.

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the State Bowling tournament last evening two of the standing marks were tumbled over. The Kings of Minneapolis, took the load in the five men event, rolling a total of 2,673, and a single high score of 951. Campbell of Duluth, took first place in the singles, rolling 621.

The scores in the doubles and singles made thus far are higher than last year's scores, but the team total is a hundred short of the mark set last year by the Pathfinders.

There were a number of excellent scores made last night, the Duluth men all showing fine form. G. Olson rolled 604 and S. Olson 600, while Campbell rolled 621. Massey got a total of only 541, but this was high enough to give him first place in the nine game totals to date.

Berini of Duluth, rolled the high single score of the tournament when he gathered 247 in his second game in the doubles. Mample of the West side team, rolled 235, and Harry Claytor of the Courts, 235.

Tonight the Stillwater boys are scheduled to go on, and a hot time is assured.

The scores of last night:

ISSUES WRIT OF ATTACHMENT

Judge Dibell Grants Petition of Creditor of H. L. Hartenstein.

Judge Dibell of the district court today issued a writ of attachment against the property of H. L. Hartenstein, president of the American Carbolite company. The writ is the result of a suit brought by M. H. Alworth to recover on a promissory note for $20,000. Oscar Mitchell, attorney for Mr. Alworth, made affidavit to the court that on Sept. 13, 1907, Mr. Hartenstein gave Mr. Alworth his note for $20,000 for six months.

It is alleged that Hartenstein has assigned, secreted or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with the intention of defrauding his creditors, and on those allegations the writ was issued.

SETTLES CASE OUT OF COURT

Bryant Suit Against Iron Range Company is Terminated.

The damage case of Bert M. Bryant against the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company was settled out of court and dismissed this morning, as the trial was about to be begun in Judge Cant's room. Bryant claimed to have had his hand injured by defective machinery at the Two Harbors ore dock.

A jury was drawn this morning in the personal injury case of Charles Abrahamson against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, which is on trial in Judge Cant's room.

In Judge Ensign's room the jury was excused shortly before noon, while the attorneys argued over a motion of the Pitt Iron Mining company for a directed verdict in its favor in the damage action instituted by Tony Pintar. Pintar claims to have lost an eye in a premature explosion caused by a defective fuse.

AGED MAN ENDS LIFE

Because Home for Infirm in Which He Lived Failed.

It is Believed That Other Inmates Also Planned Suicide.

Chicago, March 20.—A suicide pact, involving probably a dozen inmates of Bethseda Home for the Aged, is believed to have been revealed by the death of John Koch, who died yesterday by his own hand, after ridiculing John Hazelbach, who failed in an attempt at self-destruction. The motive for the pact is the bankruptcy of the home, a private institution, into which many of the old folks, friendless and alone in the world, had paid their savings of a lifetime, expecting to be cared for till death. As a result of the bankruptcy, the aged inmates are face to face with destitution.

Mrs. Mary Mann, matron of the home, is convinced that a "poison bottle" was passed by Koch to some one else in the compact, whose identity will be disclosed only by another case of suicide. Mrs. Emma Bausch, one of the supervisors of the home, predicts a number of additional suicides, although she has dissuaded three that had avowed such a purpose. Koch, who was 88 years old, paid $200 to the home. Others of the twenty-one inmates paid into the institution as high as $2,000 each. Some of the most wretched and helpless of the old people at the home have been taken away and provided for by the Little Sisters of the Poor.

WITNESS DIES; CASE IS ENDED

Sudden Ending When Witness Expires on the Stand.

Mt. Vernon, Ill., March 20.—The county court of Jefferson county was brought to a dramatic adjournment Wednesday, when George McBride died while seated in the witness chair.

McBride was the chief witness for the defense in a case on trial and had come in from his farm to testify.

McBride had given his name, his occupation, his residence, and had told of his long acquaintance with the parties to the suit. The attorney turned to refer to some memoranda he had and, after a minute or two resumed his examination of McBride, not noticing the fact that the witness seemed to be gazing abstractedly into space.

The attorney asked his question—the vital one in the suit, and the answer to which would mean victory to plaintiff or defendant.

There was no answer.

The question was repeated several times and still McBride was silent.

In desperation the attorney turned to the court and insisted upon an answer.

Judge Blair, who had known McBride for years, was surprised at the man's seeming stubbornness, and left the bench in order to repeat the question himself to the witness. One glance showed the judge that McBride was dead and the hearing came to an end.

McBride often had complained of heart trouble.

EGGS NO LUXURY NOW.

Have Reached the Lowest Price in Many Years.

Chicago, March 20.—Eggs for breakfast are no longer a luxury; far from it.

Indeed, the hen has proved herself so indefatigable in the last ten days that eggs have touched a lower mark than they have reached before in five years.

Eggs of the strictly fresh variety—which no hen would blush to mother—are quoted in South Water street as low as 12½ cents a dozen, while the retailers' price ranges from 15 to 20 cents. Eggs of doubtful character and redolent past have been banished permanently.

It will be of further cheer to the housewife to know that a still lower price may prevail for the stock keeps arriving. An average of about fifty carloads a day is now being received in Chicago for local consumption and Eastern shipments. This means a total of 60,000 dozen or 7,200,000 eggs daily.

Of course, many of these are shipped to the Eastern seaboard, where the hens are not so busy, nor so numerous as in the West, but the supply now being somewhat in excess of Eastern demand, a drop in prices to stimulate home consumption may come within a short time. The commission men admit that if things do not look better the price will have to go down again.

CONDITION OF GUILD REMAINS UNCHANGED.

Boston, March 20.—The condition of Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., which was reported late last night as having shown a slight improvement, was said, at 7 a. m. today, to have lost none of the advantage gained. The governor fell asleep shortly after 11 o'clock last night and his slumber lasted until well into the morning.

The following bulletin by Dr. Winslow was issued from the governor's office at 9 o'clock:

"The governor had a comfortable night, but his condition remains unchanged."

PROMINENT MILWAUKEE MAN KILLS WIFE BECAUSE OF LOVE FOR ANOTHER

George Willoughby Commits Murder and Then Attempts Suicide.

Will Probably Die From Wounds He Inflicted Upon Himself.

Chloroformed Wife While She Slept and Shot Her.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 20.—George Willoughby, manager of the Jewett & Sherman company, coffee and spice mills, early this morning shot and killed his wife, Florence Willoughby at their home on Prospect avenue. After the murder Willoughby fired two shots into his breast over his heart and at 6 o'clock, when the police were taking his confession and anti-morten statement, his condition was so low that it is not believed he can recover.

Willoughby confessed to the police officers that he had committed the murder because he was infatuated with another woman whom he had been supporting for four years.

Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby last evening had attended a social at the Park Place Methodist Episcopal church where both were prominent workers. Mr. Willoughby also taught a Sunday school class.

Quarrel Followed.

After the social they visited his brother, LaRoy Willoughby, Okland and Hartford avenues, after which they returned to their own home. There a quarrel followed after which both re-

INVITATION EXTENDED

By Japanese to Have American Battleships Visit Them.

Government Will Accept and Fleet Will Call at Japan.

Washington, March 20.—The Japanese government has extended an invitation to the American government to have the Atlantic battleship fleet visit any port in Japan on its homeward cruise around the world. This invitation was received at the Japanese embassy here yesterday and was at once transmitted to Secretary Root by Amabassador Takahira. The question of its acceptance or declination was considered by the president and his cabinet today.

Secretary Root will, this afternoon, accept on behalf of the American government the invitation of Japan to have have the battleship fleet visit that country on its returning voyage.

GREEK KILLED.

Fell From High Trestle While He Was Crossing on Skis.

Minot, N. D., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Frosopolis, a Greek laborer employed by the Great Northern, fell from a high bridge near Norwick, while going to town on skis, and was fatally injured, dying here, and was fatally injured, dying here. It seems that the Greeks had adopted the skis as the best method of going to town from their work. The Greek started over a bridge on skis, struck a dry spot and stumbled, and before he could recover himself, fell to the ground. His head was badly injured, and he died here. A Greek minister from Minneapolis came out to perform the ceremony.

TO ADOPT 600 CHILDREN.

Plan of Philanthropic Woman to Improve the Human Race.

New York, March 20.—To improve the human race, Mrs. F. F. Wieland is planning to adopt sixty children a year for ten years. She, with her husband, John C. Wieland of Rensselaer Heights, and Benjamin Franklin of New York, have incorporated a company under the laws of the state of New York. Eight acres of land, a house, a mill and a stream with sufficient water power to light a town are in the possession of the corporation. Here the adopted children are to be "trained in right mental, physical and manual effort, as a practical demonstration of the laws of vibration."

FOUR HANCOCK WOMEN TO TAKE VEIL IN ST. LOUIS.

Hancock, Mich., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Anthony Waechter, pastor of St. Joseph's church of this city, has gone to St. Louis to attend a ceremony in which four Hancock young women will have conferred upon them the habit of the Sisters of St. Joseph. They are Miss Daisy Derosier, Miss May Moreau, Miss Mary Herres and Miss Cecelia Wurm.

SMUGGLERS KILL GUARDS.

El Paso, Tex., March 20.—Charles Jones and Charles Logan, mounted customs guards, were shot to death last night by smugglers. Their bodies were found today in the dry bed of the Rio Grande river. There is no clue to the murderers.

BIG FLOOD EXPECTED

Freshet Equal to That of 1884 Feared at Gallipolis, O.

Colder Weather Checks Rise of Waters in Pittsburg District.

Gallipolis, Ohio, March 20.—The indications today are for a disastrous flood. The Baltimore & Ohio railway officials predict a freshet equal to that in 1884. All traffic will be tied up. Heavy rains equal to waterspouts have fallen throughout the valley, and great damage has already been done. All the side streams are pouring great volumes of water into the Ohio river.

Crest Reached.

Pittsburg, March 20.—The crest of the flood in this city was reached early today when 27.3 feet were registered. The rivers remained stationary four hours, and at 10 o'clock the water began to recede three-tenths of a foot an hour. Cold weather last night, which had frozen up many of the small streams, prevented a flood of greater proportions.

The damage here and throughout Pennsylvania is widespread and heavy. Preparations are already under way to clear up the flood traces when the water falls below the danger mark of 22 feet.

GERMANS FIGHT THE HOTTENTOTS

Many Natives Killed in Battle in South Africa.

Berlin, March 20.—The government publishes a cablegram from South Africa, reporting a battle between the German expeditionary forces and a body of Hottentots in the Kalahari desert. The German troops had been sent out to find Simon Koppers, the last of the Hottentot chiefs, who is still hostile. The engagement was a very severe one. The enemy lost fifty-eight killed. Seven men and several women were captured, but Koppers escaped. The German loss was also heavy, Capt. Von Erekert, commander of the expedition, Lieut. Ehinger and twelve privates being killed and seventeen wounded, of whom nine were seriously hurt.

The German force left Cohas on March 6, 430 strong, with four machine guns and 700 camels. They made forced marches into the waterless desert for four days before stopping long enough to cook a fresh supply of food. The only water found was a dirty pool, which was insufficient to quench the thirst of the camels.

The loss probably will be $150,000.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF NEW YORK ASKS SENATE TO INVESTIGATE CHARGES

Concerning the Receiverships for Financial Institutions.

Alleged That He Asked Appointees to Divide Fees.

Attorney General Says the Charges Are Due to Politics.

Albany, N. Y., March 20.—Attorney General Jackson today sent to the senate a letter asking for an investigation of his department by the senate.

The letter was referred to the finance committee, which is now considering the resolution introduced yesterday, calling for an investigation of the attorney general's action with regard to receiverships for financial institutions. In his letter, Mr. Jackson says: "That my administration of the office of attorney general has been severely attacked in certain quarters, due, as I believe, to ignorance of the facts, to political opposition and to personal enmity, engendered by my attempts

WILL NOT USE THE TUBES NOW

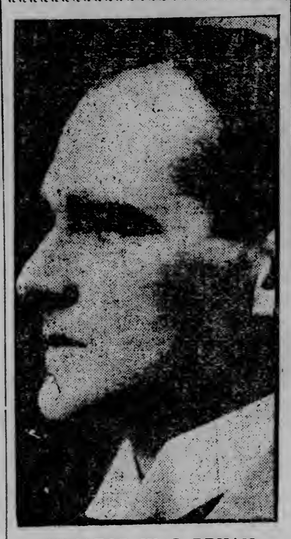
Pennsylvania Tunnels Will be Closed for Many Months.

New York, March 20.—Although the last of the four Pennsylvania railway tubes under the East river was cut through on Wednesday night, it was announced yesterday on authority of the Pennsylvania railroad officials that the tubes will not be put into active service for nearly two years.

When the iron castings are installed and the two foot layer of concrete is in place the four tunnels will be closed for many months, while work is progressing on the Pennsylvania's terminal station in Manhattan. No passenger trains will be run through the tubes until the entire system is ready. The two Pennsylvania tubes under the North river have not yet been entirely concreted, although they were cut through many months ago.

It was stated yesterday, on good authority, that the entire tunnel system, with its terminals at Long Island City, Manhattan and Jersey City will cost the railroad about $90,000,000.

SENATOR BRYAN OF FLORIDA VERY ILL



SENATOR W. J. BRYAN.

Washington, March 20.—Serious apprehension is felt concerning Senator Bryan of Florida, who is ill of typhoid fever at Providence hospital. Today is the thirty-second day of his illness and his condition is so low that his regular attending physicians, Doctors Fry and Acker, called into consultation Dr. L. F. Barker of Johns Hopkins university. Dr. Barker did not attempt to conceal his opinion that the case was a critical one, because of the danger that blood poisoning might supervene. Mr. Bryan's wife and brother are in constant attendance upon him.

MUCH FUSS BEING MADE

Over Reported Engagement of Duke to Elkins' Daughter.

Italian Ambassador Visited Florida on Special Mission.

Rome, March 20.—King Victor Emmanuel, in conversation this morning with a member of his entourage regarding the reported engagement of the duke of the Abruzzi, his cousin, to Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, he neither confirmed nor denied the rumor. The duke of the Abruzzi is at the present time exchanging cipher cablgrams with the king.

A significant fact has just come to light here through some personal correspondence. The Italian ambassador at Washington, Baron Mayor des Planches, writing from Florida in the beginning of March to a friend in Italy, said:

"I am here on a special mission."

Shortly after this the baroness wrote to a friend heer and made use of this phrase:

"Willy Nilly, I have had to come to Florida."

As there is no political reason why the Italian ambassador and the ambassador's wife should go to Florida, it is

MRS. MORASCH ON TRIAL.

Charged With Sending Poisoned Candy to Miller Home.

Kansas City, March 20.—Taking of testimony in the case of Mrs. Sarah Morasch, on trial in the circuit court at Kansas City, Kas., charged with the murder of four-year-old Ruth Miller, who died from the effects of eating poisoned candy intended for her fourteen-year-old step-sister, Eva Miller, began today. The testimony of handwriting experts will, it is expected, play an important part in the case. The prosecution asserts that Mrs. Morasch addressed the fatal box of candy, and will produce a number of authorities on handwriting to prove its assertion.

STEAMER OVERDUE.

Plymouth, Eng., March 20.—The British steamer Accra, from Sierra Leone, March 2, with 156 men and women, including a detachment of a West Indian regiment on board, is three days overdue. Much anxiety is expressed for her safety. On her voyage up from Sierra Leone she put in at the Canary Islands, from which place she sailed March 10.

Barcelona, March 20.—The Spanish steamer Isla de Panay, Capt. Ageo, from Manila, Feb. 18, for Liverpool, via Colombo, Feb. 28, with a cargo of tobacco and cocoanuts on board, put in here today with fire raging in her holds and was burned to the water's edge. The crew of the vessel was saved.

PROMINENT METHODIST

Bishop Charles H. Fowler of New York Passes Away.

Death Due to Heart Failure From Complication of Diseases.

New York., March 20.—The Rev. Charles H. Fowler, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, died at his home here today.

Bishop Fowler has been critically ill only since last Wednesday. His death was due to heart failure, resulting from a complication of diseases. He had been in ill health for two years, but during nearly all that time he took a most active part in the affairs of the church. As late as two months ago he felt able to make a journey to Minneapolis, where he presided at the dedication of the Fowler Memorial Methodist Episcopal church. His last public appearance was at Metropolitan Temple, on Sunday following Washington's birthday, when he took part in a Washington memorial service. His last visit to his office in the Methodist building on Fifth avenue was made last Monday. On Wednesday he was stricken with the illness which resulted in his death early today.

Bishop Fowler's long life was filled with activity for the church and the cause of education. Born in Burford, Ont., in 1837, he was graduated from Genesee college, now Syrause university, in 1859, and was the valedictorian of his class. He also headed his class at graduation from the Garret Biblical institute, which he entered soon after leaving college, and was the first man to receive the honorary degree of D.D. from that institution. After completing his education, he removed to Chicago, where he studied law, but never practiced that profession. Entering the ministry at the conclusion of his law studies, he served as pastor of several

FIREMEN'S LIVES ARE ENDANGERED

By Explosion During Blaze in Minneapolis Fruit House.

Minneapolis, March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—During a fire last night on North Sixth street, which did $60,000 damage, the lives of five members of the Salvage corps and one police sergeant were endangered by the collapse of the third floor of the Gamble-Robinson wholesale Fruit company building. The collapse was followed by an explosion that blew out both ends of the structure.

Lieut. Frank Cross, A. L. Fleetham, Paul Thompson, Steven Linihan and James Allerdice, members of the salvage corps, were covering the stock on the lower floor of the Gamble concern when the collapse and explosion occurred. The men were hurled like chaff, along with barrels, boxes and debris, twenty feet into the street. None of them sustained greater injuries than painful bruises and cuts. Police Serg. Russell was hurt by a door which had been hurled against him and he was taken to his home in the ambulance.

SAYS RAILROAD MUST GET OFF

New Jersey Man Buys Its Property at Tax Sale.

Burlington, N. J., March 20.—For the sum of $607.43 Andrew H. McNeal, capitalist and iron magnate, has become the sole owner of all the Pennsylvania railroad property within the city limits, including freight and passenger stations, round houses, trackage and equipment.

The railroad refusing to pay the tax assessed by the city, Clerk Thomas S. Mooney offered its property among others sold for unpaid taxes and declared it "too good a bargain to miss."

McNeal is known as one of the most aggressive fighters who has figured in the courts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and those who know him well expect to see trouble when he makes his ultimatum to the railroad. It is said McNeal will demand that the road vacate his property that he may tear down the unsightly passenger station, which has been an eyesore to the city for years.

OLE SEVERS WINDPIPE,

But is Prevented From Taking Life and May Recover Sense.

Crookston, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Haugen was in Crookston last evening with his brother, Andrew Haugen, who last week attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat. He managed to sever his windpipe but the physicians saved his life by inserting a silver tube, which the wounded man vowed he would tear out. His fit of despondency seems to have subsided and Ole Haugen, who resides at Kenyon, Minn., will take his brother for a visit with relatives at Beltrami, and will later take him to Kenyon on a visit in hope that his mind may be cleared up and that he will forget his suicidal ideas.

PENSION APPROPRIATION BILL PASSES THE HOUSE.

Washington, March 20.—After several hours of spirited discussion over the proposition to abolish seventeen of the eighteen United States pension agencies and consolidate pension disbursements in Washington, the house of representatives yesterday passed the pension appropriation bill, carrying $150,869,000, the largest sum ever authorized by that measure. The house by a vote of 86 to 139 stood by the committee on appropriations and left unchanged its recommendations for one general agency.

WIFE BETRAYED HERSELF.

With Hand Dipped in Salt Water, She Talked in Her Sleep.

Trenton, N. J., March 20.—"An old sea captain once told me that if I would put the hand of a sleeping person in salt water, that person would answer truthfully any questions that I might ask them. I tried it with my wife. She answered all my questions and gave me the proof that I needed to bring my divorce suit."

This was the startling statement that caused Vice Chancellor Walker to reserve decision in the divorce suit of Richard Tague of South Amboy, brought on statutory grounds.

Tague appeared as his own counsel and when asked by Vice Chancellor Walker how he obtained the names of the men with whom he charged his wife with improper conduct, he exploited the salt water method. Tague said that eight days after the marriage he found in his wife's possession a letter from another man.

Mrs. Tague filed a cross-suit, naming a co-respondent, but this phase of the case was not brought out.

LA FOLLETTE CONTINUES

His Speech on the Cause of the Recent Financial Panic.

Washington, March 20.—Resuming in the senate yesterday his unfinished speech on the Aldrich currency bill, Speaker La Follette directed himself to the charge made in his remarks on Tuesday that the recent financial stringency was started by great bankers and financiers, declaring that since he spoke on Tuesday he had secured additional information proving that his charge was correct.

He read a letter signed by H. R. Vermilia, auditor of the Washington Life Insurance company, calling upon an agent to send premiums, collected weekly, to New York, and said such letters were sent to agents of that company all over the country.

"Other New York insurance companies," said Mr. La Follette, "controlled by identical and allied interests at the same time gave similar instructions to their state managers throughout the country."

Senator LaFollette will continue his speech on Monday next.

KANE DID NOT REPEAT

Jury Frees Marine Corps Recruit at Second Trial.

Evidence Was Apparently Very Favorable to Ben Vail.

Michael T. Kane, a member of the United States marine corps, did not repeat his vote in Duluth at the primary election held last December. At least twelve men so decided by their verdict, returned in district court last evening.

As the matter now stands Kane has been acquitted under the indictment charging him with repeating his vote, but he is liable to another trial under voting under an assumed name. So far as known only two indictments were returned against Kane.

Whether the young man will be tried again on the first indictment will depend on the determination reached by County Attorney Norton. In the first trial the jury was more than evenly divided, seven holding out for conviction and five for acquittal.

The result of the Kane trials has caused a great deal of speculation as to the probable outcome of the trial of Ben Vail, the bartender at the St. James hotel, who was indicted for inducing Kane and several other recruits for the marine corps to vote illegally at the last primary election. Kane was the only member of the party brought back for trial, the other recruits having deserted from the marine corps after being sent to Mare Island, Cal. It is generally presumed that the state has but little if any evidence to connect Vail with alleged election frauds outside of the references made to him during the trial of Kane. The weight of the testimony seemed to be that Vail was not in the party of men who are claimed to have voted illegally in the fourth precinct of the Sixth ward and the first precinct of the Seventh ward.

Alexander Marshall, attorney for Ben Vail was present during both trials of M. T. Kane, taking notes on the evidence, to be used at the trial of Vail, if the state decides to push the prosecution.

Several witnesses were called for the defense in the Kane trial, yesterday afternoon, and the case was given to the jury about 5 o'clock. County Attorney Norton made a strong plea for conviction in case the jurors were satisfied Kane was in the fourth precinct of the Sixth ward and voted there Dec. 17 last. He emphasized the seriousness of the alleged offense, and urged that the safety and security of the country rests on the enforcement of its laws. He pointed out the disgrace that has been placed on the name of the city by the alleged trickery at the polls, and asked the jury to do its duty in wiping off the stain by punishing the offender. The testimony was reviewed carefully, and Mr. Norton declared the question for the jury to decide was whether they would believe the sworn testimony of W. J. Stevenson, Sheriff Bates, C. A. Anderson or that of Michael T. Kane, as regards the alleged confession. In the matter of identification, it was urged the jury must decide whether Anderson, Allen, Hartson, Sorenson and Rudberg, or Kane, Otterson and Whitney were telling the truth. The state maintained that Kane had plenty of time to have gone to the West end and voted before Sergeant Harry Hutchings saw him in the afternoon of Dec. 17 last.

M. H. McMahon, who defended Kane, claimed that the state had failed to prove that Kane was in the West end the day in question. Mr. McMahon declared that the alibi was perfect and that it could not be shaken. He argued that Kane did not make reference to the Duluth election when he made the alleged confession at the Mare Island station, but that he referred to the number of times he had voted in Baltimore, eight or nine years ago.

WOLF BUSINESS IS QUITE GOOD

Over $1,300 Paid Out in Bounties in Two Months.

The county is doing a big business in the matter of wolf bounties this year. During the months of January and February over $1,300 was paid out by the county auditor in bounties for wolves killed within the county limits.

The auditor's books show that in January, fifty-eight wolf pelts were presented for the bounty and a total of $580 was paid out. The state paid half of the amount and the county paid the other half.

In February there were thirty-eight wolf pelts presented and a total of $570 was paid out by the auditor.

The wolf killing business seems to be the best during the months of January, February and March each year. Not a month passes without a dozen or more wolf pelts are brought to the county auditor's office.

Yesterday six pelts were brought to the county auditor's office by Robert Martinea and Joe Dawe of Tower.

This is the last day in the campaign of the Y. M. C. A. for 1,000 new members. It is confidently believed the 1,000 mark will be reached, and possibly passed, before tonight. Up to this noon, 933 applications for membership on the old basis of $6 a year had been secured. This left only sixty-seven to be secured this afternoon.

Kitchll is still in the lead. He and members of the committee of which he is chairman have gotten 138 new names since the campaign began. The Fenton committee is second with 137 names to its credit. MacGregor comes next with 115, and Thompson follows him closely with 114.

Temperance Meeting.

The monthly temperance meeting at the Branch Bethel, under the auspices of the Duluth Union Temperance society, will be held this evening. Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, will give his popular lecture on "The Liquor Association's Education Bill." L. A. Marvin will preside.

Long Illness Fatal.

Mrs. Henriette Jackson, aged about 30 years, died this morning at Room 17, Dodge block, after an illness of several months. She is survived by a husband and one child. A sister will come to Duluth from Southern Minnesota to make final arrangements for the funeral which will be held Monday afternoon.

Condition Unchanged.

The condition of Thomas H. Sexton, who has been very low for several days was practically unchanged this afternoon.

Two Schools Visited.

The school boards's own committee of investigation spent the morning at the task of inspecting the Jackson and Emerson schools. So far as is known, the inspectors found nothing sensational. At each building they visited, they instigated a fire drill, a practice they have been indulging in ever since they undertook to look into all the city schools. This afternoon, the committee members are on their regular, everyday jobs.

Back From the South.

H. F. Williamson returned today totally recovered from the grip, after a month's absence in the South. Mr. Williamson was at Nassau and Palm Beach, and says these resorts showed no signs of the financial depression, as the hotels were all crowded. The weather has been colder this winter than usual, but he says he found it very pleasant.

Gun Club Incorporated.

Articles of incorporation of the Duluth Central Gun club were filed today with the register of deeds. The incorporators are the officers of the club. The company has no capital stock, but is formed for the purpose of promoting trap-shooting and sports of that nature, and for the enforcement of the game and fish laws. The initiation fee is fixed at $5.

Moves Into New Office.

This morning County Auditor Halden moved his office into the room formerly occupied by the county board whenever the commissioners had a meeting. A large archway has been cut in the brick partition formerly between the room and the auditor's office. The additional office space given the auditor by this arrangement is considerable, and will do much to counteract the overcrowded conditions there. Work is progressing nicely on the addition containing the new vault and the commissioners' room, and both will be ready for occupancy in a few days.

Maxim Heirs Appeal.

May Maxim Smith, one of the heirs of the Maxim estate that sued J. H. Brigham of this city for a share in the proceeds from the sale of some ore lands, has taken an appeal to the supreme court from the order of Judge Dibell granting Mr. Brigham's motion for a new trial. The court recently set aside the verdict in favor of the heirs on the ground of errors by the court in charging the jury.

Applications for Extensions.

Three petitions were received by the board of water and light commissioners this week for gas and water extensions. Two of the petitions for the extensions on Water street and Central avenue were granted, subject to the council's confirmation, and the third was withheld for further consideration. The board has passed on a total of twenty-eight petitions for extensions since the first of the current year.

MORE PAY FOR LIFE SAVERS

Washington, March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate today passed a bill to increase the efficiency of the life-saving service by increasing the pay of superintendents, keepers and surfmen. This bill passed the house March 17, and now goes to the president.

The bill provides for an increase in compensation to district superintendents, keepers and surfmen, an allowance for rations to keeper and surfmen, and the amendment of existing laws to include dependent mothers among those entitled to receive the benefits provided by the act of May 4, 1882, upon the death of a keeper or surfman in line of duty. The compensation of keepers of life-saving stations is increased from $900 to $1,000 per annum, and the compensation of one surfman in each crew, known as the first man, is increased from $65 to $70 per month, the pay of the other members of the crew remaining at the present rate of $65 per month. To this is added for all keepers and surfmen one ration per day, or commutation thereof at the rate of 30 cents per ration.

A Busy Saturday

Tomorrow we expect will be the busiest day of the year thus far—specially interesting displays of the new styles, not alone for women, but also for the juniors, will attract ALL WHO PREFER TO CHOOSE FROM RELIABLE LINES. In any event many will be here for a first inspection, just to learn what is FASHIONABLE.

The New Suits

Our advance showings of suits have won for us the biggest early season business we ever had. We expected it, as we have been unusually successful in securing the best models. The women of Duluth recognize the many advantages secured in buying here.

FOR TOMORROW we will show a very extensive line of new suit models at a very reasonable figure—needless to say we know they cannot be duplicated hereabouts—$25.00, $30.00, $35.00.

New Skirts

A number of separate skirts in every woman's collection of garments has become a recognized necessity. Skirts for dress occasions, for mourning wear, for street wear, for outing, etc. You are sure to find what you want from our carefully selected variety of the season's most approved models—chiffon Panama skirts, 2 separate styles, one side pleated with folds, another with cluster pleats with two folds; colors brown, blue and black—we price them at $6.00.

Skirts of fine "Altman Voile," colors black and blue, two distinct models—one is made in full kilt style with five taffeta bands, and sells at $10.75. The other is of cluster box pleats with numerous taffeta bands on the gores—$12.50 is the price.

Taffeta Dresses

These dainty little creations are the charm of every woman's heart, that is when they are right, right in fashion and fabric, perfect in fit, etc.

For tomorrow we show a number of pretty "Gibson" styles in a good quality soft-finish taffeta, black and white check effects, made "Princesse" style, skirt is full pleated with folds, "Princesse" girdle—short sleeves—$15.00.

Another pretty silk suit comes in Copenhagen blue, navy and black, waist is full box pleated with fancy yoke collar and cuffs—skirt is also full box pleated and joined to waist with girdle—an unsurpassed value at $25.00.

New Waists

Our line of exclusive styles has interested every woman in Duluth who notes the advantage of early selection. In the every day styles one finds ample variety for easy selection. These for tomorrow—

New lingerie waists in embroidery, lace and tucked bands for yoke and vest, button back, short sleeves—choice $1.25.

Tailored waists, two special lines for tomorrow at $2.75. One is of fancy bar muslin, neatly and plainly tailored, long sleeves—the other is of pretty two-toned batiste, blue and white, pink and white, etc.—long sleeves—choice $2.75.

A line of handsome taffeta silk waists in an entirely new model, broad Gibson tucked effect, with pleated jabot down front, three-quarter sleeves—colors blue, brown and black—a splendid value at $5.00.

For Misses and Children

Tomorrow we arrange a special showing of new arrivals for juvenile wear in our west show window—always leaders in the better lines for the younger generation this season. We have almost doubled our usually strong showing. For tomorrow we mention a few of the many interesting items.

Children's new flannel jackets colors red and blue, fancy collar and cuffs—ages from 6 to 12 years—$2.50 and $3.00.

Children's tailored serge coats, red only, double breasted style, gilt buttons, etc.—$5.00.

SWORD AGAIN MAY SWEEP MACEDONIA

Turkey Given Almost Free Hand by Near East Disruption.

Constantinople, March 20.—Russia, England and France are all hoping that the Nova Bazar railway scheme, which Baron von Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, suddenly launched upon Europe, will simmer down to a mere question of diplomacy, while Germany is indifferent and Turkey triumphant. A somewhat fantastical rumor has been circulating in Berlin and St. Petersburg that a new grouping of European powers will take place in regard to the questions of the Near East. According to the story, which has evidently been thrown out as a feeler, England and Russia intend to act together, supported by France. The object of the new grouping is said to be the isolation of Germany and Austria-Hungary in the Balkans.

Men of sound judgment and good information everywhere recognize that the Austro-Hungarian minister's scheme is an event of great international importance. That is obvious, whatever may be the consequences which ultimately may flow from it. It manifestly involves a considerable change in the relations between the two most interested powers in Macedonia, and, consequently, a change in the whole position of the concert of Europe and of its several members so far as that region is concerned.

Spring Styles Are Ready.

If you are thinking of your spring suit, don't fail to see the "Fitwell" Clothing Parlors' swell line. Their stocks are now complete, and a visit to their beautiful parlors will show you just what is authentic in style for this spring and summer. More than 200 different styles are now on display, and if you will favor them with a call they will be glad to show you through their immense stocks.

AMERICANS PREY OF PARIS CROOKS

Robberies Have Increased Greatly Since Exposition in 1900.

Paris, March 20.—Paris is honored by the presence of gangs of "confidence" fellows, who devote their attention principally to Americans on a visit here. Speaking on the subject to an interviewer, the American consul general in Paris said that ever since the 1900 international exhibition, Americans had been victimized by swindlers in the French capital to a greater extent than other foreign visitors. One reason, he believed, was that Americans do not care for it to be known that they have been robbed, and, above all, do not wish to return from America to France to appear as witnesses against the thieves. The latter, in his opinion, can escape too easily to London, and he noted the fact that in a recent important robbery the men were known to have been in London the following morning. Another method by which Americans, as well as other foreigners, are frequently victimized is this: Certain disreputable guides in Paris do a thriving blackmail business by taking people to rather improper places and then threatening to expose their movements to their families at home. Of course, with regard to the blackmail business, it may be said, when is succeeds, that "fools and their money are soon parted." Many of the so-called guides, however, are positively dangerous characters, and foreigners, when they require the services of one, would do well to apply to the manager of their hotel, instead of accepting the offers that may be made them in the streets.

Good For Everybody.

Mr. Norman R. Coulter, a prominent architect, in the Delbert Building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c at all drug stores.

CURTAILING SHIPMENTS

Stiffer Orange Market is Looked for in Duluth.

Green Stuff Will be a Little More Plentiful.

Oranges prices remain the same as last week in the local produce market, but the commission merchants look for an advance before long.

The reason for it is a curtailment of packing in California. The packers and growers claim to have lost money on the orange crop because the fruit has been too plentiful and too cheap.

Duluth householders may say that they have not been able to notice that oranges have been selling at ridiculously low prices during the winter, but the fact remains just the same, that this season has been a season of plenty as to oranges. The crop has been a large one and the fruit has been coming out of California in large quantities since the movement began.

Now the California folks have got together and decided that they were too generous in the shipments to other parts of the country and have proceeded to cut them down. They are holding back oranges, figuring on getting better prices for them.

Of course, it is rather late in the season for them to cut much figure. However, is they hold on to the navels, it may mean the introduction of more seedlings in the market. This will work for the benefit of the packers holding the navel reserves because there is a greater demand for navels than seedlings. Many people refuse to eat oranges unless it is a navel.

However, the action of the packers in California has not yet affected the local market and probably will not for another week. After that time, a bulge is looked for, however.

The local market for butter and eggs has seen a decline this week. Butter is off a cent from last week and fresh eggs are now selling at 16 to 17 cents. Storage eggs are out of the market. There is practically no excuse for their existence now and several days ago, stocks were practically cleaned up. Receipts of fresh eggs continue liberal.

• • •

There has been an easier undertone all the week in the market for fresh vegetables. Green stuff is coming in bigger lots, with the coming of warmer weather. For a few days, Florida receipts were light, caused by cold weather in the South. This same reason explains the scarcity of Florida strawberries at the present time, as receipts have not picked up any since the South in a measure recovered from its cold snap. When they can be found, Florida strawberries are selling on Michigan street for 55 to 60 cents a quart. Receipts of strawberries thus far, have been largely quarts, but they say that pints will be coming next, which means that for about thirty cents, wholesale, it will be possible to gratify a whim for some of the berries.

Despite the easier feeling in the fresh vegetable market, however, prices remain the same as a week ago.

Apples are higher and further advances are anticipated by the trade. Stocks of apples are beginning to thin out, and New York apples are now selling at $4 to $5.75 a barrel.

• • •

The banana market is unchanged, at 4 cents a pound.

Cranberries are gone. One or two barrels were seen along the row during the week, but they were selling at $12.50 and $13 per barrel, and many could not be found at those prices. One commission man blew up and down the street in a mad frenzy to get some for a customer of his, but he could not be aided by any of the brethren.

• • •

The potato market is somewhat irregular, as it always is at this time of the year, but the range has been steady at 70 to 75 cents a bushel during the week. One day receipts are heavy and the spuds are plentiful, and then again bad roads may tie up shipments from the potato centers, and the market stiffens.

• • •

Receipts of some North Dakota potatoes were reported today. It is not often that the Flickertail state furnishes Duluth with the tubers. The North Dakota products are selling at 72 to 75 cents a bushel. "The North Dakota potato is a rather dirty and tough-looking customer, on account of the richness of the soil, but it tastes fine," said one commission merchant.

• • •

The firmness in the poultry market continues. Receipts are light and the prices still up. Cattle has also been scarce during the week and the beef market has advanced steadily. Light receipts at the stockyards have been responsible for the bulge.

CONCRETE AS SHIP ARMOR.

Declared by British Expert to Excel Solid Plating.

Glasgow, March 20.—Although reinforced concrete has come to be extensively used in the construction of important buildings for various purposes, engineers who practice the system have not quite reached the stage which has been reached in Italy of suggesting it as a substitute for steel armor on warships. Signor L. d'Adda, an Italian naval engineer, has made a proposal to that effect, and the ministry of marine has been induced to experiment with armor of the kind at Muggiano.

One of the best known British experts says that undoubtedly ferro-concrete possessed remarkable resistance to shocks of the most severe kind, and, when suitably reinforced, it had been shown to be most valuable as a protection against heavy projectiles. At Port Arthur, Hennebique ferro-concrete had been extensively used, he said, in the Russian fortifications, and the Japanese had also employed it for some of their casemates. The toughness and elasticity produced by a proper system of reinforcement, was greater, he claimed, than could be obtained with solid plating, and there did not seem to be any doubt that in the near future the material would be far more extensively employed for protection against artillery than it had been in the past. Not being a naval architect, this expert did not feel qualified to speak with regard to the questions of weight and space. Signor d'Adda, however, claims that the weight would be about the same and the space occupied not more than with metal armor. The cost would be very much less.

MINER GETS DAMAGES

Jury Awards Tony Pintar $7,000 for Loss of Eyesight.

Verdict Based on Use of Defective Fuse in Blasting.

Tony Pintar will receive $7,000 for the loss of his eye as the result of an explosion in one of the mines worked by the Pitt Mining company near Hibbing.

Pintar, through his attorneys, Theodore Hollister and L. H. Corcoran, brought suit for $25,000.

The jury which has been trying the case returned a sealed verdict, which was opened this morning.

Pintar and a fellow workman were blasting. They lighted a fuse and waited some time for the explosion. It failed to come, and Pintar went to investigate. Just as he leaned over the fuse the explosion came, and Pintar lost the sight of one eye and received other injuries.

The company was claimed to be negligent in providing a defective fuse.

BREAD LINE IS GROWING

Resources of Bethel Are Taxed to Feed Unemployed Men.

Contributions of Food by Citizens Would be Welcomed.

The Bethel bread line was larger this morning than it has been at any time since it was instituted. No less than 225 men lined up for breakfast this morning and were furnished with hot coffee and sandwiches by the Bethel authorities.

The bread line is becoming almost more of a burden than the Bethel can carry. Not many contributions have been received toward it, and the expense is no small item. To feed 200 or more men daily, even if they are given only coffee and sandwiches, is no small expense, and it is proving a rather severe drain on the Bethel's resources. Contributions of food would be welcomed by the Bethel authorities.

NO OFFENSE IS CHARGED

Indictment Against Mrs. Laura McArthur is Dismissed.

Failed to State an Intent to Defraud Anybody.

The trial of Mrs. Laura McArthur on an indictment charging forgery in the second degree was started in Judge Dibell's room yesterday afternoon, and dismissed by County Attorney Norton this morning on the ground that the indictment did not allege any attempt to defraud. It was claimed by the state that Mrs. McArthur passed a $175 check purported to have been signed by J. D. Curry of the lumber firm of Curry & Whyte.

It is alleged that Dec. 26, 1907 Mrs. McArthur went into a local restaurant, where she was acquainted with one of the waitresses, and asked the girl to write out a check for her. After complying with the request the waitress told the proprietor of the restaurant, and the latter telephoned Chief Troyer. A telegram to Mr. Curry at Black River Falls, Wis., brought the reply that he had not authorized Mrs. McArthur to sign his name to any checks. Later Mr. Curry wired that he would honor the check and it would be all right.

Mrs. McArthur conducted a boarding house at 919 East First street. It is said that she borrowed money from Mr. Curry and gave him a chattel mortgage on her furniture. She alleges Mr. Curry gave her permission to draw on him whenever she wanted money, and that by reason of her lack of business knowledge she did not know she was doing wrong in drawing a check on him. Mrs. McArthur has been out on $500 bail since her arrest. She was defended by Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer.

INSTANT RELIEF OF ITCHING HUMOR

Limbs Below the Knees Were Raw —Feet Too Swollen to Get Shoes On—Sleep Completely Broken by Intense Itching and Burning—Well in Two Days and Says That

CUTICURA IS AMONG HIS HOUSEHOLD GODS

"God bless the man who first compounded Cuticura. Some two months ago I had a humor break out on my limbs below my knees. They came to look like raw beefsteak, all red, and no one knows how they itched and burned. They were so swollen that I had to split my drawers open to get them on and could not get my shoes on for a week or more. I used five or six different remedies and got no help, only when applying them the burning was worse and the itching less. One morning I remembered that I had a bit of Cuticura and tried it. From the moment it touched me the itching was gone and I have not felt a bit of it since. The swelling went down and in two days I had my shoes on and was about as usual. I only wish I had used the Cuticura Remedies in the first of my troubles. They would have saved me two or three weeks of intense suffering. During that time I did not sleep an hour at a time, but was up applying such remedies as I had. Henceforth the Cuticura Remedies will be among my household gods, rest assured. George B. Farley, 50 South State St., Concord, N. H., May 14, 1907."

JURY AWARDS QUIRK DAMAGES

Great Northern Railway Company Assessed $1,000 for Injured Foot.

Damages in the amount of $1,000 were awarded Frank Quirk against the Great Northern Railway company, in a verdict returned in Judge Cant's room last evening. Quirk lost a foot under an ore car on the Allouez dock in Superior, some time ago. He claimed that the accident was due to the carelessness of the company through its employes, and sued for $25,000 damages. He claimed that the coupler did not work, and that the engineer moved the train without giving him any warning. The company claimed that Quirk had made a statement to an insurance company that while he was uncoupling the cars the slack of the train came on him and he was injured.

EXCESS FARES ILLEGAL.

Cannot Charge Extra Where Passengers Fail to Buy Tickets.

Madison, Wis., March 20.—An excess fare cannot be charged passengers on the railroads of Wisconsin when tickets are purchased on the train unless provision is made to refund the amount overcharged.

This is the effect of an opinion rendered by Attorney General Gilbert to the railroad rate commission.

Prior to the passage of the 2-cent fare law, the Northwestern and the St. Paul roads charged 5 cents in addition to the regular fare when fares were paid on the train. This practice was temporarily discontinued when the 2-cent fare law was passed, because of the heavy penalty provided for violations.

HEARING ALL ONE WAY.

No One Appeared to Advocate Closing Red River to Boats.

Fargo, N. D., March 20.—The Red River of the North, between Breckenridge, Minn., and Grand Forks, N. D., will not be declared unnavigable, if results of the public hearing held here before Maj. Francis P. Schunk of St. Paul, have any bearing. Not one person appeared to favor the closing of the river, while representatives of the Fargo, Grand Forks, Bismarck and Wahpeton Commercial clubs, and also Crookston, brought opposition to the closing of the river to navigation for commercial purposes. The hearing closed early Wednesday afternoon, and Maj. Schunk will make a report soon.

NEWS FROM THE WEST END

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC AT HORACE MANN SCHOOL

Half of Children There Are Exposed to the Disease.

Ten Youngsters in One House Have the Complaint.

"In one house in the neighborhood of the Horace Mann school, ten children are suffering with the smallpox and half of the children of the school have been exposed to the disease because parents have sent youngsters just recovering, back to their studies."—Prominent West end physician.

Children have been attending the Horace Mann school, Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street, when their faces still bore smallpox sores, and now a full grown epidemic of the disease is flourishing within a stone's throw of the building.

Not far from the school is a house, occupied by two families, in which ten children, including a baby only a few months old, are suffering with smallpox. The quarantine signs are on the house now but for a long time they were not and the children who were able, were being sent to school.

This information was furnished to The Herald by the physician who attended the cases. For reasons of professional etiquette, he refuses to divulge the names of the families afflicted and is loath to have his name mentioned but at the same time, if it becomes necessary, will do so in support of what he has said.

"When I was first called to the house," said the physician today, "several of the children had been sick for some time and some of them had been going to school off and on. This family lived on the second floor. After examining the children, I diagnosed the cases as smallpox. Then the people told me I ought to see the baby downstairs. I went down and had a look at the baby. It was only a few months old but its face was one mass of smallpox sores and pus.

"There were seven other children in the family and all of them, except one who had been successfully vaccinated, were suffering from the disease. The father and mother, who were successfully vaccinated once, did not have the disease. This seems proof positive to me that successful vaccination is a preventative of smallpox.

"I venture to say that in the Horace Mann school, none of the children exposed to smallpox who have been vaccinated, have caught the disease."

It can not be positively said how many children at the Horace Mann school have been exposed to smallpox but it is safe to say that fully two-thirds of them have.

When children have come to school with sores on their faces, they have been promptly sent home, according to the teachers. There are no sores apparent when the patient first gets the disease. They become ill and go home and remain there for several days, very sick. Then they begin to feel better again, although blotches begin to appear on their faces.

"I have known of instances in the West end when people declined to have a physician call after the first visit in smallpox cases," said The Herald informant. "When the patient is very sick, during the early stages of the disease, the doctor has been sent for. When he leaves he gives instructions to be notified if blotches begin to appear on the face. Perhaps the next day the patient's mother calls up on the telephone and says: 'I guess you needn't come any more, doctor. Willie is much better today. Any blothes on his face? Oh, no, he is looking very well.' You see they don't want to be quarantined."

Five families are known to have smallpox right now. Several new cases have developed within the past few days.

As fast as physicians are called and make a diagnosis of smallpox, the health department is immediately informed and the family is quarantined, but in some families, unless the members are very ill, they do not pay enough attention to smallpox to call a doctor, and the children keep on going to school.

One of the rules laid down by the board of education provides that every child entering the schools must be vaccinated, but it is a rule that cannot be enforced to the letter. Some people do not believe in vaccination and protest when asked to have their children so treated. The board of education can not force children to be vaccinated, but has kept the rule on its books just the same and argues that if the children are not vaccinated and contract, it is not because the board has not tried to prevent it as far as possible.

The smallpox raging in the Horace Mann district is a mild form of the disease.

INFANT EATS POISON,

But Doctor Arrives in Time to Save His Life.

The infant son of Oswald Tweet, 1605 West Superior street, swallowed two strychnine tablets yesterday, and only the prompt aid of a physician saved the child's life.

Members of the family noticed that the youngster had been chewing something, so they investigated. When they found what the child had eaten, they sent for a doctor in great haste. He arrived just in time.

The boy is recovering from the effects of the strychnine now and will be all right in a day or so.

DEMOCRATS WILL FEAST.

West End Club Will Hold Its First Annual Banquet.

West end Democrats are going to have a merry time of it this evening, in Sloan's hall.

Tonight is the time for the annual banquet and election of officers of the West End Democratic club. This is the first annual banquet of the organization, and it promises to be a most brilliant function.

The banquet and election of officers will take place after the regular business meeting. The spread is something of a surprise to some of the members, and is a result of the arrangements committee's work. The committee comprises C. R. Hoar, John Branscombe and David Nelson.

Among those who will speak tonight are Former Mayor Cullum, Louis Levine, Andrew Nelson, M. H. McMahon, Frank Peterson and Charles Mork.

ALDERMAN OLSON SCORED.

Sixth Ward Representative Disappoints Bethany Church Men's Club.

Alderman Peter Olson of the Sixth ward came in for a roast, and resolutions were adopted favoring the cause of the Duluth Civic league and the cause of temperance, at a well-attended meeting of the Men's Club of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, at that house of worship last evening.

Alderman Olson's action at the last meeting of the city council, in bringing up for reconsideration a saloon license that had already been refused, was discussed at the session, and the members of the club expressed deep regret over it. Several of the speakers said they thought Alderman Olson was a 'ld man, but his course had led them to believe otherwise.

"How Should We Work to Accomplish the Best Results for Temperance" was the general topic of discussion last night. B. E. Wellberg presided and gave the principal talk of the evening. Others who spoke were Otto Swanstrom, C. A. Lindau, Henry Truelson and Rev. C. G. Olson.

DRAINAGE OF SWAMP LANDS

Agreement Under Which Minnesota Drainage Will be Ordered.

Washington, March 20.—An agreement has been reached between Representatives Volstead and Steenerson and officials of the interior department, under which the Volstead bill, providing for drainage of swamp lands in Minnesota under state auspices, is to be pushed in the house, with some modifications.

This agreement was reached at a conference called for the purpose of discussing the Steenerson bill, providing for general drainage through out the country, under federal control, and the Volstead measure, for purely local action in the state of Minnesota.

This bill, as it will be introduced, will provide that the state shall assume charge of drainage for public lands and ceded Indian lands in Minnesota. Bonds to cover the cost of construction of drainage works are to be issued by the state and are to remain as liens upon the lands. A new feature will provide that lands shall be sold under acts of cession by the Indians, plus the cost of drainage, and in the case of purely public lands under the provisions of the homestead law the settler to pay the cost of drainage.

Such lands as are not disposed of by entry, as provided in the existing law, are to be put up at auction and sold at a price not less than the amount needed to cover what is due the Indians and due the state for construction work. Where the bid is not sufficient to cover the costs, the state is to bid in the tracts unsold, and reimburse itself from subsequent sales.

If there is any surplus of any tract, it is to go into the Indian fund of the federal treasury.

It is said that the committee on public lands and Indian affairs will indorse the bill agreed upon, as it does not bind the government to the expenditure of any money for improvement. Representatives Steenerson and Volstead hope that when the bill is introduced and reported, it can be brought up and passed in the house. Both realize that there is no chance for the passage of a general drainage law, for which bills have been introduced in both houses.

HE NEVER SIGNED IT.

Polk County Man's Name Used Without Authority.

Crookston, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a communication to the Times of this city Hans Samuelson of Climax repudiates his signature to the petition circulated in Polk county for the organization of Bryan clubs in opposition to delegations in the interest of Governor Johnson. There are many staunch admirers of Governor Johnson in this county and they have made the claim that the signers to the Bryan petition are not all bona fide, but some names appeared thereto that had no authorization. This claim seems to be true to a certain extent as can be seen from the following communication, received today:

Climax, Minn., March 19, '08.

To the Crookston Daily Times—

With regard to the organization of the so-called Bryan Volunteers of the 13th inst., I wish to state that I did not sign that call in person, and only had general information from one of the persons interested in getting it up. While I am a great admirer of William J. Bryan, I am also an admirer of Governor Johnson, and I do not wish and did not intend in be a party to any movement in opposition to Governor Johnson. I think that Governor Johnson's personal qualifications and services to the Democratic party in this state entitles him to the respect and consideration of all Democrats in Minnesota.

Yours respectfully,

HANS SAMUELSON.

NO RESULTS

From New Mining Enterprises Outside of Johannesburg.

Washington, March 20.—The gold mines of the Transvaal produced in 1907, $136,750,000 worth of gold, which, with the exception of $5,000,000, was obtained along the reef upon which is situated the city of Johannesburg. This information, which comes to the state department from the United States consul at Victoria, South Africa, adds that prospecting and new mining enterprises outside of Johannesburg district have yielded practically no result.

OLD MANKATOAN DEAD.

Mankato, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winfield Scott Dodge, a well known resident, died at 4 o'clock Thursday morning of tuberculosis of the lungs, after an illness of some time. He was born at Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 13, 1852, but when two years old moved with his parents to St. Paul. In 1871 he came to Mankato and resided here practically ever since.

THIN COVERING OF LARD WILL KEEP EGGS GOOD.

Washington, March 20.—Cover a fresh egg with a thin coating of lard and it will keep perfectly good for an indefinite period, according to a report of a new method for preserving eggs made to the state department by Consul Murphy at Bordeaux. The discovery is of Italian origin and is regarded as important as it is claimed that 100 eggs can thus be preserved with four cents worth of lard and an hour of time.

MANY BIDDERS PRESENT.

Rolette, N. D., March 20.—The contract for the construction of a new schoolhouse and for the plumbing and heating of the building was let here yesterday. Many bidders on the jobs were present, the contract for the construction of the school being let to M. T. Fransin of St. Paul for $15,620. The heating and plumbing contract went to T. Murphy of Rolette, his bid being $2,349.

CASES ARE DROPPED

State Dismisses Remaining Indictments for Election Frauds.

Action is Based on Result of the Kane Trials.

All of the illegal voting cases arising from the recent primary elections have been dismissed by County Attorney Norton, and it is not likely that anything more will be heard of the alleged election frauds.

The outcome of the second Kane trial was undoubtedly the reason for this action on the part of the county attorney this morning. There was still another indictment pending against Kane, being the one on which he was tried the first time. There was also an indictment against Ben Vail for inducing Kane and others to vote illegally, and several John Doe indictments, on which the warrants had not been served. These indictments are believed to have been for the other marine corps recruits who went to San Francisco with Kane and then deserted.

All of these indictments, however, have been dismissed and there is now no action of any kind pending.

PROMINENT MILWAUKEE MAN KILLS WIFE

tired. While Mrs. Willoughby was asleep he chloroformed her and then shot her behind the left ear, causing instant death. He then shot himself twice in the breast, the bullets piercing his lung, but missing his heart.

Willoughby made the confession while he lay in bed, with Dr. Charles H. Lemon and Detective Dennis Sullivan and a nurse standing over him. At first he denied that he had shot his wife, but when the police showed him that the burglar theory was impossible he confessed. His confession in substance is as follows:

Did Not Love Wife.

"I married my wife twenty years ago. I did not love her but married her mostly out of sympathy, she being a poor woman. We were married at Ludington and soon after came to this city. Our life has never been a happy one, but we both took good care not to let our friends and neighbors know of our domestic troubles. We frequently quarreled. Mrs. Willoughby was insanely jealous of me. She continually accused me of not being true to her and on the whole we both lived a miserable existence.

"Matters went on this way for years. Four years ago, while I was on my way to New York, I met a woman on the train. Our acquaintance ripened into love. Then for the first time I realized that I had met the woman I truly loved.

Supported Another Woman.

"This woman also was living an unhappy life. Her husband was cruel to her, and soon after I met her he deserted her and her two small children. I then began to support her. We became intimate and have been so for several years. Two years ago she obtained a divorce and since that time I have been providing for her and her children. She is now living in Chicago.

"My domestic affairs did not improve, and a long time ago I decided that I would end it all. How to do it was what bothered me, and for many months I have been planning out a way. I began to collect chloroform. I bought it in small lots and began to keep it until I had a bottle of the drug. This I saved until I might decide to carry out my plan.

"I decided to end it all this morning. After my wife had fallen asleep I obtained the chloroform and then I shot her. I then fired two shots into my breast, intending to shoot myself in the heart, but I failed. I did not have any more cartridges, so I decided to hide the revolver. That is the whole story."

Willoughby was 50 years of age and was born in Richland county. His wife was three years his junior and was a native of Michigan.

churches in Chicago during the next twelve years, and in 1872 was elected president of Northwestern university. He remained at the head of that institution for four years, and then became editor of the Christian Advocate in New York. He was made general missionary secretary of the church in 1880, and four years later was elected bishop.

Bishop Fowler was acting as pastor of one of Chicago's churches at the time of the great fire, and it was he who suggested the plan of pooling the interests of the different churches until all should have time to rehabilitate themselves. As missionary secretary he organized Pekin university in North China; Nankin university in Central China; the First Methodist Episcopal church in St. Petersburg; established the McClay College of Theology in Southern California, and consolidated the three colleges in Nebraska into the Nebraska Wesleyan university at Lincoln.

He suggested and inaugurated the twentieth century thank offering of his church, whereby more than $20,000,000 was raised for the church. He also originated the open door emergency commission, which eventuated in the great Cleveland convention at which, with the bishop presiding $235,00 was raised in a single evening.

He was trustee of Syracuse university, Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.; American university; member of the board of managers of the Methodist Missionary society, the Church Extension society, Freedman's Aid and other Methodist societies.

MUCH FUSS BEING MADE

argued that they were there in the matter of the duke's engagement.

The assertion that royal marriages must take place in Italy before the premier and the president of the senate is not exactly correct. This applies to such marriages as occur in Italy, but a royal marriage can be celebrated abroad. For instance, the duke of Aosta was married at Kingston, Jamaica, and in such a case any Italian consul can perform the ceremony.

Does Not Believe It.

The duke of Aosta, speaking at Naples today to one of his gentlemen-in-waiting, said he did not yet believe that the duke of the Abruzzi was to marry Miss Elkins.

In view of the fact that the king of Italy has no brothers, the position of the duke of the Abruzzi at the Italian court can be compared with that of the duke of Connaught in England, with the addition that the Italian duke, although he is the youngest cousin of the king of Italy, is a favorite with his majesty, who is proud of the laureis reaped by his cousin in the scientific world and by daring expeditions by land and by sea.

It is the custom for the royal princess of Italy, each to live in a different city, and each maintain a kind of court. The duke of Aosta lives at the royal palace of Capo Dimonte, at Naples; Princess Letitia, the dowager dutchess of Aosta, has her court at Turin, and the count of the Abruzzi will follow the same course, taking up his residence and establishing his court at either Palermo, Venice or Genoa.

Being a naval officer, the duke is destined eventually to become supreme commander of the Italian fleet.

The fortune of the duke of the Abruzzi is estimated at $2,000,000. He has less than his brothers, owing to the fact that he has met personally the expenses of his various expeditions, but there is some property yet to be divided among the brothers. The duke inherited most of his fortune from his mother, Princess Marie Della Cisterna, who was very wealthy, but she expended a considerable sum in founding hospitals and other benevolent institutions in Spain when her husband, Prince Amede, was king of that country. The ducal palace at Turin was the property of the mother of the duke of the Abruzzi.

Washington, March 20.—The duke of the Abruzzi left the Italian embassy this morning. Where he has gone or what his future plans are, none of the officials of the embassy is willing to say. They declare they know nothing about the matter. The duke left some time before half past ten and the only information obtainable is that he took friendly leave of the ambassador and his wife before he departed.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

to force the law without fear or favor."

Demanded Share of Fees.

Attorney General William Schuyler Jackson was accused under oath of having demanded that Frank White, as receiver of the Hamilton bank, should share equally with him the aggregate of the fees and commissions earned by Mr. White while acting in that capacity.

The assertion was sworn to by Mr. White when he was forced to appear as an unwilling witness before the county grand jury. Owing to the fact that Frank White owed his appointment as receiver for the Hamilton bank directly to Attorney General Jackson, whose first deputy he had been until he resigned that office to accept the receivership, and to the additional fact that other receiverships were bestowed through Mr. Jackson's influence upon persons who were his close political or office associates, this is regarded as one of the most serious accusations yet lodged against the attorney general's administration of his official trust.

Discloses Whole Story.

When he received the grand jury's summons he was at a loss to know what was wanted from him, but on being placed under oath he had no alternative but to disclose the whole story.

It is understood that Mr. White's fees and emoluments resultant upon his receivership service amounted to about $10,000 and that, according to his testimony, after the matter had been adjusted Attorney General Jackson called on him in his office and insisted that White should divide that sum with him.

According to White's sworn narrative, it is understood he resented and resisted this demand and some heated words were used between him and his former chief, who continued to press the matter of a settlement with vehemence. Whether or not White, according to his testimony, finally yielded and consented to make the equal division could not be learned when the main points in the affair became known in banking circles.

New York, March 20.—Attorney General Jackson will be a witness before the New York county grand jury next Monday in connection with the investigation which that body is making into the conduct of the attorney general's office with reference to New York city banking matters.

ARE HARD TO REACH

High School Boys Are the Problem of the Future.

Y. M. C. A. International Boys' Secretary Talks of His Work.

"It is no problem to reach employed boys. It is the boys in our high schools which we find it hard to reach. There are 600,000 boys in 6,000 high schools in this country at the present time, whom we are trying to reach with the boys' department Y. M. C. A., and we are finding it difficult."

The foregoing statement was made this morning by F. A. Crosby, the international secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in charge of the work of the boys' departments of the country. Mr. Crosby has supervision of the work in all the boys' departments from Ohio to California and from Winnipeg to the Gulf of Mexico, and is constantly traveling from one city to another, making himself familiar with conditions among boys and studying their problems. He therefore speaks from a wide experience and a thorough knowledge of his subject.

"With the proper equipment," he continued, "it is not hard to reach the boys who have to work. They realize the value of the association work, and are willing and ready to join and take an active part in the work. With the high school boys, it is different. Our high schools are becoming great institutions, and many of them have gymnasiums and athletic fields superior to what the association can offer. The boys find their sports and recreation in these, where they are without any religious or moral instruction. These are the boys whom the association finds it hardest to reach. We can't get them to come to us, and we will have to go to them.

"The crying need of the association just at present is more men. There are three big cities in the West now that want boys' secretaries at salaries of from $1,800 to $2,400 and they can't find the kind of men they want. There is no lack of equipment. Almost every city I visit is either conducting a campaign for a new building, or has finished one. We have 146 boys' departments in the territory I cover, with a membership of over fifty boys each, and a great number of smaller departments. Omaha has the largest boys' department Y. M. C. A. in the world with 900 members. Duluth is among the first six, and is one of the five cities which has a separate building.

Mr. Crosby will be in Duluth until Sunday night, and will be the guest of the boys' cabinet and of Norman D. MacLeod, the secretary of the local association.

ARMY ABOUT FILLED UP

Will Have Full Strength for First Time Since 1902.

According to figures at the United States army recruiting office, the full strength of the army will be obtained before the close of the present year. This means that 69,000 men will compose the regular army, this being the first time since 1902 that the full required numerical strength of the army has been acquired.

So heavy has the recruiting been the past three months that it is becoming extremely difficult for an applicant to pass the army entrance examinations. Yesterday fourteen applicants appeared, only three being accepted for final examinations. This is a fair example of the large number of men that are daily being rejected because of some physical fault.

So strict are the officers at Fort Snelling becoming that if liquor is even detected upon the breath of a recruit, even if he may have passed the highest examination, he is rejected.

It is predicted at the local office that within a very short time any man applying for for admission to the army will be required to furnish references as to his character. The increased pay bill has brought a large number of ex-soldiers into the service, has increased the efficiency of the men and has rendered it very hard for any but the best examples of physical manhood to pass the entrance examinations.

The recruiting for the past three months has broken all records for times of peace. The prospect of increased pay, the increasing of the rations and the temporary money stringency have all conspired to increase the number of applicants to the army. Three months ago the cry was being raised that sufficient men could not be obtained for the army. Today the recruiting officers the country over are enabled to choose only the best men.

Approximately 15,000 men have been recruited during the past four months. In the East the army has been flooded with applications. New regulations are placing the army on a more thorough business basis, so that the old way of a man swaggering independently into the office of the recruiting station, reasonably sure that he will pass the examinations because of the imperative need of men, has ceased to exist.

Nowhere has the change been more marked than in the Duluth office. A man has to be "spotless," to use the vernacular of the office, or else he will be rejected. The bluecoats are filling up, and it is predicted that the efficiency of the army will be increased over 20 per cent at the end of the present year. In the near future a man will have to bring the same references to the army that he is required to furnish to the business house or bank.

ICE CUTTING GIVES SCARE

Park Pointers Thought Bay Ice Was Intended for Them.

Residents of Park Point grew frantic this morning when they saw employes of the ice company, which supplies the congealed water to them for domestic purposes during the summer months, filling their icehouse on the Point with ice from the bay. They started the telephone in the office of the health commissioner going, and the inspector, who answers the 'phone, finally had to give way to another, while he caught his breath and endeavored to put some life in an arm, numbed from holding the receiver.

The first call started the health department on the trail. Two inspectors were sent to Park Point as fast as street cars could carry them, while Dr. Murray managed to hold clamoring parties off the telephone wire long enough to get in touch with the head officers of the ice company. He received assurance that the company intended to use the ice only for storage purposes, and then left the task of explaining to irate suburbanites to an inspector.

It has always been the custom of the ice company to cut enough ice from the bay near Park Point to supply the people wanting ice for domestic purposes in that district. The ice for domestic use is taken down to the Point from the city icehouses and none of the bay ice goes into domestic use. The health department has kept a close watch on the companies for years and no instances have been discovered of the sale of bay ice to private families. The department intends to adopt the same measures this year and Park Pointers have been assured that they will be given protection.

The shipments of ice into the city from Spirit Lake are heavier than ever this year. It has been the custom of some of the ice dealers to cut their ice for domestic purposes far out in the lake, but this year, the lake never had ice enough in it to warrant their beginning operations and they were forced to depend upon Spirit Lake for their supply. The branch houses of meat packing concerns were also compelled by the health department to use Spirit Lake ice for packing purposes this year, and the ice cut in the bay to be used for purposes, in which it cannot possibly contaminate anything.

PRESBYTERIANS MEET.

Annual Gathering of Members of First Presbyterian Church.

A large number of the members of the First Presbyterian church met last evening in the auditorium for the annual meeting. The reports of the officers of the various societies were heard and the condition of the church financially is most promising. The reports of the organizations of the church were presented. The report of the pastor, Rev. Campbell C. Coyle for the ten months of his pastorate was received with interest by his parishioners.

The church membership numbers 752, a gain of fifty-two members during the year. Fifty-five members were admitted to the church by letter and forty-nine on confession of faith. Twenty-six were given letters from the church because of removal from the city and six deaths have occurred. The Brotherhood of which Dr. Coyle is leader, has a membership of 218.

The financial condition is most satisfactory. The total receipts for the year were $21,094. A payment of $6,000 was made on the parsonage and the running expenses of the church were met and the year closed with a surplus of $218 in the treasury.

Mrs. William White reported for the Ladies' Aid society; Mrs. W. H. Burris for the Women's Missionary society; Miss Van Auken for the Forward Guild; Walter Ingalls for the Brotherhood; A. C. Klenly for the Christian Endeavor society; Mrs. A. Graham for the Order of Deaconesses; Dr. R. W. Bowden for the Bible school, and S. S. Williamson for the Endion school.

Four elders were elected for a term of three years. They are H. C. Hoxie, J. N. St. Clair, Thomas Thorburn and F. E. House. The deacons elected for a similar term were A. C. Volk, S. S. Williamson and Alexander Graham and the trustees elected, also for a term of three years were John A. Stephenson, Fred H. White, W. C. Agnew and W. C. Winton.

Sleep

Sleep is nature's rebuilding period, when the energy used by the brain, muscles and organs is renewed. If you lose sleep, your system is robbed of the strength sleep should give. Continued loss of sleep multiplies this loss until you become a physical wreck. Dr. Miles' Nervine quiets the irritated nerves and brings refreshing, invigorating sleep. Nervine contains no opiates, and therefor leaves no bad after-effects.

"For over two years I suffered untold agonies; my friends thought I was going crazy. I could not sleep nor rest at all. I tried different doctors, but failed to find relief. My head would ache all the time; I was like one drunk; could not concentrate my mind, and was so restless and worried that sleep was out of the question. After taking one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine I felt wonderfully changed. I am now on my third bottle and am gaining all the time. I can lie down and sleep like a child, and am able to do my work."

TAKE ROCK FROM POINT

To Scale Loose Stones From Dangerous Cliff Next Week.

Next week the semi-annual trimming of the point of rocks at Fourteenth avenue west will begin. Every spring, the rock loosened by the frosts of winter is removed and each fall, the rock on which the heat of summer has a dangerous effect, is taken down.

The snow has practically disappeared from the face of the point of rocks and it is possible to make an examination to determine just what work must be done. The examination will be made by the city engineer and he will report to the board, so that a force of men can be put at work early next week. It is not the intention of the board to cut away any more rock than is necessary to insure the safety of those passing under the point. Some blasting will probably be necessary, as the large pieces of rock cannot be tumbled down, without injury to the street car tracks.

Only thirteen men were put at work yesterday at the point, where the stone crusher is to be operated. They will be engaged for several days in carrying rock out and placing it in a position for the stone crusher. It is not expected the crusher will be operated for a week or so yet and there will be a good supply of rock on hand when the crushing operations are begun.

The board has always the problem of providing work for the unemployed before it. Sewer contracts are being let as rapidly as possible and the board is going ahead with other work as speedily as it can consistently do so, but many preliminaries are necessary before it will be able to employ enough men to relieve the labor situation to any appreciable extent.

WITT CANNOT COME.

Peter Witt will not be on hand at Flaaten's hall tonight to lecture on "An Hour with Tom Johnson, Mayor of Cleveland."

Witt's coming has been quite extensively advertised, but those who planned to hear him must be disappointed, as he telegraphed today that he would be unable to come.

He may possibly be here Sunday, but he states in his telegram that it is utterly impossible for him to be in Duluth tonight.

Witt was formerly Mayor Johnson's secretary.

"SKIN WICK" BY RON SMITH

The Ron Smith rink of the Duluth Curling club last evening captured the Manley-McLennan trophy, the most coveted curling trophy competed for at the Head of the Lakes, by defeating the J. T. Pugh rink by a score of 14 to 7.

The feature of the game was a shot which was labeled a "skin wick," which was pulled off in the eighth head. The shot was one of the greatest freaks seen at the club this year. Pugh was lying three stones and Smith came down looking for an "outside wick" whereby he hoped to lay one in the ring. He got the "in wick" instead and in some manner cleaned out Pugh's three rocks and laid three himself.

The rinks were composed of J. E. MacGregor, C. F. Tweed, Phil Heimlek and Ron Smith, skip, and John Ball, Walter Poehler, S. H. Jones and J. T. Pugh, skip.

The following is the game by heads:

Smith	0 0 3 2 0 1 0 3 1 2 1 1—14
Pugh	1 1 0 0 3 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—7

ON THE IRON RANGES

AURORA COUNCIL MUST BE "SHOWN"

Will do Missouri Stunt Before Issuing Certain Liquor Licenses.

Aurora, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new resolution relative to licenses granted saloonkeepers in Aurora who are in any way interested in a brewing company, or where a brewery is connected with the saloon, was put into force at the council meeting Wednesday night for the first time. C. R. Hill and Matt Alto presented their applications for licenses, but the council refused to act upon them until the Fitger Brewing company stated how it stood on the blind-pig question. A special meeting will be held Saturday afternoon, when a representative of the company will be here, it is expected. Hill is Fitger's agent here.

At the same meeting John Dudley was appointed policeman for the Mohawk mine location, where the blind-pigs flourish.

The bids for the letting of the laying of the $25,000 sewer and for the material was ordered advertised in The Duluth Herald and the Biwabik Times.

Owing to the large amount of money to be handled this year, the treasurer's bonds were placed at $50,000.

AGENT HAYES RESIGNS.

Quits Great Northern at Hibbing After Seven Years.

Hibbing, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—After seven years' service here as agent for the Great Northern Railway company, B. H. Hayes, the agent, has left the service of the company to look after his private business affairs. He has been succeeded by P. M. Bardessone who has been cashier in the local office of the company for several years. Vincent Ruspino becomes cashier by promotion.

Mr. Hayes tendered his resignation last July, but the company at that time refused to accept it and asked him to continue, at least until the end of the busy season. He has been trying all winter to be relieved, but not until today was his wish gratified. The reason for his resignation is the fact that he is heavily interested in several local enterprises, including the Lake County Lumber company, which recently built a shingle mill north of Two Harbors, and he desires to devote his time to these interests.

Mr. Hayes came to Hibbing as agent for the Great Northern seven years ago, coming from Swan River, where he held a similar position. He has always taken keen interest in the affairs of Hibbing and was just elected to the council without opposition.

AURORA PUPILS DRILLED.

Arrangements Made by Teachers to Promptly Empty Schools.

Aurora, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a meeting of the teachers Monday evening in Mr. Graham's room. The arrangements for a fire drill were the main topics which were taken up for discussion. A ten inch gong will be placed in the upper hall soon which will be available from the basement as well as from both floors. The trip will be worked by means of a wire. A number of the larger boys are to act as monitors and will be expected to be at the doors quickly after the signal is given so as to get them open before the other children arrive. There is a fifty foot hose connected with the standpipe on each of the two floors as well as in the basement. The hose will be taken down and put into operation as a part of the drill work.

A petition for a new school building at the Meadow Location is being circulated. There are about twenty children out there. A rig is now employed to bring them in to school in the morning and to take them home at night. Nearly all of them are in the lower grades, however, and they could be taught just as well in a one-room school at the location as in the building here.

Miss Lucie Wiseman of the Duluth Normal school has been offered the primary room in this school for the coming year but she has not yet said whether she will accept the offer. Miss Wiseman is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and has taught for one year in the high school at Sandstone, Minn. She has given up high school work, however, because she prefers the work with smaller children and is to be graduated this summer from the Duluth Normal, where she has been giving special attention to the new work which she is to take up.

HAULING PULPWOOD.

Chisholm, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The several contractors have stopped hauling mining timber from the woods to the mines. Pulpwood is now being hauled to the cars and shipped to different points in Minnesota and Wisconsin. The roads being thick with snow hauling is very good.

AURORA WOMAN DIES.

Aurora, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Gabriel Losilla died of consumption Monday night after an illness of six months. She leaves a husband and four children. The funeral will be held from the Methodist church today. Rev. Lehtonen of the Finnish Lutheran church of Virginia will deliver the sermon.

AURORA GUN CLUB MEETS.

Aurora, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Aurora Gun club met Tuesday night to talk over the work for the coming season. It is expected the club will do more this season than last in the way of competition and shoots. There are about fifteen of the members in town now and some of them are A1 shots. It is thought the boys will enter the tournament which the Virginia club will hold in that city next July.

STATE IS SUING OVER PIKE SPAWN

Lumber Company Said to Have Interfered With Fish Commission.

St. Paul, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A case of considerable interest to sportsmen and lumber companies and especially to residents on the Vermilion iron range, is on trial here before Judge Kelly and a jury. It is the case of the state game and fish commission, against the Tower Lumber company, the Tower Log & Boom company and William Jalley.

The state claims damages to the amount of $24,000 for what it denominates wilful interference with the work of the agents of the fish commission in April, 1905, at the foot of the falls on Pike river, in St. Louis county.

The state claims, through its attorneys, that the pike are accustomed to assemble in large numbers for about a week in April of each year for the purpose of spawning. They cannot get above the falls and the agents of the commission find them in vast numbers at the foot of the falls, net and capture them, secure the spawn to the number of many millions, fertilize them from the male fishes and distribute the fry when grown in the various waters of the state.

The claim against the defendants is that in the year named and during the week from April 22 to May 1 they wilfully sent down a large quantity of logs over the falls and against the convention of pike, thereby driving them away and incidentally killing and mutilating them in numbers and also driving off the commission's agents.

Pike spawn are worth about 50 cents a thousand, but when cast in a river are worth no more than one-half of 1 per cent. The acts of the defendants prevented the commission from harvesting 50,000,000 spawn and 49,500,000 were rendered worthless, to the damage of the state in the sum of $24,000.

W. B. Douglas, formerly attorney general, and C. W. Stanton, member of the commission, of International Falls, are attorneys for the state and Sullivan & Grant and Davis, Kellogg & Severance and R. E. Olds, for the defendants.

ROBBED WHILE ASLEEP.

Woodsman Loses Large Roll in Saloon at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The three boys, sons of local residents, who were recently arrested here on a charge of stealing some guns, were taken to Duluth today by T. E. Grae, agent of the Humane society, and they will have a trial before the juvenile court. The boys' names are Simlnack, Kruger and La Patka.

One night this week a woodsman, who had just come down from camp, was touched for his roll of $175 in one of the local saloons, but he felt so sheepish over the affair that he failed to report it to the police until three days had elapsed, and the individual who is supposed to have made the touch had in the meantime disappeared. After taking a few drinks, the woodsman sat down by the saloon stove and went to sleep. When he awoke, his winter's earnings were gone. He remembers that the individual, who has since decamped, sat down beside him just before he fell asleep.

CHISHOLM FANS BUSY.

Chisholm, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is some baseball talk in town already. The fans will put up a manager and get the team started as soon as possible. They say they will have one of the best teams on the range this year. On account of the late start last year and the good showing of the team, they are sure they will have one this year to compete with the best on the range.

GIVEN AWFUL SQUEEZING.

Employe of Bangor Mine Has Very Narrow Escape.

Biwabik, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Everyone out this way is talking about the narrow escape Fred Close, an Englishman ,who is employed at the Bangor mine, experienced a few days ago, when he was caught in the machinery and pinioned between the gear wheel and the engine base in such a manner that extrication of the unfortunate man seemed well night impossible.

The coolness and judgment of Capt. W. J. Nichols in ordering the engine reversed and Close gradually pulled out, although at great pain, probably saved the man's life. He is in a local hospital suffering considerably, but as he has a superb physique will probably live.

FURNISHED NO BOND.

Aurora Justices of the Peace Without Legal Authority.

Aurora, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The failure of Justice of the Peace Adamson to file his bond and oath of office with the clerk of the district court, in accordance with the law, disqualified that official according to Attorney Norden of Eveleth, when the case against John Erjowitch and his wife for alleged blind pigging, was called for trial yesterday, and on motion of the attorney the judge had to dismiss the case. The lawyer also showed that none of the justices of the peace in the town of White or the village of Aurora have observed the law and both are without legal justices of the peace.

The Eveleth attorney let loose a bombshell when he raised the point, but Judge Adamson admitted it was well taken and dismissed the case. The county attorney, however, will have the couple rearrested and they will be prosecuted as soon as Judge Adamson files a bond in accordance with the law.

RAINY LAKE ROAD TO BUILD TO THIS CITY.

Virginia, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report, apparently from reliable sources, has been circulated here to the effect that the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway will be built through from Virginia to Duluth the present season. It is also stated that the company will not undertake to build the line itself but will let it to some large contractor.

The railway company now has a force of men employed fitting up its steam shovels preparatory to an active season's work in raising and improving the roadbed between this city and Ranier.

The Virginia Lumber company will resume the work of fitting up its sawmills here, beginning the first of next week, and it is now the expectations that both mills will soon be in operation. The recent heavy sale of lumber by the company in the Chicago market has brought about a marked change in local conditions. With the sawmills soon to be in operation and some of the local mines already increasing its forces, there is now general hope for a very busy season in Virginia.

TREATMENT FOR BRIGHT'S DISEASE

(Honolulu Evening Bulletin.)

It is a curious but satisfactory fact that chronic Bright's Disease, which, according to medical authorities, is an incurable and fatal disease, is now actually being cured. We have not attached importance to the statements of recoveries we have seen in the papers from the states, but that they are not all rumors is now evident from several recoveries here.

A. H. Otis of the Honolulu Drug company, tells us of two interesting cases. One was swollen with dropsy due to advanced Bright's Disease, and both the patient and his physician had given up hope. Otis kept urging a trial of the new treatment until the patient finally consented. Recovery was complete, the patient leaving a few months later for California, where he now resides.

Another case was that of an officer on one of the Island steamers. He was in a hospital and considered hopeless when put on the treatment. He has now been back at his post for some time.

Otis says there are very few failures, but that it requires patience.—Honolulu Bulletin.

We heard about this and sent for it in the interest of patients here. I will be pleased to give any one calling full information.

MAY YET HAVE MILITIA.

Movement for Company at Virginia is by No Means Dead.

Virginia, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The movement to establish a militia organization in Virginia is by no means dead, although little has been heard of the matter of late. Alderman Johnson has promised to introduce a resolution at the council meeting next Tuesday providing that the militia company, when organized, may use the old fire hall headquarters in the city hall, and the document is already drawn up. It is understood that the resolution will pass the council, and as Mayor Hawkinson favors the plan, there is bright prospect of a company being organized in the near future. It is expected that once the company is successfully organized, it will not be long until an armory building will be provided for its use.

STUNTZ AGAIN LIBERAL.

Hibbing, Minn., March 20.—The town of Stuntz has given another illustration of the liberality of the supervisors. In addition to the sum of $2,000 appropriated for the Carnegie library, the supervisors have made an additional appropriation of $50 annually for ten years, on condition that the residents of the town be accorded the same privileges by by the library board as will be enjoyed by the citizens of Hibbing.

There is no question but that the condition named will be entirely acceptable to the board.

POSTPONE BIWABIK BANQUET.

Biwabik, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order not to conflict with the banquet of the Virginia Commercial club, to be held March 25, the banquet that was to have been given by the local Commercial club on the same night, has been postponed until April 12. Secretary Eva of the Duluth Commercial club and Prof. A. J. McGuire of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids, have been invited to speak. There will also be a speaker from the Federation of Commercial Clubs.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL WINS

In Joint Debate Before Crescent Club of Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A delightful entertainment was given by the Crescent club of the Eveleth high school at the High School auditorium last evening. The main event of the evening was a debate on the question: "Resolved, that intercollegiate football promotes the best interests of the colleges." The affirmative was upheld by William Saari and Hugo Sholund, and the negative was supported by George Peterson and Elmer Hill.

The judges, Miss E. Corbin, Miss I. M. Perault and Mr. Wilk, decided unanimously in favor of the affirmative.

The rest of the program was as follows: piano solo, Anna Mulligan; recitation, Gill Murray; reading of journal, Lillie Nieminen; recitation, Mary McDonough; debate; journal, Walter Corbin; piano solo, Richard Floyd.

NEARLY WON PRIZE.

Baby Born Within Ten Feet of New Town of Gilbert.

Eveleth, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lot that W. J. Moore, the agent for the Gilbert townsite, had offered to the first baby born in Gilbert, come within ten feet of being taken, when last week a child was born to the family living within ten feet of the limits of Gilbert.

One family has moved in from the location and has taken quarters in town. The wiseacres whisper that the family may win the residence lot promised.

TOWER IS REJOICING.

Tower Lumber Company Will Resume Soon as Weather Permits.

Tower, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The citizens of this place are jubilant over the good news that the Tower Lumber company's mill here will open as soon as the weather permits and will run during the entire season, there being timber enough owned by the company to warrant it. In the past both a day and a night crew were employed; this season only one crew, the day crew will be needed; this however, will give employment to 200 or 300 men. A high scale of wages will be paid and altogether a prosperous season is expected. This good news coming direct from the authorities, has greatly relieved the suspense among the business people particularly.

This will be the Tower Lumber company's last season, but Towerites hope that arrangements can be made whereby the mill goes into other hands and still continue to be a valuable support to the city.

CAPT. SPRINGER CHAIRMAN.

Eveleth, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At last night's meeting of the trustees of Missabe Mountain township, Capt. D. O. Springer of the Adams mine was elected chairman of the board of supervisors of the township for the coming year, and Anton Mustar, Sparta, was chosen by the board to be highway commissioner for the coming year in the township.

ARE AGAINST CONSOLIDATION.

North Branch, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of the Farmers' Starch company who attended the meeting of the company at the village hall Wednesday afternoon, voted emphatically against consolidation with the Farmers' Co-operative Starch company. There had been some talk by members of the other company that consolidation would be a good thing, but when the question was brought to a vote at the meeting last week, 101 voted against consolidation and only four in favor of it.

The meeting was presided over by the president, J. A. Rystrom, and among other important matters disposed of, an election of officers was held, resulting in the return of several of the old officials. Those who were elected are: President, J. A. Rystrom; vice president, C. H. Westeman; secretary, A. W. Anderson; treasurer, C. A. Holt; directors, John Hendricks, C. J. Peterson and A. P. Tingstrom.

THE BREAD LINE.

Don't forget the men that are wearily, painfully, hopelessly lining up each morning at the Bethel for their dole of coffee and sandwiches, the only meal of the day for most of them.

In this bread line, now larger than it has been at any time this winter, there are in the neighborhood of 200 men, twice as many as there were a month ago.

All they ask is work. In the meantime they are accepting charity, since even charity is better than starvation. It is a sad commentary upon civilization that in a land of overflowing plenty there should be such melancholy exhibits of suffering humanity, such lines of men who have strong arms and willing hearts, who seek only the right to coin their strength into living wages, yet who are compelled to take charity that body and soul may be kept together. But there are such exhibits, and they must be met.

First and most important, these men should have work. The city has taken on a few of them, and citizens have employed a few more. But the line still grows, and the daily spectacle of misery continues to reproach those who in their comfort are forgetting the sufferings of these unfortunates who, though they are poor and ragged and disconsolate, are still men and brothers.

More work should be provided for them. The city should continue to do all it can, and should strain a point wherever possible to provie these men with work. Citizens who have work to be done should let The Herald or Rev. J. T. Moody of the Bethel know about it. Citizens who have no work to be done, but who are able to do something to help these men, should try to find work for them—try to make it if it does not exist.

A day's work at fair pay will put starvation several days further off for any one of these men. There are cheap lodgings and cheap meals to be found, but even these are beyond the reach of the man without work or money or friends.

Most of these men sleep at night on hard chairs and get as their one meal of the day the Bethel's morning dole of coffee and sandwiches. Even that is becoming a strain upon the Bethel's resources, and contributions of money and food will be welcomed.

Work is what these men are entitled to and what they should have, rather than charity; yet if work cannot be found they must have charity or starve.

Those who have not witnessed this pitiful line of humanity in the early morning cannot appreciate what it means. To the man in his comfortable home, who will not let his imagination try to picture the scene, these sufferings are as far away and create as little impression as the tortured negroes of the Congo. Yet they are right here in Duluth, suffering in sight of comfortably housed and well fed thousands. There is enough waste in the average kitchen to keep one of these men, yet there has been little attempt to relieve them except by the Bethel authorities.

Can't you do something about it?

HEARST'S BASE INGRATITUDE.

In deserting Mr. Bryan in his hour of need William Randolph Hearst is showing himself to be destitute of gratitude and consideration: of gratitude to Mr. Bryan and of consideration for those Minnesota friends of Hearst who have of late been proclaiming themselves to be Mr. Bryan's only friends.

Says the St. Louis Times: "Whether Bryan and Hearst are friends no man knoweth. Bryan does not know, nor does Hearst. Every occasion of their meeting is one of much lovefeast and laughter, but when the one is out of sight of the other the rumor grows even as the weed in rich soil." This is not exactly correct. Mr. Hearst has definitely announced where he and his Independence league stand—or rather where they don't stand—on the presidency. Sundry rumors having floated about to the effect that the league was to support this or that candidate, he flatly announced in the New York American:

> The Independence league will not support Mr. Roosevelt.
> The Independence league will not support Mr. Bryan.
> The Independence league will not support Governor Johnson.
> The Independence league will have a candidate of its own.

This was the effect of his announcement. It was flatfooted and final.

Yet Mr. Hearst is under greater obligations to Mr. Bryan than Mr. Bryan is to Mr. Hearst. Bryan has shown friendliness to Hearst at times when it helped Hearst and might have hurt Bryan.

About the best Mr. Hearst has done for Mr. Bryan was to attend the celebrated Madison Square Garden meeting where Bryan made his speech in response to the welcome that greeted him upon his return from abroad. Hearst sat in a box and divided the applause. After the meeting was over, Hearst was one of the first callers at Bryan's hotel. They were seen to go through the halls arm in arm, exhibiting great admiration for one another. Later in that year, when Hearst was a candidate for governor and needed all the help he could get, he got help from Bryan, and it was given without hesitation. People had said that Bryan was not friendly, that he did not approve of Hearst, and that in his heart he hoped Hearst would lose.

But Bryan sent out word that he was a friend of Hearst in his fight for the governorship, though it is not related that any message of thanks ever came back. Instead, Hearst's newspapers have since caricatured Bryan, and his party now announces, through its owner and leader, that it will not support him if he is nominated

This is basest ingratitude, but Mr. Hearst has seldom given evidences of such a noble sentiment as gratitude. It is Hearst whom he approves, applauds, praises and supports, to the exclusion of all others.

But it is even crueller to those Minnesota Hearst men who now claim to be the only dyed-in-the-wool friends of Bryan, though four years ago they were such uncompromising friends of Hearst that they would have challenged Bryan himself as a tool of predatory plutocracy if he had opposed their idol.

SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is seldom bashful about asking congress for more money for his department, and he is always able to back up his request with such a crushing array of figures showing what a splendid investment the money is that congress, for its part, is seldom backward about granting his desires. He got all he asked for this year, and the house committee on agriculture performed a very meritorious service when it added to his estimates an additional million to be expended in schools of instruction for the farmers, which will give them all the latest information possessed by the department about seed, methods of planting and other means of increasing the yield of the soil.

As The Herald has taken occasion to say before, the department of agriculture does tremendous good to the country. It is able to do what no individual farmer could do—spend large amounts of money in scientific experiments to find out the best way to keep the soil fruitful while making it yield the maximum amount of wealth. It has, in this manner, collected a vast amount of useful information, and if it could be all instilled into the mind of every farmer in the country, instead of producing seven billions a year from the soil we should soon produce twice that.

These schools of instruction, provided for by the additional million added to the estimates by the house committee on agriculture, will round out the work of the department by furnishing a means of getting the information at hand before the farmers. This is done now by annual publications and by the exceedingly valuable farmers' bulletins, which are available without cost to every farmer who asks for them. Yet many farmers affect to scorn scientific methods, and still cling to the old wasteful, unsystematic and unscientific methods of farming, who might be induced to change if they could have the lessons taught by the department brought before them in oral form, accompanied by practical illustrations of their value.

A waste even greater than the waste of the forests has been accomplished in this country by hit-or-miss agricultural methods. There has been—speaking generally—no thought whatever of the danger of soil exhaustion; no thought of intensified farming, whereby one acre can be made to yield the profits of five under wasteful methods; no thought of enriching the soil in the very process of getting wealth out of it. American farmers, in many cases, get less out of a hundred acres than a Japanese will get out of five acres. That is because in Japan soil is scarce, and here it is plentiful. But it will not always be plentiful, and the time has arrived when the earth should be tilled economically, systematically and scientifically, instead of wastefully, aimlessly and ignorantly.

The department of agriculture—and in this its functions are purely paternalistic and Socialistic—is doing a splendid work in awakening the country to the need of scientific farming, and in showing it how to farm scientifically.

"BUSINESS TEMPERANCE."

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has issued an order forbidding any of its employes who have anything to do with running trains to use intoxicating liquors, either in or out of working hours.

This railroad does not stop to argue the question of whether an employe has or has not the right to use as he pleases his time outside of the hours of his employment. It simply lays down the rule, and announces that employes who fail to comply with it will be discharged. The order is flat and to the point: no intoxicants in any form, at any time, on duty or off. There will be no exceptions to this rule, under any circumstances.

Asked for the reason back of this move, George L. Potter, third vice president of the road, gave it promptly and succinctly: "It is for the protection of life and property and for the good of the service," he said.

Other roads are to do the same thing. Their reasons are not moral reasons, but practical ones. They hold that the man that drinks is not so safe and reliable as the man that does not drink. They hold that the man that drinks only a little is likely any time to drink too much. Drinking while on duty has always been prohibited, for obvious reasons. But drinking while off duty has been regarded, by the employes always and by employers usually, as something beyond the reach of the employer. It was none of his business, in short.

But employers who discover that drinking outside of working hours makes for incapacity in working hours, are likely to think less of this liberty and more of the employe's duty to give his employer his best services at all times.

Regulations such as this are not moves in the interests of temperance, but they make rather strong temperance lessons, nevertheless. While the matter is more important in the railroad service than in others, since the safety of human lives depends upon the reliability of the men in charge of the dispatch and operation of the trains, the movement is likely to spread into other industries.

It is predicted that the action of the Baltimore & Ohio is the forerunner of similar action by many other roads, including the Pennsylvania, the Wabash and the Pittsburg & Lake Erie.

No doubt the adoption of such regulations will be resented by many railroad employes, who claim the right to dispose of their time outside of working hours as they please, but it is manifest that the railroad managers, upon whose caution depends the safety of the traveling public, are in the right, and protests against the action will carry little weight. It is not alone the railroad managers that are interested in having the men in charge of trains sober and with clear heads and steady nerves; the public is interested even more directly than they are.

Don't forget the sufferers in the bread line.

There aren't many brighter paragraphs than the Walker Pilot produces occasionally.

The presidential contest has narrowed to four men—Roosevelt, Taft, Bryan and Johnson. The next three months will be devoted to eliminating two of these, and the five months following that will be consumed in eliminating one of the two remaining.

That Port Huron man who dipped into the funds of a fraternal insurance society, then dipped in again to recoup his losses by speculation and was finally arrested for a shortage of $75,000, is only one of many victims of temptation and the stock market.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Dell Montgomery, a Duluth young man, who has an excellent reputation for veracity, was telling a fishing story the other night in the lobby of the Lenox. Here is the way Mr. Montgomery told the story:

"I really didn't set out to catch any fish. We were up at Sucker river, looking at some land, as the creek was frozen solid, we didn't have the least idea of finding any fish. In fact, fish were very far from our minds.

"We had eaten our dinner and had fed the horse, when it suddenly occurred to me that I ought to give the beast of burden some water.

"The creek had frozen in layers. I found that if I cut down to the water I would be compelled to dig down there three or four feet. Finally, however, I discovered a place where, for some reason, the ice had not been frozen more than six inches. I did not discover the reason until later.

"I brought along a large wash boiler to fill with the water. Imagine my surprise when my axe had cut away the layer of ice to see a compact bunch of trout shot into the air as if driven by a charge of dynamite. Five hundred fish must have shot through the aperture made by my axe. The air was black with the creatures.

"I held the wash boiler over the hole, although it required all my strength to prevent it being carried away by the force of the fish current. In no time it was jammed with trout. It was fully five minutes before the stream of trout ceased to exude from the hole in the ice.

"The only explanation that I can give is that all the trout in the stream were forced in a narrow space. As the weather grew colder the confines of the space grew narrower. The pressure upon the poor trout became intense. When my axe loosened the ice from above the sardine-like mass of fish, they shot into the air with a force that was irresistible.

"That is the only explanation that I can give for the phenomena that I beheld up on Sucker river."

W. H. Wilson, registered at the St. Louis, was giving an excellent recipe for making butter. "The recipe, let it be said, did not include the proportion, the quantity or the mixing of the ingredients, but the way the motive power for the churning of the rich golden dairy product could be accomplished. It is accomplished by diametrically opposing the species.

Up on the Wilson farm, in Goodhue county, they have a large dog that does the churning. Like lots of other dogs, this canine is a most lazy creature. You utilize his driving power on a tread power mill that is attached to the large churn. Before Mr. Wilson hit upon the scheme to make the dog work, he required an indefinite time to finish the churning. Now all this has been changed.

One day Mr. Wilson observed the dog chasing a cat, and the inspiration of his scheme was born. He moved the churn to a place where there was a tree. On the lowest bough of this tree, that was on a level with the dog's head, he tied the family cat. Behold the impetus. Now the family churning is accomplished in rag-time style. They have butter of a richer, deeper golden hue, since tabby was lashed to the limb of the family tree. The neighbors have wondered at the improvement in Farmer Wilson's butter, but he refuses to come to the surface with the information.

A man somewhat well known about town used dally to occupy a seat in the lobby of the St. Louis hotel, directly opposite to the position occupied by the house exchange telephone operator. If you watched him closely, or were on the watch job long enough, you would occasionally see him go across the street and return with a box of candy. He was old enough to know better, but he refused to learn.

Now the same man may be occasionally seen in the lobby. He no longer occupies the wonted seat opposite the telephone exchange. The expression on his face is one of sadness. Life seems to have lost its glowing gloss. The old-time blithesome has departed, for the little telephone operator has departed, and, saddest fate of all, has failed to leave her address with the gentleman of the sit-all-day-long habit. Patience is not always rewarded here below.

The "Man of the Hour" company is carrying a large trunk of tea with it, not that the members of the company are inveterate tea drinkers, but owing to a mistake of the baggageman, who took one too many trunks from the St. Louis. A commercial traveling man at that hotel is now awaiting the return of his chest of tea, so that he may show the merits of the English beverage to the prospective customers. Meantime the trunk-handlers will be puzzled whether to take the trunk of tea to the hotel or to the theater.

Leap year adds its burden of troubles to the bonifface. Rumor hath it that several members of the gentler sex will pop the question before bleak December cuts the divisable year off the time scroll, and if rumor is true, several of the hotels will suffer by the loss of several charming adjuncts to success. The lingering hope of a refusal seems distant; for they are not the kind of girls that would be refused.

THE WEATHER.

A very little more snow fell last night, and this morning it was cloudy, though the clouds were light and harmless. It was mild and comfortable, last night's lowest temperature being 15 degs, and yesterday's highest 28 degs. The weather man promises mild temperatures, with southerly winds tonight and tomorrow, and says that it will be partly cloudy. Tomorrow, according to the calendar, is the first day of spring.

A year ago today it was clear and mild. The sun rose this morning at 6:11 and sets tonight at 6:20, making 12 hours and 9 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Temperatures have risen quite generally throughout the Northwest due to the influence of low barometric pressures central over British Columbia and Alberta. The barometer is high over the Middle West and has caused colder weather in the Southwest, Southern and Eastern states. During the past twenty-four hours light snow fell over the Red River valley and eastern slopes, and rain over Southern states, the latter attending a disturbance central over Eastern Gulf districts. More or less cloudiness and rather mild temperatures may be expected in this locality tonight and Saturday."

THE MAN AND THE HOUR.

Washington Post: Whatever betides, Governor Johnson of Minnesota has earned the gratitude of the American people for showing us that the right to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president is not monopolized by one man, and even as the shepherd's boy ventured against Goliath of Gath, so the governor has entered the lists against the "peerless one."

Has it ever occurred to the men who have in ward the destiny of the Democratic party that the timidity and the subserviency they have practiced since the famous Madison Square Garden speech only awakens the suspicion that the party is a weakling, hopelessly senile, and a craven, hopelessly pusillanimous? Do they imagine that the American people are going to entrust the republic to the keeping of a party that has no will except in the high permission of one all-too-powerful dictator? For nearly fifty years the Republicans have been telling the people that the Democratic party is made up of the discards in the great national game of American politics, and the Democracy of 1908 seems bent on establishing the truth of that charge.

But the twice-elected Democratic governor of the Republican state of Minnesota is in the arena, and his presence is an earnest that the dry bones of the valley may live again.

It is manifest to every man with a spark of sagacity that the sole chance a Democrat has to be president is to get 5,000,000 recruits from the Republican ranks. Governor Johnson has demonstrated that he has the right good will and cordial support of tens of thousands of Republicans of the extreme Upper Mississippi valley. His friends urge that he is more like Abraham Lincoln than any other public man of this generation, gifted as he is with a simplicity that amounts to genius, a common sense that is the fount of wisdom, and a patience that commands fortune. If this estimate of the man is just, the Democratic party and the country may be of good cheer. The hour is come—and the man.

Everybody knows that as the head of the Democratic ticket, Governor Johnson can get every vote in the electoral college that Mr. Bryan can get. Everybody knows that he can get votes in that college Mr. Bryan cannot get. Then the question obtrudes—is the Democratic party mentally responsible enough to be at large?

The Denver convention will tell.

Lovely Woman.

She got into a street car on
A freezing winter day;
She left the front door open—O
What did the people say!
She bravely took a hammer, and
She tried to drive a nail;
The catastrophe that followed
Made every one turn pale—
Lovely woman!

She started to a party, just
A half an hour late;
At the door she asked her husband:
"Have I got my hat on straight?"
They got her in the court room, and
They asked her: "What's your age?"
Says she: "I'll own to 25"—
Now that was pretty sage.
Lovely woman!

She bought an automobile veil,
A hundred inches long;
She'll have an automobile, when
They're selling for a song.
She worked and read and talked all day
As every woman ought;
At midnight, when her husband came,
She told him what she thought—
Lovely woman!

She's not at all athletic, as
You've often heard her say,
But she'd jump on the piano, if
A mouse should come her way!
Can she keep the men a-hustling? You
Can simply bet your life!
Still we wouldn't do without her,
As sister, sweetheart, wife—
Lovely woman!

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

William L. McLennan, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Duluth, died at his home, 618 West Second street, on March 18. The funeral, yesterday afternoon, was under charge of the Masonic order, of which Mr. McLennan was an honored member. He came to Duluth in 1870, and, with the exception of two years spent in Winnipeg, has resided here ever since. He was born in Scotland in 1836, and lived in Kincardine, Ont., before coming to Duluth. While here he was engaged in contracting, both for the government, the municipality and private individuals. He leaves a wife and five children.

A. G. Chambers, general manager of the North Dakota Elevator company, has returned from a trip through the wheat section of Dakota and Minnesota. He found country elevators full of wheat and predicts a large shipping movement both to Duluth and Minneapolis.

Manager Condon has booked the company now appearing at Chicago, which is producing "She," William Gillette's adaptation of Rider Haggard's wierd story. The company is headed by Lole Fuller, and will appear at the Grand in April.

Samuel Lundburg and family will leave on May 1 for a year's visit in Sweden. His tenement row on West Superior street will be begun at once, and probably completed before he leaves Duluth.

At a meeting at the office of McDonald, Gaudet & Ardouin, yesterday afternoon, the Lafayette club was organized by the French residents of Duluth. The meeting was largely attended and there was much enthusiasm. The following officers were elected: President, Ludger Gaudet; vice presidents, Peter Grignon and P. Langois; secretary, P. C. Oulette; assistant secretary, J. U. Dominique; treasurer, Camille Poirier; executive committee, Alexander Michaud, J. E. Ennis, J. A. Robert, L. Forest, Arthur Levasseur and Peter Grignon.

The Burke case has been reopened by the filing of an appeal by the heirs of H. S. Burke, the claimant of the land in question. Burke claimed title to eighty acres on the hill, in the Third division of Duluth, on account of an old pre-emption entry made by him in 1888, but this entry was subsequently declared void by the commissioner of the general land office on account of its conflict with Indian treaties of earlier date.

The Duluth Gas & Water company has purchased 200 feet frontage of the property of the old Duluth Iron company, on Rice's Point, and will, as soon as practicable, remove its gas works to that location. The company will also largely increase the capacity of the plant.

Mayor Sutphin has appointed F. B. Daugherty to fill a vacancy on the board of fire commissioners.

John Inglis of Dunn & Thomson left this morning for the Southwest to inspect crop conditions.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Bemidji Pioneer: Word comes from Washington that the tariff revision will be "deliberate." The recent attitude of congress had not caused us to fear any unseemly haste in the matter.

Warren Register: Aside from the governorship, there seems to be no contest before the Republicans of Minnesota, except for attorney general and railroad commissioner. Nominations for these positions are seldom made on the merits of the candidates, often serving as consolation prizes for gubernatorial and other candidates or factions, who were defeated in the early stages of the convention's balloting. Even more often they are results of trades made with the crowd that dominates a convention. We ought to have a statewide primary election.

Aitkin Republican: Taft is "it." The campaign waged in behalf of the big secretary has routed the reactionaries and the Taft manager is now asking the Republicans to organize for the election. The excitement regarding the nomination has all died down and there is no longer any question of who will be the Republican candidate for president.

Virginia Virginian: J. Adam Bede, congressman from this district, who has gained considerable notoriety as a jester and juggler of the truth, was in Duluth this week talking again. He told an Evening Herald reporter that the nation's law makers are not loafing, but are busy as beavers and that when this session of congress is over great things will have been accomplished—and then he turned aside and smiled.

Walker Pilot: Judging from some of the laws passed, either we do not send bright men to the legislature or they lose their senses after getting there.

Hibbing Tribune: The chances are that Mr. Bede will have an urgent opportunity to renew his acquaintance with constituents of the Eighth congressional district again this fall.

Ada Index: According to statistics Minnesota leads the Northwestern states both in total yield and average yield of potatoes. We can and do raise more per acre than on the high priced lands in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. There is big money in raising potatoes here.

Carlton Vidette: An Indiana old soldier has been arrested for writing "Uncle Joe" Cannon that he does not "own the earth." We admit that the soldier is wrong, but we did not know that it would be construed as lese majesto for him to say it.

Eveleth Star: Every wise Republican editor and every patriotic politician in the state should hoop-er-up for Jacobson.

SMILING REMARKS.

Philadelphia Press: "Say," sneered the bulldog, "you don't know much about scientific fighting, do you?"

"Perhaps not," replied the porcupine; "however, if you want to try a little bout with me, I think I can give you a few points."

Baltimore American: Ascum—Say, what is the difference between a fourth-class and a third-class postoffice, do you know?

Wise—Well, in the former the postmaster always finds time to read all the postal cards himself; in the latter, sometimes he doesn't.

Philadelphia Ledger: Twenty thousand dollars had been bequeathed "to uplift the morals of France."

The tender was promptly rejected.

"Our view in the case," said the authorities firmly, "is that the sum mentioned couldn't do anything to morals but corrupt them."

Cleveland Leader: Nelle—If you don't love Jack, why don't you jilt him?

Belle—And be just as likely as not to fall in love with him the minute I did it? No, thank you, I don't care.

Chicago Record Herald: "Is she beautiful?"

"Don't know anything about her; it's the first time she has ever visited here."

"But you ought to be able to tell if she is beautiful or not."

"Do you suppose I can look at a girl's face and tell what her bank account is?"

Chicago Tribune: First Correspondent—Senator Lotsmun says the country is suffering from too much prosperity; and he's a man that always weighs his words.

Second Correspondent — Then there's something wrong with his scales. His words don't weigh as much as he thinks they do.

Washington Star: "I suppose that ever since the mouse existed it has been a source of terror to women."

"Yes," answered the professor; "the mouse may be classed as one of our prehysterical animals."

Baltimore American: Sweet Thing—What is that man doing who is lying under the automobile in that funny way?

Sarcastic Brute—Why, can't you see he is picking daisies?

Lippincott's: "Why is she getting a divorce?"

"On the grounds of misrepresentation. She says that before they were married he claimed to be well off."

"And what does he say"

"He says he was, but didn't know it."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: One of the compensations of a fat woman is telling how she lost it.

A girl would fall in love with some man if there wasn't one on earth.

There's scarcely anything harder than to pronounce the time after midnight to show you haven't the hiccoughs.

An old man married to a young wife would have a lot to learn if she couldn't keep him from finding it out.

A woman gets mad with a man who can't do anything useful about the house, but she despises him if he can.

SHOULD HAVE KEPT OFF.

Cincinnati Enquirer: When the announcement was recently made as coming from Governor Johnson himself, that he was not a candidate for a presidential nomination, and did not desire to be considered in that connection this year, there was a general disposition to regard the statement as a sincere one, and there was much doubt as to the governor being in the race. The friends of William J. Bryan did not take this view. They either doubted the story or regarded it as something in the nature of a "bluff." They affected to "call" it. They made a sudden onslaught on Minnesota to get the delegation of the state for Mr. Bryan himself. The Enquirer would hesitate to believe that Mr. Bryan himself was a party to the strategy, though up to this moment he has shown no displeasure toward his friends for their rank misplay. The Democratic friends of Governor Johnson in Minnesota flew to his rescue instantly, and with much force. The Democratic state central committee met and gave Johnson a ringing endorsement for president and took steps to secure for him the Minnesota delegation. Whether the ardent supporters consulted him or not before they proceeded to action is not known to this journal, but he is now placed in the position that requires him to stand by his friends.

The politicians who tried to raid Governor Johnson's environment for the benefit of Mr. Bryan are universally and always resenting any symptom that some other men are going to interfere with the Bryan preserves. The Bryan people seem to have adopted the customs of other gamblers of various sorts, who insist that any territory or contingent that has been "coppered" by them belongs to them, regardless of priority, justice or good taste. They should, in common sense and common courtesy, have kept off Johnson's ground and away from his legitimate local environment. The quickness of the Minnesota state committee to give the Bryan invaders black eyes is a performance the resentment of which may be repeated in states in which it is now least expected. Many of the booms of this interesting period are based only on noisy pretense, and as the time for making nominations draws closer there are more symptoms of a revolt against a "fixed habit."

There might be even so strange a thing as the Democrats who may be chosen as delegates to the national convention objecting to going all the long and dreary way to Denver to act purely as participants in a ratification meeting.

There will be words that burn and actions that will be in the nature of hard knocks. A modification of the program of "dead-sure things" is by no means impossible.

Ireland's Shamrock.

Through Erin's isle,
To love awhile,
As Love and Valor wander'd,
With wit, the sprite,
Whose quiver bright
A thousand arrows squandered;
Where'er they pass,
A triple grass
Shoots up, with dew drops streaming,
As softly green
As emerald seen
Through purest crystal gleaming,
O! the Shamrock, the green, immortal
Shamrock!
Chosen leaf
Of Bard and Chief
Old Erin's native Shamrock!

Says Valor, "See,
They spring for me,
Those leafy gems of morning!"
Says Love, "No, no,
For me they grow,
My fragrant path adorning."
But wit perceives
The triple leaves,
And cries, "Oh, do not sever
A type that blends
Three godlike friends,
Love, Valor, Wit, forever!"
O! the Shamrock, the green, immortal
Shamrock!
Chosen leaf
Of Bard and Chief
Old Erin's native Shamrock!

So firmly fond
May last the bond
They wove that morn together,
And ne'er fall
One drop of gall
On Wit's celestial feather!
May Valor ne'er
His flowers divine,
Of thorny falsehood weed 'em!
May Valor never
His standard rear
Against the cause of Freedom!
O! the Shamrock, the green, immortal
Shamrock!
Chosen leaf
Of Bard and Chief
Old Erin's native Shamrock!

DOOM OF DYNASTY

In Portugal is Probable and Sanguinary Revolution Possible.

The Republicans Openly Anticipate an Early Victory.

Madrid, March 20.—Letters from Lisbon contain bad news for the interests of the dynasty. There are serious dissensions in the Monarchist parties over questions relating to the distribution of the high offices of state. The government is weak and disunited, and the members are practically prisoners of the Republicans, who are in reality the masters of the situation. The press, now at last unmuzzled, uses language of the utmost violence, and the Republicans are carrying on an active campaign in the country, assuring the electors that the republic will triumph at the next elections. They added, with every display of confidence, that if the government hinders the freedom of voting, a sanguinary revolution will break out.

In another letter, signed by an extremely liberal diplomatist, it is stated that Portugal is in a conditon of complete moral anarchy. In the newspapers and in public conversations, apologies are made for the regicides in a manner calculated to astound Europe. The graves of the regicides are always covered with flowers, and the subscriptions for their families amount to thousands of dollars. There is even an idea of erecting a monument to perpetuate the memory of the assassins. The government has not the courage to suppress this anarchistic propaganda, which threatens to spread all over Portugal, and to let loose all sorts of dangerous passions unless some steps are taken to check it.

Spread Their Doctrines.

The Revolutionists are spreading their doctrines on the ships and in the barracks with complete liberty, and soldiers and sailors parade the streets arm-in-arm with well known Republicans who have received their liberty within the last few days.

In official quarters the truth about the situation is known. There exists only the hope that the leaders of he Republicans may fear the consequences of a premature revolution, and may at the last moment extend their support to the policy of the king. In Oporto, Coimbra, Evora, Villaviceossa, Elvas and other towns the Republicans have organized revolutionary groups consisting of twenty-five persons, who carry on the propaganda in their respective neighborhoods.

Pessimistic views prevail in the diplomatic world, especially on account of the lack in the Monarchist parties of an energetic and liberal man with the talent to satisfy the country and neutralize the work of the Republicans. There are some ugly traits in the national character, chiefly a tendency to unreasoning outbreaks which singularly complicates the task of government. During the last few decades Portugal has gone through periodical commotions which have steadily grown in frequency and importance. On each occasion the Republican party has asserted itself with ever greater force. It announces that it has undertaken "the political education" of the country, and, doubtless, in the ignorance and poverty of the people and in the attendant abuses of party government which are conveniently ascribed to the monarchy, it finds all the conditions of successful propaganda.

Make Glowing Promises.

"Under a republic you will pay no taxes; bread will be half the price"—such are the promises with which the populace is dazzled. The nominal leaders of the party are men who like Senor Machado, who dreams of "evolution." They serve as useful figure-heads, lending an air of respectability to "followers" who believe in "a bloodless revolution" like that in Brazil, and to the extremists who put their faith only in bombs and bullets.

A large majority of the inhabitants of Lisbon and Oporto have passed under the Republican banner, and more than one-fourth of the country people are said, on good authority, to be in the same camp. In the past, however, the people have quickly tired of revolution. The Oporto republic of 1890, fizzled out within a few hours. All things considered, one may hope that for some time Portugal will remain undisturbed, but another upheaval is bound to come unless the country's base elements combine to remove the evils which have made her the prey of political adventurers.

Boy King Declared Safe.

Some of the newspapers deny that the recent assassinations can be laid at the doors of the Republican party. The Mundo says: "It is quite indifferent to us whether the king lives in Cintra or Lisbon, but what every one knows the national feelings can affirm is that there is no Portuguese capable of doing any injury to the king or his mother, so long as neither of them takes any responsibility for acts of odious tyranny.

"During many years the royal family walked freely in all the streets of Lisbon and traveled over the country without being annoyed by any act of discourtesy. It was only after May 4, that celebrated night when the people were barbarously treated in the Avenida railway station, that things changed, and only after the signing of the decree of Jan. 31 and after the imprisoning and condemnation to deportation without trial of dozens of people who merely exercised the right to profess democratical ideas that the act of Feb. 1 took place, the initiative and responsibility of which were purely individual.

"The country is profoundedly democratic, and for that very reason profoundly just. No personal ill-will exists therefore towards the young king, who so far has committed no act provoking antipathy, and who consequently can rest perfectly assured that no one will show him any disrespect."

The Dia, commenting on the above declaration says: "We are pleased at this categorical statement of the Mundo. It would be admirable, and would leave us outside the number of civilized countries, if any act was perpetrated against one to whom the Mundo refers as "the young king who so far has committed no act provoking antipathy, and who consequently can rest perfectly assured that no one will show him any disrespect."

"These words, written in a paper so bitterly opposed to the present form of government as the Mundo, define an attitude which ennobles the Republican party.

"Liberals and Democrats cannot think any other way.

"Any action against the young king would be a terrible personal and political act, which cannot be conceived by any Portuguese and right minded man or any who has a heart.

"The king is in the hands of his people, much more than in those of his guards. He may certainly, as was always our noble tradition, traverse without and escort the whole capital and travel all over the country, and if at any time he should have to seek shelter in the homestead of the most radical Republican, he would find there that chivalrous hospitality which is the highest heraldic blazen of the Portuguese people, without distinction of class or of political ideas."

JAILED FOR THE TRUTH

Gypsy Told Maid She Would Elope With Her Employer.

Prediction Was Verified and Fortune Teller Now Very Busy.

London, March 20.—Seven months ago a gypsy fortune teller told a maid in the employ of a miller in a small town near Chard, in Somersetshire, that she would some day elope with him. The maid told the miller, the miller told the police and the gypsy got a month's hard labor at the local lock-up. A few days ago both the miller and the maid disappeared, and investigation proves that the fortune teller's prediction has been verified. Under the circumstances, that month in jail looks like a bit of injustice toward the nomad, but she is getting her revenge. Dozens of serving maids in Somersetshire have applied to her for a reading, and now every day is her busy day.

The gypsy goes by the rather pretentious name of Britannia Manley, and is well known in the neighborhood. If you "cross her palm" with a sixpence she will read your past, forecast your future and give you a piece of lace to boot. When the fates are to be bought at that small figure it is not strange that the plausible fortune teller has many customers.

Predicted Elopement.

The home of the miller and the maid who have so strikingly vindicated the claims of Britannia Manley to prophetic powers adjoins the mill in the village of Forton. Walter Heller, the miller, has two little children, and his wife, being confined in an asylum, he kept a maid. The latter was a pretty girl, about 17 years of age, named Florrie Tytherleigh. Seven months ago, Britannia came to the door and called to Florrie, who was upstairs tending to her household duties. When the girl came down she induced her to buy some food and then offered to hold up the "mirror of fate" for her. The girl refused at first, but, upon the gypsy declaring that she would tell her something nice, assented.

The fortune teller took the girl's hand, and, bending her dusky head over it for a few moments, professed to draw aside the veil shrouding the future. Then she told the maid that her employer's wife was never coming home. To this she added the statement that Mr. Heller was very fond of the maid, and that the maid was equally fond of the miller. "Soon," she said, "he will ask you to take a very long journey with him, never to return, and you will go."

Was Placed in Jail.

This piece of information, leaving as it did, the credulous little girl shaking with nervousness, was too important to be disclosed for the original fee to sixpence, and before she departed Britannia demanded and received an extra fee of a like amount.

Soon after the gypsy had taken her leave, Heller, who had been absent, returned to the house. Whereupon Florrie, who couldn't keep a secret, up and told him what the "intimate of the fates" had told her. He professed to be highly indignant, and immediately informed the police. Britannia's sojourn in jail followed. There was considerable local interest in the affair at the time, and public opinion sympathized with the miller. The gypsy served her time and went away to other parts. She is a wise fortune teller, so she has eschewed elopements since then in her forecastings. Now that Heller and the maid have taken her hint and skipped, the public demand for the same kind of readings may be so great that she will have to supply them.

It is believed that Heller and Florrie, who took the children along with them in their flight, have gone to Canada. Some creditors of the absent miller are especially anxious for his return, and it is found that he was heavily in debt.

THE RECIPE TO PREPARE

An Eminent Authority Predicts Much Suffering and Disease.

A Simple Prescription Which Sufferers Should Make Up and Try.

The coming months will be a harvest for the doctors and patent medicine manufacturers unless great care is taken to keep the feet dry, also dress warmly.

This advice should be heeded by all who are subject to rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles and especially catarrh. While the latter is considered by most sufferers an incurable disease, there are few men or women who will fail to experience great relief from the following simple home prescription, and if taken in time it will prevent an attack of catarrh during the entire season.

Here is the prescription which any one can mix: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

The Compound Kargon in this prescription acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys to make them filter and strain from the blood the poisons that produce all forms of catarrhal affections. Relief is often felt even after the first few doses, and it is seldom that the sufferer ever experiences a return attack within the year.

This prescription makes a splendid remedy for all forms of blood disorders and such symptoms as lame back, bladder weaknesses and rheumatism pains are entirely dispelled.

As this valuable, though simple, recipe comes from a thoroughly reliable source, it should be heeded by every afflicted reader.

IN PRISON IN MEXICO

Two American Engineers Were Confined on Baseless Charge.

Convicted of Murder at Which They Were Not Present.

Enid, Okla., March 20.—Edward Stuver of Brookfield, Mo., has reached this city on his way home from Old Mexico, and told of the horrors of existence in a Mexican dungeon. Stuver gained his liberty through a demand upon Mexico by the secretary of state.

In company with W. B. Speed of Dallas, Tex., Stuver was confined to a prison for thirteen months and thirteen days having been sentenced for a crime of which he was wholly guiltless, as the Mexican authorities established to their own satisfaction before he was released.

Bearing in his face distinct traces of the agony he had endured during the long months of confinement, Stuver told a tale of cruel persecution.

In July, 1906, Stuver, then an engineer on the Mexican Central railway, was arrested at the city of Cardenas on a charge of murder. In company with J. A. Bodfish, a conductor of Kansas City, the engineer was standing on the platform of the Cardenas depot when they heard an uproar in the restaurant which occupies a part of the depot. Looking in a window they saw a scramble for the door on the opposite side and a peon dying on the floor. That was all Stuver saw or knew of the killing.

Not Present at His Trial.

Before his train could pull out the American engineer was placed under arrest, charged with complicity in the killing of the native. W. B. Speed, also an engineer, was in the restaurant when the fatal row took place and he, too, was arrested. That night the two Americans were locked in the Cardenas jail, and the next morning some twenty natives enraged over the killing, swore that these two men had slain the dead peon. The only trial afforded was being called before a judge and informed through an interpreter that they had been sentenced to twelve years in prison.

With the tropical sun blistering their faces, Stuver and Speed were marched over rocky roads, hills and mountains and across swampy ravines to Alliquines. On the route they were guarded by a detachment of twelve natives armed with machettas, who kept the points of the weapons within a few inches of the bodies of the prisoners, who were not allowed to look around once during the day's fatiguing march.

The Horrors of Their Cell.

And in the rear of this procession which was led by Stuver and Speed was a group of natives carrying the casket which contained the corpse of the slain Mexican. Again and again the peons stopped to weep over their dead comrade and to curse the Americans.

Arrived at Alliquines the prisoners were lodged in a dirt floored, adobe walled cell, 6 by 9 feet, with a roof of bamboo poles. There they remained eight months and five days. One kept watch while the other slept, and guarded the body of the sleeper from the tarantulas, centipedes, and every form of tropical insect, vermin and pest that infested the cell.

After eight months here Stuver and Speed were transferred to the state penitentiary at San Luis Potosi to serve out their sentences of twelve years each.

One day, while visiting this prison, two Enid women, Mrs. James Saunier, and Mrs. A. Rogers, sisters and the wives of American engineers in Mexico, saw the two prisoners and obtained their story in full. When these women came back to America they gave an account of the suffering they had seen to the American newspapers and the story of the unjust imprisonment of innocent men.

American Newspapers Freed Him.

Edward Stuver says that the publicity of the facts in this case is what gained his release. Powers that had been at work were given a new impetus. Hundreds of letters asking for the relief of the men were received by the state department in Washington. A request for an investigation was made to President Diaz, who readily granted it, and a special representative of the state department went to Mexico to look up the facts.

Facing the unveiling of gross negligence in office in connection with the communinations and demands on the same subject, the American consul in San Luis, S. E. Cross, who, it is said, had offered to free the prisoners for a bribe of $1,-50, committed suicide before the investigation was well begun.

Investigation Vindicated Them.

Stuver and Speed had been found guilty on the theory that the peon was slain by lanterns, which they carried and with which they beat the Mexican to death, digging up the long buried skull it was proved that the blows which caused death were not inflicted by lanterns but by one of the stools in the restaurant.

When Stuver went into a Mexican dungeon he was six feet tall, weighing 193 pounds, and his hair was jet black. When he came out he was stooped two inches, weighed 132 pounds and his hair was gray. He is 39 years old, but his prison experience has made him appear much older.

The cure for the blues—Cascarets.
A million boxes go out every month to carry a world of sunshine.
Are you getting your share?

Cascarets act as a bowel tonic, not as an irritant.
They are vegetable. Their action is natural. Their effect is the same as the effect of some foods.
They are gentle; no griping.
They are pleasant; no dreading.
They are convenient; no waiting.

One old way was castor oil.
The effect was to grease the bowels, and for a single day. Oil never causes the bowel muscles to act.
Other ways were pills, salts and cathartics. The effect was the same as pepper has in the nostrils. They flooded the bowels with fluid.
Those fluids were digestive juices. And the waste today means a lack tomorrow.

We knew that the method was wrong. That the after-effects only weakened the bowels.
But we had no gentle laxatives in the old days. So we waited as long as we could, then took a big dose of physic.
The method today is to take one Cascaret at a time—just as soon as you need it. Then the bowels are always clean.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and HUNDREDS DIE OF FAMINE.

Northern Siberian Tribes Stricken and Neglected by Government.

London, March 20.—Shocking descriptions of the famine that is ravaging the Tcherz Tchy and Yaku Tsk tribes in Northern Siberia have reached St. Petersburg. Hundreds have died, and the distress has been intensified by a recent epidemic which caused 300,000 reindeer to perish.

A writer in the Novoe Vremya charges the government with neglecting enormous tracts in Siberia, where the inhabitants are robbed by dishonest traders.

PLENTY OF ICE THERE.

Portage Lake Does Not Look Like Early Opening of Navigation.

Houghton, Mich., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ice in Portage lake continues firm and solid. The weekly measurement, taken by Observer Wiesner of the local weather bureau station, shows it to vary in thickness from 18 to 21 inches, with a general average of about 19.7 inches. At the same time, the depth of snow on the ground measured 15½ inches. With the present cold weather and the prospects for more snow the latter part of this month and early in April, it can readily be seen it will be several weeks at the least before local navigation opens. Big Portage is still covered with a solid sheet of ice, and it will be well on in April before conditions are such that a passage can be forced through it.

MARRIAGE CONTRACT

Of the Emperor of China Found in German Tavern.

Berlin, March 20.—The marriage contract of the emperor of China, which has been missing from the royal archives since the allies entered Pekin in 1900, and for which celestial diplomats all over the world have hunted, was discovered recently decorating the wall of a village tavern in Southern Germany. It has been restored to China.

It is supposed to have been looted during the plunder of Pekin by some German soldier, who was not aware of its value.

DROUGHT THREATENED

In Egypt, Says British Traveler Along the Nile.

Cairo, March 20.—Sir William Garstin has returned to Cairo from the Upper Nile. He visited the southern reaches of the Bahr-el-seraf, a branch of the Nile, which falls into the main branch of the White Nile about forty miles above Taufikia, with the object of inspecting this short channel, which is known to connect the White Nile with the Bahr-el-Jebel, 100 miles above its junction with the White Nile. Sir William Garstin found this channel closed, although last year a steamer was able to force its way through it.

The water level in the Bahr-el-Seraf and the Bahr-el-JeJbel, and in the great swamp through which they pass, is exceptionally low at present, and everything seems to point to a very scanty summer supply in Egypt this year.

ST. REGIS, NEW YORK

A Hotel Which Offers a New Phase of Living.

ITS INCREASING POPULARITY

There are numerous hotels at home and abroad where one may purchase magnificence at so much a day, where the gaping multitude and the obtrusive newly rich go to see and be seen. Hotel St. Regis, New York, belongs to an entirely different class. Within its portals, whether one engages a modest room or a suite, one is given comfort, refined surroundings and restful privacy equal or superior to that of the most perfectly appointed individual home. Comfort is the keynote of this matchless hotel, and in no instance has this most important feature been sacrificed, and nowhere is vulgar display in evidence.

If you seek the ultimate of home-like satisfaction when away from home and would enjoy to the utmost your visits to the metropolis, stop at the St. Regis, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street.

Perhaps you belong to that numerous class who from preference or necessity consider the cost. If so, banish from your thoughts the silly stories of shallow-brained space writers, who, without any knowledge of the facts, have described this hotel as a palace for millionaires only. A brief sojourn at the St. Regis will convince you of the utter falsity of these reports and you will find there the best the world has to offer in the realm of hospitality at reasonable expense.

In its restaurant, famous as it has become, the prices, which are plainly printed on all menu cards, are the same as those of first-class hotels generally, while the room charges are equally moderate. Large, elegantly furnished roms may be had for $4 a day, or the same with private bath for $5 ($6 for two people), or a parlor, bedroom and bath for $12.

SWEDISH MINISTER

At Washington Considered One of Best Men Sweden Has.

Is Steel Mill Manager, and Not a Professional Diplomat.

Washington, March 20.—Herman de Lagercrantz, the Swedish minister at the seat of the United States, is considered one of the best men Sweden has. He is not a professional diplomat, the Washington post being his first appointment in that line. He is a steel mill manager, and a great deal more than an energetic business man. His career is of much interest. Born in 1859, he is the son of a councillor of state. After finishing his school education, he entered the military academy. In due time he was appointed second lieutenant in one of the famous cruck regiments. He soon afterward attracted attention as an uncommonly capable officer, and in conjunction with a good-sized fortune and powerful family interests there appeared to be every inducement for his following the career of soldiering. His resignation from the regiment in 1889 for the purpose of devoting his life to the promotion of the propaganda of the Salvation Army caused a small sensation in the capital.

Although of a warm religious temperament, the young officer did not devote himself to the strictly religious side of the movement, but worked from the first in the social field. He and his wife went to London, where they stayed for several years, working exclusively in the worst slums. M. Lagercrantz became a colonel, and about 1893 was transferred to India, devoting his tremendous energy to the organization of the extensive social work of the Army out there. After two years' stay he was laid low with a severe attack of typhus fever and returned to Sweden. Some time afterwards he severed his connection with the Salvation Army. In 1896 he and his brother became owners of the Virsbro steel works in the central part of Sweden, of which he assumed active management. He has proved himself an organizer of exceptional ability, and has extended his influence over the entire industrial movement of that part of the country. It was his work in the field that attracted the attention of the government and decided it to place him in a position which is now recognized as being of utmost importance to the commercial interests of Sweden. M. de Lagercrantz spoke thus of the Salvation Army movement.

About Gen. Booth.

"Gen Booth is beyond doubt a good and absolutely honest man. His receiving the freedom of the cities of London and Edinburgh, which are great honors, prove that much. But he is more than that; he is a really great man, probably the greatest organizer and administrator now living. His remarkable clearsightedness and sound judgment strike no one so forcibly as his nearest followers. In one glance he forms his judgment of the situation and decides, while others who have had the matter under consideration for months cannot come to a decision. My principal objection to the Salvation Army now and when I left it, is that it is too much English and does not sufficiently consider conditions in other countries. That, however, is a thorough-going characteristic of the whole English nation. It is to the heathen countries that the Army has its principal field and future, and the fact is that the Protestant world has nothing but the Salvation Army that can compare in effectiveness and thoroughness with the splendid organization of the Roman Catholic church."

M. Lagercrantz, who had lived most of his time at Stockholm, before his arrival in this country, is about 55 years old and is said to be quite wealthy, well built, and wears a gray mustache that matches his gray hair. The latter is no longer plentiful, but time has left few other traces on him. He is an enthusiastic horseman, and, what is more to the point, he is of the broad-minded, democratic, aggressive type of man. The minister is accompanied by Mme. Lagercrantz and seven children. He is of the firm opinion that Sweden should own her own legation home in the American capital, and the question of a building for the American representative of Sweden was discussed by M. Lagercrantz with several members of parliament before he left home. They seemed to be in favor of such a movement. Regarding his mission to the United States, the Swedish diplomat said:

As to Sweden's Future.

"So far as the future of Sweden is concerned, I think we are entering on a period of great industrial activity. All of Europe is crying for iron, and the United States is taking some of our highest quality iron. Competent foreigners are coming in greater numbers than ever before to inspect us, and the Americans need some sort of a depot from which to conduct their European business. What we lack is population, capital and wideawake merchants. It will be my task in Washington to spread information regarding the claims of American business men."

M. Lagercrantz has already had some exciting experiences in this country. While in New York last August attached to the suite of the Swedish prince who was visiting the Jamestown fair with the Swedish armored cruiser Fylgia, M. Lagercrantz, in company with Commodore Lyndberg, the commander of the vessel, and an agent of the United States secret service, were taken to the West Forty-seventh street police station for violation of the speed law.

The minister and his party, according to the policeman, were going north on Broadway at the rate of about twenty-two and one-half miles an hour, when he stopped them and arrested the chauffeur. The policeman informed him that he was under arrest, and that the machine and those in it would have to drive to the station house for the purpose of talking the matter over with the lieutenant of the district. "My good fellow," said the secret service operative, "this gentleman (pointing to the minister from Sweden) is the accredited representative of a foreign country to the United States, and as such is immune from arrest." "I can't help it," replied the policeman. "This machine was going twenty-two and one-half miles an hour, and you'll have to settle it at the station house. Besides, I have no way of telling who your passengers are." The lieutenant looked over the credentials of the secret service man and the minister and Comodore Lyndberg sent their cards in, and the lieutenant apologized for the unpleasant incident. The minister considered the whole affair a good joke.

JEALOUS BLIND MAN KILLS WIFE

Told by Friend, Hurries Home and Finds Her Out.

Paris, March 20.—What is probably one of the strangest cases in criminal annals has just come before the Assize Court of Douai, the accused being a blind man who, in a fit of jealously shot his wife and then tried to committ suicide. The man has been blind from infancy and was brought up in a public institution, where his ability as a musician was early recognized, and he became an expert pianist. In time he obtained an appointment at a cafe concert at Dunkirk, at a fair salary, and constituted quite an attraction. A young woman who happened to be engaged in the same establishment about a year ago took his fancy, and he fell in love with her, blind as he was, and shortly afterward married her. The young woman, however, does not seem to have been so devoted to him as he was to her, and, while he was at the cafe concert, which was for the greater part of the evening, she used to visit her former friends. One evening a person pretending to be a friend whispered into the blind man's ear that his wife was deceiving him, and that if he wished to be sure of it he had only to go to his room and find her out. Maddened by jealousy, the blind man rushed home, and, in fact, his wife did not return till a late hour, when a heated discussion ensued. On the following day the blind man bought a revolver. His wife again remained out till a late hour, and when she returned her husband, after a few angry words with her, fired five revolver shots at her and then tried to kill himself by firing the sixth shot at himself.

The woman was almost instantly killed. Her husband, however, having succeeded only in wounding himself in the chest, flung open the door and shouted that he had killed his wife and wanted to go and drown himself. The neighbors, however, instead of leading him to the river, called the police, and he was taken to a hospital, and after he recovered was remanded for trial. The jury, in view of the facts, considered it a "crime passionnel" and rendered a verdict of not guilty, whereupon the blind man was acquitted.

STARTLING IS AMOUNT

Being Spent to Secure Presidential Nomination for Taft.

Hearst, Hanna and Other Politicians in Piker Class.

Washington, March 20.—It has cost William H. Taft nearly $1,000,000 thus far to be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

This startling announcement was made by a politician who knows.

Secretary Taft did not have to pay out this vast sum. The man behind the check book is Charles P. Taft, owner of the Cincinnati Times-Star and half-brother of the secretary. Editor Taft has been dealing out the checks with a lavish hand, and expects to keep up his record. He has determined that William H. shall not suffer from lack of the sinews of war with which to push his campaign.

The Tafts are spending money like water. The lid is off the editor's bank account and nobody pretends to be able to estimate the great amount that must be put out between now and the time for the Chicago convention. The campaign gets more expensive as it proceeds. Very likely the liberal brother may duplicate his expene thu far before the secretary cinches the nomination.

Makes Hearst Piker.

Hearst has the reputation of being something of a spender, but the Tafts have made him appear as a piker.

The expenses of the Taft campaign reached on Dec. 1 last the limit established by Mark Hanna in 1896, $500,000. Hanna broke the record when he started in to spend money to nominate and elect McKinley. According to Hanna's own admissions in private, the entire amount of his expenditure from the day he started in to boom McKinley to the date of the presidential election, was $500,000. In the case of Taft this limit was reached before a single delegate had been elected outside of Alaska.

Since that date, three months ago, over $250,000 has been spent, and the monthly expense is increasing in geometrical ratio. Each month sees, not alone the expense of the month before, but new ways of expending. The eruption of Frank H. Hitchcock and his large and expensive staff into the Taft boom, for instance, boosted the expenditure away beyond what it was a month before.

The prodigal way in which the Taft coin is being showered can be figured out from this fact. A man named Howe, with no qualifications except a crying need for the money, was sent out from the St. Louis headquarters of the Taft boom to canvass Missouri and Oklahoma. His salary was $1,000 a month while on the job. Bear in mind that this was an inexperienced, unknown individual, with nothing back of him, and you can get a line on the salaries that must be paid to the experienced and efficient men like Frank Hitchcock, Arthur Vorys and the rest.

Pour Out Money in Food.

There is a Taft organization in every state in the Union. Where the cash was poured out like water was in Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas, where the Taft crowd had enough of a fight to make the thing look two-sided. More money has been spent in these three states than in all the rest of the Union, outside of Ohio.

In Ohio the expenditure tops all elsewhere. The reason for that is that it was figured out early that unless Taft could get Ohio unanimously, he would have little chance of the nomination. In consequence it became impossible to walk out in Ohio without stubbing your toe over a $5 bill.

Missouri is the limit, outside of Ohio, in Taft expenditures. The expenses of all county delegates to district conventions in that state have been openly paid by the Taft crowd. This includes railroad fare and hotel bills. Chairman Bickey of the state committee is said to have sent checks to all county delegates covering their expenses. There was no concealment about it, and the usual precaution of making the payments in cash instead of in checks was not taken.

In the South the Taft money is being spent in floods. The reports on this come in chiefly from Democratic congressmen. They say that no such deluge of money has ever been turned loose in their states, particularly in Georgia and Florida.

FREAK OF RIVER CHANNEL

Again Makes Tennessee Village a Landing for Boats.

Randolph, Tenn., March 20.—Mississippi river steamboats loaded here Tuesday for the first time in fifteen years. Freak changes in the "Father of Waters," which has cut a straight path separating states and placing Tennessee estates on the west of the river, thereby causing litigation as to whether the owners of the land would pay taxes in Arkansas or Tennessee, has again caused this village to be located on the channel so that boats drawing twenty feet of water may land.

Randolph was formerly on the bank of the river. By just such a change twenty years ago the channel commenced to cut through four miles from here. The result was that the river left this town high and dry.

The swift current here now and the width of overflowed district, according to engineers, indicate that Randolph has again come into its own.

GEN. DELAREY DECLARES WAR UNITED ALL BOERS.

Cape Town, March 20.—On the occasion of the unveiling of a monument to fallen Boers at Burghersdorp, an extraordinary speech was made by Gen. Delarey. There was a great gathering, composed almost exclusively of colonists of Dutch birth, many of whom lost kinsfolk in the late war, their relations having gone into rebellion against colonial and imperial governments. Gen. Delarey, whose words were listened to with utmost keenness, told the gathering that by the late war the Afrikander people had become "more than conquerors." The war has consolidated them (meaning the Boers of all the colonies) into one band of brothers, who would never he deprived of South Africa. Like the word "Huguenot," the term "rebel" had once been one of contempt, but now it was an honorable designation. Continuing, the speaker hinted that the victory of the Bond party in the legislative council elections was the commencement of a great struggle. For a hundred years their kinsmen in the Cape remained loyal to the British government but when the war broke out they helped the burghers of the two late republics, a fact that never must be forgotten. Blood was thicker than water. The Cape rebels who helped the two republics by throwing in their lot with the burghers of the North did that which was noble and onorable. Gen. Beyers, who had also come down from the Transvaal, asked the people to remember how America won her freedom. He reminded them of Majuba in 1881, and counseled them not to forget the late war. Prof. Mueller described the monument as "a beacon of blood," and urged the people to teach their children the lesson conveyed by the heroes.

Treasures Found in Our American Forests.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of this and other countries. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., believes that our American forests abound in medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them, and, in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the most marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action.

The reason why "Golden Medical Discovery" cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, apply Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve to them while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" to purify and enrich the blood.

Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve is cleansing and pain relieving. It destroys the bad odors arising from suppurating, or running, sores and puts them in the best possible condition for healing.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils, carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood. "Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Nursing mothers and over-burdened women in all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating, restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs, from weakness of parts, will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully, and fairly persistently, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

ENGLISH AUTHOR

Sees Peril to the United States From the Japs.

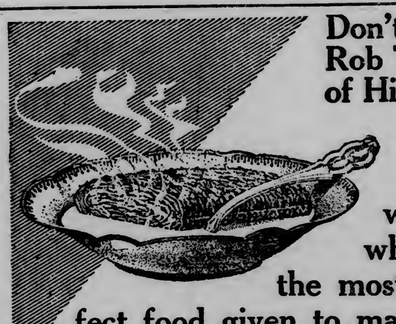
London, March 20.—Putman Weale, who has won a light reputation as one of the most competent and far-seeing writers on Far Eastern questions, has written a book entitled "The Coming Struggle in Eastern Asia." Mr. Weale prophesied the success of Japan in the conflict with Russia, but he now shows signs of a change of views. From pro-Japanese he is becoming anti-Japanese.

The policy of Japan, he thinks, is unstable, her aims are aggressive and it is her fixed purpose to exclude Western trade from Asia when she has developed the necessary force. Mr. Weale holds that she may sooner or later attempt to sieze either the Philippines of Indo-China, because, from them her food supply is drawn, and to dominate the Yangtze Valley, whence she obtains her coal.

Her people, he says, are growing very fast, and by the middle of the present century she will have a population of about 100,000,000, if the present rate of advance is maintained. She is developing her shipping industry with extreme speed, and increasing her army and navy with equal rapidity.

If the Panama canal is not completed by 1915 the Japanese fleet will command the Pacific. Behind the creation of this fleet lies "some deliberate purpose, which can not yet be guessed." Mr. Weale foresees danger to Russia, danger to England, danger to the United States, in face of this quiet, systematic, calculating, self-sacrificing policy of arming to the teeth.

Don't Rob The Horse of His Corn



The whole wheat is the most perfect food given to man. It has been his "staff of life" for 4,000 years. Human ingenuity can never make corn as digestible or as nutritious as —a food that contains all the tissue-building material in the whole wheat prepared in a digestible form.

Shredded Wheat

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven, pour milk over it (hot milk in winter) and a little cream. If you like the Biscuit for breakfast you will like toasted TRISCUIT (the Shredded Wheat wafer) for luncheon or any meal with butter, cheese or marmalade. At your grocers.

GAS ON THE STOMACH

OFTEN THE CAUSE OF GREAT BODILY DISTRESS.

It Indicates a Feeble Stomach in Which the Food Lies Undigested and Shows Need of Tonic Treatment.

When the stomach is feeble the food lies in it undigested, decays and throws off poisonous gases that distend the walls of the stomach, and cause interference with other organs, especially with the action of the heart and lungs. These gases have other ill effects. They are absorbed by the blood and corrupt it, and so cause aches in remote parts of the body and the formation of unhealthy tissue everywhere. General bodily weakness and loss of weight result. The nerves and the brain are disturbed and discomforts, such as dizziness, hot flashes, sleeplessness, irritableness and despondency originate from this source.

Experience shows that these troubles vanish just as soon as the stomach is made strong enough to digest the food. In other words, it needs a tonic that will rouse it to do the work of changing the food into nourishment. The tonic used ought to be one that will agree with the most delicate stomach.

Mrs. Amelia Gwinn, a nurse by occupation, lives at 3139 Vernon avenue, Chicago, Ill. She said recently:

"When I was living in Terre Haute, Ind., some years ago, I was in bad health for some months and did not know what ailed me, only that I did not feel like myself. My doctor said I was suffering with indigestion, but he did not cure me.

"I had severe pains in the stomach and could not digest any solid food. I had to let all of the time and had so much gas on the stomach that it seemed at times as though my breath was leaving me. I was greatly run down in health and lost in weight.

"I decided one day to drop the doctor's medicine and take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The first few boxes helped me, and I took them until cured. I gained in weight, my digestion became good and I have been in splendid health since. I am glad to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they are worth their weight in gold."

The remedy which gave Mrs. Gwinn complete health can be obtained at any drug store, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., at 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50. While so promptly effective, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain no harmful stimulants or opiates. They are perfectly safe and create no drug habit. S. G. IVERSON IN DULUTH

Auditor Will Secure Re valuations of Important Land Holdings.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, is at the St. Louis today. Mr. Iverson is here on business connected with the case of the state against the estate of Frank Higgins, which the state auditor's office claims has been greatly undervalued.

Mr. Iverson refused to discuss politics, saying that it was too early to give any information concerning the strength of any of the candidates.

"The Higgins estate has been greatly undervalued," said Mr. Iverson. "The true value of the estate has been withheld. We intend to prove that a great amount of the taxes have been withheld from the state through the false representation of the true value of the property."

The Higgins estate is not the only property that the representatives of the state auditor's department are investigating. They are making a determined effort to secure the revaluation of important land holdings in the northern part of the state, and it is said that some surprises will be sprung before the force employed by the state auditor's office is finished with the work it is now engaged upon.

LOVE BRINGS GIRL FROM SCOTLAND TO MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jeannie Watson, who traveled alone from Scotland to meet the man whom she knew when she was a girl of 12 and he a lad of 16, was married yesterday to her girlhood playmate.

Irvine, who is 24 years old, left Scotland eight years ago. He went to Traverse county, Minnesota, and settled at Tintah. Two months ago, after eight years of work, he considered that he had earned enough to send to Scotland for Miss Watson, who had promised to come to America and marry him when he was able to offer her a home. Irvine met Miss Watson yesterday and a license was issued in the office of the clerk of the district court.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Tieing comforters for the new Y. M. C. A. building is the work which bids fair to engulf the local aid societies of the churches.

The societies of the Pilgrim Congregational church found themselves, after the banquet of this week, without any pressing work to be accomplished, and the offer was made to Phil Bevis, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., to tie comforters. The offer was accepted, and at the meeting of Circle 4 of the church, which was held today with Mrs. W. H. Cole of 1131 East First street, the first of the work was begun. The various circles of this church will tie sixteen of the soft, warm coverlids.

The societies of the First Presbyterian church have also offered to do a part of this work, in the interests of the new building. The association expects to be in the new quarters by the latter part of next month, and by that time the comforters will be completed.

The offers thus far have been voluntary, and probably no effort will be made to induce the societies to accept this part of the work, but any offer will be received at the Y. M. C. A. rooms most gladly.

There are 150 comforters to be tied. There is a special and soothing comfort in a home-tied coverlid that communicates itself to the comforted one, and the advertisement of home-tied comforters added to the prospectus, will add to the attractiveness.

The ladies of Pilgrim church are planning an all-day session for work on eight of the wadded bed quilts at an early date.

TWO FEET HIGH
Must Be the Fashionable Hat For Spring of 1908.

Chicago, March 20.—Have you seen the campaign hat?

It is two feet high, it is black, it is composed of fine lace, it has, above all, an English cockade as its chief distinguishing feature.

When you see this piece of sartorial headgear coming down the street, topping some maid or matron, be not alarmed. Do not think that your creative imagination is playing you false. Do not imagine that, in the vernacular of the pavement, you are "seeing things." It is a reality which you are viewing. It is the last expression of the art of millinery. In short, it is "it" on which you gaze.

This is what was declared yesterday afternoon by milliners from all parts of the United States, who had come here for the eighth annual convention of the National Milliners' association.

The milliners were a unit in declaring that the campaign hat is the masterpiece of the present season.

"A woman who doesn't possess a campaign hat," said they," is absolutely not in fashion. Any woman who aspires to be well dressed must possess in her wardrobe at least one campaign hat. It is true that campaign hats cost anywhere from $40 to $100 apiece, but it always has cost money to be in the fashion, and the spring of 1908 is no exception to that truism."

The technical description of the campaign hat shows that it is built much along the lines of the silk hats of our ancestors. It has a narrow brim and goes straight up to its altitude of two feet, its main decoration being the English cockade.

It is not known as yet just how many campaign hats are to be on view at the milliners' exhibition. But it is known definitely that there will be 300 other hats to be seen there, which will include all the latest styles and shapes and colors.

Mme. Hunt, president of the association, declared that the exhibition is to be the most noteworthy milliners' display ever held in Chicago.

A symposium of the views of the milliners as to 1908 styles show the following forecasts:

Hats to be much smaller than they were last year.

Hats to be more expensive than they were last year.

Hats with feathers are to be wore only on dress occasions.

Hats to be fashionable must be in Gobelin blue, pale yellow, any shade of green or flame red.

Y. W. C. A. Notes.

"They began to dig dirt today," was the word that was being passed around at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association, and the phrase needed no elucidation, for every member realized, with a sigh of relief, that the end, although not in sight, was a great deal nearer now that work had actually been begun in preparation for the new building.

Classes in physical instruction have been organized by Miss Pullar of the Y. W. C. A., to meet weekly, at the Garfield Mission. The first meeting was held yesterday afternoon, and a number of interested young girls were present for this first instruction. It is hoped to open classes in other lines in that section of the city as the needs are made manifest. This is the first action toward extension work made by the local association. Although the need has been evident for some time, the equipment was inadequate, and the workers were limited in number. It is hoped that within another year an extension secretary may be added to the corps of secretaries.

Prof. Maria Sanford will be the last speaker of the year to appear before the evening department of the Twentieth Century club. The lecture will be given tomorrow evening at the club room of the library. Miss Sanford's subject will be, "The Study of Literature," and promises to be of great interest. Beside the club members, who are much interested in the coming of Miss Sanford, many of the local alumni of the Minnnesota State university are planning to be in attendance at tomorrow evening's lecture. Mis Sanford has been identified with the literature department of the university for many years, and following her talk tomorrow evening, there will be an informal reception in her honor. Owing to extra work, Miss Sanford will be unable to remain long in the city, and no formal reception could be planned for her.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

"Organized Motherhood," was the subject discussed yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union, which was held with Mrs. O. C. Strand, of 5803 Huntington street. The leader for the afternoon was Mrs. N. C. Hendricks. A paper was read by Mrs. H. H. Phelps, and notes about the Mothers' Congress, held recently at Washington, were read.

Yesterday being the 104th anniversary of the birth of Neal Dow, the great temperance reformer, a sketch of his life was read by Mrs. Hendricks. A musical number of little Russell Hendricks was enjoyed. There were forty members present at the meeting.

At the next session of the Union, "The Juvenile Court and Its Methods" will be discussed.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone players in "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

DELIGHTS AUDIENCE.

"The Sweetest Girl in Dixie" is a Charming Play.

"The Sweetest Girl in Dixie," put on at the Lyceum last night by the Mack-Leone players, is one of the best attractions this popular company has produced in Duluth. It is a pretty comedy-drama of the South, with a sweet love story running through it. Not many characters are necessary, but they are unusually well taken. The piece shows careful preparation, and is a delight to the audience.

The role of Col. John Howard, a Confederate veteran, and a Southern gentleman of the old school, is taken by Mr. Mack. His conception of the part is a fine one. Miss Leone appears as Babby Howard, daughter of the colonel, and fits admirably into the part, which is a highly congenial one for her. She also makes a pretty picture as the Southern girl.

Beatrice Meade does some excellent work as an old maid sister of a carpet-bagger, who is desirous of marrying Babby. Will Chapman takes the part of the carpetbagger. He is good in it. Kitty Cameron is clever as Mrs. Biggs, and John Charles, in love with Babby, is effective. Miss Farnum and Frank Patton also appear to good advantage.

Green Room Gossip.

The Mack-Leone players took a jaunt to Ironwood during the early part of the week. Mr. Mack's opinion of Ironwood as a theatrical venture would not bear publication.

• • •

"Red Feather," with Miss Cheridah Simpson in the title role, will be at the Lyceum for two performances tomorrow. The fact that Charles Dorrance, a Duluth boy, is in the cast adds considerable interest to the production. He has the part of the boatman, and his solo is the opening number.

Frank McNish, playing at the Bijou this week, has a vivid recollection of Duluth as it was here, fifteen years ago, that the troubles started for the McNish, Johnson & Slavin minstrels, by his discharging the manager, W. S. Cleveland. The company was one of the best that ever toured the country and was meeting with great success until his disagreement with the manager. McNish originated the "silence and fun" act and was then at the height of his popularity.

Tonight will be amateurs' night at the Metropolitan and the Secret Sisters, from Cloquet, are booked for a turn. The slap stick and the hook will predominate during the evening. The Met audiences derive a great deal of amusement from the efforts of the amateurs to please. Some of these efforts are very successful, and others are tragic in the extreme. The stage hands, who wield the slap sticks and the hook, are looking forward to the visit of the Secret Sisters, who are said to be worthy rivals of the Cherry Sisters.

GETS LIMIT FOR BREAKING TRUNK

Pat McKenna to Spend Ninety Days in Jail.

Because Pat McKanna used an ax to break into a trunk in the basement of the Western hotel he was given the limit of the law in municipal court this morning, going up on the hill for ninety days to work out a fine of $100 and costs. He may consider himself lucky that he escaped a term in Stillwater.

Pat had been hanging around the Western hotel for some time. He was drinking and broke and the collection of trunks in the basement of the place appealed to him. He took an ax, broke the lock of a likely looking trunk, found a pair of new driving boots and carried them up town, where he disposed of them. Eli Belanger, the owner of the boots, made complaint and McKenna was gathered in. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

When Iver Often came out of a big drunk he found himself in jail. He didn't know why until somebody told him. Matt Running did the telling. He says his tie-making outfit, consisting of a broadax, a saw and a chopping ax disappeared mysteriously from the Nicollet hotel and subsequently found that Iver, to relieve his thirst, had carried the outfit off and Often says he doesn't remember anything about it. He has been drunk for about two weeks and can't account for any of his actions. He pleaded not guilty to the petit larceny charge and his hearing was set for this afternoon.

Jacob Lindquist would have made fine picking for somebody, if the police didn't get him yesterday. He is a boy only about 19 years old and came down from the woods with a fine roll. He went out with the boys and shot his money right and left. He was almost helpless when the police found him and he had nearly $100 in his clothes. He was duly thankful this morning and said he would plant his money in the bank without delay.

TOLSTOI BETTER.

St. Petersburgh, March 20.—Reports received here today from Yasuaya Polyana are to the effect that Count Leo Tolstoi, who has been ill with the grip for a week, is better and has resumed his literary work.

TWO NEGROES LYNCHED.

Perry, Fla., March 20.—A mob of armed citizens last night surrounded the county jail and took Richard Smith and Will McMullen, negroes from the jail, carried them quietly to a secluded spot on the outskirts of the town and after binding them to stakes, riddled their bodies with bullets. Smith was charged with the murder of a white man a few days ago and McMullen was awaiting trial for the murder of another negro.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Pineapples, 25 to 40 cents each.
Strawberries, 55 cents a basket.
Oranges, 20 to 60 cents a dozen.
Malaga grapes, 25 cents a lb.
Head lettuce, 10 cents a head.
New potatoes, 2 lbs. for 25 cents.
Bloaters, 3 for 10 cents.
Smoked salmon, 18 cents a lb.
Pork roast, 15 cents a lb.

No better time of year for fruit salad can be imagined than the exact present, that is if you are not just a bit tired of fruit salad. Certain it is that oranges, pineapples and grapes were never any better.

The new vegetables such as carrots, beets and radishes are in fine variety, and in fact there seems to be but few things that the market does not afford. Strawberries continue to be the admired and most exclusive of the new edibles. The great majority of people are, however, doing that unpleasant and revengeful sounding thing, biding their time until strawberries are down to two for a quarter.

Store News

We'll be better prepared to serve you tomorrow than ever. Many delayed shipments have come in during the past week, and our people in every department are enthusiastic over the new goods which they have to show.

We invite you to come and look us over. If we did not think that the new goods which we are showing and the prices were all right, we would be a little chary in extending this invitation. But we are willing to let you decide that point for yourselves.

Come and See The elegant showings which we are making in Tailored Suits for ladies and misses. The swell Spring Coats for ladies and misses and little girls; the handsome lines in Tailored Skirts and Silk Petticoats. Also the dainty and pretty Lingerie Waists, and the plainer, but popular Tailored Waists. We promise you that you'll be more than pleased, both with the styles and prices.

New Spring Millinery There's hardly a woman that's not interested in the styles of headwear as they come out each season. There's quite a change in many of the shapes for this spring. The very wide brim, flat Sailor, trimmed with big bows of ribbons, flowers or plumage. This is The Merry Widow. Then the opposite to that you find the Turban shapes, some of them literally covered with flowers, as for instance, the "Corday." It's hard to tell which shape is going to be the most popular. However, come in and talk with our milliners. They'll tell you all about them.

New Wash Goods Hundreds of new pieces in both colored and white have been received within the past two days. THE KING FOLLOWED

By Society to Biarritz Where Americans Capture Finest Villas.

London, March 20.—Where the king goes, society goes,. At the moment all roads lead to Biarritz. The Americans, it goes without saying, are there, in great force. They are in possession of some of the finest villas, they have booked some of the best suites at the hotels, and, much to the disgust of some of the British aristocracy, have, as usual, put up prices all over the town, even indifferent lodgins being absurdly expensive.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, it is said, intends to do great things at Villa Etchepartia. The question everybody is asking is, will she succeed in getting the king there? The rich Chicago widow is a woman who manages to get most things she wants in this world, and she may achieve that burning ambition of hers to entertain King Edward.

Why should she not? She would have done so long ago were it not for an enemy she has in the magic circle that surrounds Edward VII. Needless to say, it is a woman, and, no doubt, she fears Mrs. Potter Palmer as a rival. There should be no fear of this, as for one reason, Mrs. Potter Palmer is essentially a grande dame, one of the very few, by the way, your country has sent over here. The king does not care for grande dames. There are enough of these and to spare in the English aristocracy. The women he likes best are of the pretty and piquante type—lively talkers and not given to taking themselves too seriously.

Countess Deserts City.

Lately the countess of Suffolk has taken to burying herself in the country. She has absolutely deserted London, which she openly asserts she hates, further proclaiming that she has no use for society with a big S. Country life at Charlton Park fascinates her as much as Floors castle enchants the duchess of Roxburghe. Lady Suffolk has succeeded in waking up the lazy and indifferent folks of the neighborhood, and has got them to take quite an interest in their own welfare. Her lace school has certainly a future. Lady Suffolk is full of American enterprise, and, although the school has been but a short time working, she has succeeded in establishing agencies for its products in Paris, Vienna and London.

I tell the tale as it was told to me and for what it is worth. It would seem some few weeks ago she heard that a laborer on the estate used to beat his wife on Saturday nights after he had been drinking at the village. Taking with her a horsewhip, the countess went to the cottage where the laborer resided and waited outside for the first sounds of a quarrel. Directly it greeted her ears she demanded admittance. The inmates were overcome at her presence and the offender slunk away in silence. "I have come to horsewhip you," said the countess to the man. "It is lucky for you you live in England; were you in America they would tar and feather you.

Prayers and entreaties for forgiveness ensued, and having received from the workman a promise that he would become a teetotaller, Lady Suffolk let him off, telling him, however, that she would "keep her eye on him."

Duchess as Orange Picker.

The duchess of Connaught—the king's sister-in-law—sent Mrs. Adair a few days ago a large box of oranges from Malta, where this fruit grows to perfection, especially in the gardens of the royal palace. Mrs. George Cornwallis West, Nellie Post, and the recent bride, Mrs. Robert Grosvenor, were all similarly honored. In each box was inclosed the duchess's card with the intimation, "These oranges were grown in our own garden, and I picked them myself." I hear the Connaughts have invited Mrs. Adair to Malta to stay with them as long as she can. As she has still to be near her oculist she has been compelled to decline.

The metropolis is becoming singularly inadequate for the needs of society house hunters. One of the chief causes of this singular state of affairs is that flats are no longer regarded as fashionable. Like most other happy inspirations, they have been worked to death, vulgarized, and "cheapened" in both senses of the word.

LIQUOR IS THE ISSUE

Prohibitionists Are Making Fight for the Keystone State.

Want Local Option Law and Legislature Against Penrose.

Washington, March 20.—The temperance wave is sweeping over Pennsylvania. In no other state has there been such bitterly contested warfare between the saloon and anti-saloon elements. The temperance forces have carried the war into every county. They have made liquor the one political issue before the people. In the elections the voters will choose solely between candidates who favor or oppose the saloon. The anti-saloon crusaders confidently predict that they will destroy the enemy.

The temperance agitation in Pennsylvania has taken the form of a demand for local option. From no quarter has there come even a suggestion of state-wide prohibition. By common consent it appears to have been agreed that local option should not be fettered by any other issue. Pennsylvania is one of the few states that has never given some sort of local option law a trial.

Judges Grant Licenses Now.

The present saloon system is regulated by a law passed twenty-one years ago. It is known as the Brooks law. Under that enactment saloon licenses are granted by the judges of each county sitting as a license court. This court prescribes the rules under which saloons may operate. It fixes the hours for closing, says whether free lunch may or may not be served, and a lot of other things regarding the management of the saloons. There is nothing in the new law authorizing the judges to enforce these regulations. They enforce them just the same, and the saloonkeeper who fails to comply with them stands a fine chance of losing his license. The law was passed at the direction of Matthew Stanley Quay. That highly successful boss wanted a club to hold over the heads of the liquor interests and keep them in line with the Quay machine. That is precisely what the Brooks law has done.

Five years ago the people of the Keystone state began to grumble over the law. The criticism was heard that it was antiquated and that it failed to regulate the saloons to the satisfaction of anybody except the saloonkeeper and the state machine. Last year the agitation for a new law had reached proportions that a local option bill came within a few votes of going through the legislature. It was killed at the direction of the machine headed by Boise Penrose, United States senator. The anti-liquor forces once threatened him with political destruction. Now the opportunity to carry out this threat has come. Penrose term in the senate will expire next March. The legislature to be elected next November will choose his successor. Therefore the word has been passed along by the temperance people, "vote for candidates pledged to local option and against Penrose."

The Machine Is Side-Stepping.

The state machine is doing its best to sidestep the issue. Its managers declare they are for a "fair' local option bill. The temperance advocates ask them to define the word "fair." They would like to know if the bill the machine favors will be "fair' only to the liquor interests. Penrose says nothing. He hopes to retain the support of the saloon element, and at the same time get enough temperance strength to elect him senator. After he has been elected it will be time to take up a local option bill. The anti-saloon leaders know what they can expect if a Penrose legislature is chosen.

The fight against the saloons is being conducted largely under the direction of the Anti-Saloon league. The league' which has headquarters in Harrisburg, has perfected an organization in every county in Pennsylvania. Its representatives have formed hundreds of local option clubs pledged to the defeat of Penrose and the saloons. Apparently it has all the money it requires. Many wealthy and influential interests are supporting it. For instance, the coal mine operators have joined in the demand for a local option law. They say that as a result of drunkenness their mines are idle the Monday following each payday. Some of the mine owners insist that owing to the whisky their output is 10 per cent less than it ought to be.

The saloon element is fighting back and in the open. A campaign fund of more than $1,000,000 is said to have been raised for the purpose of preventing the enactment of a local option bill.

Fighting With Advertisements.

An immense amount has been expended in advertising. For weeks city and country newspapers have been carrying page advertisements from the whisky interests. The evils of prohibition and local option are presented in a highly plausible manner. The people also are reminded of what a fine thing the Brooks law is and what a mistake would be made if that law were repealed.

Shoulder to shoulder with the saloon fights the state machine. The liquor men have contributed enormous sums of money to the in every campaign. As a result they have paid insignificant taxes and have been enabled to defy public sentiment. Despite the machine and its power, the anti-saloon believes it will win.

At the head and front of the anti-saloon forces is the Philadelphia North American. That newspaper has effectually exposed the evils of the saloon system and in every issue it denounces Penrose.

A contest that is attracting much attention throughout Pennsylvania is the fight for the congressional nomination in the Twenty-fourth district. The candidates are Representative E. F. Acheson and John K. Tener. Acheson has a record of fourteen years' creditable service in congress. He is the candidate of the anti-liquor and anti-Penrose element. Tener has the support of the Penrose liquor people. Tener insists that he does not represent the saloons. But he owns a hotel that has a saloon license, and has signed the applications of many saloonkeepers in his town. There is no doubt that he is supported by the whisky interests. That district is known as the "Quay" district, from the fact that Senator Quay resided in it. The friends of Acheson declare that Tener is backed by a campaign fund that will permit him to spend $25,000 in each of the three counties. This money, they say, came from the saloon organization.

The Ungrateful Mr. Sheats.

Recently the machine has been dismayed by the discovery that it would not receive support upon which it had depended. The state treasurer-elect, John O. Sheats, in the last week has declared for local option. The machine nominated Sheats against its will. It selected him as its candidate only when it became apparent that if he were turned down the Independents would present him as their candidate, with a prospect of success. Sheats, from the machine viewpoint, is an ungrateful person. He is using his entire influence for local option. And the temperance workers are making other converts to the cause.

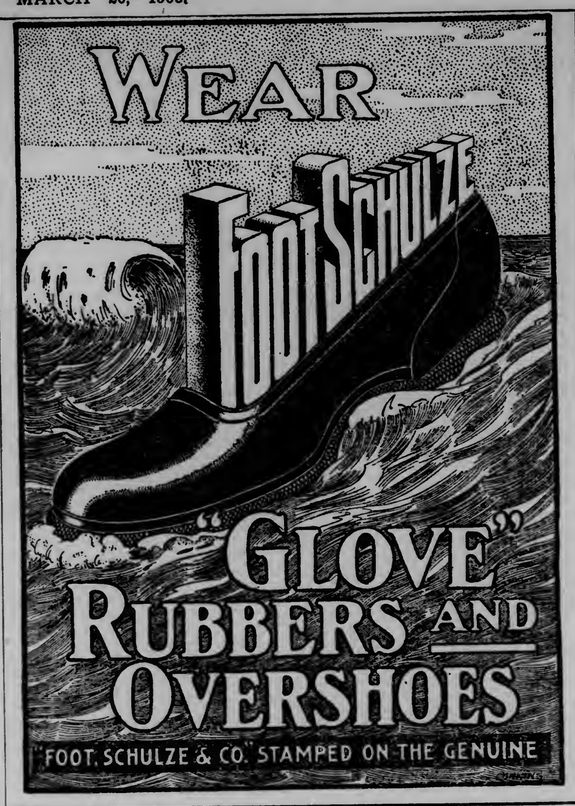
LOBSTER COCKTAIL

Nearly Cost Three Young Cleveland Women Their Lives.

Cleveland, March 20.—The advent of the lobster cocktail at a local restaurant nearly cost three young society women their lives. They still are dangerously ill at their homes, ptomaine poisoning being said to be the cause.

That it all came from the festive lobster cocktail—a concoction resembling the oyster cocktail of lusclous memory in all but its chief component—is asserted by the mother of one of the young women.

"The boys didn't touch the stuff," said Mrs. Martha Sloss, mother of Lillian Sloss, 204 East Fourth street, "and they were not made ill. The girls each had some of them—those lobster cocktails—and all of them were taken sick,and violently, too. My daughter is better, but her condition still is serious."



SAYS BREACH CAN BE HEALED

Andrew Carnegie Admits Row With Rockefeller Over Golf.

Washington, March 20.—"My, that young man Rockefeller is a persistent lad, when he takes a stand," said Andrew Carnegie when he came out of the White House. "He certainly is a persistent young man."

That was the way Mr. Cernegie answered a query as to the facts concerning a recent golf game played between himself and John D., in which there was a dispute as to the score, resulting, so it is said, in estrangement between the two richest men in the country.

Mr. Carnegie visited the White House this morning, and after he saw the president the newspaper tackled him about the golf story. He was inclined to be evasive at first, but told the facts in the case. He indicated that the breach between himself and Mr. Rockefeller was not irreconcilable, and added that he hoped to meet him on the links again soon, but admitted there had been a clash about the game.

"Yes, Rockefeller is a fine young man," continued Mr. Carnegie in his familiar, jocular way. "He is a much-abused young man—and he can play a good game of golf, but he is too firm in his ideas."

Then, as if to settle the whole matter, Mr. Carnegie said that he had been in Pocantico Hills visiting Mr. Rockefeller, and they had played many games over the links, adding:

"Our last game was hotly contested. In fact, we were so excited over some especially good work that we lost count of the score. Then the trouble began. Mr. Rockefeller insisted that he was two points ahead of me. I had played a good game. Really, my game was better than that played by my host. I only claimed, however, that I was one point ahead. I think he could, and should have yielded me the one point, but he would not.

"He called his caddies and asked them the score. They did not want to be discourteous to me and they were afraid of offending him, so they said they had not kept the score.

"We agreed to play two more holes while we thought it out. Mr. Rockefeller then insisted that he was right. So I picked up my sticks and refused to play any more, and we quit playing. I haven't seen him since. But Mr. Rockefeller is an obstinate young man," sighed Mr. Carnegie. Then he smiled brightly. "I will have my revenge," he said. "I hope to play Mr. Rockefeller on his own links again soon, and I expect to beat him. I can do it, you know, although it is hard to beat a man on his own grounds.

"Mr. Rockefeller is in good health. He certainly is in fine condition," concluded the steel king, grimly.

HOW NOT TO GROW OLD.

Doctor Declares Mental Exercise is of Great Benefit.

London, March 20.—A theme of perennial interest to the human race was the subject of a lecture delivered the other night by Dr. Stenson Hooker before the Psycho-Therapeutic society at Caxton hall, Westminster. The subject was, "How Not to Grow Old," and the principal points were that approaching middle age we should moderate our food supply, should not relinquish plenty of exercise, should exercise the mind and should not mope. The doctor dwelt upon the mental aspect of the question and insisted upon optimism being cultivated by every man and woman who did not wish to grow old. "The whole world," he said, "was in great need of 'suggestion treatment' in this respect, for it had somehow got it into its stupid head that we must be old men and women at, say, 70 years of age or even earlier. That was ridiculous and the sooner a different idea was dirven into our subconscious minds the better. But if a man thought he was going to be old at 60 he assuredly would be."

NEW BOATS IN DEMAND

Many Gasoline Launches Being Ordered by Duluth Enthusiasts.

Active Season Looked for in Local Launch Circles.

Conditions in the copper market evidently will not stop the spending of the usual amount of money for summer recreation, if the number of orders now being placed for gasoline launches may be taken as an indication. When the financial flurry came last fall, and when coppers slumped to a discouraging figure, there were reports to the effect that numerous launches would be put on the market this spring by their owners, and that few new boats would make their appearance here during 1908.

Predictions along this line are failing to materialize. Every spring there are a few gasoline boats for sale wherever they are used, and this spring the number is no larger than usual locally. Indeed, very few of the small craft are on the market, taking into consideration the large number of such boats there are in Duluth. Many of the owners who are selling are doing so with the intention of buying larger launches. It is a curious thing, but a fact, that nearly every one who begins with a small launch, after running it a season or two, gets a hankering tor a larger boat, and often this desire becomes so strong that the first boat is disposed of, and a larger one bought. This fact explains most of the launch sales that are made from year to year, except, of course, with the larger craft.

Dealers say that numerous inquiries are being received regarding new boats, and several orders already have been placed. A particularly fine line of marine engines is handled by some of the Duluth agencies, and there is no trouble about getting a boat that will be ready for business any old time. Men who already are the possessors of launches are busying themselves on getting ready for the opening of navigation. Wherever the boats are kept men may be seen putting in their spare moments doing odd jobs of carpenter work, or vigorously applying the paint brush.

STRAUS TO STAGE.

What He Declares to be a "Real Comic Opera."

London, March 20.—After Franz Lehar, Oscar Straus. After the author of "The Waltz Dream," Edmund Eysler. In the later we have yet another Austrian composer of light opera with whose work music lovers in both England and America are about to be made acquinted, and report declares him to be the peer of either Straus or he composer of "The Merry Widow." Unlike these musicians, however, Eysler is not even comparatively a newcomer. On the contrary he has written many Viennese successes, the best known of them being "Bruder Straubinger," which, as well as his "Kuenstlerblut," is pretty sure to be produced in England sooner or later, especially if two new light operas from Eysler's pen which George Edwardes has just secured and will present in London should turn out hits.

At this writing, London is waiting eagerly for Straus' international success, which is to be produced at the Hicks theater. The author himself will conduct the first performance and then will go on to Paris for the production of the piece there. Meanwhile, Herr Straus has finished an operetta founded on a play by Sardou, for production in Vienna, and is writing the music for the operatic version of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," which also will be played in Franz Joseph's capital. The translation, to which Shaw has just given his approval, has been written by Herr Jacobsen, one of the authors of the "Waltz Dream," in collaboration with a new author, Hans Bernauer. In conversation with the writer, Herr Straus declared the piece to be a "real comic opera," and said he should not be surprised if its success were even greater than that of "The Waltz Dream."

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

PLAYERS TO LEAVE SOON

Newt Randall to Milwaukee and Si Bennett to Butte.

Frank Summers Will Report at South Bend April 1.

Duluth ball players, who will perform in other parts of the country this year, are preparing to leave for their training camps. Newt Randall will leave Sunday morning for Calengo, where he will join the other members of the Milwaukee team of the American association and the squad will proceed to Muskogee, Okla., where they will train. Si Bennett will leave Sunday afternoon for Everett, Wash., to join the Butte team of the Northwestern league. March 25, Frank Summers will leave for South Bend, reporting there April 1 for a training trip through Kentucky.

The disposition of Sam Menefee is yet uncertain. He has signed a contract with Columbus in the American association, but isn't inclined to play ball unless he has a chance on the Columbus list and there is talk of farming Menefee. Artie O'Dea is after him for his Brantford team and one of the Central league clubs is also making a play for his services. Menefee did not play regularly with any team last year. He has a good position with the F. A. Patrick company and will probably settle down this year and play independent ball.

Newt Randall's friends expect him to make good with a vengeance in Milwaukee. His one year in the big league wasn't an entire success, but he gained experience, which will be valuable to him in the minors again. Randall had a lot of hard luck last year, was laid up for a long while with a bad ankle and did not strike his gait. His hitting fell away off, though at times his fielding was of a sensational order. At Milwaukee, he will be back in the class in which he made his biggest hit and he should have no trouble landing among the top-notch outfielders of the association.

Si Bennett will take a step up to Class B by going with Butte in the Northwestern league. Baseball in the Far Northwestern states is faster than obtyed here, but Si should make it a go. He led the Western Canada league for a long time in hitting last year, but sickness put him to the bad and he fell away. He is in great shape now and anxious to get going.

Summers also steps into Class B going into the Central league. Under a good manager, Summers will make a fine ball player. He has natural ability, but sometimes doesn't know how to make use of it. He is fast on his feet, shoots a ball like a bullet and is a fair batter. With the right kind of coaching, he'll make a good man for South Bend and will probably stick there.

The ice boating season has just about passed. Hundreds have enjoyed themselves flying about before the gate on the ice on the bay, braving frosted ears and numbed bodies for the sport, which is better than any that the winter climate of Lake Superior can offer. Everybody cannot enjoy it, but those who do, draw the full enjoyment of life in this northern clime out of it, which brings up the fact that the expected ice regatta did not materialize this winter. There are some pretty fast steel shod fliers on St. Louis bay. To see them go singly, one would think that each is faster than all the others. When on the bay together, they flit here and there and there is no line on their respective speed. Every owner thinks his boat is the fastest of the lot and it looks as though none of them have the nerve to get up a race. An ice boat regatta would bring them all together and, provided Lake Superior winds and snows weren't cutting pigeon wings on that particular day, they would bring out a lot of enthusiasts for the fun. Next year, perhaps, some enthusiastic one with initiative, will arrange the long-looked for series and settle the much mooted question of supremacy.

While on the question of ice boats, it might be well to remark that nobody has yet given a satisfactory answer to the question: "Do ice boats sail faster than the wind is travelling, and, if so, why?" Everywhere in Duluth, where an ice boat is known, the question has been discussed. Those who have ridden on the white-winged fliers have contended that in a twelve mile breeze, they went along at thirty miles an hour. As a matter of fact, few boats travel more than twenty miles an hour. But ice boats go pretty fast and, giving the riders the benefit of the doubt, some of them do go faster than you push it. Why does an ice boat go faster than the force, which propels it? The sporting editor has been out of school too long to attempt an answer. Perhaps some grad just out of technical school with a fund on information on physical phenomena can come across with a satisfactory reply.

Shades of de guy who invented de pillows! Here's Battling Nelson of Hegewisch, Ill., matching himself to meet Abe Attell of San Francisco, Cal. Nelson is taking Gans' place in the match. Imagine Oscar Battling filling Joe Gan's shoes in a pinochle match, not to say a real boxing bout. It's all right, if the gang will fall for it, but, if they have the love of the game at heart, they will fall on them (meaning the gang on Abraham and Oscar).

Abe Attel is the king of the featherweights. He's the fastest, most scientific fighter in the world, with the possible exception of Joe Gans. He and Gans would make a fine match, regardless of the disparity in weights, for they are both boxers. But Nelson is a different proposition. He's a rough-house fighter, with just enough science to make his roughling tactics effective. Attell would be giving away weight in matching himself with Gans, but his science would enable him to cope with the negro on fairly even terms. But in going against Nelson, he is matching science against brute strength, a wallop and ability to take punishment. Which would lead one to imagine Abie Attell is going against a harder proposition than he bargains for.

Nelson can find plenty of men to beat him in his own class. He isn't in Gans' position. His going against Attell is the height of nonsense and a desire to get the money. Likewise, Attell can get all the game he wants with Owen Moran. If he backs down from his absurd terms of 122 pounds ringside, Owen is about the best opponent Abe has found yet and he might better talk sense to the Irish boy than go to flirting with the bigger fellows and take chances on his noodle digging a hole in the sawdust.

B. Papke of Spring Valley, Ill., is the most talked about gentleman sporting a cauliflower ear today. His victory over Hugo Kelly in Milwaukee means a lot to him. Likewise, it eliminates Hugo from consideration as the middleweight champion of the United States. Bill and Stanley Ketchell are the only two blooming flowers in that bed of posies now. There isn't room for both of them. Mr. Papke hasn't yet lost a fight in his career. The Ketchell boy has shown his ability often. So, without further ado, the only reasonable move is for them to agree to terms and get to it as quickly as possible.

NORTHERNS GO TO KELLEY TEAM

New Roller Polo Five is Out to Beat Other Teams.

The Northern roller polo team, which won the championship of the city last year is no more. Efforts to reorganize it, drawing the players from the members of the hockey team, have proved in vain and there will be no more roller polo for the Northerns.

Furni, Winters and Deetz of the old Northern team have gone over to the Kelleys and a good team has been organized by Clyde Ziegler, the head of the sporting goods department of the Kelley store. Ziegler has gathered together some of the stars of the roller polo floor and the hockey ice and when he gets his five picked, it will be a dandy. He is going right after the Lincoln park aggregation.

Besides Furni, Winters and Deetz, the Kelleys have Cummings, Cargill, Flynn, Ryan, McKenzie and several others from whom to pick a team. Flynn is a good man. Furni, McKenzie and Ryan may play coverpoint, Deetz and Winters are center men and the others are able to play the rush positions.

The Kelleys will play their first game next Wednesday night against the Fedje team. The Lincoln Parks will later be taken on, as will the Broadway and Pease teams of Superior and several other aggregations at the head of the Lakes.

HIGH KICK RECORD.

Massachusetts Boy Kicks 9 Feet 8½ Inches at Southboro.

Southboro, Mass., March 20.—The world's amateur record for a running high kick was broken yesterday by Harold B. Beebe of Malden, in the annual winter games of St. Mark's school. His kick was 9 feet 8½ inches, beating the best previous record by half an inch. He is 17 years old, 6 feet 2 inches in height, and weighs 170 pounds.

ANOTHER RECORD.

Demarest Has Broken Three Marks at Chicago Tourney.

Chicago, March 20.—Calvin Demarest of Chicago, defeated Ferdinand Poggenburg of New York in the meeting game of the amateur championship billiard tournament yesterday, by a score of 400 to 135. For the third time in the five days' play, Demarest has broken an amateur billiard recordthe high run twice and high average once—in a manner that aroused the intense enthusiasm of the most critical audience that Chicago has furnished for years. In the thirteenth inning when he beat his own high run of last Tuesday, the applause which greeted him was deafening.

HELD FOR HOMICIDE.

Coroner's Jury Finds Fighter Died as Result of Blow.

Philadelphia, March 20.—A verdict of death from hemorrhage of the brain following a blow on the face was yesterday found by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Wassilve Ziemba, a youth who received fatal injuries in a boxing bout at a local theater Tuesday night. Charles Wolf, known as "Young Nelson," who struck the blow, was held in bail charged with homicide. All others who were arrested in connection with the same, were discharged from custody.

Evanston, Ill., March 20.—In the opening games of the tournament to decide the central A. A. U. basketball championships here last night the Detroit Y. M. C. A. defeated the West Side Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, 44 to 26. The Central Y. M. C. A., Chicago, defeated the Belvidere, Ill., five, 44 to 20, and the Wheaton college team won from the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A. of Chicago 26 to 25.

Baseball Guide Here.

One of the surest harbingers of spring is the baseball guide. It comes along about this time to jar the memories to the fact that balls, bats and gloves will soon be needed by the small boy and the big man with leanings toward the national game. Beach's is the first on the ground this year. It's full of statistics, reports of national commission actions, revised rules and fine pictures.

April 19th is Easter.

Better be thinking about that new spring suit. Don't forget to see the "Fitwell's" swell line before you buy. Their suits at from $10 to $25 are the same as your tailor charges $25 to $50 for. Stop in as you pass some day and have a look. You don't have to buy.

POOR MARKS BY BOWLERS

The Zeniths Will Not Land Inside of the Money.

Berini, Campbell and Massey Are Among the Leaders.

St. Paul, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four marks were made in the state bowling tournament last night. None of the former records were tumbled, the Kings of Minneapolis still leading the five-men teams, Dodd and Tracey of Minneapolis the two-men team and H. Campbell of Duluth the individuals.

The Zeniths of Duluth rolled last night and made a poor showing. Their score of 2,253 may not get them inside of the money. Nobis and Campbell scored 1,072 in the doubles and Smith and Werring tallied 975. Neither score was up to the standard.

The scores set by Duluth bowlers in the early events are holding up well. Berini still has high score of 247 and Campbell's record of 621 in the singles stands. In the nine-game scores, Massey, Campbell and G. Olson lead the field in order, with S. Olson in fourth place. In the six-game scores they do not fare so well.

DEMOCRATS ARE BEST QUALIFIED

To Correct Domination of Corporations Over Politics, Says Bryan.

Chicago, March 20.—Declaring that the greatest of present-day evils is "the domination of politics by the favor-seeking corporations" and asserting that the Democratic party is the best qualified to undertake the task of correcting this, William J. Bryan last night celebrated his forty-eighth birthday by delivering a speech on national issues before a big mass meeting in the Seventh regiment armory on Sixteenth street.

After speaking of President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and Governor Hughes, three Republicans who are mentioned for the presidency, Mr. Bryan said: "I have not included Senator La Follette, who is, I believe, a real reformer, and who has boldly championed reform measures. I do not mention him because, outside of his own state, he does not seem to have any influential supporters for the Republican nomination, and in his own state, he has had a ten-years' fight against corporate influences.

"But President Roosevelt is the leader of the reform sentiment in the Republican party, and yet he favors national incorporations. Secretary Taft is the president's chosen candidate for the Republican nomination, and behold how biased he is in favor of the corporations as against the public.

"Governor Hughes, who is sometimes put in the class of reformers, although the chosen representative of the reactionary element, spends more time warning the public against injustice to stockholders than in devising remedies which will insure the public against exploitation.

"Why Democracy? Because the Democratic party is the only party sufficiently large to give hope of success and sufficiently Democratic to give hope of relief after a victory has been won."

COTTAGES DISAPPEAR

Three Entire Houses Stolen in London in Broad Daylight.

All Owner Found Were Three Holes in the Ground.

London, March 20.—"Lost, strayed or stolen—three fine cottages have mysteriously disappeared from the property, Nos. 290, 298 and 300 High road, Wellesden Green, London, while the owner wasn't looking. Finder will please return to Goodwin, etc."

It has often been said that property is more secure in England than human life. The above advertisement, which did not, but which might very easily have appeared in the London papers, does not bear out the statement. John Morris Goodwin of London, who owned the cottages when they stood on the property, is still looking for his possessions. He doesn't expect to recover them, but he believes he has the thieves, and has haled them into court. The magistrate could hardly believe the astounding tale of impudence, and remanded the defendants until he had time to make personal inquiries. With such men at large, he said, Buckingham palace itself was not safe, and Englishmen would wake up some morning to find that they had no place to house the royal family.

Mr. Goodwin usually kept a very good weather eye on his snug little property—that was. The owners of property in England are limited, and when one gets his hand on a choice piece he is hardly blamed if he takes a grip that only death can break and holds it. Mr. Goodwin used to run out from his home every few days to see that his three cottages were still intact. On these occasions he walked up and down the street in front of the cottages, approaching them from all sides to see how they looked, and then went home and smoked his pipe and ate his dinner in a peace and contentment known only to those who are secured against the howl of the wolf at the door.

But Mr. Goodwin reckoned without the influenza germ. Almost everybody in London, from the prime minister down, has received a visit from that little busybody. Those who have not, pretend they have, for it is fashionable to have the "flu." Mr. Goodwin, however, was one of those who was not put to it to do any pretending. About six weeks ago he surrendered and took to his bed. The influenza—and the doctor—kept him on his back for a month, and during all that time he worried incessantly about his cottages. But though he worried about them, it is safe to say that he never considered the possibility of anyone running off with them.

Finally, when the ammoniated tincture of quinine had done its deadly work, the influenza germs were hors de combat and the doctor unlocked the front door and told him he was free. Mr. Goodwin lost no time in taking a 'bus to Willesden Green fondly to gaze upon his property. He alighted near it and turned into High road with a light step and a still lighter heart. His eyes ran along the familiar row of houses leading to his and then his heart, as is usual with hearts upon such occasions, stood still. There, where his three pretty little cottages had stood, were three deep holes in which the foundations had been sunk. Mr. Goodwin very nearly expired without further ado.

When he had sufficiently recovered himself, the erstwhile property owner laughed a rather foolish laugh, and decided that he had come to the wrong street. His prolonged illness, he figured, had made him guilty of a mental lapse. He slowly strolled up to the corner smiling over this joke on himself and glanced at the lamp post to find out just exactly where he was. His heart had another attack when he found that he really was in High road. He went back to the three holes in the ground and began kicking over the debris. He was thus engaged when a policeman came along.

"What's the matter?" asked that functionary. "Have you lost anything?"

"Lost anything?" exclaimed Goodwin, sarcasm struggling with sorrow in his voice. "I should think I have. I've lost three houses."

The policeman smiled good naturedly at what he decided was a poor attempt at being funny. He leaned against the fence in front of the property and kicked the mud from his No. 10 boots.

"I don't suppose you know what has become of the three buildings which used to stand on those lots, do you?" asked Goodwin, ignoring the amusement his previous remark had induced in the representative of the law.

"Sure," answered the policeman carelessly. "The owner had them removed."

"Removed, fiddlesticks! I'm the owner and I never had them removed," declared Goodwin.

"Well, all I know," said the policeman, "is that I saw a chap pulling the houses down about a month ago and I said to him, 'Are you clearing them all away, old chap?' The man answered, 'Yes, I have orders to shift 'em.' So if they were taken away without your orders, you had better report it at the station."

DESPONDENCY

Of New York Man Causes Him to Take His Life.

New York, March 20.—Herbert Kremer, son of President William N. Kremer of the German-American Insurance company, shot himself last night in the apartments of Mrs. Lafayette B. Gleason, who was formerly the wife of the clerk of the state senate and secretary to the Republican state committee. Mrs. Gleason later said that Kremer had become despondent following the termination by her of their wedding engagement.

Kremer was 30 years old and had been employed as a clerk in the office of an insurance broker. Mrs. Gleason said she met him by appointment yesterday to arrange a matter of business and last night he accompanied her to her rooms. He had been there but a few moments, according to Mrs. Gleason, when, exclaiming "Well here goes," he fired a bullet into his brain.

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF SCROFULA

One of the unchangeable laws of nature is that "like shall beget like." Parents who are related by the ties of blood, or who have a consumptive tendency, or other family blood taint are sure to transmit it to their children in the form of Scrofula. Swollen glands, brittle bones, weak eyes, hip disease, pale, waxy complexions, sickly bodies, running sores and ulcers, etc., are the usual manifestations of the disease. Those who have inherited a scrofulous tendency may succeed in holding it in check during young, vigorous life, but after a spell of sickness, or when the system begins to weaken and lose its vitality from other causes the ravages of the trouble will become manifest and sometimes run into Consumption. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and forces out the scrofulous deposits, kills the germs and completely cures the disease. It changes the quality of the blood by removing all impurities and poisons, and supplying this vital fluid with rich, health-sustaining qualities. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable medicine, and is especially adapted to systems which have been weakened and poorly nourished by scrofulous blood. Literature on Scrofula and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

DAM READY BY AUGUST

Work Resumed on Plant of Beltrami Electric Light Co.

Power Will be Generated From Mississippi for Bemidji Concerns.

Bemidji, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Beltrami Electric Light & Power company has resumed work on the big power dam which is being built at the rapids in the Mississippi river, about nine miles east of this city.

Work on the dam was commenced early last summer and the foundations for the superstructure was complete before cold weather set in.

The putting in of the dam proved to be a much larger undertaking than the company at first realized, and it was necessary to secure an extension of time from the government for its completion. The company now estimates that by vigorously pushing work the dam can be completed by the latter part of August, at the latest.

The new dam will furnish from 1,100 to 3,600 horse power.

The power house will be built in the river in the center of the dam and will be of concrete and steel.

The dam will be 110 feet long at the bottom and 234 feet on top; 56 feet wide at the bottom and 8 feet wide at the top.

It is the intention of the company to put on fifty or sixty more men just as soon as the weather moderates somewhat, and Supt. Marcoux estimates that the water wheel will be in place and generating power the first week in August, 1908.

The completion of this dam and power house will enable the Beltrami Electric Light & Power company to furnish power for a large number of new manufacturing industries, which contemplate locating in Bemidji.

PAUL LAVOIE OF CLOQUET IS DEAD

Quarter of a Century Resident of Nearby Town Gone.

Cloquet, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of Cloquet's old and respected citizens passed away yesterday shortly before noon at his home here. While his death was a shock to the community, it was not unexpected, as he had struggled for four years against the inroads of a stomach cancer, and for several days had been at death's door.

The arrangements for the funeral were completed today. It will be held Saturday, at 10 a. m., from the Catholic church, and owing to the prominence of the deceased and his wide circle of friends, it will probably be a large one.

Crookston, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Alfred Rice, whose husband is employed in the barber shop of Eric I. Updahl of McIntosh, entered the shop asking her husband to accompany her down town. He refused and she began creating a disturbance. The police were sent for but before they arrived she snatched a razor and gashed her throat before her husband could take the razor away from her. Medical aid was summoned and the woman taken to her home where the ugly wound was sewed up and it is believed she will recover. There has been a series of family jars in the Rice home and the attempted suicide was the culmination of the trouble. They are both young, and were married but a few months ago. The affair created a great sensation at McIntosh.

Two indictments were returned against Michael O'Brien, one charging forgery in the first degree, the other for uttering a forged instrument. O'Brien had cashed checks drawn on Hinchy Bros., which were alleged to be forgeries. He was arrested, after local parties had cashed the checks.

An indictment was returned against Witales Sjogren, under the name of William Sogren, charging assault in the first degree, in having assaulted his wife and given her an unmerciful pounding.

Ed Johnson was indicted under the name of John Johnson for assault in the first degree, in assaulting a partner in a resort in the west end of the city last fall.

CAR'S DELAY IS CHARGED TO ROAD

First North Dakota Case Under Reciprocal Demurrage Law.

Grand Forkes, N. D., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge C. F. Templeton has directed a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Larry Downey of Fargo, formerly of Grand Forks, against the Northern Pacific railway. The verdict is for $170 and costs.

The verdict is based on the new state law which provides that a shipper may recover $5 an hour for every hour his car is delayed. It took the company thirty-seven hours to take his car a distance of fifty-seven miles from Fargo to Valley City.

Counsel for the railway company insisted that the North Dakota law conflicted with the federal statute relating to intersate commerce. Plaintiff's attorney contended that it was merely a regulation to safeguard the interests of North Dakota shippers and in no way conflicted with the federal regulations. It is thought probable that the railway company will test the law in the higher courts.

WIFE AND A POKER

Alleged to Have Caused Death of North Dakota Man.

Dickinson, N. D., March 20.—George Belknap is dead, as the result of a blow on the head, said to have been inflicted by a poker in the hands of his wife or brother-in-law.

The scene of the trouble is near Stillwater. The dead man had been married about a year, and it is said did not get along well with his wife, who went to the home of George Ladd, her brother. The husband followed, and in a fight in the yard, it is claimed, Mrs. Belknap hit her husband, who went bleeding to his home, a short distance away. He was found alone in a state of unconsciousness the following morning. Fred Belknap, a brother, went for a doctor, but it was too late.

Billings county authorities were called to investigate. No arrests have been made yet. The Belknap and Ladd families came from the Middle West states a few years ago, and bore a good reputation.

Bassanella escaped from the penitentiary here last Friday, and Saturday afternoon was shot by officers of McLean county while resisting arrest.

BRAKEMAN IS KILLED.

Falls Off Omaha Freight at Fall Creek, Wis.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert E. Bahlke of this city, rear brakeman on the Omaha westbound freight, No. 83, was killed Wednesday night at Fall Creek station by falling from the top of the train. He was last seen alive when making his way along the top of the cars towards the head of the train.

Bahlke was not missed until Eau Claire was reached. As soon as his absence was noticed, an engine was dispatched back over the line and the dead body was found lying alongside of the tracks at the place above mentioned. The body had been badly mangled, the head having been entirely severed and ground almost to a pulp and the trunk and limbs were in a bad state.

The unfortunate man was in the prime of life, being about 25 years of age and unmarried. He had many friends in the city and along the Omaha road at various points, where he stopped. His home was with his parents, who reside at 1227 Second avenue. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his parents, several brothers and sisters.

ROBBED WHILE TRAVELING.

Calumet Parties Fall Among Crooks Near Spokane.

Calumet, Mich., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Eric Abramson, who has returned from Seattle told his friends of the way he and two other Calumet residents were relieved of some of their valuables during their trip to the far coast. Capt. Abramson stated that the thief was a colored man who was aided and abetted by a colored porter on the train.

The robber's name was W. Avery, and he boarded the train at Spokane. He relieved Will King, formerly of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company of $360, stole a gold watch and chain from John Tachell and secured $7 from Capt. Abramson. The loss was discovered next morning, and within a short time the railroad authorities had their man. He is now doing "time," his sentence being an indeterminate one, and ranging from two to twelve years. The colored porter was also landed behind the bars, although Capt. Abramson does not know the extent of his sentence.

NO HIGHER PAY FOR SEAMEN

It is stated in marine circles today that any request for increased pay upon the part of the affiliated order of firemen, cooks, deckhands, wheelsmen and watchmen will be turned down at the approaching executive committee meeting of the Lake Carriers' association. It is further given as likely that a request for increased pay is extremely likely.

The deckhands, the wheelsmen and the watchmen compose the Seamens' union. The cooks have a union of their own, as have the firemen. All of these bodies are affiliated.

It is said that the times are not propitious for any increase in the pay of the affiliated body of lake laborers. The meeting of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association will fix the pay for the coming year. It is predicted that some trouble will be experienced in coming to a satisfactory agreement with the men represented by the affiliated body.

The meeting of the executive committee will closely follow the meeting of the tugmen and longshoremen, being held in Cleveland at the present time. G. A. Tomlinson, the local member of the executive committee, is in the East. Rumors are rife as to the probable results of the meeting of the committee.

THREW LAMP IN QUARREL

Negress Sets Fire to Shack on Baxter Avenue.

In a drunken fight, last night, at midnight, in an old shanty on the corner of Baxter and Sixth streets, Jessie Crockett, a negress, is claimed to have thrown a lighted lamp at Don O'Keith of 1701 North street. The lamp, fortunately, missed O'Keith and exploded against the wall, filling the place, almost on the instant, with smoke and flames. So rapid was the spread of the fire that the pair barely had time to ecape through a window.

The Crockett woman was so badly burned that she was taken directly to the hospial, where she is in a serious condition.

O'Keith was picked up later in the morning running about the street, naked, except for an undershirt. His burns necessitated his also being taken to the hospital, though he will recover in a few days.

Oratorical Contest.

Tonight, at the Grand Opera house, students representing seven different Wisconsin normal schools, will deliver orations in the inter-normal oratorical contest.

Five judges, all from outside Superior, have accepted invitations to decide on the winners.

The following schools will be represented in the contest: Stevens Point, Whitewater, Superior, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, River Falls and Plattville.

Election Frauds Suspected.

The fact that several of the hotels and lodging houses having accommodations for comparatively few people seem to have been filled beyond their capacity with men that have registered for the primary election has given rise to the suspicion that a great deal of colonization of voters is being attempted in Superior for the primary election next Tuesday. It is claimed that a gang of fifteen to twenty-five men have been given quarters in an old building in the lower part of the city, and that they are being furnished free beer to hold them there until after the election.

Controversy Settled.

An agreement is said to have been reached between the Wisconsin Central and the Great Northern roads, whereby the Wisconsin Central tracks will be permitted to cross those of the Great Northern at grade between Allouez and Saunders. Later the Wisconsin Central road is to build a subway under the other road. With the controversy about the crossing settled, it is believed that the work of laying steel will now go forward quite rapidly.

CLAIMS CITY STILL LIABLE

Two personal injury cases are being tried today in the district court.

In Judge Cant's room the trial of the case of Ida Ostlund against the Duluth Belt Line Railway company, was started yesterday afternoon. Miss Oslund was injured while a passenger on the car that run between Main street, West Duluth, and Bay View Heights. She demands $4,000. It is claimed that a small car used for hauling wood broke away from the passenger car and ran down the incline toward another car on which Miss Ostlund was a passenger. The plaintiff claims there was danger of a collision and that she was ordered to jump. In jumping from the car she is claimed to have spralned her ankle and received other injuries from which she has not entitrely recovered.

The trial of the damage suit of Mrs. Katherine Ferguson, a midwife, against the city of Duluth, is being tried in Judge Dibell's room. Mrs. Ferguson clams to have been injured some time ago by stepping in a hole caused by the Duluth Telephone company removing one of its poles close to the path leading to the Ferguson home. The action was originally brought against the telephone company and the city, but the company effected a settlement for $500 so that the case against it was dropped. Mrs. Ferguson claims that the settlement with one of the defendants does not affect her claim against the other, and she seeks to recover $3,500 from the city, on account of the accident. C. E. Adams is her attorney. The city is represented by Bert Fesler and E. M. Morgan.

THIRD ATTEMPT TO FIRE BLOCK FAILS

Cass Lake, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the third time in three years an unsuccessful attempt was made to burn the Cloven, Tanner & Ellis block, here. A daring and painstaking effort was made to fire the structure, but before the fire had gained much control, a passerby discovered the flames and sent in the alarm. After a few minutes' fight the flames were subdued, then it was discovered that two holes, one inch in diamster, were bored in three different walls on the inside, cotton saturated with oil and turpentine had been stuffed through the holes, and a match applied. The cause of the incendiary action is a mystery. The building is partly insured.

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Market is Dull and Bearish During the Session.

Flax is Firm at the Close in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 20.—Wheat sold on a lower level than yesterday during all of the session in the American markets today. There was nothing to buoy the market up at any stage and the closing prices were weak.

The demand was slack during the day and what news there was was bearish. The Modern Miller's report on the Southwestern situation was favorable as to the crops, the Argentine shipments were liberal and the cables weak.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 6,752,000 bushels, against 7,176,000 bushels last week and 4,632,000 bushels a year ago.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat this week, exclusive of North America, at 8,000,000 bus.

Liverpool closed ¾d to ⅞d lower, Berlin 1⅝c higher, Budapest ⅛c lower and Antwerp ¼c higher.

The May option closed ½c lower in Duluth, ¾-⅞c lower in Chicago, ½-⅝c lower in Minneapolis, ⅜c lower in New York and 5c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅜-¾c lower in Chicago, ¾-⅞c lower in Minneapolis and ⅝c lower in New York.

May corn closed 1½-⅝c lower in Chicago and ¼d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛-¼c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The undertone to the wheat market was steady at the opening and values unchanged to ¼d higher. Offerings at this time were lighter, being influenced by the steadier American cables and good support. Following the opening, there was a sharp decline, prices selling off ⅝d to ¾d on the continued liberal shipments from Argentina, increase in the visible supply there and the high grading of arrivals of La Plata wheat. There was a withdrawal of support and offerings became pressed for sale. At mid-day, the market was easy and from ½d to ⅝d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was steady and ¼d higher in sympathy with the firmness in America yesterday, later easiness developed and the market lost ⅛d of this advance as a result of weakness in wheat and a smaller demand for spot."

Car receipts in Duluth were 29 against 94 last year, and at Minneapolis 265 against 310 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 294 against 404 last year. Chicago received 16 against 11 last year. Winnipeg received 112 against 109 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 502,000 bus, last year 579 000 bus. Shipments 266,000 bus, last year 240,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 130,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 544,000 bus, last year 825,000 bus. Shipments 489 000 bus, last 587,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 13,000 bus.

The Modern Miller says:

"No change is reported in the generally favorable conditions of winter wheat. Conditions in Kansas and Oklahoma are good. Latest advices from Oklahoma indicate that the general outlook was never more favorable. There are scattering reports of Green bugs but no damage reported. The Hessian fly is said to have done some slight damage in the northern counties. About 1,000,000 acres are planted to wheat in Oklahoma."

Wheat was dull during the session in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.05¾, declined to $1.05, rallied to $1.05⅜, declined to $1.04⅞ and closed at $1.05, a loss of ½c from yesterday. July wheat opened late at $1.05¼, declined to $1.05 and closed at $1.05¼ asked, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Durum wheat was ½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Argentine shipments of corn were 121,000 bushels, against 24,000 bushels last week and 40,000 bushels a year ago.

Flax was dull, but closed firm. May flax opened ⅛c higher at $1.19⅜, declined to $1.18⅝ and closed at $1.18⅞-¾, a shade higher than yesterday. July flax opened ⅛c higher at $1.18½ and closed at $1.18⅝, unchanged from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, on track, $1.05; to arrive, No. 1 northern, $1.05; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.05; May, $1.05; July, $1.05¼; durum on track, No. 1, 87¾c; No. 2, 86¼c; May durum, 83½c; July durum, 88c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Weak on Lower Cables and Favorable Weather.

Chicago, March 20.—The wheat market opened weak today because of a decline at Liverpool in the face of yesterday's local advance. Weather in the Southwest was considered favorable and this also depressed prices. May wheat opened ⅛c to ⅜@⅓c lower, at 96@⅓c to 96⅝c and sold at 95⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 310 cars, against 345 cars last week and 415 cars one year ago.

The market was weak all day, chiefly because of the severe slump in corn. The low point for May was 95c. Late in the day a rally was brought about by covering by shorts. The close was weak, with May ¾@⅞c lower, at 95⅝@⅞c.

The corn market was weak on realizing sales, good weather in the corn belt and increased country offerings. May corn opened ⅜c to ½c lower, at 67½c to 67¾c and sold at 67⅛c. oLcal receipts were 229 cars with none of contract grade.

Prices continued extremely weak. The low point for May was 66¾c. The close was weak, with May 1¼@1⅜c lower, at 66¾@67⅛c.

The oats market was weak along with wheat and corn. May oats opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 54⅞c to 55c and sold at 54½c. Local receipts were 158 cars.

The weakness of the grain market offset an advance in the price of live hogs and caused a weak market in provisions. May pork opened unchanged at $12.50 and sold at $12.37½. Lard was 2½c lower, at $7.95, and sold at $7.90. Ribs were unchanged at $6.87½ and sold at $6.82½.

Close: Wheat—May, 95⅝@⅞c; July, 90⅛@⅜c; September, 87⅜c. Corn—May, 66¾@67⅛c; July, 63⅞c; September, 63c. Oats—May, old, 54⅝@54⅞c; May, 53¼c; July, old, 48½c; July, 46¾@47⅜c; September, 38⅜c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Light Receipts Gives Wheat Firmness, But It is Soon Lost.

Minneapolis, March 20.—Comparatively light receipts here, 265 cars against 310 cars, and only 29 against 94 at Duluth gave a firm feeling in wheat. But this was lost in the other news, most of which was depressing. Minneapolis elevator stocks increased again and promise to show a gain of 150,000 bushels in tomorrow's weewkly report. The cables were olwer .Argentine shipments at 6,752,000 bushels somewhat heavier than expected, better news came from the winter wheat states and with fine weather Northwest seeding of spring wheat may begin in a few advanced places in Minnesota and South Dakota next week. Near the end of the session May droped under $1.06, but rallied quickly. May opened at $1.06⅝@1.06½; high, $1.06⅝; low, $1.06⅝; close, $1.06¼@1.06¾; July closed at $1.01⅜@1.01½; September closed at 93¼c.

Cash wheat sold better. With 93 cars winter and 28 durum in the receipts, not much spring wheat was left to come on sale. No. 1 northern brought 1½@2c May and No. 2 was May price to ½c under. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.05⅜; spot or to arrive, No. 2 northern, $1.05⅜; spot or to arrive No. 3 wheat, $1.00@1.03.

No. 3 yellow corn, 63@63½c. No. 3 white oats, 51⅜c. No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¼c.

Barley was dull and quoted unchanged to 1@2c lower. There was good demand for particular lots of good color. Closing range, 65@85c.

Flax not so strong today, although still on the Duluth May basis. Buyers were more indifferent. Close, $1.16⅛. Bran in bulk, higher by 25 cents a ton and now quoted at $21.50@22.00.

Flour quiet and steady. Larger milling companies say it is satisfactory, small mills and country mills report it dull. Shipping instructions for old sales are not coming in so freely. Shipments, 48,762 barrels. First patents, $5.35@5.50; second patents, $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.30@3.40.

TONE WAS IMPROVED

At Close of the Stock Market, Which Was Firm.

Operations in Early Hours Were on a Small Scale.

New York, March 20.—The fluctuations shown by the opening prices of stock today weer narrow and irregular, small fractional gains and losses being quite evenly divided. Operations were somewhat restricted. Bethlehem Steel sold at a decline of 2 and American Beet Sugar 1. Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred rose 1½.

Higher prices were current for a while after business began, especially in a handful of the usually most active stocks. Reading, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, and American Sugar were strong and gained 1 to 1¼. Subsequently the market succumbed to brisk realizing sales in some of the leaders and prices fell back a substantial fraction.

Prices sagged and then stiffened again. Operations were on a limited scale and the tone very uncertain. Bonds were steady.

The fluctuations either way were small and constantly changing. Utah Copper improved 3 points. Westinghouse Electric receded 1.

A more stable tone characterized the later market, prices holding well, despite the excessive dullness. Alls Chalmers advanced a point.

The market closed firm and quite active. A better tone developed in the final hour, when New York Central rose 2¼, Union Pacific and Reading 2, Colorado Fuel 3⅛, Tennessee Copper 2¼, Missouri Pacific and Texas Pacific 1¾, National Lead 1⅝, and Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie first preferred, Southern Railway preferred and Wisconsin Central 1 to 1⅜.

THE OPEN SHOP REDUCES COST

Millie Bunnell has awarded Hugh Fawcett a contract for the building of a residence in the East end, near his present home. The contract price is understood to be in the neighborhood of $18,000. It is claimed that this figure is about 25 per cent below what it would have cost to build before the open shop system was instituted by the Builders' exchange. The same wages are being paid labor as formerly, but each man does so much more work under the present system, it is claimed, that a saving of 25 per cent in cost is accomplished. The lower cost of lumber also has something to do with it. Local companies say they have more contracts for new buildings now than they had at the same time last year.

AN INCREASE IN EARNINGS

Shown by Report of United States Steel Corporation.

New York, March 20.—The report of the United States Steel corporation for the year ending Dec. 31 last, shows gross receipts of $757,014,767; an increase of over 1906 of $60,257,841. The cost of manufacturing and producing and operating expenses amounted to $569,166,775, an increase over the preceding year of $47,082,822. The earnings for the year 1907 after payment of general, administrative and selling expenses, interest charges and including a charge of $35,000,000 for ordinary repairs and maintenance were $160,964,673, an increase of $4,340,400. The surplus net income for the year after payment of appropriations for sinking funds, depreciation, replacement, interest on bonds, and dividends was $89,179,836; an increase of $6,436,976. From this amount there was deducted $35,500,000 for new plants and construction and capital obligations, and $18,500,000 was set aside for construction of the plant at Gary, Ind., leaving a balance of surplus for the year of $15,179,836, an increase of $2,436,976.

The report includes the operations of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company since Nov. 1 only.

The actual shipments of products of the United States Steel corporation were 10,451,488 tons, a decrease of 410,967 tons. Exports for the year amounted to 1,014,082 tons of steel commodities, a decrease of 6 per cent, but the gross receipts therefrom exceeded those of 1906 by 16 per cent.

Mention is made of the fact that the corporation has purchased a site for a new plant in St. Louis county, Minn., near Duluth.

MINERS MUST CEASE WORK

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—The national convention of the United Mine Workers of America today completed its discussion of the report of the scale committee by sections. The first section adopted today was the one which levies an assessment of 50 cents per month on all members of the organization.

This assessment, as explained yesterday to the convention by Secretary Wilson, is for the purpose of adding to the fund for the assistance of members of the union who by failure to secure contracts on April 1, may be forced into idleness. Other sections adopted authorized the international executive board to increase, decrease or discontinue this assessment, ordered miners to proceed to work where contracts are signed or joint conferences are being held, on April 1, and ordered all miners to cease work on that date in districts where no contracts had been signed or joint conferences were not in progress. All additional details were left to the national executive board. After the report of the scale committee had been adopted by sections without change, it was adopted as a whole. The committee was discharged and the convention adjourned sine die.

PANIC IN SCHOOL

Butler, Pa., March 20.—A panic among school children and their parents resulted today at the Institute Hall School building, when a report was circulated that President Mechling of the school board had received a Black Hand threat, demanding $500, or the building would be blown up with dynamite. Many women, frantic with fear, rushed to the school and demanded that their children be instantly dismissed. When the teachers persisted in keeping the children in their rooms, a number of the women fainted. In a short time the children deserted the building when they learned of the report. All efforts to hold them in check were futile. An official statement has been issued, denying that such a demand has been made, but none of the children would return to the building today. The janitor patrolled the school grounds in order to satisfy the suspicious parents.

GETS TWO CONTRACTS.

E. Engle secured two small sewer contracts from the board of public works this morning and sprung a surprise on the members. For a sewer in Seventh street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east, the engineer's estimate was $1,719. Mr. Engle came along and took down the contract with a bid of $1,220. He figures that there isn't so much rock to be cut as the engineer thinks there is, and his figuring landed the contract. The next bid was $1,326. He also was the lowest bidder on the construction of a sewer in Fifth street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east, his bid being $353, about $75 lower than the engineer's estimate. The contracts will be submitted to the council for approval Monday night.

MAY GET INTO COURTS.

St. Paul, March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trouble incident to the investigation of the state oil inspection department, under J. A. McDermott, its former head, may get into the courts. Criminal proceedings may be started.

Attorney General Young today made this significant answer when asked what was going to be done: "I will do my duty in the matter." Further he would not talk, although he admitted that he had ordered complete papers and figures covering the facts in the case, and would study them thoroughly, looking to his probable part in the matter. He said he would have nothing more to say for the present.

Ballaklava is getting within a few feet of the 700-foot level, and then for the rich deposits of ore that are known to exist in the great veins of this mine. Remember that the 3,000 feet of vein matter of this property reach deep and far and there is no limit to where they lend, for in 35 years of copper mining no one has yet reached the bottom of one of those great veins on Butte hill. Ballaklava stock should sell at $50 a share within 12 months for shipments of rich ore will begin inside of 60 days. See whether I am right or not. If you think the stock is now selling high enough, then sell it, for there is surely a good enough market. Not a day passes but what orders are received from Boston, New York and the West. This stock is beginning to look good in Boston and will soon take its place as one of the heaviest traders of them all. It is in a class with North Butte, Calumet & Arizona and Shattuck.

Butte & Superior, you want to remember, is a big and valuable property, and you also want to remember that Mr. A. B. Wolvin is at its head and that he will make it a wonderful mine. Think of the way he built up the Zenith Furnace company and how the big vessels on the lakes are managed so that they pay big dividends. Also, please remember that Butte & Superior has the ore and lots of it. I have been in this mine, and therefore, know what I am talking about. It is one of the coming mines of Butte, and stock is a dandy buy at this level.

Copper Queen is much stronger, and Mr. Crosby says that the ore is very rich and that Copper Queen is going to make good, even if he has to throw in an iron mine.

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Market is Dull and Bearish During the Session.

Flax is Firm at the Close in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 20.—Wheat sold on a lower level than yesterday during all of the session in the American markets today. There was nothing to buoy the market up at any stage and the closing prices were weak.

The demand was slack during the day and what news there was was bearish. The Modern Miller's report on the Southwestern situation was favorable as to the crops, the Argentine shipments were liberal and the cables weak.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 6,752,000 bushels, against 7,176,000 bushels last week and 4,632,000 bushels a year ago.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat this week, exclusive of North America, at 8,000,000 bus.

Liverpool closed ¾d to ¾d lower, Berlin 1½c higher, Budapest ½c lower and Antwerp ½c higher.

The May option closed ½c lower in Duluth, 2½@2¾c lower in Chicago, ½@¾c lower in Minneapolis, ¾c lower in New York and 5c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, 2¾@2¾c lower in Chicago, ¾@¾c lower in Minneapolis and ¾c lower in New York.

May corn closed ⅝@⅝c lower in Chicago and 1-4d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ½@¾c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The undertone to the wheat market was steady at the opening and values unchanged to 1-4d higher, offerings at this time were lighter, being influenced by the steadier American cables and good support. Following the opening, there was a sharp decline, prices selling off ¼d to ½d on the continued liberal shipments from Argentina, increase in the visible supply there and the high grading of arrivals of La Plata wheat. There was a withdrawal of support and offerings became pressed for sale. At midday, the market was easy and from ½d to ¾d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was steady and ¼d higher in sympathy with the firmness in America yesterday, later easiness developed and the market lost ¼d of this advance as a result of weakness in wheat and a smaller demand for spot."

Car receipts in Duluth were 29 against 94 last year, and at Minneapolis 265 against 300 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 294 against 394 last year. Chicago received 16 against 11 last year. Winnipeg received 112 against 109 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 562,000 bus, last year 579,000 bus. Shipments 205,000 bus, last year 240,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 110,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 544,000 bus, last year 825,000 bus. Shipments 480,000 bus, last year 587,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 13,000 bus.

The Modern Miller says:

"No change is reported in the generally favorable conditions of winter wheat. Conditions in Kansas and Oklahoma are good. Latest advices from Oklahoma indicate that the general outlook was never more favorable. There are scattering reports of Green bugs but no damage reported. The Hessian fly is said to have done some slight damage in the northern counties. About 1,000,000 acres are planted to wheat in Oklahoma."

Wheat was dull during the session in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.03¼ bid, declined to $1.05, rallied to $1.05⅛, declined to $1.04⅞, and closed at $1.05 bid, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. July wheat opened late at $1.00¼, declined to $1.00 and closed at $1.00¼ asked, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday.

During wheat was ⅛c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Argentine shipments of corn were 121,000 bushels, against 2,000 bushels last week and 40,000 bushels a year ago.

Flax was dull, but closed firm. May flax opened ⅛c higher at $1.06¼, declined to $1.05⅞, and closed at $1.06⅜-½, a shade higher than yesterday. July flax opened ½c higher at $1.48½ and closed at $1.48⅛, unchanged from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Weak on Lower Cables and Favorable Weather.

Chicago, March 20. The wheat market opened weak today because of a decline at Liverpool in the face of yesterday's local advance. Weather in the Southwest was considered favorable and this also depressed prices. May wheat opened ⅝c to ¾@¾c lower, at 96⅝c to 96¾c and sold at 95⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 300 cars, against 345 cars last week and 415 cars one year ago.

The market was weak all day, chiefly because of the severe slump in corn. The low point for May was 96c. Late in the day a rally was brought about by covering by shorts. The close was weak, with May 2@2½c lower, at 95¾@95¾c.

The corn market was weak on realizing sales, good weather in the corn belt and increased country offerings. May corn opened ⅝c to ¾c lower, at 65¾c to 65¾c and sold at 65¼c. Local receipts were 220 cars, with none of contract grade.

Prices continued extremely weak. The low point for May was 66½c. The close was weak, with May 1½@1¾c lower, at 66¾@67c.

The oats market was weak along with wheat and corn. May oats opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 53¾c to 53¾c and sold at 54¼c. Local receipts were 150 cars.

The weakness of the grain market offset an advance in the price of live hogs and caused a weak market in provisions. May pork opened unchanged at $12.50 and sold at $12.37½. Lard was 2½c lower, at $7.05, and sold at $7.00. Ribs were unchanged at $6.82½ and sold at $6.82½.

Close: Wheat—May, 95¾@¾c; July, 101¾@¾c; September, 87¾c. Corn—May, 66¾@67c; July, 67½c; September, 65c. Oats—May, old, 54¾@54c; May, 53¼c; July, old, 48½c; July, 46¾@47c; September, 28¾c. Pork—May, $12.42½; July, $12.82½; September, $13.17½. Lard—May, $7.02½; July, $8.12½@8.15; September, $8.37½. Ribs—May, $6.82½; July, $7.12½; September, $7.40.

Rye—Cash, 75@87c. Timothy—March, $4.75. Clover—March, $20.85. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 97½@98¾c; No. 2 red, 96½@98¾c; No. 2 hard, 97½c@$1.04¾; No. 3 hard, 96¾c@$1.02; No. 3 spring, 98c@$1.09; others nothing doing. Corn—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 62½@63½c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Light Receipts Gives Wheat Firmness, But It is Soon Lost.

Minneapolis, March 20.—Comparatively light receipts here, 265 cars against 310 cars, and only 29 against 94 at Duluth gave a firm feeling in wheat. But this was lost in the other news, most of which was depressing. Minneapolis elevator stocks increased again and promise to show a gain of 150,000 bushels in tomorrow's weekly report. The cables were slower. Argentine shipments at 6,752,000 bushels somewhat heavier than expected, better news came from the winter wheat states and with fine weather Northwest seeding of spring wheat may begin in a few advanced places in Minnesota and South Dakota next week. Near the end of the session May droped under $1.00, but rallied quickly. May opened at $1.00⅝, high, $1.00⅝, low, $1.00⅝; close, $1.00⅝@1.00¾; July closed at $1.00¾@1.01⅛; September closed at 93¾c.

Cash wheat sold better. With 93 cars winter and 28 durum in the receipts, not much spring wheat was left to come on sale. No. 1 northern brought 1½@2c May and No. 2 was May price to ½c under. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.07⅝ spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.05⅝; spot or to arrive No. 3 wheat, $1.00@1.03. No. 3 yellow corn, 63@63½c. No. 3 white oats, 51¾c. No. 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

Barley was dull and quoted unchanged to 1c lower. There was good demand for particular lots of good color. Closing range, 45@55c.

Flax not so strong today, although still on the Duluth May basis. Buyers were more indifferent. Close, $1.10¾. Bran in bulk, higher by 25 cents a ton and now quoted at $21.50@22.00.

Flour quiet and steady. Larger milling companies say it is satisfactory, small mills and country mills report it dull, shipping instructions for old sales are not coming in so freely. Shipments, 48,762 barrels. First patents, $3.35@3.50; second patents, $3.25@3.40; first clears, $2.25@2.35, second clears, $3.30@3.40.

TONE WAS IMPROVED

At Close of the Stock Market, Which Was Firm.

Operations in Early Hours Were on a Small Scale.

New York, March 20.—The fluctuations shown by the opening prices of stock today weer narrow and irregular, small fractional gains and losses being quite evenly divided. Operations were somewhat restricted. Bethlehem Steel sold at a decline of 2 and American Beet Sugar 1. Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred rose 1¼.

Higher prices were current for a while after business began, especially in a handful of the usually most active stocks. Reading, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, and American Sugar were strong and gained 1 to 1¾. Subsequently the market succumbed to brisk realizing sales in some of the leaders and prices fell back a substantial fraction.

Prices sagged and then stiffened again. Operations were on a limited scale and the tone very uncertain. Bonds were steady.

The fluctuations either way were small and constantly changing. Utah Copper improved 3 points. Westinghouse Electric receded 1.

A more stable tone characterized the later market, prices holding well, despite the excessive dullness. Allis Chalmers advanced a point.

The market closed firm and quite active. A better tone developed in the final hour, when New York Central rose 2¼. Union Pacific and Reading 2, Colorado Fuel 3⅜, Tennessee Copper 2¼, Missouri Pacific, and Texas Pacific 1¾, National Lead 1⅝, and Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie first preferred, Southern Railway preferred and Wisconsin Central 1 to 1⅝.

Suit Over Land Deal.

The breach of contract case of E. G. Barnes against E. G. Chapman is being heard before Judge Ensign this afternoon.

Barnes is suing for $9,000, which he claims is due him from a land deal alleged to have taken place in North Dakota.

THE OPEN SHOP REDUCES COST

Millie Bunnell has awarded Hugh Fawcett a contract for the building of a residence in the East end, near his present home. The contract price is understood to be in the neighborhood of $18,000. It is claimed that this figure is about 25 per cent below what it would have cost to build before the open shop system was instituted by the Builders' exchange. The same wages are being paid labor as formerly, but each man does so much more work under the present system, it is claimed, that a saving of 25 per cent in cost is accomplished. The lower cost of lumber also has something to do with it. Local companies say they have more contracts for new buildings now than they had at the same time last year.

AN INCREASE IN EARNINGS

Shown by Report of United States Steel Corporation.

New York, March 20.—The report of the United States Steel corporation for the year ending Dec. 31 last, shows gross receipts of $577,514,751, an increase of over 19% of $90,257,841. The cost of manufacturing and producing and operating expenses amounted to $564,166,779, an increase over the preceding year of $87,782,822. The earnings for the year 1907 after payment of general, administrative and selling expenses, interest charges and including a charge of $25,-000,000 for ordinary repairs and maintenance were $160,964,673, an increase of $4,-340,300. The surplus net income for the year after payment of appropriations for sinking funds, depreciation, replacements, interest on bonds, and dividends was $89,179,836; an increase of $6,436,976. From this amount there was deducted $35,509,000 for new plants and construction and capital obligations, and $18,586,-000 was set aside for construction of the plant at Gary, Ind., leaving a balance of surplus for the year of $35,179,836, an increase of $2,436,976.

The report includes the operations of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company since Nov. 1 only.

The actual shipments of products of the United States Steel corporation were 10,-651,486 tons, a decrease of 410,967 tons. Exports for the year amounted to 1,044,782 tons of steel commodities, a decrease of 6 per cent, but the gross receipts therefrom exceeded those of 1906 by 16 per cent.

Mention is made of the fact that the corporation has purchased a site for a new plant in St. Louis county, Minn., near Duluth.

MINERS MUST CEASE WORK

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—The national convention of the United Mine Workers of America today completed the discussion of the report of the scale committee by sections. The first section adopted today was the one which levies an assessment of 50 cents per month on all members of the organization.

This assessment, as explained yesterday to the convention by Secretary Wilson, is for the purpose of adding to the fund for the assistance of members of the union who by failure to secure contracts on April 1, may be forced into idleness. Other sections adopted authorized the international executive board to increase, decrease or discontinue this assessment, ordered miners to proceed to work where contracts are signed or joint conferences are being held, on April 1, and ordered all miners to cease work on that date in districts where no contracts had been signed or joint conferences were not in progress. All additional details were left to the national executive board. After the report of the scale committee had been adopted by sections without change, it was adopted as a whole. The committee was discharged and the convention adjourned sine die.

PANIC IN SCHOOL

Butler, Pa., March 20.—A panic among school children and their parents resulted today at the Institute Hall School building, when a report was circulated that President Mechling of the school board had received a Black Hand threat, demanding $500, or the building would be blown up with dynamite. Many women, frantic with fear, rushed to the school and demanded that their children be instantly dismissed. When the teachers persisted in keeping the children in their rooms a number of the women fainted. In a short time the children deserted the building when they learned of the report. All efforts to hold them in check were futile. An official statement has been issued, denying that such a demand has been made, but none of the children would return to the building today. The janitor patrolled the school grounds in order to satisfy the suspicious parents.

GETS TWO CONTRACTS.

E. Engle secured two small sewer contracts from the board of public works this morning and sprung a surprise on the members. For a sewer in Seventh street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east, the engineer's estimate was $1,719. Mr. Engle came along and took down the contract with a bid of $1,629. He figures that there isn't so much rock to be cut as the engineer thinks there is, and his figuring landed the contract. The next bid was $1,825. He also was the lowest bidder on the construction of a sewer in Fifth street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east, his bid being $353, about $75 lower than the engineer's estimate. The contracts will be submitted to the council for approval Monday night.

MAY GET INTO COURTS.

St. Paul, March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trouble incident to the investigation of the state oil inspection department, under J. A. McDermott, its former head, may get into the courts. Criminal proceedings may be started.

Attorney General Young today made this significant answer when asked what was going to be done: "I will do my duty in the matter." Further he would not talk, although he admitted that he had ordered complete papers and figures covering the facts in the case, and would study them thoroughly, looking to his probable part in the matter. He said he would have nothing more to say for the present.

Ballaklava is getting within a few feet of the 700-foot level, and then for the rich deposits of ore that are known to exist in the great veins of this mine. Remember that the 3,000 feet of vein matter of this property reach deep and far and there is no limit to where they lead, for in 35 years of copper mining no one has yet reached the bottom of one of those great veins on Butte Hill. Ballaklava stock should sell at $50 a share within 12 months for shipments of rich ore will begin inside of 60 days. See whether I am right or not. If you think the stock is now selling high enough, then sell it, for there is surely a good enough market. Not a day passes but what orders are received from Boston, New York and the West. This stock is beginning to look good in Boston and will soon take its place as one of the heaviest traders of them all. It is in a class with North Butte, Calumet & Arizona and Shattuck.

Butte & Superior, you want to remember, is a big and valuable property, and you also want to remember that Mr. A. B. Wolvin is at its head and that he will make it a wonderful mine. Think of the way he built up the Zenith Furnace company and how the big vessels on the lakes are managed so that they pay big dividends. Also, please remember that Butte & Superior has the ore and lots of it. I have been in this mine, and therefore, know what I am talking about. It is one of the coming mines of Butte, and stock is a dandy buy at this level.

Copper Queen is much stronger, and Mr. Crosby says that the ore is very rich and that Copper Queen is going to make good, even if he has to throw in an iron mine.

DAVID SANG STEPS DOWN

J. W. Preston Takes Place on Board of Public Works.

After many years of public life, as alderman, member of the board of public works and in other offices, David Sang, president of the board of public works for the past year, passed into private life after the morning's meeting of the board. Mr. Sang is succeeded by James W. Preston, Mayor Haven's appointee.

The street commissioners, sewer commissioners and members of the office force gathered in Mr. Sang's office this morning to pay their respects to him on the last day of his term. William L. Bernard, street commissioner from the First district, made a short speech of farewell. He expressed for himself and his associates the greatest regret for Mr. Sang's departure, and assured him that his treatment of them all during his service on the board was appreciated. As a further expression of their esteem and appreciation, he presented the retiring member with a gold-headed cane.

Mr. Sang responded feelingly. He said he did not leave the office after his years of service there without regret, but that he must bow to the exigencies of politics and cheerfully give way to his successor. He thanked those who had worked under him for their efforts to make the tasks of himself and the other members of the board easier, and assured them that he would always have the most pleasant memories of his term, and cherish their gift.

The last meeting of the old board took up only routine business. Several small sewer jobs were considered and bids opened. J. W. Preston, the new member of the board, was present, but he took no part in the proceedings. He will assume his duties immediately and attend his first meeting of the board Monday.

REAL ESTATE MEN ARE INTERESTED

A jury in municipal court, yesterday afternoon, could not agree on a verdict in the case of J. H. Davis vs. N. J. Upham & Co., which attracted considerable attention from the real estate agents of the city. The trial was held before Special Municipal Judge Cutting, and the jury, after several hours' deliberation, returned at midnight with a report that they could not agree.

The case will bring a decision as to whether or not a real estate agent is liable for damages through failure to make repairs. Mr. Davis sues the Upham company for $86.50 for damages he claims to have incurred through the failure of the agents for his residence to properly repair the roof, which leaked. The agents claim no responsibility for the damages, and the outcome is of considerable interest.

Andrew Nelson appeared for Mr. Davis and William Harrison and J. J. Robinson for the defendants. The case took all day yesterday to hear and was bitterly fought by both sides, as covering more than the case in hand.

DOCK NEARS COMPLETION

Public Dock at Foot of Ramsey Street About Finished.

Some Dredging Must be Done to Make It Accessible.

With only a little filling yet to be made and the rip-rapping of the approach to be done, there is no doubt that the Ramsey street dock will be ready for use by the time the excursion steamers begin to run in the spring.

The piling and planking has been completed for some days. The dock is 32 by 32 feet in size, and is strongly built. It is large enough for any of the boats which may wish to touch at West Duluth, and for the excursion steamers especially will prove a boon during the coming season.

The approach has always been the principal difficulty in the project. It was necessary to span a wide space of open water, and the proposed wooden approach was objectionable. When the surface was removed from Ramsey and Oneota streets for the pavement last fall, a portion of the distance from the shore to the dock site at the foot of Ramsey street was filled, and the contracting company completed the remainder of the fill. The riprapping will be done immediately, and that will complete the contract of the Interstate Dredge company.

Before the dock can be used some dredging will be necessary. The water at the dock site is only about five feet deep, and most of the boats which will touch there will need considerably more water than that. The dredging will come in a separate contract, which will be let as soon as the present contract is completed. As soon as the ice leaves, no time will be lost in dredging, so as to make the dock accessible.

MASS MEETING

Will be Held by Mothers of West Duluth.

The West Duluth W. C. T. U. met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. O. T. Strand, 5803 Huntington street. A musical program was given and the subject "Organized Motherhood" discussed and also the life of Neal Dow reviewed.

During the business session of the meeting it was decided that arrangements should be made to hold a mass meeting, probably on April 3, the object of which mass meeting will be to impress upon the parents the dangers surrounding their children. It is hoped that the assembly room of the Irving school will be available for that purpose, but if it is not, a hall will be rented. Judge Ensign will be asked to deliver an address.

The following were appointed to make arrangements for the meeting: Mrs. H. H. Phelps, Mrs. Ruth Merritt and Mrs. W. F. Bailey.

GROSS FRAUDS ARE CHARGED

Election Scandal From Chisholm Brought Before District Court.

Wholesale election frauds in Chisholm, resulting in the election of R. S. O'Neil as president and Matt Matzelle as treasurer, March 10, are charged in a contest filed with the clerk of the district court today in the name of Stephen Zgone, a citizen of the range town. The court is asked to set a time for the hearing of the charges.

O'Neil was elected over Walter Wye by a majority of 153. The appeal is made on the ground that 189 of the votes cast were illegal and that illegal practices were carried on at the polling places. It is charged that friends of O'Neil were in collusion with the judges at the polling places and challenges by Wye's supporters were unheeded.

It is also alleged that the judges unlawfully examined ballots of voters they thought might be against them. Matzella was a candidate for treasurer against Henry Fugere, and the charges against him are the same as those against O'Neil.

The election in Chisholm this year was one of the most warmly contested ever held on the range and the suit is the result of the bad blood between the opposing factions.

DULUTHIANS AT THE "MET."

Members of High School Girls Company Live in West End.

Two real residents of Duluth are regular members of the High School Girls company at the Metropolitan this week.

During the summer Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sutton—billed on the program as Sutton—live at the residence Mr. Sutton purchased three years ago at 2918 West Third street and during the theatrical season they travel.

Mrs. Sutton, before her marriage, nine years ago, was Miss Kittie Cavanaugh of this city. Her mother is Mrs. Ellen Cavanaugh, who has lived in Duluth for many years.

The Suttons take important parts in the performance of the High School Girls at the Metropolitan and give their vaudeville act, "The Rube and the Live Pumpkin." They have appeared in many of the largest and most important vaudeville theaters of the country.

Cure of the American Disease.

The menace to the health of Americans is said to be nervousness, and many theories are advanced as to the best cure. Hot baths are recommended, air baths, the barefoot cure and others in turn. As a preventive measure a glass of pure malt tonic, such as golden grain belt beer, is a wise precaution. It prevents nervous fatigue, caused by an overworked brain, and refreshes the tired worker. The trial of a case will convince you. Order of Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing Co.

SPENDING THOUSANDS TO SAVE HUNDREDS

Many Complaints Made Against Order of the Water Board.

Manager Case Will Prepare Statement Answering Objections.

That the water board is adopting a "penny wise-pound foolish" policy, and spending thousands of dollars to save hundreds by its new mter order, is the claim made by a prominent Duluth citizen.

The gentleman in question figures it out this way. The cost of pumping water is approximately $6 per million gallons, and the board spends in the neighborhood of $12,000 a year for pumping its water. The installation of the meters, it is claimed, could not possibly effect a saving on any other item of expense than the pumping of water. The interest and other operation accounts would still exist, and the only possible saving would be in the amount of water pumped, which might amount to 10 per cent or even 20 per cent, and perhaps cut down the cost of pumping that much, saving from $1,200 to $2,400 a year.

As opposed to this item will be the expense of installing the meters. Meters cost $12 apiece, and at least 1,000 or possibly from 2,000 to 3,000 will be needed if the board's order is enforced. This means a big outlay to the small consumers at a time when many men are out of work.

There will also be an annual expense to the board of inspecting and maintaining these meters, which could not be much less than $6,000 per year, or much more than the board would save in the pumping of water. From this argument it would appear that the installation of the meters would cause an annual loss to the board in addition to the heavy original outlay that will be necessary for the consumers.

Many complaints are being heard from water consumers regarding the new order.

Scarcely a day passes that one or two indignant consumers do not call at The Herald office to protest against the order, or communicate with the office over the telephone, and the dissatisfaction seems to be quite widespread.

The complaints against the order are based on the claim that it will work great hardship with many of the small consumers who will be compelled to go to the expense of installing a water meter costing $12.

It is also argued that the owners of houses should be the ones to buy the meters, as otherwise tenants would be called upon to pay the expense of moving the meters every time they moved.

It is also claimed by many that the water board should buy the meters and install them, spreading the cost to the consumer over one or two years, and thus causing no immediate hardship.

These and many other complaints are heard on all sides from consumers who are satisfied with present conditions, and who object strenuously to expending $12 for water meters at this time.

The matter was laid before Manager Case of the water department today, and at the request of The Herald he promised to prepare a statement giving the reasons of the board for adopting the new rule, and answering the arguments that are brougnt against it. The statement will be published in The Herald tomorrow.

BEMIDJI'S NEW POSTMASTER.

Something About Anton R. Erickson, Recently Confirmed by the Senate.

Bemidji, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word comes from Washington that Anton R. Erickson of this city has been confirmed by the United States senate as postmaster at Bemidji to succeed G. E. Carson, whose term expires this month.

There has been something of a contest between Messrs. Erickson and Carson for the office, Mr. Erickson as committeeman for Beltrami county for Congressman Steenerson, being conceded as having the call for the appointment.

Anton R. Erickson is 46 years of age, having been born in Norway in 1861. He came to the United States twenty-five years ago and located at Crookston.

Mr. Erickson owns several stores in Polk county, one being located at Mentor, one at Crookston and one at Thief River Falls. He was president of the Knute Nelson club the first year that the present senior senator ran for governor.

Ten years ago Mr. Erickson moved to Bemidji. He served two years as deputy sheriff under Thomas Bailey, the present sheriff of Beltrami county, and he also served as deputy auditor under County Auditor David Sylvester here.

In 1903 Mr. Erickson started a store at Rosby, five miles east of Bemidji, which was one-fourth mile over the Beltrami county line in Hubbard county.

He remained at Rosby until two years ago, when he returned to Bemidji and has made his home in this city ever since.

NEW HAULAGE SYSTEM

Is Operating Quite Satisfactory in the Maas Mine.

Negaunee, Mich., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new electrical underground haulage system at the Maas mine is in commission and is operating satisfactorily. It is being operated only on the second level at present, but it is understood that it will be operated in the first and third levels later. There is little work being done in the first level and the third has only recently been started. The second is about 1,000 feet in length, extending toward the Negaunee mine. Three motors have been received and the equipment on the first level is in such condition that the cars can be operated there on short notice.

TWO YOUNG COTTONWOOD COUNTY BOYS DISAPPEAR.

Delft, Minn., March 20.—Two small boys, Ray Harris and John Euckens, disappeared from their homes here Monday, and have not been found. Harris is 13 years old, while his companion is only 10.

HORSE'S KICK FATAL.

St. Peter, Minn., March 20.—George Welter, 18 years old, of Lake Prairie township, died from injuries he received when he was kicked by a horse. The animal's hoofs struck Welter in the stomach, but at first it was not supposed that he had been seriously hurt. Yesterday, however, he suddenly lost consciousness, and died a few hours later.

JOHNSON'S STRENGTH IN THE EAST GROWING WITH GREAT RAPIDITY

New York Committee's Action Shows Trend of Sentiment.

Johnson Circular Distributed Among Students of Harvard College.

Pennsylvania and New England Expected to be in Line.

St. Paul, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson's friends are naturally much elated over the action of the Democratic committee of New York in expressing themselves against an instructed delegation. The action is but another expression of the feeling against Bryan in New York and of the strength of Johnson in the Empire state.

• • •

Copies were received here yesterday of a circular that was being distributed among the students of Harvard college. The circular is entitled "Johnson—Why People Are Turning to Johnson as a Presidential Nominee—Because of His Record as Governor and His Position on National Questions." The next page names some of the laws that have been adopted at the recommendation of the governor as follows:

A maximum schedule of freight rates.

Two-cent passenger fare law.

Abolition of railroad passes and franks.

Reciprocal demurrage law.

Increased taxation for sleeping car companies.

Permanent tax commission with wide powers.

Registry tax on real estate mortgages.

Uniform insurance laws.

Abolition of private banks.

Mueller law to facilitate municipal ownership.

Increased state drainage operation.

Better salaries for state university faculty.

The circular goes on to say that in appointing tax commission the governor won the enthusiastic approval of

JAPANESE PROTECTION

For Korea is Proving of Great Benefit to the People.

San Francisco, March 21.—D. W. Stevens, diplomatic adviser to the Korean council of state, was an arrival yesterday on the Nippon Maru, returning on a leave of absence after a service of several years in Japan and Korea. Stevens was at one time secretary of the American legation at Tokio, and later was attached to the Japanese legation at Washington. In 1904, under the treaty between Japan and Korea, he was appointed to his present position.

Stevens says the Korean people have been greatly benefited by Japanese protection, and that they are beginning to look more favorably on it. He says the Japanese are doing for the Koreans what American is doing for the Philippines. Continuing, he said:

"You can get some idea of the condition of Korea before the war from the statement that the government was spending 3,000,000 yen annually on a standing army, and 60,000 yen on public education. The people are divided into two classes, the peasantry and the official classes. The former were ground down until nothing but a bare existence was left from their labor, while the official class was thoroughly corrupt.

"The peasants have welcomed the Japanese, while the official class has not, but even the officials are beginning to see that the only hope for the country lies in a reorganization of the old institutions."

SPREE PROVES HIS LAST.

Drunken Lumberjack Perishes in Destruction of Camp.

Mellen, Wis., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alfred Johnson, who has been working at the Simmons lumber camp near here, was burned to death in the fire that destroyed the camp Thursday night. The camp had been abandoned, and Johnson and others had returned to secure the remainder of their effects. Johnson was considerably the worse for liquor and remained at the camp, the others returning to town. When the report reached here that the camp was burned, the fire having been discovered by Charles Warren, a homesteader living near by, search was instituted for Johnson, and his charred remains were found in the ruins of the camp. He formerly lived at the Norway hotel in Ashland, but little is known about him.

FIRE AT WATERBURY, CONN.

Waterbury, Conn., March 21.—Fire broke out in the United States hotel in Grand street early today. The inmates were aroused by two policemen just in time to escape suffocation, but the patrolmen were almost overcome. Two firemen were found unconscious in the rear of the building as the result of inhaling gas. Three gas meters exploded in their faces. One man is in a serious condition.

FARMER IS MURDERED

Night Riders Kill Harlan Hedges of Carlisle, Ky.

First Fatality by Riders in "Blue Grass" Region.

Carlisle, Ky., March 21.—A band of night riders early this morning shot and killed Harlan Hedges, a prominent farmer, seven miles northwest of this place. This is the first murder by the night riders in the "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky. Hedges was awakened by shouts shortly before 2 o'clock. Apprehending trouble he went to his front door with a shot gun and fired once. The night riders replied with a volley which killed Hedges just as his wife reached his side. The masked men then rode rapidly away and did not attempt to set fire to Hedges' house or barn. Hedges was an independent tobacco farmer and was widely known over the country.

KILLS WOMAN; IS DROWNED

Chicago Man Stabs His Sweetheart and Falls Into River.

Chicago, March 21.—Plunging into Stony creek at Blue Island yesterday to escape several policemen after he had stabbed and probably fatally wounded a girl, who had jilted him to wed another man, Nicholas Fortune, 25 years old, was seized with cramps and drowned.

The wounded bride is Mrs. Donato de Diazea. Her niece, a 6-months-old baby, whom the young woman was carrying at the time she was attacked, was also stabbed and seriously injured.

Fortune had been engaged to Rosa Orsena for seven years. He received a letter from her yesterday announcing that she had changed her mind and married his rival. Immediately Fortune went to the Orsena home, summoned the bride to the door, and stabbed her five times.

The cries of the family attracted the police, who went in pursuit of Fortune. He ran across a foot bridge and onto an island. Finding himself surrounded he leaped into the river in a vain effort to reach shore.

ASKS POLICE TO FIND DAUGHTER

A New York Man Has Searched Three Years and Spent $9,000.

New York, March 21.—After three years' search on his own account for his missing daughter, involving the expenditure of more than $9,000, Jacquith Gewitsch, a retired milliner, has finally appealed to the police to find the girl. If she is still alive, the missing girl, Olga, is 23 years old. Since her disappearance at the age of 20, private detectives have searched for her in half a dozen countries. Mr. Gewitsch said last night that he felt sure his daughter was still living. "I hope she may see some account that may be printed of my attempts to find her," he added, "or that the police may locate her."

He believes the girl ran away to go on the stage. There is $5,000 willed to her by a relative in Austria, held in trust for her, but she has made no effort to get it.

Good Bowling Does Not Displace Leaders at St. Paul.

Six Duluth Men in First Ten Single High Scores.

St. Paul, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The established high marks in the five men, two men and singles were not reached in the state bowling tournment last evening, but there was some good rolling, and the Athletes of New Ulm were deposed from the position of high team in the special event for out of town teams. MAN KILLS HIS WIFE AND WOUNDS HIMSELF.

Litchfield, Ills., March 21.—At Sorento last night, L. Evans called his wife out of the Cloverleaf depot and shot her three times, killing her instantly. Evans then turned the weapon upon himself, firing twice, but inflicting only slight injuries. He was placed in jail and guarded for fear of lynching. Evans and his wife parted four months ago and he left town, returning yesterday.

FREIGHT CONDUCTOR HAS DESPERATE FIGHT WITH A ROBBER IN HIS CABOOSE

WILLIAM S. JACKSON,
Attorney General of New York, Who Asks the Senate to Investigate the Charges Made Against Him.

J. W. Saxton Uses a Coupling Pin to a Good Advantage.

Caught Adolph Griffin Entering Car Through Window.

Griffin Now in Hospital a Badly Bruised Man.

St. Paul, March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Conductor J. W. Saxton of the Northern Pacific and Adolph Griffin fought a desperate battle in Saxton's caboose in the Gladstone yards last night, and as a result Griffin is lying at the St. Paul City hospital, much the worse for wear. Saxton escaped practically unhurt.

According to Saxton's story, the railroad men have been suffering of late from a number of little petty thieveries from both freight cars and cabooses. His own caboose had been robbed a number of times, and last night, while lying in the Gladstone yards, he determined to watch for the thief. Thinking that the thief would surely attempt to rob the caboose since it was occupied and valuables known to be in it, he locked himself in and put out the lights. Shortly after 11 o'clock some one opened a window and crept inside. Saxton confronted him, and Griffin drew a revolver and fired. Quick as he was, Saxton managed to strike his wrist with a coupling pin and the shot went wild. The revolver was knocked out of Griffin's hand by the same blow. The men clinched and Saxton began to pound Griffin with the coupling pin. In the struggle in the darkness of the caboose Griffin managed to break away from Saxton and secure a stove poker. Armed with this he advanced on Saxton and the battle was resumed.

Griffin Goes Down.

Saxton threw his coupling pin full into Griffin's face. Griffin went down just as one of Saxton's brakemen appeared upon the scene, having come to the caboose to get some property. Together they tied Griffin, and the brakeman went out and telegraphed Sheriff Gerber. Gerber went to Gladstone, and, on a warrant secured by Saxton from Jacob Fause, justice of the peace, arrested Griffin on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

He brought Griffin to St. Paul and deposited him safely at the city hospital, where he is held as a prisoner. Griffin received a number of severe scalp wounds, had his left arm broken in two places and received numerous bruises about the body. At first it was thought that his skull had been fractured by one of Saxton's blows, probably when he threw the coupling pin in his face, but on further examination no fracture was apparent. Saxton, who received a number of scalp wounds and severe bruises about the body, was taken to his home in Gladstone.

GREAT NORTHERN TRAIN ROBBERS ESCAPE FROM MONTANA PENITENTIARY

McDonald and Frankhauser, Two Desperate Men, Get Away.

Held Up Overland Train at Randall, Mont., Sept. 12, 1907.

They Secured $40,000 From Mail Car at That Time.

Helena, Mont., March 21.—George Frankhauser and Charles McDonald, charged with having held up the Great Northern Oriental limited, last September, and rifled the registered mails of $40,000, being transported to a Spokane bank, broke jail early today and are still at liberty.

The men sawed their cell doors, the corridor bars and the bars in a window. Immediately upon discovery of their escape, several posses were formed and are now in pursuit. Men answering their description were seen in the southern part of the city making for the mountains.

St. Paul, March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Train robbers McDonald and Hauser, who escaped from the Helena jail today, were the men who held up and robbed the Great Northern overland train No. 1 a mile and a half from Randall, Mont., at 2:15 o'clock in the morning of Sept. 12, 1907. They secured $40,000 from the mail car and attempted to blow open an extra safe in an extra express car, from which they got nothing. Great Northern officials here were greatly surprised to hear of their escape.

MISS KATHERINE ELKINS,
Daughter of United States Senator, Who Is Undoubtedly Engaged to the Duke of the Abruzzi.

BOOKED AS LUIGI SARTO

The Duke of the Abruzzi Sails on Lusitania for Europe.

Practically Admits His Engagement to Miss Elkins.

New York, March 21.—The duke of the Abruzzi, cousin of the king of Italy, who is reported to be engaged to marry Miss Katherine Elkins, sailed for Europe today on the steamer Lusitania. Up to the hour of sailing the duke declined to affirm or deny the reported engagement, but his demeanor was regarded by the reporters, who gathered at the steamship pier, as not that of a man who had failed in an important mission.

The duke was registered on the ship's passenger list as Luigi Sarto. He boarded the steamer early and was accompanied to the dock by an attache of the Italian legation at Washington and by a secret service man. To the reporters who were gathered on the dock he said:

"I am very sorry that I have no interview to give out, but come and see me at 8 o'clock."

"But the ship sails at that hour," said one of the newspaper men.

"Yes, I know it. I stayed up late to escape this. Everything is all right. Miss Elkins' family has refrained from making any public statement, and an erroneous construction has been placed on their silence."

It is understood that the duke will disembark at Liverpool and hasten to Rome.

Takes Great Precautions.

Washington, March 21.—As an evidence of the extreme precaution taken by the duke of the Abruzzi and his friends here to protect his movements from the curious eyes of the public, it is just learned that his royal highness did actually leave

STOESSEL AND NEBOGATOFF

Located Side by Side in the Big Russian Fortress.

St. Petersburg, March 21.—Lieut. Gen. Stoessel, who has begun to serve ten years in prison for cowardice and treason in surrendering Port Arthur to the Japanese, occupies a room in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, adjoining that of Rear Admiral Nebogatoff, who is serving a like sentence for surrender to the Japanese at the Sea of Japan. The room is about twenty feet square and overlooks a little garden, where the officers are permitted to promenade. Stoessel's family has received permission to refurnish his cell. The officers in the fortress run a private mess of their own, and to this Gen. Stoessel has been admitted.

The general's transfer to the fortress yesterday was unexpected. He persisted until the very last in hoping that the emperor would pardon him. The fortress officials were not prepared for his reception. There was no room available, and to secure one they were forced to dispossess two officers who had served under Admiral Nebogatoff.

CLAIM SHIP IS A FLOATING MINE

Fifteen of Crew of the Steamer Kiora Deserts the Vessel.

Philadelphia, March 21.—Fifteen members of the crew of the British steamship Kiora, loading dynamite at Thompson's Point, N. J., for the construction department of the Panama canal, left the vessel yesterday, and no amount of persuasion could induce the seafarers to return to duty. They claimed that the Kiora is a floating mine and that going to sea with such a dangerous cargo meant death if any accident should occur to the craft.

The men after coming to Philadelphia, appeared before British Consul Powell and stated their grievances to him. He advised the men to return to duty, but this they refused to do, and as Captain Jose, the master of the Kiora, could not secure a writ to prosecute the men for desertion, fifteen new men were shipped in their places after which the Kiora proceeded for Colon.

THINKS GUILD MAY RECOVER

Physician is More Hopeful Concerning Massachusetts Governor.

Boston, March 21.—With the statement that he believed Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., to have lost none of the slight recovery already noticed, although his condition could not be said to have improved during the night, Dr. Frederick B. Winslow today predicted ultimate recovery for the governor from the complication of diseases which have threatened his life, should he maintain the condition of the past two days. A sleep, which lasted well into the morning, gave the governor renewed strength and vitality, and physicians and family hold strong hopes of recovery.

The following bulletin on the governor's condition was issued by Dr. Winslow at the executive office at 9:40 a. m.

"The governor passed a fair night, rather restless, but is holding his own well this morning. His condition is not appreciably changed."

Captain Van Schaick was in command of the Slocum when that steamer was burned and 1,000 lives were lost.

REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS

Alderman Olson Resents Attitude of West End Lid Supporters.

Says That He Only Tried to Assume Fair Attitude.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In view of the frequent criticisms that have appeared in the daily press, in regard to my stand on the Schmid license, permit me to state my position in the matter which has not been correctly stated before.

Frank Peterson was the owner of the place, but having the money for his license advanced by Schmid, and as security for the money thus advanced, had the license taken out in Schmid's name.

The man had violated no law. He had complied with the law in every respect, although he had permitted another man to pay his license for him, which is perfectly legal and has been a practice ever since the first saloon license was issued. But on suspicion that this Schmid was a brewery agent his license was refused, whereupon he promptly the next day put in an application for a license in his own name, but as that would take three weeks before it could be granted he would have to close his business during that time, as his old license expired the next day. He therefore asked, as a matter of justice and fairness that it be reconsidered and issued to Schmid, and as he had no means of knowing beforehand that such a question would be raised in the council. I felt that he had been discriminated against inasmuch as two other brewery licenses were granted the same evening. My opinion is now and was then that it would be a good move to refuse licenses to brewery agents, but they should be notified of such a change in time, so that no innocent party would be the sufferer by it, and for my part I will not see an injustice done even to a saloonkeeper if I am able to prevent it.

I was elected on a law-enforcement platform. Some people have an idea that it meant prohibition. If it did, I certainly misunderstood the issues in the last election. I thought it meant the strict enforcement of the liquor laws without malice or persecution to any one individual and without discrimination, but with fair dealing to all. While I have no objection as to being criticised I do object to people implying any false motives to my action, such insinuations as: "Sold out to the breweries," "Influenced by the saloon men," could serve no other purpose than cause my contempt for the man or any set of men that would entertain them. I would rather be wrong on some trivial lid question than on a question of justice and fairness, and if the lid faction, as my critics see fit to call themselves, persists in raising a storm of unjust criticisms on such a flimsy pretext, they certainly have found a good way to defeat the very object which they are striving to attain.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AT MOUTH OF NEW TUNNEL

The Force Was Terrific, But No Person Was Injured.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon a terrific explosion of dynamite at the entrance of the new Wisconsin Central tunnel, shook every building within a radius of several blocks.

Entire sections of the board fence surrounding the excavation were torn away. Windows were broken in the Velda block, the Incline saloon building across the street, the Bell hotel, and a number of other buildings in the vicinity. Passing street cars were almost shaken from the tracks, and several panes of glass were broken in the cars, to the terror and confusion of the passengers.

The air was filled with smoke and debris, and within two minutes after the explosion a crowd of thousands of people had congregated.

So far as could be learned, nobody was injured.

The explosion was caused by a spark from the dinky engine falling into a box of black powder, which had been left on the bank beside the track. Beside the box of powder were four sticks of dynamite. The spark touched off the powder, and the dynamite exploded also.

The force of the explosion was terrific and workmen standing some distance away were thrown to the ground. The tracks were raised by the concussion, and the ground was shaken for a radius of a dozen blocks or more.

It was almost miraculous that nobody was injured. Had anyone happened to be within a few yards of the spot when the explosion occurred, he would undoubtedly have been killed.

PRIVATE SCHOOL PREY OF FLAMES

Forest Park University at St. Louis Destroyed by Fire.

St. Louis, March 21.—Forest Park university, a private school for young women and having an enrollment of 300 students from all parts of the country, was destroyed by fire today. All persons in the building escaped in safety.

The four-story building, constructed of stone and wood, was located in the center of a seven acre plot of ground immediately south of Forest park, in the western limits of the city.

At 11:50 o'clock fire was discovered in the upper portion of the south wing. Instantly all those in the building filed out of the various exists and all escaped in safety to the lawn. There was no time for the saving of belongings of the young women students, and they lost everything.

A general alarm was turned in, calling out the entire city fire department, but owing to the remote location of the institution the fire had gained tremendous headway before any apparatus arrived.

Building Soon in Ruins.

The flames swept rapidly through the upper portion of the building and then downward, and within an hour the building was in ruins. It is believed the fire started from a defective flue.

The institution was founded as Kirkwood Seminary, in the suburban village of Kirkwood, in 1861 by Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns, who on Thursday celebrated her sixty-seventh birthday anniversary.

In 1891 it was incorporated and removed to St. Louis as Forest Park university, and occupied the imposing stone structure that had been erected south of Forest Park. Forest Park university was the first university to be chartered solely for women, in the United States.

The faculty of which Mrs. Cairns is president, includes more than twenty teachers and the university specialized on music, art and elocution.

PHONY JEWELRY VENDER AT WORK

Frank Thoran Ordered to Leave City by Municipal Court.

Frank Thoran was picked up on the Bowery this morning working the old phony ring gag. He had nine "shines" set in brass on his person and was charged with peddling without a license. He pleaded guilty to the charge and a sentence of $20 or twenty days was suspended on condition that he get out of town by tonight.

"Give me five minutes to talk, your honor, and I'm sure you'll give me five minutes to get out of town," said Tom Sullivan this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a drunk charge. He launched off into a plea for mercy, promising that he would get out just as fast as he could, if the grip of the law were released. He couldn't be headed off before he had his say and, when he finished, he was given the five minutes to get out. He fairly flew up Superior street, when he left the station.

Pat Desmond hadn't been drunk in two years and he said he would cling to the water wagon longer than that, if given a chance. He drew a suspended sentence. Several plain drunks drew sentences of three days.

REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS

Alderman Olson Resents Attitude of West End Lid Supporters.

Says That He Only Tried to Assume Fair Attitude.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In view of the frequent criticisms that have appeared in the daily press, in regard to my stand on the Schmid license, permit me to state my position in the matter which has not been correctly stated before.

Frank Peterson was the owner of the place, but having the money for his license advanced by Schmid, and as security for the money thus advanced, had the license taken out in Schmid's name.

The man had violated no law. He had complied with the law in every respect, although he had permitted another man to pay his license for him, which is perfectly legal and has been a practice ever since the first saloon license was issued. But on suspicion that this Schmid was a brewery agent his license was refused, whereupon he promptly the next day put in an application for a license in his own name, but as that would take three weeks before it could be granted he would have to close his business during that time, as his old license expired the next day. He therefore asked as a matter of justice and fairness that it be reconsidered and issued to Schmid, and as he had no means of knowing beforehand that such a question would be raised in the council. I felt that he had been discriminated against inasmuch as two other brewery licenses were granted the same evening. My opinion is now and was then that it would be a good move to refuse licenses to brewery agents, but they should be notified of such a change in time, so that no innocent party would be the sufferer by it, and for my part I will not see an injustice done even to a saloonkeeper if I am able to prevent it.

I was elected on a law-enforcement platform. Some people have an idea that it meant prohibition. If it did, I certainly misunderstood the issues in the last election. I thought it meant the strict enforcement of the liquor laws without malice or persecution to any one individual and without discrimination, but with fair dealing to all. While I have no objection as to being criticised I do object to people implying any false motives to my action, such insinuations as: "Sold out to the breweries," "Influenced by the saloon men," could serve no other purpose than cause my contempt for the man or any set of men that would entertain them. I would rather be wrong on some trivial lid question than on a question of justice and fairness, and if the lid faction, as my critics see fit to call themselves, persists in raising a storm of unjust criticisms on such a flimsy pretext, they certainly have found a good way to defeat the very object which they are striving to attain.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AT MOUTH OF NEW TUNNEL

The Force Was Terrific, But No Person Was Injured.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon a terrific explosion of dynamite at the entrance of the new Wisconsin Central tunnel, shook every building within a radius of several blocks.

Entire sections of the board fence surrounding the excavation were torn away. Windows were broken in the Vedia block, the Incline saloon building across the street, the Bell hotel, and a number of other buildings in the vicinity. Passing street cars were almost shaken from the tracks, and several panes of glass were broken in the cars, to the terror and confusion of the passengers.

The air was filled with smoke and debris, and within two minutes after the explosion a crowd of thousands of people had congregated.

So far as could be learned, nobody was injured.

The explosion was caused by a spark from the dinky engine, falling into a box of black powder, which had been left on the bank beside the track. Beside the box of powder were four sticks of dynamite. The spark touched off the powder, and the dynamite exploded also.

The force of the explosion was terrific and workmen standing some distance away were thrown to the ground. The tracks were raised by the concussion, and the ground was shaken for a radius of a dozen blocks or more.

It was almost miraculous that nobody was injured. Had anyone happened to be within a few yards of the spot when the explosion occurred, he would undoubtedly have been killed.

PRIVATE SCHOOL PREY OF FLAMES

Forest Park University at St. Louis Destroyed by Fire.

St. Louis, March 21.—Forest Park university, a private school for young women and having an enrollment of 300 students from all parts of the country, was destroyed by fire today. All persons in the building escaped in safety.

The four-story building, constructed of stone and wood, was located in the center of a seven acre plot of ground immediately south of Forest park, in the western limits of the city.

At 11:50 o'clock fire was discovered in the upper portion of the south wing. Instantly all those in the building filed out of the various exists and all escaped in safety to the lawn. There was no time for the saving of belongings of the young women students, and they lost everything.

A general alarm was turned in, calling out the entire city fire department, but owing to the remote location of the institution the fire had gained tremendous headway before any apparatus arrived.

Building Soon in Ruins.

The flames swept rapidly through the upper portion of the building and then downward, and within an hour the building was in ruins. It is believed the fire started from a defective flue.

The institution was founded as Kirkwood Seminary, in the suburban village of Kirkwood, in 1861 by Mrs. Anna Snead Cairns, who on Thursday celebrated her sixty-seventh birthday anniversary.

In 1931 it was incorporated and removed to St. Louis as Forest Park university, and occupied the imposing stone structure that had been erected south of Forest Park. Forest Park university was the first university to be chartered solely for women, in the United States.

The faculty of which Mrs. Cairns is president, includes more than twenty teachers and the university specialized on music, art and elocution.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

EXPOSES JAILS TO SMALLPOX

John Herton Taken to Pest House From City Lock-Up.

Both the city and county jails have to be fumigated, the prisoners in both institutions having been exposed to smallpox by John Herton.

Herton was confined in the county jail awaiting trial on the charge of grand larceny. He was charged with having stolen furniture and clothing from several doctors' offices in the business district of the city.

He was brought down from the county jail to the city jail this morning to be given his preliminary hearing in the municipal court. At police headquarters the officers discovered that he had smallpox, and he was immediately sent out to the pesthouse.

Both the city and county jails will have to be fumigated.

Stolen Trunk Broken Open and Only Gold Was Taken.

Dental Goods Salesman Recovers Nearly All of His Property.

Scattered over a refuse pile in the rear of the Armour barn near the viaduct at Sixth avenue west and Railroad street, teeth, dental instruments and other articles, contained in the trunk taken from the St. Louis hotel Wednesday evening and owned by J. T. Ingersoll, a St. Paul dental supply man, were found early this morning by the police. The trunk, broken open, was nearby, and of the $1,200 worth of goods contained in the trunk when it was stolen, only about $150 worth was missing.

When the trunk first disappeared, it was thought to have become confused with the baggage of "The Man of the Hour" company. A telegram to the company at Ishpeming brought a reply that the trunk was not there, and the police were immediately put on the trail, with the result that they found the goods this morning.

The contents of the trunk, while valuable, were for the most part of little use to the thieves. Twenty bottles of gold, each worth $4, were missing, and some platinum wire, rubbers, bandages and other articles, probably worth as much more. The teeth and instruments will require a thorough cleaning, but otherwise they are undamaged. The police are working on the case, and, with the missing gold as a clue, hope to round up the daring thieves.

CELEBRATES AND IS ARRESTED

Michael Kane Gets Into City Jail After Discharge by Court.

Michael T. Kane was evidently celebrating his release from the charges of illegal voting, last evening.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES

Last evening the Christian Endeavor union gave an entertainment at the Pilgrim Congregational church, entitled "The District School Program." Mr. Sprague played the part of the schoolmaster most successfully. Every part of the district school life was brought out, even to the boyish "scrap" over some trifling matter in which Stanley Lamb played the part of the ever present bully. Stanley Lamb rendered two recitations and a song, which greatly pleased the audience. Louise Helm recited a comical piece which was very much appreciated. A quartet from the First Presbyterian society sang "In Dixie's Land." Many others took part and the program was enjoyed immensely.

The Congregational society served refreshments after the program was finished.

Every one was surprised to see Mr. Howell, field secretary of Minnesota Christian Endeavor work, at the entertainment. Mr. Howell stopped in the city over night and is on his way to the range to enliven conditions there.

The Pilgrim Congregational society will send a delegation to the county poor farm to hold services there Sunday. They will take a collection of papers and magazines to the county poor. A quartette will render a song service there.

* * *

The First Presbyterian society held a business meeting on Tuesday evening in the pastor's study. The reports showed that good work was being done. A certain amount of money was set aside for the relief committee. The age limit was set at 16 years. Three new members were admitted into the society.

The union will hold its quarterly rally at the Pilgrim Congregational church next Friday evening.

THREE OUT OF EIGHT GET HOOK

Some Acts at Metropolitan's "Amateur Night" Get Applause.

Only three out of eight acts fell victims of the "hook" at the Metropolitan's try-out for amateurs last night.

Harry Cohen was the first one to succumb. Harry came on the stage in a hesitating manner which forecasted a sad finish for him. He intended to sing "If the Man in the Moon Were a Coon," which was all the rage about three seasons ago—but before he had gotten under way in a flighty voice, there were cries of "the hook" and Harry was impelled from the stage by the property man. "The Bulldog," a dancer, was also hooked.

Walter Phoenix, who at one time is said to have been a minstrel of some prominence but who long since has been relegated to the pursuits of trade, attempted a monologue. The attempt was pitiful and most of the audience breathed a great sigh of relief when he was gently drawn from the footlights by the man with the hook.

A traveling man named Hudson made a big hit with feats of legerdemain. Ordinarily, Hudson sells baking powder on the road but he is also very adept at the art of making cards flip from tumblers and doing other astonishing feats. He drew second prize.

Two young women, heralded as the "Bell Sisters of Cloquet," but who showed a surprising knowledge of stage steps, sang and danced a little. They were rewarded with first prize, despite some cries of "the hook" which were heard during their stunt. These outcries came from suspicious souls in the audience who thought the Bells Sisters were members of the High School Girls chorus, masquerading. A girl, who is said to live in West Duluth sang an Italian dialect song.

Oliver Dignell sang "A Rose of Old Derry," as if he expected to get first prize. There were a number of other turns.

FINISHES UP BUSINESS.

Old Proctor Council Holds Final Meet, Winding Up Work.

Proctor, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the final meeting of the old council Monday evening the business before the council was wound up for the year. A license was granted to M. La Chance for his saloon on the "bowery."

Thirty-four hundred dollars was voted to be placed in the interest and sinking fund, which makes a total in this fund of a little over $8,500. This amount with a small addition will take up the debt with interest, coming due on Aug. 15, 1909. This will mean that in order to meet the balance which comes due Aug. 25, 1910, a saving of about $7,500 will have to be made between now and that time.

The new president, John T. Preston, and new trustee, T. J. Collins were sworn in and took the chairs vacated by H. Simpkin and O. J. Wilson. Jack Fraser was also sworn in as constable at that time.

By a unanimous vote of the new board a vote of thanks was extended to the retiring members for their valued services during the past year.

Mr. Preston asked that the citizens be requested to attend the meetings of the council as much as possible so as to keep in touch with what is going on in village affairs.

The council will next meet on Monday evening at 7:30, April 6th, in the village hall.

TASTES LIKE CANDY BUT DIGESTS ALL YOUR FOOD

Read Below Why the Worst Dyspeptic in This City Can Find Immediate Relief With These 22 Grain Triangles.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as Indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals, they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though Indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of the 22-grain Triangles of Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any Pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case, and to eat one like candy after the next meal. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after eating one Triangle there would be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the Stomach, or Heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no Belching of Gas or Eructations of Sour food, Debilitating Headache, Nausea, Water Brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin contains pure Aseptic Papsin, one grain of which will digest without any assistance 3,000 grains of food; also Diastase, Papain, Calcium, pure Extract Cascara Sagrada, powdered Ginger and other ingredients making these Triangules harmless and taste like candy.

Diapepsin is a wonderful Stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Just one 22-grain Triangule will digest more than 3,000 grains of food in the same way that a strong, healthy stomach would do it. Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no Gas—then Indigestion and all stomach trouble will go, and there will be no further need of Diapepsin.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient of these 22-grain Triangules to usually cure the most chronic dyspeptic and leave some for other members of the family who may need it for Gas on Stomach, Headaches or other disorders when they eat something which does not agree with them. A case ought to be kept in each home.

ANSWER BY MR. CASE

Outlines Attitude of Board on the Meter Question.

Replies to the Arguments Advanced Against Their Use.

The following statement regarding the general introduction of water meters in Duluth has been prepared by Manager Case of the water and light department:

"It should be understood, first, that fully two-thirds of the water consumption is already metered, and that at private expense.

"Second, with the exception of such private families as are already metered this was compulsory, as the board decided at the beginning that all places of business, unless very small, all hotels, saloons, stables, flats, public buildings, etc., should be supplied only by meter. But few, therefore, of those taking water today by Meter are doing so voluntarily, and should the board decide that it would be at the expense hereafter of buying and installing meters, it certainly would be demanded by those already metered that their expense be refunded, a total of over $30,000.

"Third, this action of the board was a unanimous one and made after months of careful consideration of all the conditions, and this action was entirely in the interests of the city as a whole. The members of the board had no other incentive.

"One of the strongest arguments to the board was conveyed in a letter from a prominent citizen of Duluth, who found he was paying considerably more for water at his residence than would be required under the flat rate. He said:

"'The fact of the matter is that this water service is exactly like taxes—we are all compelled to pay, and under these circumstances the people in control of this business ought to see that everybody pays on a fair and just basis. It certainly is not fair that my neighbor should get water for fifteen or twenty dollars a year and I have to pay seventy-five for the same amount of water.'

"The report of the water department of the city of Harrisburg, Pa., just received by me, states that 10,911 families out of a total of 14,305 are already metered; that the unmetered are principally small house holders, but that it is estimated that the quantity of water consumed and wasted by this small fraction is as much as is furnished all the houses that are metered. Meters are installed at the expense of the consumer in Harrisburg.

It is understood that meters are supplied by this department at cost, and that this account is only intended to be self-supporting. Because of the gain in the surplus of last year, and because also of a small reduction in cost, the department has concluded to reduce the prices to consumers as follows: For a ¾ meter installed $11, meter at the office $9.50.

"Larger sizes, the same percentage of reduction.

"These prices will take effect on all orders received since Jan. 1, this year.

"It should be remembered by the people in their contemplation of results to themselves that they will be supplied forty-three gallons for one cent, and that any reasonable prevention of waste alone will make their payments less than under the flat rate.

"Many families already being supplied by meter will corroborate this statement.

Answers Argument.

"The argument, that more money is expended than the amount saved, is always used in regard to the introduction of meters. And what makes it seem more plausible is the fact, that, as far as the mere cost of pumping is concerned, it is true. What is the most important saving however, is its prevention of the installation of necessarily enlarged pumping machinery, and additional pipe lines to convey the water to the consumers.

"Duluth we all believe is on the eve of a good expansion, and any reduction in the waste of water will have its effect upon the construction expenses of the future.

"It is truly said that experience is the school when men learn wisdom, and it is by the experience of others that we can, in this instance particularly, arrive at a clear understanding of the results to be obtained by the introduction of meters.

"Detroit began the introduction of meters in 1899, spending an average annual sum of $21,000.

"For nine years this was continued and the results, as summed up by a distinguished engineer from New York city, who was sent to all the larger cities in the United States for the purpose of investigating the causes of waste and the means for its prevention, was, that the saving effected in the curtailment of construction expenses and the cost of pumping amounted in these nine years to five times the cost of the meters.

"The report of this engineer can be seen at the office of the board by any one wishing to do so.

"Cleveland, probably one of the best governed cities in the country, after many years of delay and after watching the experience of other cities, began the universal introduction of meters three years ago and is pushing it vigorously forward.

"The indefiniteness of the consumption of water has made the application of meters compulsory in Duluth upon a large class. Even the paper that is printing this statement has been obliged to maintain meters upon its consumption for years.

"Flat rates have been applicable almost entirely upon residences, and ever-recurring developments continue to show that their consumption is fully as indefinite and as impossible to guess at as upon places of business or upon public buildings.

"As to the imposition of a burden upon the poorer class, or those who find it difficult to meet this expense, I am authorized by the board, in all such cases, to accept a small payment down and the balance in small monthly installments.

"To sum up: The introduction of meters is clearly in the interest of economy, and particularly is it an act of justice between the various consumers of water. As the gentleman previously quoted says: 'Let us have one common basis by which all consumers may be treated alike, justly and fairly,' and from the prevalence of which sentiment it would almost seem as if the use of meters should be abandoned here, or that they be installed universally."

RULING WILL PUT LID ON MORE THAN 100 SALOONS

Judge Cant Sustains Demurrer to Answer in Carlin Case.

Statutes Provide Surety Company Can Go on But One Bond.

Under the state law as set forth in a ruling by Judge Cant in the special term of the district court this morning, 100 or more of the saloons in St. Louis county, which were supposed to be duly licensed, are nothing more than blind pigs.

The ruling was made by the court in the mandamus proceedings brought by William Carlin to compel County Auditor Halden to issue him a license to sell intoxicating liquors in the town of Kelsey.

Carlin demurred to the answer made by Mr. Halden and Judge Cant overruled the demurrer, giving Carlin twenty days in which to reply. The issues in the mandamus proceedings will come up at the trial at the regular term of the district court.

The county board, at its last meeting, by a vote of four to three, granted Carlin a license, but County Auditor Halden refused to issue it. Carlin started suit to compel him to do so. Mr. Halden claimed that the description of the location, as given by Carlin, was incorrect, also that under the law Carlin's bond was void. The court sustained the auditor on both points.

Invalidates Licenses.

The ruling by Judge Cant is an important one, and will be far reaching in its effect as it will operate to invalidate 100 or more liquor licenses that the county board has granted to persons in various parts of the county outside the city of Duluth.

The ruling is based on section 1524 of the revised laws of Minnesota, and the point of law is that "no person already a surety on a license bond shall be accepted as a surety on another." This is construed to include surety companies as well as individuals, and means that no bond can be accepted from a surety company, where the same surety company is on another liquor bond in the same county.

It is claimed that the surety company which bonded Carlin has furnished bonds for 100 or more other applicants for liquor licenses in the county, and that all of those bonds are void. If they are void, the licenses are claimed to be void and places operating under them are nothing more than blind pigs.

Under the law, the persons operating the saloons where the bonds are invalidated will have to go through the same procedure that they followed in the first place to get their licenses. They will have to re-advertise their applications, present them to the board with a satisfactory bond, and await the action of the county commissioners.

It is understood that the question as to the legality of the liquor bonds of a great many saloons in the county has been considered to some extent by the county authorities previous to the ruling by Judge Cant today, but the matter never came to an issue until the Carlin license was granted by the county board.

There were serious opposition to the granting of a liquor license at Kelsey. It is claimed that 90 per cent of the people there objected to a saloon. In fact, a delegation appeared before the county board, at the last meeting, to make oral argument against the granting of the license. The license was granted on a margin of only one vote.

Not only are there a large number of saloons in the county that are operating under licenses said to be invalidated, by reason of an improper bond, but there are many in which the descriptions of the locations of the saloon buildings are said to be wrong. The county authorities hold that under this point of law the licenses are void also.

The law requires that applicants for liquor license must be residents of the place where they would locate their saloons. There are said to be cases where persons who have been granted licenses are not bonafide residents.

Mr. Carlin was represented at the hearing by Reynolds & McClearn and County Auditor Halden was represented by Wilson G. Crosby, former assistant county attorney.

MAYOR NOT SUPPLIANT

Will Not Urge Aldermen to Confirm His Appointments.

Courts Decision is Expected to Break the Deadlock.

It is believed Judge Cant's decision in the Bloedel-Cromwell contest over the aldermanic seat from the Second ward will be forthcoming Monday and, if it does come, it is believed that Mayor Haven's appointments will go through at the council meeting Monday night. In case the decision is announced, the committee appointments will also probably be made. Other matters to come up are the Epper saloon license, Alderman Foubister's resolution establishing a policy of issuing saloon licenses only to those to be in actual charge of the places, the election of a harbor master and a sealer of weights and measures, the improvement of Second street and the appropriation for clearing off the Point of Rocks.

The action of the Democratic aldermen in holding up the mayor's appointments last week has caused much wild conjecture, and it is suggested that the Democrats mean to hold the appointments up, regardless of the outcome of the aldermanic contest. Saner heads in the political field contend that the contest alone is responsible for the council action and the opposition will be cleared away as soon as the decision is made public.

There is nothing on which to base a forecast of the council action. The Democrats are keeping their own counsel. The mayor says there is time enough for friction after the council has taken definite action and the aldermen feel the same way about it.

Mayor Haven says no delegation of Democratic leaders called on him yesterday or any other time. Individual people, acting on their own initiative, have asked him if a little lobbying among the Democrats might be effective. He said this morning that he told them, as far as he is concerned, his responsibility ended with the presentation of his appointments to the council. It is now up to the aldermen. The mayor will not move from his dignified position to sue for the favor of the Democratic aldermen, nor will he send anybody to do it for him. If anybody wishes to lobby in the interests of the appointees, they may do so, but the mayor will do none of it.

"I think my responsibility for the appointments has ended and now it is the right of the council to act as it sees fit," said Mayor Haven this morning. "I have received no offers of compromise, nor would I entertain them. I don't believe there is any cause for friction between the mayor's office and the council at this time, nor would I descend to peanut politics if the aldermen did take adverse action. I am sure the people do not want to see their interests endangered by political considerations, and I think the aldermen understand that. We can only wait until the council takes final action."

The Epper license will bring up an interesting situation. Epper has presented a petition, signed by about 200 West Duluth people. In opposition, a protest containing more than twice as many names, has been submitted. Epper's saloon was one of those implicated in a scandal, which resulted in the revocation of the license of William Mulligan. Epper withdrew his application for a renewal at that time, but returned it later, and is suing for the right to reopen his place.

Foubister's resolution, which is aimed at the holding of saloon licenses in the names of brewery agents, has been before the council two weeks and there is expected to be little discussion on it. Some of the brewery interests are said to have withdrawn opposition to it and it will probably go through.

A petition and protest leave action on the improvement of Second street from Seventh to Thirteenth avenue east up to the council. Some of the people on the street want it laid over for a year. The petition is sufficient and the aldermen are inclined to go ahead and order the work, despite the protests.

Women Outlive Men.

Statistics gathered during the past ten years in the United Kingdom show that the women who lived over a hundred years exceeded the men by nearly 85 per cent. Long life in either sex, however, is largely a matter of health, and the odds are entirely in favor of the robust. For those who are sickly and delicate, we recommend a fair trial of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and if its wonderful record of cures during the past 54 years means anything, it certainly means that it will greatly benefit you also. It is well worth the trial, at any rate. We guarantee every bottle absolutely pure, so there need be no hesitancy in trying it in cases of sick headache, bloating, heartburn, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, colds, grippe, female ills, or spring fever. It is for sale by all druggists, grocers and dealers.

held responsible to any blame in the matter.

When Sharkey and John L. Sullivan, or whatever might be the names of the short-eared canines, started out for their morning walk, each had a strap attached to his collar. They were fastened together like the horses the lady bareback rider in the circus bestrides.

Suddenly the dogs struck an imaginary scent. It lead straight down the thoroughfare. With noses glued to the pavement, the dogs failed to observe any obstructions ahead. It so happened that the lady happened to be the principal obstruction.

The strap threw the lady to the sidewalk. The momentum of the bull terriers was momentarily checked. On they sped, however, like the bloodhounds in the Eliza-crossing-the-ice scene. Other pedestrians dodged the tripping strap and gave the pair a clear leeway. The lady was picked up, not much the worse for the fall, while the owner breathlessly pursued the dogs.

TASTES LIKE CANDY BUT DIGESTS ALL YOUR FOOD

Read Below Why the Worst Dyspeptic in This City Can Find Immediate Relief With These 22 Grain Triangles.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as Indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals, they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though Indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of the 22-grain Triangules of Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any Pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case, and to eat one like candy after the next meal. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after eating one Triangule there would be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the Stomach, or Heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no Belching of Gas or Eructations of Sour food, Debilitating Headache, Nausea, Water Brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin contains pure Aseptic Papsin, one grain of which will digest without any assistance 3,000 grains of food; also Diastase, Papain, Calcium, pure Extract Cascara Sagrada, powdered Ginger and other ingredients making these Triangules harmless and taste like candy.

Diapepsin is a wonderful Stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Just one 22-grain Triangule will digest more than 3,000 grains of food in the same way that a strong, healthy stomach would do it. Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no Gas—then Indigestion and all stomach trouble will go, and there will be no further need of Diapepsin.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient of these 22-grain Triangules to usually cure the most chronic dyspeptic and leave some for other members of the family who may need it for Gas on Stomach, Headaches or other disorders when they eat something which does not agree with them. A case ought to be kept in each home.

ANSWER BY MR. CASE

Outlines Attitude of Board on the Meter Question.

Replies to the Arguments Advanced Against Their Use.

The following statement regarding the general introduction of water meters in Duluth has been prepared by Manager Case of the water and light department:

"It should be understood, first, that fully two-thirds of the water consumption is already metered, and that at private expense.

"Second, with the exception of such private families as are already metered this was compulsory, as the board decided at the beginning that all places of business, unless very small, all hotels, saloons, stables, flats, public buildings, etc., should be supplied only by meter. But few, therefore, of those taking water today by Meter are doing so voluntarily, and should the board decide that it would be at the expense hereafter of buying and installing meters, it certainly would be demanded by those already metered that their expense be refunded, a total of over $30,000.

"Third, this action of the board was a unanimous one and made after months of careful consideration of all the conditions, and this action was entirely in the interests of the city as a whole. The members of the board had no other incentive.

"One of the strongest arguments to the board was conveyed in a letter from a prominent citizen of Duluth, who found he was paying considerably more for water at his residence than would be required under the flat rate. He said:

"'The fact of the matter is that this water service is exactly like taxes—we are all compelled to pay, and under these circumstances the people in control of this business ought to see that everybody pays on a fair and just basis. It certainly is not fair that my neighbor should get water for fifteen or twenty dollars a year and I have to pay seventy-five for the same amount of water.'

"The report of the water department of the city of Harrisburg, Pa., just received by me, states that 10,911 families out of a total of 14,305 are already metered; that the unmetered are principally small house holders, but that it is estimated that the quantity of water consumed and wasted by this small fraction is as much as is furnished all the houses that are metered. Meters are installed at the expense of the consumer in Harrisburg.

It is understood that meters are supplied by this department at cost, and that this account is only intended to be self-supporting. Because of the gain in the surplus of last year, and because also of a small reduction in cost, the department has concluded to reduce the prices to consumers as follows: For a ¾ meter installed $11, meter at the office $9.50.

"Larger sizes, the same percentage of reduction.

"These prices will take effect on all orders received since Jan. 1, this year.

"It should be remembered by the people in their contemplation of results to themselves that they will be supplied forty-three gallons for one cent, and that any reasonable prevention of waste alone will make their payments less than under the flat rate. Many families already being supplied by meter will corroborate this statement.

Answers Argument.

"The argument, that more money is expended than the amount saved, is always used in regard to the introduction of meters. And what makes it seem more plausible is the fact, that, as far as the mere cost of pumping is concerned, it is true. What is the most important saving however, is its prevention of the installation of necessarily enlarged pumping machinery, and additional pipe lines to convey the water to the consumers.

"Duluth we all believe is on the eve of a good expansion, and any reduction in the waste of water will have its effect upon the construction expenses of the future.

"It is truly said that experience is the school when men learn wisdom, and it is by the experience of others that we can, in this instance particularly, arrive at a clear understanding of the results to be obtained by the introduction of meters.

"Detroit began the introduction of meters in 1899, spending an average annual sum of $21,000.

"For nine years this was continued and the results, as summed up by a distinguished engineer from New York city, who was sent to all the larger cities in the United States for the purpose of investigating the causes of waste and the means for its prevention, was, that the saving effected in the curtailment of construction expenses and the cost of pumping amounted in these nine years to five times the cost of the meters.

"The report of this engineer can be seen at the office of the board by any one wishing to do so.

"Cleveland, probably one of the best governed cities in the country, after many years of delay and after watching the experience of other cities, began the universal introduction of meters three years ago and is pushing it vigorously forward.

"The indefiniteness of the consumption of water has made the application of meters compulsory in Duluth upon a large class. Even the paper that is printing this statement has been obliged to maintain meters upon its consumption for years.

"Flat rates have been applicable almost entirely upon residences, and ever-recurring developments continue to show that their consumption is fully as indefinite and as impossible to guess at as upon places of business or upon public buildings.

"As to the imposition of a burden upon the poorer class, or those who find it difficult to meet this expense, I am authorized by the board, in all such cases, to accept a small payment down and the balance in small monthly installments.

"To sum up: The introduction of meters is clearly in the interest of economy, and particularly is it an act of justice between the various consumers of water. As the gentleman previously quoted says: 'Let us have one common basis by which all consumers may be treated alike, justly and fully,' and from the prevalence of which sentiment it would almost seem as if the use of meters should be abandoned here, or that they be installed universally."

RULING WILL PUT LID ON MORE THAN 100 SALOONS

Judge Cant Sustains Demurrer to Answer in Carlin Case.

Statutes Provide Surety Company Can Go on But One Bond.

Under the state law as set forth in a ruling by Judge Cant in the special term of the district court this morning, 100 or more of the saloons in St. Louis county, which were supposed to be duly licensed, are nothing more than blind pigs.

The ruling was made by the court in the mandamus proceedings brought by William Carlin to compel County Auditor Halden to issue him a license to sell intoxicating liquors in the town of Kelsey.

Carlin demurred to the answer made by Mr. Halden and Judge Cant overruled the demurrer, giving Carlin twenty days in which to reply. The issues in the mandamus proceedings will come up at the trial at the regular term of the district court.

The county board, at its last meeting, by a vote of four to three, granted Carlin a license, but County Auditor Halden refused to issue it. Carlin started suit to compel him to do so. Mr. Halden claimed that the description of the location, as given by Carlin, was incorrect, also that under the law Carlin's bond was void. The court sustained the auditor on both points.

Invalidates Licenses.

The ruling by Judge Cant is an important one, and will be far reaching in its effect as it will operate to invalidate 100 or more liquor licenses that the county board has granted to persons in various parts of the county outside the city of Duluth.

The ruling is based on section 1524 of the revised laws of Minnesota, and the point of law is that "no person already a surety on a license bond shall be accepted as a surety on another." This is construed to include surety companies as well as individuals, and means that no bond can be accepted from a surety company, where the same surety company is on another liquor bond in the same county.

It is claimed that the surety company which bonded Carlin has furnished bonds for 100 or more other applicants for liquor licenses in the county, and that all of those bonds are void. If they are void, the licenses are claimed to be void and places operating under them are nothing more than blind pigs.

Under the law, the persons operating the saloons where the bonds are invalidated will have to go through the same procedure that they followed in the first place to get their licenses. They will have to re-advertise their applications, present them to the board with a satisfactory bond, and await the action of the county commissioners.

It is understood that the question as to the legality of the liquor bonds of a great many saloons in the county has been considered to some extent by the county authorities previous to the ruling of Judge Cant today, but the matter never came to an issue until the Carlin license was granted by the county board.

There were serious opposition to the granting of a liquor license at Kelsey. It is claimed that 90 per cent of the people there objected to a saloon. In fact, a delegation appeared before the county board, at the last meeting, to make oral argument against the granting of the license. The license was granted on a margin of only one vote.

Not only are there a large number of saloons in the county that are operating under licenses said to be invalidated, by reason of an improper bond, but there are many in which the descriptions of the locations of the saloon buildings are said to be wrong. The county authorities hold that under this point of law the licenses are void also.

The law requires that applicants for liquor license must be residents of the place where they would locate their saloons. There are said to be cases where persons who have been granted licenses are not bonafide residents.

Mr. Carlin was represented at the hearing by Reynolds & McClearn and County Auditor Halden was represented by Wilson G. Crosby, former assistant county attorney.

"THE LADY AND THE BULL PUPS"

Little Comedy Drama is Enacted on Superior Street.

"The lady and the bull terriers," might be the title of a little street comedy-drama that was enacted on Superior street this morning. It wasn't exactly the fault of the bull terriers, either, nor could the lady be held responsible to any blame in the matter.

When Sharkey and John L. Sullivan, or whatever might be the names of the short-eared canines, started out for their morning walk, each had a strap attached to his collar. They were fastened together like the horses the lady bareback rider in the circus bestrides.

Suddenly the dogs struck an imaginary scent. It lead straight down the thoroughfare. With noses glued to the pavement, the dogs failed to observe any obstructions ahead. It so happened that the lady happened to be the principal obstruction.

The strap threw the lady to the sidewalk. The momentum of the bull terriers was momentarily checked. On they sped, however, like the bloodhounds in the Eliza-crossing-the-ice scene. Other pedestrians dodged the tripping strap and gave the pair a clear leeway. The lady was picked up, not much the worse for the fall, while the owner breathlessly pursued the dogs.

MAYOR NOT SUPPLIANT

Will Not Urge Aldermen to Confirm His Appointments.

Courts Decision is Expected to Break the Deadlock.

It is believed Judge Cant's decision in the Bloedel-Cromwell contest over the aldermanic seat from the Second ward will be forthcoming Monday and, if it does come, it is believed that Mayor Haven's appointments will go through at the council meeting Monday night. In case the decision is announced, the committee appointments will also probably be made. Other matters to come up are the Epper saloon license, Alderman Foublster's resolution establishing a policy of issuing saloon licenses only to those to be in actual charge of the places, the election of a harbor master and a sealer of weights and measures, the improvement of Second street and the appropriation for clearing off the Point of Rocks.

The action of the Democratic aldermen in holding up the mayor's appointments last week has caused much wild conjecture, and it is suggested that the Democrats mean to hold the appointments up, regardless of the outcome of the aldermanic contest. Saner heads in the political field contend that the contest alone is responsible for the council action and the opposition will be cleared away as soon as the decision is made public.

There is nothing on which to base a forecast of the council action. The Democrats are keeping their own counsel. The mayor says there is time enough for friction after the council has taken definite action and the aldermen feel the same way about it.

Mayor Haven says no delegation of Democratic leaders called on him yesterday or any other time. Individual people, acting on their own initiative, have asked him if a little lobbying among the Democrats might be effective. He said this morning that he told them, as far as he is concerned, his responsibility ended with the presentation of his appointments to the council. It is now up to the aldermen. The mayor will not move from his dignified position to sue for the favor of the Democratic aldermen, nor will he send anybody to do it for him. If anybody wishes to lobby in the interests of the appointees, they may do so, but the mayor will do none of it.

"I think my responsibility for the appointments has ended and now it is the right of the council to act as it sees fit," said Mayor Haven this morning. "I have received no offers of compromise, nor would I entertain them. I don't believe there is any cause for friction between the mayor's office and the council at this time, nor would I descend to peanut politics if the aldermen did take adverse action. I am sure the people do not want to see their interests endangered by political considerations, and I think the aldermen understand that. We can only wait until the council takes final action."

The Epper license will bring up an interesting situation. Epper has presented a petition, signed by about 200 West Duluth people. In opposition, a protest containing more than twice as many names, has been submitted. Epper's saloon was one of those implicated in a scandal, which resulted in the revocation of the license of William Mulligan. Epper withdrew his application for a renewal at that time, but returned it later, and is suing for the right to reopen his place.

Foublster's resolution, which is aimed at the holding of saloon licenses in the names of brewery agents, has been before the council two weeks and there is expected to be little discussion on it. Some of the big brewery interests are said to have withdrawn opposition to it and it will probably go through.

A petition and protest leave action on the improvement of Second street from Seventh to Thirteenth avenue east up to the council. Some of the people on the street want it laid over for a year. The petition is sufficient and the aldermen are inclined to go ahead and order the work, despite the protests.

Women Outlive Men.

Statistics gathered during the past ten years in the United Kingdom show that the women who lived over a hundred years exceeded the men by nearly 85 per cent. Long life in either sex, however, is largely a matter of health, and the odds are entirely in favor of the robust. For those who are sickly and delicate, we recommend a fair trial of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and if its wonderful record of cures during the past 54 years means anything, it certainly means that it will greatly benefit you also. It is well worth the trial, at any rate. We guarantee every bottle absolutely pure, so there need be no hesitancy in trying it in cases of sick headache, bloating, heartburn, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, colds, grippe, female ills, or spring fever. It is for sale by all druggists, grocers and dealers.

CAMPAIGN A SUCCESS

The Y. M. C. A. Gets 1,638 New Members in Ten Days.

763 Names Added to Membership Rolls on Last Day.

The Y. M. C. A. has emerged triumphant and exultant from its brief campaign for new members. In ten days the energetic and industrious committees succeeded in securing a grand total of 1,638 new applications for membership, passing the goal originally started for, by 638 members.

The campaign came to a close last night, and so keen was the rivalry among the committees that members of some that were trying for first and second place worked as late as 12 o'clock rounding up members. One man in an all night lunch room landed six new members between 11:45 and 12 o'clock last night.

Every one felt that rival committees were holding back a certain number of names, so that they might jump into first place on the last day. A desire to be among the leaders acted as an incentive in the work, and in a grand spurt to keep from landing at the bottom of the list of ten committees, and in trying to land at the top, each of the ten passed the hundred mark yesterday.

Yesterday alone, 763 names were added to the membership rolls, the largest record for enrollment of new members ever made by the Duluth association. The total of the first nine days of campaigning was 875.

The whole town has been interested in the campaign, and yesterday the association building was filled with a crowd of enthusiasts, watching the results. A close city election could not have excited more interest in a crowd. The individual record for securing members is held by H. M. Blair of MacGregor's committee. Mr. Blair turned in forty-nine applications yesterday.

The membership of the association has almost been trebled in the last ten days. It has increased from 898 to 1,536. Frank Crassweller was the head of the entire campaign and appointed the heads of committees, also laying out the general plan of campaign.

The standing of the ten committees and the number of applications turned in during the last day, with their totals, are as follows:

Committee—	Secured Yesterday	Total.
MacGregor	169	281
Fenton	129	249
Kilchil	78	215
Thompson	46	196
Wegman	66	143
Dunlop	48	121
Ross	62	121
Wheeler	47	121
Taylor	45	116
Miser	60	115
Grand total	763	1,638

HARRY MANUEL IS ARRESTED

Must Appear Before the Grand Jury Charged With Smuggling.

Charged with having attempted to smuggle some furs and laces into Duluth last August, Harry Manuel, formerly an employe on the steamer Huronic, appeared before a United States commissioner at Detroit, Mich., yesterday, where his arrest occurred, and was bound over to the federal grand jury at the July term of court in Duluth.

Secret service officers have been searching for Manuel ever since last summer, and finally found him in the Michigan city, where he was holding down a position with a railroad. The man got into trouble originally by trying to help a woman. She was returning to Duluth from Canada and was bringing some newly-purchased furs and laces with her. She did not know how to get these articles in without paying duty, and Manuel, it is said, volunteered to help her.

He hid them aboard the boat, and just before the Huronic was ready to start on her return trip, started ashore with them. Capt. Foote detected him, took the goods away from him and turned them over to L. M. Willcuts, collector for the local port. When the Huronic reached Port Arthur, Manuel was discharged. Meantime a report of the affair had been made to the secret service, and men were put on Manuel's trail. He is liable to a fine of $5,000 and two years' imprisonment.

CHARGES ARE FILED

Against Undertakers With Secretary of State Board of Health.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 21.—Frank Hagerstrom has filed formal complaint against the undertakers of Minnesota in general, including those of the Twin Cities in particular, with Dr. H. M. Bracken, chairman of the state board of health, Minneapolis.

The papers in the case claim that the undertakers whose names are enumerated in the complaint, made shipment by train of bodies which had not been embalmed as required by law and that where embalming had actually taken place, it is alleged that the implements used and the quarters in which the operations occurred, were insanitary. It is understood that prosecutions will undoubtedly follow the presentation of the evidence now being gathered by the detectives of the state health department who are shadowing the undertaking establishments of the Twin Cities.

As an instance in the complaint, it is mentioned that the body of a man formerly in the employ of A. M. Smith, 249 Hennepin avenue, who was killed recently by a train at Bemidji, Minn., was dumped into a pine box and shipped to Minneapolis without being embalmed. The body was frozen at the time and was still in that condition upon its arrival in Minneapolis. Hagerstrom cited this and several other cases in his complaint.

ABRAHAM RUEF WANTS HIS BAIL REDUCED.

San Francisco, March 21.—Abraham Ruef, the former political boss of San Francisco, indicted upon 116 charges of bribery, appeared before the appellate court yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus in the matter of bail, which aggregates $1,115,000. Ruef contends that this sum is exorbitant and unreasonable; that there are thirty-seven duplicate indictments against him on which the bail is $370,000, of which he should be relieved, and that the bail on the remaining indictments is excessive.

The court of appeals granted a writ for the purpose of fixing the matter of bail.

SUBSIDY BILL PASSES SENATE

Pays $4 Per Mile to Ships in Southern Trade.

Washington, March 21.—The ship subsidy bill was passed by the senate yesterday. It pays to 16-knot vessels plying between this country and South America, the Philippines, Japan and Australia, $4 per mile, the amount awarded by the act of 1891 to vessels of twenty knots only.

The bill was amended in the senate so that 12-knot vessels will receive $2 per mile, which is the allowance under the existing law to 16-knot vessels. Amendments were also adopted providing that if two or more lines of steamships plying from Atlantic ports to South America, under the provisions of the bill, one line shall stop at two ports south of Cape Charles, and stipulating that no more shall be paid for subsidies than is received from ship service by the government.

During the consideration of the measure, Mr. Hale made a spirited plea for an auxiliary navy, declaring that without auxiliaries our navy is dependent upon foreign countries, and that in case of war we would be helpless.

Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists.

ELOPEMENT ENDS ROMANCE.

Son of State Drainage Engineer and Crookston Girl Secretly Wed.

Crockston, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tongues of gossipers wagged merrily yesterday as a result of the elopement from this city of Earl Ralph, son of State Drainage Engineer George A. Ralph of St. Paul, and Miss Rosanna Brouillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Brouillard of this city. The two skipped away to Grand Forks and were married in East Grand Forks, having secured their license here just before departing. The first that the families of either of the contracting parties knew of the affair was the result of a long distance call from Grand Forks when the bride informed her sister, Miss Laura Brouillard that she was married and asked her to mention the fact to the two families. The parents of the bride were opposed to the match, and about a year ago frustrated a similar attempt, locating the young lady just as she was boarding a train for Fargo at South Crookston. Now that the knot is tied, however, it is understood that all will be forgiven and the runaways are expected home within a day or two.

WRECK TELEPHONE LINE.

Service Between Onomia and Cove Given Rough Treatment.

Cove, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A raid was made on the local telephone company's lines between Onomia and Cove, resulting in great havoc and putting the line out of service for several days. Guys were severed from the poles and the four main wires in use between Mille Lacs lake points and Milaca were cut in forty or fifty different places, leaving the highway strewn for some miles with a mass of tangled wires.

There is ill feeling toward the company on the part of stockholders and patrons. A new telephone line is about to be constructed and the manager of the present line declares that his company has political control in the various townships, and that the supervisors will not allow another company to set up poles. This announcement aroused much bitter feeling and, no doubt, in a measure was the cause for the attack.

RICH BACHELOR MURDERED.

Missing Farm Laborer is Believed to be Murderer.

Leeds, N. D., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hans Halvorson, a farmer who lived twelve miles southwest of Leeds, was shot three times Thursday, and died that night at the farm of John Olson, with whom he lived. Halvorson was a bachelor and wealthy, and lived with the Olson family, whose farm adjoins his own. The murder is supposed to have been for the purpose of robbery and to have been committed by a farm laborer who is missing and for whom search is being made.

LEAVES MANY CHILDREN.

Staples, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Rhoda Almira Fowler, living at Becker township, a few miles northeast of here, who died Monday, was held Thursday from the home, with interment at the Motley cemetery. Deceased was born in St. Lawrence county, New York, February 1, 1857. She is survived by nine children, her husband having died a couple of years ago.

STRINGENCY IN MEXICO

Duluth Man Says Money Conditions Are Felt There.

Many Large Orders for Raw Products Are Cancelled.

H. J. Carling, general manager of the Employers' Protective agency of St. Paul and Duluth, who has returned from a trip to the City of Mexico, says that the American monoy stringency is being felt there at the present time.

The cancellation of American orders of Mexican raw goods has caused a money shortage and business depression throughout the country. For an example, one of the largest exporters of raw hides had an order of over 200,000 goat skins, used in the manufacture of gloves, cancelled because of the busiess curtailment in this country. This man told Mr. Carling that this was the largest cancellation he had experienced in the past twenty years.

Banks in Mexico are asking 10 and 12 per cent for loans. An order was recently issued by the secretary of finance ordering all the banks not to make loans of over ninety days. This order practically amount to a government demand. Money is short owing to the curtailment of the exporting business, upon which the prosperity and genral business industry of the country is dependent.

Mr. Carling says that many American mining and lumbering men are taking leading places in the development of the country. He met many Duluth men in the City of Mexico during his stay there. A. B. Wolvin was one of the more prominent men he met while there.

Down in the Aztec country they regard Duluth as a place of arctic severity. Duluth is well known down in the mining and lumbering centers of Mexico, because of the number of men from here who have gone there. English capital has largely the control of the mining and lumbering industry, but of late years the Americans have secured control of valuable lumbering and mineral concessions.

Mr. Carling says that Mexico is one of the best government countries in the world. President Diaz is a dictator by popular suffrage. He is worshiped by the people, but his proclamations practically amount to royal dictations. For instance, Mr. Carling says, that no bank in the Republic would think for a moment of disobeying the order forbidding more than a ninety-day loan. Aside from the temporary business depression, the country is prosperous. They have not many manufactures, but every inducement is being made for American and English capital to come to Mexico and start factories.

They are contemplating the construction of a $2,000,000 American hotel in the City of Mexico. The Mexican hotels are very poor, and the only place where the American or English tourist can get food that he has been accustomed to is at the American or English clubs. The City of Mexico is well governed, well paved and policed, and is in all respects a thoroughly modern and up to date city.

Rats in Y. M. C. A. Building.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A recent issue of The Herald contained an article relating to the obnoxious rat problem connected with the new Y. M. C. A. building, and we are somewhat surprised that the dissertation dealt only with the case regarding that one building since a number of other buildings are, in a sense at least, likewise afflicted, according to our interpretation of "rat."

That rats are interfering with the work is more truth than fiction, if we are to jurge from what we have seen and by statements of dissatisfaction, which we have heard. As workmen, we have a very clear conception of the cause of their being here. The Builders' exchange might also enlighten you.

The gnawing away of part of the burlap from the walls of a room indicate an appetite that can be compared only to one caused by hunger, such as the rat exhibits when he displaces the more honorable toiler and against which his honor and will power is too weak to prevail. His digestive powers though must be absolutely perfect to enable him to withstand the "lemon diet" that is handed him with entrees of long hours and graded pay for "degree of efficiency" with its set maximum and more pliable minimum basis.

The article further states that the contractors are trying to devise ways and means to obliterate the pest. We hope that their efforts will not completely satisfactory to all concerned, not only in regard to the Y. M. C. A., but the community in general. Not being superstitiously inclined we can not ascribe the visitation in the Y. M. C. A. case to an act of retributive justice prompted by the "valiant" stand of said Y. M. C. A. in defense of union labor and against the forces that tend to fertilize slum breeding conditions. Again we read "they are in evidence all day and doubly in evidence at night." Such unselfish benevolence is, of course, inspired by the old "identity of interest" farce. Perchance this "identity of interest" policy was recognized and honorably carried out by according the rats a plate at the Builders' exchange banquet.

Ferrets are to be used in an effort to remove the pests. Why not all pull together, contractors, unionists, commercial club men and all others in the interests of the city and completely eradicate the evil?

Cure for Drunkenness

Orrine Treatment to be Used at Home Without Publicity, or Loss of Time from Business.

The best aid to temperance is something that will strengthen the drunkard's wrecked nervous system and cure his unnatural craving for drink. We believe that any man who really desires to be cured of the liquor habit can cure himself by using Orrine. This remarkable treatment has made so many cures that we are glad to sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

It is in two forms; No. 1 that can be given secretly, and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured. It is not only the most reliable treatment known, but it is also the most economical as it costs only $1 a box and there is no detention from the usual duties, while if a cure is not effected, there is no expense whatever. HOW ST. LOUIS COUNTY CARES FOR PRISONERS

Results of an Investigation of the Jail at Duluth Made by Representatives of the American Prison Association.

It is a pretty bad case that the American Prison association has found against the average county jail in this country. For a year past hundreds of trained men and women have been working on investigations and compiling results, and now the association is prepared to announce just what conditions were found. To state that generally speaking, county jails are "schools for crime" is putting it mildly. The general report of the committee, appearing in this issue of The Herald, tells of the conditions as found in different parts of the country. A special investigation was made of the jail in this county and the question for this community to answer is whether or not the St. Louis county jail comes up to the minimum standard set by Prof. Henderson and his committee.

In the St. Louis county jail at the time of the inspection there were 77 men and 3 women confined in 35 cells, each 7 by 8 feet in size. Two of the men and one of the women were insane. The inspector does not state where the children are kept and it is hoped that they are not crowded in the same cells with the adults.

Thirty cents a day is allowed for each prisoner's food, a rate rather lower than the average. The visitor reports that the bedding is washed once a month. The prisoners' underclothing is changed weekly, the county furnishing changes.

In this jail with its thirty-seven cells there are seven closets. Night buckets are also used. Three tubs are provided for the prisoners' bathing and they are required to use them once a week or oftener. The male prisoners work on the streets and the women have no occupation.

Religious services are held in the jail, and reading matter is provided. There is no in and out fee. Violation of the prison rules is punished by confinement in the dungeon.

A Model Jail.

Some of the requirements for a model jail cannot be met simply by changes in the structure and administration of the jail itself. Modern conditions and knowledge call for radical changes in laws and in the entire state system of correction and punishment. But some of the improvements demanded could be made at once in any county by an enlightened public and rigorous county board. The jail committee of the American Prison association has drawn up the following standard requirements for a really modern county jail. The reader may judge for himself whether or not there is room for improvement in this county.

I. The jail must be strong and safe. There are architects and jail builders who can easily and economically construct a jail to meet these conditions.

2. The jail should be so built and its affairs so administered that the health of prisoners and officers shall not be impaired. Among the conditions of health are:

(a). A sufficient supply of simple, wholesome food. The best way would be to have the dietaries regulated by a state commission of physicians. Laymen have not the knowledge to arrange balanced rations, suitable for all classes of prisoners. Local physicians may be authorized to direct diet, in the absence of a state commission.

(b). Clean underclothing is essential to health, and it should be furnished by the county if the prisoner is too poor to pay for it. This underclothing should be washed in a laundry and not in bath tubs, as sometimes occurs.

(c). The bedding should be clean when furnished and kept clean; no prisoner should lie on his bed in the day time, unless sick, in which case, he should be in a hospital ward.

(d). Ventilation should be secured by providing a large cell, with a window opening directly to the outside air; and the air should be renewed constantly by forced currents through pipes to the roof from each cell.

(e). Each cell should be heated from a central system and the foul air removed by forced drafts. The air of one cell should never be breathed by any one, save the single occupant of that cell.

Natural Light Necessary.

(f). Lighting—For artificial light, electricity is best, because it does not foul the air, in summer it does not heat the cell, and it is most easily controlled by the officers on guard.

Natural light is necessary to purify the air and destroy bacteria, and it should come into the cell directly from the outside. A cell without sunlight is a center of infection for the whole jail.

(g) The drinking water should be analyzed by competent experts, and, if necessary, boiled, to prevent intestinal disease. Filters are generally dangerous.

(h) The waste water, with human excrementitious matter, should be disposed of through approved plumbing drains and sewers. Cesspools are dangerous, as well as disgusting. Night buckets can not be kept clean.

(i) Provisions for bathing should be made by means of shower baths, in screened compartments, and the waste water conveyed by cement floors to the sewer. Tubs are means of communicating venereal and other diseases.

(j) Provisions should be made for at least one-half hour's exercise, daily, in the open air. Still better, if convicted prisoners must be retained by the court, useful industry in the open air, or in well ventilated sheds or rooms.

(k) Recreations are essential to health if prisoners are held for some months required to use them once a week or oftener. The male prisoners work on the streets and the women have no occupation.

Religious services are held in the jail, and reading matter is provided. There is no in and out fee. Violation of the prison rules is punished by confinement in the dungeon.

3. Outside Influences. Suitable provisions should be made, in the character of sheriffs, jailers and guards, and by visitors from without, to influence the prisoners in confinement by conversation, reading and proper recreations.

VI. Administration. All officers who come in contact with prisoners should be paid adequate salaries, and the fee system should be abolished as a source of corruption and injustice. No one who has to deal with prisoners should be permitted to sell them food or luxuries.

VII. Discipline. Rules of conduct of prisoners should be drawn up by a state central authority to prevent arbitrary treatment of prisoners. Disciplinary measures should be defined and limited by the same authority.

REPORTER LOOKING FOR WORK HAD THREE OFFERS

Also Had Chance to Work as Substitute Fireman.

"No Orders" is Answer at Eleven Employment Offices.

A Herald reporter started out looking for a job this morning.

He didn't find any that looked better to him than the newspaper business.

Out of fourteen employment bureaus visited, three offered him work. Pulpwood and logging camps were the inducements offered. The fire department said it could take him as a substitute fireman, if he passed the required examination. A teamster and a wagon worker were also wanted by the department. The labor bureau of the Builders' exchange said if he was a competent carpenter they could place him all right.

The first place visited was the state free employment office, located on Fifth avenue west, just below First street, and run by James Walsh. Mr. Walsh knew the reporter, so he didn't think it wise to ask him for a job, even if a three-days' growth of beard, and a disreputable looking suit of old clothes did give him the air of a lumberjack. Twenty-two men, of all nationalities, sizes and descriptions, filled the office. Some looked fairly intelligent, and some didn't look at all that way. The bunch could have kept a live half-dozen barbers busy several hours putting their heads and faces in presentable condition.

"If I were a laboring man looking for a job, what would you offer me?" asked the reporter.

"We haven't a single order on the books; absolutely nothing doing," replied Mr. Walsh.

The reporter elbowed his way through the crowd, passed through the door and drifted down the hill a quarter of a block. A sign over the door of the Zenith Employment company greeted his eye. He entered the office. The proprietor was behind the counter, and one working man was in front of it.

Nothing Doing.

"I am looking for a job," said the reporter, with small hopes of getting one, for no signs of work offered were in evidence, either outside or inside the building.

"No orders," said the man behind the counter. "Don't need a single man for anything. Come around later. We had orders yesterday and the day before and sent out thirty-two men."

The reporter dropped down the hill to the National Employment company, also on Fifth avenue, opposite the Spalding hotel.

No signs offering employment were to be seen. "No orders," said the man behind the counter. "Don't need any men."

Three men were in the place looking for work.

Meagher & Johnson, West Michigan street, just west of Fourth avenue, had no signs in front of their place of business, and no work to offer. The Western Labor Supply company, 411 West Michigan street, said a few teams were needed, and that teamsters would be in demand. Signs to this effect were posted in front of the office.

Two lumberjacks were seated in the Duluth Labor exchange. No signs for work were in evidence. The reporter stood around and looked at steamboat pictures on the walls for ten minutes. No clerk or proprietor appeared behind the counter, and the reporter left, without getting a chance to ask for a job.

There was nothing doing with Olund & Enberg, 505½ West Michigan street, and no signs promising work.

Gets An Offer.

The Duluth Employment company, 507 West Michigan street, wanted a few sawyers and swampers for Cass Lake. The reporter didn't accept the job, although $26 a month and board was offered him.

The Northern Employment company, on Sixth avenue west, just above Michigan street, had places for half a dozen pulpwood cutters, and signs to this effect were posted in front. Nothing else was open there.

Just across the street, in the Peerless Employment company office, three men to do swamping in a small Northern Minnesota camp were hired while the reporter waited for a word with the man behind the counter. The latter readily answered the questions put to him by the men, telling them the work would last three weeks, that their office fee would be $1, and that they would have to pay $1.22 railroad fare.

Paint Still Wet.

The order was for three men only, and after the three had been booked, the sign offering employment in this particular camp was torn down, and the paint on it was not yet dry. Two or three pulpwood cutters were needed to fill the only other order the Peerless man had on his books.

The North Star company, Michigan street and Sixth avenue west, had a sign out asking for one teamster. No other positions were offered the inquirer.

The Pacific Employment company had no signs out, and nothing to offer. The Stack Employment company, 515½ West Michigan street, had no signs out, and no work to offer. The Gilbert company, a few doors away, had the same story to tell.

When questioned, all the agents were pleasant and agreeable, with the same story to tell, that they might have orders later in the day, but that it probably would not take long to fill them. They said this was between seasons, ant that it was always quiet at this time of the year, for the logging camps are breaking up, and are ordering scarcely any men, while the railroad work has not yet opened up. They admitted that it was more quiet than usual, however. They said that up to two weeks ago they had a hard time filling some orders, although the town appeared to be full of men. The latter didn't want to work for the wages offered. Twenty-six dollars and board was offered in nearly every instance. In some cases as low as $20 a month has been paid lately.

Big Crowd Drifts In.

Hundreds of men, evidently lumberjacks, throng Michigan street, between Fourth and Sixth avenues west. They drift aimlessly in and out of the employment offices and saloons, and stand on the curb stone, singly and in groups. Probably not half a dozen of them were the worse for liquor this morning. The Missabe morning train from the range added perhaps eighty men to the throng. Every train now is bringing in lumberjacks from camps that have broken up for the season.

The Herald reporter talked with nine or ten of these men. Three said they had made the round of the employment offices, but had found no work, except in one or two places, and that they had not accepted the places offered there because the wages offered were not high enough. A comparison of notes showed the reporter and the men had been offered jobs in the same places, so the reporter was convinced he was getting the same replies as other applicants. The others questioned said they hadn't made the rounds of the offices, but with one or two exceptions they had been in three or four of them.

RENT RIOT THREATENED.

Buda Besth Working Class to Camp in Streets After May 1.

Buda-Pesth, March 20.—The enormous rise in the price of house rents in Buda-Pesth has driven the inhabitants, particularly the poorer classes, to the extreme verge of despair. The landlords have formed a "trust," and the town council is composed, for the most part, of men interested, either directly or indirectly, in fostering the interests of the landlords.

A small flat of three rooms in anything like a respectable situation now costs at least $375, and that probably on the fourth floor, with an extra charge for the use of the lift. Poor people, living in cellar lodgings, have to pay the exorbitant rent of $100, or even $125. And the cellars in question are really uninhabitable.

The working classes have resolved that on May 1 they will not pay rent, but will turn out bodily with their families and furniture into the streets and camp out on the most crowded thoroughfare of the city. The authorities will hardly be able to cope with 200,000 organized workers if they choose to form camps in the street.

Unequaled as a Cure for Croup.

"Besides being an excellent remedy for colds and throat troubles, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is unequaled as a cure for croup," says Harry Wilson of Waynetown, Ind. When given as soon as the croupy cough appears, this remedy will prevent the attack. It is used successfully in many thousands of homes. For sale by all druggists.

WALES WILL COME OVER

To Represent King at Tercentenary of Founding of Quebec.

Otawa, Ont., March 21.—Three hundred years have rolled by since Samuel de Champlain broke ground where the city of Quebec now stands. All Canadians will agree that it is fitting and appropriate that this tercentenary should be duly observed. The best way to celebrate the founding of Quebec is to remember the founder. Samuel de Champlain was one of the most remarkable personages connected with Canadian history. His record is one of romance, enterprise and discovery. He was a navigator, discoverer and geographer. His published writings show that he had the vision of a statesman. The Canadian parliament has just voted $300,000 to be devoted to the demonstration which will take place at Quebec next summer in connection with the founding of the city. It is expected that over $200,000 of this amount will be expended on the celebration, and whatever is left will go to the fund which his excellency, the governor general, is raising to reclaim Canadian battlefields and make them national parks. The occasion of the tercentenary seems to be a proper time to recall and celebrate the baptism of fire through which the city passed in the lasting struggle which was maintained between France and England for supremacy on this continent and to dedicate and consecrate the ground which has been so hallowed by the blood of so many noble men who gave their lives for the causes with which they were connected. These battles around Quebec are among the most dramatic in modern history. The idea which Lord Grey initiated and with which all Canadians are in accord is to reclaim and set the ground aside as an object lesson for the present and future generations, and that is the reason for the grand ceremony of dedication.

Prince of Wales Coming.

The Canadian government extended an invitation to King Edward to attend the celebration. His majesty finds it impossible to be present, but intimated that a member of the royal family would take his place. The latest cable to the governor general stated that his royal highness the prince of Wales would be willing to attend the tercentenary celebration provided it could be held during the last week in July. The prearranged movements of the Atlantic fleet, which would accompany the prince of Wales to Quebec made it necessary that his royal highness should arrive on July 22 and leave on July 29. It is not necessary to say that these dates have been selected, and that, therefore, the prince and the fleet will be present. Invitations have also been extended to the French and American fleets. Although no official intimation has been received, the fleets of both countries are expected to be represented. It is specially fitting that the United States should take part in the event, and there is little doubt but that the French fleet will also be in attendance. It is not the intention of the government to carry out the arrangements. A commission comprising Mayor Garneau of Quebec, Sir George Drummond of Montreal, Byron E. Walker of Toronto and Adelard Turgeon of Quebec have been appointed to do all the work. The commission is empowered to expend if necessary, the entire $300,000 for the tercentenary celebration, but before taking any active steps to buy the Plains of Abraham or the battleground of Saint Foy, will have to report to parliament. It will take at least $1,000,000 to reclaim the ground and erect the statue which Lord Grey has suggested in this connection. Parliament will no doubt be asked for an additional appropriation to assist the battlefield scheme. In the meantime, Lord Grey is getting the schools and educational institutions, Canadian clubs and military and other organizations to interest themselves and to contribue towards the carrying out of a project to which he is lending not only his name and prestige but his best energies.

Historic Points.

While these are the only two battlefields that are directly referred to the commission, it is understood that the commissioners will be asked to give suggestions as to other historic points. There are interesting sites along the Detroit river, extending from Amherstburg to the town of Sandwich and the city of Detroit opposite. A few years ago the Ontario Historical society met there and spent a day reviewing the different objects of interest, and they recommended very strongly that steps be taken to preserve the old fort at the town of Amherstburg. The remains of the old fort are still there; there is a ditch which was used in connection with it, and it was thought that the place might very well be fitted up and preserved to commemorate the very stirring events that in days gone by took place in that neighborhood. Petitions were sent to the government, and they are pigeonholed. The people in that locality are constantly expecting that something will be done by the government. Now that Mackinac has passed into the hands of the Americans, this is perhaps the furthest point west at which Canada can commemorate the old struggle between the two nations. In that district also, Pontiac, in the days of his conspiracy, made his field of battle. Indeed all along the river front was the scene of the last struggle, because the news of the treaty did not reach there for some years after it was signed, and the fighting was still continued with the Indians, not knowing whether the English or the French were supreme. Later on in the war of 1812 Gen. Brock was there, and it was one of the most important points in that contest. A monument has been erected to Brock at Niagara, but nothing has been done to mark his operations on the Detroit river. It was there, too, that Tecumseh, that brave Shawnee, carried his operations, and there is a stone in the old town of Amherstburg on which it is said he stood when exhorting his people to heroism in defense of British supremacy. There are a number of cannon balls that were taken off the schooner Ann, and there are also a great many historical relics in the hands of private persons and of public institutions in the town of Amherstburg which could be obtained to decorate any mounment which might be erected to perpetuate the memory of these brave deeds. Afterwards, in the rebellion of 1837, the locality was the scene of further struggle, and the late leader of the Conservatives in the senate, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, was one of those who stood guard there to protect the country. Later, in 1866, during the Fenian raid the same locality was the very center of conflict. A. H. Clark, M. P., Essex, is recommending to the government that serious consideration be given to the petitions that have been sent in from the Ontario historical association in connection with all these matters.

The Veterans' association of Wentworth, for instance, has also been asking for a grant towards the expense of erecting a monument on the scene of the battlefield of Stony Creek, one of the most important events in Canadian history. And the Ladies' Historical association of Wentworth has secured the ground where the battle took place in 1812 and has prepared plans for a monument. A petition is now in the hands of the government for a grant towards erecting the monument.

Away down in Nova Scotia an idea of preserving and marking out the battlefield of the historic past has been put forward with considerable zeal. There are three places which mark epochs in the history of that province which itself resisted confederation with a bitterness and determination which has scarcely yet disappeared. The three places of special import to this province are Annapolis Royal, Louisberg and Fort Beausejour, where the last stand on this continent was made by the French.

STRINGENCY IN MEXICO

Duluth Man Says Money Conditions Are Felt There.

Many Large Orders for Raw Products Are Cancelled.

H. J. Carling, general manager of the Employers' Protective agency of St. Paul and Duluth, who has returned from a trip to the City of Mexico, says that the American money stringency is being felt there at the present time.

The cancellation of American orders of Mexican raw goods has caused a money shortage and business depression throughout the country. For an example, one of the largest exporters of raw hides had an order of over 200,000 goat skins, used in the manufacture of gloves, cancelled because of the business curtailment in this country. This man told Mr. Carling that this was the largest cancellation he had experienced in the past twenty years.

Banks in Mexico are asking 10 and 12 per cent for loans. An order was recently issued by the secretary of finance ordering all the banks not to make loans of over ninety days. This order practically amount to a government demand. Money is short owing to the curtailment of the exporting business, upon which the prosperity and general business industry of the country is dependent.

Mr. Carling says that many American mining and lumbering men are taking leading places in the development of the country. He met many Duluth men in the City of Mexico during his stay there. A. B. Wolvin was one of the more prominent men he met while there.

Down in the Aztec country they regard Duluth as a place of arctic severity. Duluth is well known down in the mining and lumbering centers of Mexico, because of the number of men from here who have gone there. English capital has largely the control of the mining and lumbering industry, but of late years the Americans have secured control of valuable lumbering and mineral concessions.

Mr. Carling says that Mexico is one of the best government countries in the world. President Diaz is a dictator by popular suffrage. He is worshiped by the people, but his proclamations practically amount to royal dictations. For instance, Mr. Carling says, that no bank in the Republic would think for a moment of disobeying the order forbidding more than a ninety-day loan. Aside from the temporary business depression, the country is prosperous. They have not many manufactures, but every inducement is being made for American and English capital to come to Mexico and start factories.

They are contemplating the construction of a $2,000,000 American hotel in the City of Mexico. The Mexican hotels are very poor, and the only place where the American or English tourist can get food that he has been accustomed to is at the American or English clubs. The City of Mexico is well governed, well paved and policed, and is in all respects a thoroughly modern and up to date city.

Rats in Y. M. C. A. Building.

To the Editor of The Herald:

A recent issue of The Herald contained an article relating to the obnoxious rat problem connected with the new Y. M. C. A. building, and we are somewhat surprised that the dissertation dealt only with the case regarding that one building, since a number of other buildings are, in a sense at least, likewise afflicted, according to our interpretation of "rat."

That rats are interfering with the work is more truth than fiction, if we are to judge from what we have seen and by statements of dissatisfaction, which we have heard. As workmen, we have a very clear conception of the cause of their being here. The builders' exchange management enlighten you.

The gnawing away of part of the burlap from the walls of a room indicate an appetite that can be compared only to one caused by hunger, such as the rat is known to display in the process of cable toller and against which his honor and will power is too weak to prevail. His digestive powers though must be destitute of feet to enable him to walk, and the "demon diet" that is handed him with curses of long hours and graded pay for "degree of efficiency" with its set maximum and more pliable minimum basis.

The article further states that the contractors are trying to devise ways and means to obliterate the pest. We hope that her efforts will prove completely satisfactory to all concerned, not only in regard to the Y. M. C. A., but the community in general. Not being superstitiously inclined we can not ascribe the visitation in the Y. M. C. A. case to an act of retributive justice prompted by the "valiant" stand of said Y. M. C. A. in defense of union labor and against the forces that tend to realize slum breeding conditions. Again we read "they are in evidence all day and daddy in evidence at night." Such unselfish benevolence is, of course, modeled by the old "divinity of interest" force. Perchance the "divinity of interest" police was responsible for the miserable carried out by sending the rats a plate at the Builders' Exchange banquet.

Terrier dogs be used in an effort to relieve the pest. Why not all peaceful contractors, architects, commercial clubs men and all others in the interests of the city and completely eradicate the evil.

Cure for Drunkenness

Orrine Treatment to be Used at Home Without Publicity, or Loss of Time from Business.

The best aid to temperance is something that will strengthen the drunkard's wrecked nervous system and cure his unnatural craving for drink. We believe that any man who really desires to be cured of the liquor habit can cure himself by using Orrine. This remarkable treatment has made so many cures that we are glad to sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

It is in two forms: No. 1 that can be given secretly, and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured. It is not only the most reliable treatment known, but it is also the most economical as it costs only $1 a box and there is no detention from the usual duties, while if a cure is not effected, there is no expense whatever. Mail orders filled on receipt of price in plain sealed package. Write for free booklet, The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., or F. W. Kingler & Co., 103 West Superior street, Duluth.

HOW ST. LOUIS COUNTY CARES FOR PRISONERS

Results of an Investigation of the Jail at Duluth Made by Representatives of the American Prison Association.

It is a pretty bad case that the American Prison association has found against the average county jail in this country. For a year past hundreds of trained men and women have been working on investigations and compiling results, and now the association is prepared to announce just what conditions were found. To state that generally speaking, county jails are "schools for crime" is putting it mildly. The general report of the committee, appearing in this issue of The Herald, tells of the conditions as found in different parts of the country. A special investigation was made of the jail in this county and the question for this community to answer is whether or not the St. Louis county jail comes up to the minimum standard set by Prof. Henderson and his committee.

In the St. Louis county jail at the time of the inspection there were 77 men and 3 women confined in 35 cells, each 7 by 8 feet in size. Two of the men and one of the women were insane. The inspector does not state where the children are kept and it is hoped that they are not crowded in the same cells with the adults.

Thirty cents a day is allowed for each prisoner's food, a rate rather lower than the average. The visitor reports that the bedding is washed once a month. The prisoners' underclothing is changed weekly, the county furnishing changes.

In this jail with its thirty-seven cells there are seven closets. Night buckets are also used. Three tubs are provided for the prisoners' bathing and they are required to use them once a week or oftener. The male prisoners work on the streets and the women have no occupation.

Religious services are held in the jail, and reading matter is provided. There is no air and not too. Violation of the prison rules is punished by confinement in the dungeon.

A Model Jail.

Some of the requirements for a model jail cannot be met simply by changes in the structure and administration of the jail itself. Modern conditions and knowledge call for radical changes in laws, and in the entire state system of correction and punishment. But some of the improvements demanded could be made at once in any county by an enlightened public and rigorous county board. The jail committee of the American Prison association has drawn up the following standard requirements for a really modern county jail. The reader may judge for himself whether or not there is room for improvement in this county.

1. The jail must be strong and safe. There are architects and jail builders who can easily and economically construct a jail to meet these conditions.

2. The jail should be so built and its affairs so administered that the health of prisoners and officers shall not be impaired. Among the conditions of health are:

(a) A sufficient supply of simple, wholesome food. The best way would be to have the dietaries regulated by a state commission of physicians. Laymen have not the knowledge to arrange balanced rations, suitable for all classes of prisoners. Local physicians may be authorized to direct diet, in the absence of a state commission.

(b) Clean underclothing is essential to health, and it should be furnished by the county if the prisoner is too poor to pay for it. This underclothing should be washed in a laundry and not in bath tubs, as sometimes occurs.

(c) The bedding should be clean when furnished and kept clean; no prisoner should lie on his bed in the day time, unless sick, in which case, he should be in a hospital ward.

(d) Ventilation should be secured by providing a large cell, with a window opening directly to the outside air; and the air should be renewed constantly by forced currents through pipes to the roof from each cell.

(e) Each cell should be heated from a central system and the foul air removed by forced drafts. The air of one cell should never be breathed by any one, save the single occupant of that cell.

Natural Light Necessary.

(f) Lighting—For artificial light, electricity is best, because it does not foul the air, in summer it does not heat the cell, and it is most easily controlled by the officers on guard.

Natural light is necessary to purify the air and destroy bacteria, and it should come into the cell directly from the outside. A cell without sunlight is a center of infection for the whole jail.

(g) The drinking water should be analyzed by competent experts, and, if necessary, boiled, to prevent intestinal disease. Filters are generally dangerous.

(h) The waste water, with human excrementitious matter, should be disposed of through approved plumbing drains and sewers. Cesspools are dangerous, as well as disgusting. Night buckets can not be kept clean.

(i) Provisions for bathing should be made by means of shower baths, in screened cubicle compartments, and the waste water conveyed by cement floors to the sewer. Tubs are means of communicating venereal and other diseases.

(j) Provisions should be made for at least one-half hour's exercise, daily, in the open air. Still better, if convicted prisoners must be retained, by some useful industry in the open air, or in well ventilated sheds or rooms.

(k) Recreations are essential to health if prisoners are held for some months.

(l) A jail should be provided with a hospital ward for the sick, or with special cells. A physician should call, at least once a week, to inspect sanitary conditions, and should be ready to give advice and aid to the sick at all times, at the expense of the county, where the prisoner can not pay.

(m) The prisoners should not be crowded, for crowding vitiates the air and increases peril from contagious and infectious diseases. Each prisoner should be in a cell alone.

(n) Occupation, idleness is injurious to health and morals of the prisoner and burdens the public. Prisoners awaiting trial should have an opportunity of working for wages, and if convicted persons must, for a time, be kept in jail, they should be employed at work at some useful and productive industry.

3. Classes of persons who should never be placed in jail or lockups: The sick—those suffering from sunstroke or apoplexy, the insane, the feeble minded, the epileptic—all who are abnormal or ill—should be sent to a hospital, never to a prison;

Boys and girls who have committed some offense, or are in trouble, should be sent to a detention home and placed under the care of school officers;

First offenders and many drinking men who are now committed to jail on sentences, might better be disposed of by suspending the execution of their sentences, on condition that they secure employment, use their earnings for the support of their families and keep out of vicious company. If the court has a probation officer, the man should be placed under his supervision. If there is no probation officer, he should be required to report to the court, or to some person designated by it, at stated periods. If work on public roads is in progress, it might furnish employment for men released on suspended sentence.

4. Every convicted person, the moment sentence is pronounced, should be taken immediately to the proper reformatory, penitentiary, district workhouse or labor colony. Thus the number of persons in county jails in idleness would be greatly reduced.

5. Only persons charged with serious offenses and crimes and awaiting trial would be left in county jail; and each prisoner would be saved from contamination by being placed in a cell so constructed that he could not see nor converse with any other prisoner; but he would be under the watch and influence of proper persons appointed by the authorities.

V. Outside Influences. Suitable provisions should be made, in the character of sheriffs, jailers and guards, and by visitors from without, to influence the prisoners in confinement by conversation, reading and proper recreations.

VI. Administration. All officers who come in contact with prisoners should be paid adequate salaries, and the fee system should be abolished as a source of corruption and injustice. No one who has to deal with prisoners should be permitted to sell them food or luxuries.

VII. Discipline. Rules of conduct of prisoners should be drawn up by a state central authority to prevent arbitrary treatment of prisoners. Disciplinary measures should be defined and limited by the same authority.

REPORTER LOOKING FOR WORK HAD THREE OFFERS

Also Had Chance to Work as Substitute Fireman.

"No Orders" is Answer at Eleven Employment Offices.

A Herald reporter started out looking for a job this morning.

He didn't find any that looked better to him than the newspaper business.

Out of fourteen employment bureaus visited, three offered him work. Pulpwood and logging camps were the inducements offered. The fire department said it could take him as a substitute fireman, if he passed the required examination. A teamster and a wagon worker were also wanted by the department. The labor bureau of the Builders' exchange said if he was a competent carpenter they could place him all right.

The first place visited was the state free employment office, located on Fifth avenue west, just below First street, and run by James Walsh. Mr. Walsh knew the reporter, so he didn't think it wise to ask him for a job, even if a three-days' growth of beard, and a disreputable looking suit of old clothes did give him the air of a lumberjack. Twenty-two men, of all nationalities, sizes and descriptions, filled the office. Some looked fairly intelligent, and some didn't look at all that way. The bunch could have kept a live half-dozen barbers busy several hours putting their heads and faces in presentable condition.

"If I were a laboring man looking for a job, what would you offer me?" asked the reporter.

"We haven't a single order on the books; absolutely nothing doing," replied Mr. Walsh.

The reporter elbowed his way through the crowd, passed through the door and drifted down the hill a quarter of a block. A sign over the door of the Zenith Employment company greeted his eye. He entered the office. The proprietor was behind the counter, and one working man was in front of it.

Nothing Doing.

"I am looking for a job," said the reporter, with small hopes of getting one, for no signs of work offered were in evidence, either outside or inside the building.

"No orders," said the man behind the counter. "Don't need a single man for anything. Come around later. We had orders yesterday and the day before and sent out thirty-two men."

The reporter dropped down the hill to the National Employment company, also on Fifth avenue, opposite the Spalding hotel.

No signs offering employment were to be seen. "No orders," said the man behind the counter. "Don't need any men."

Three men were in the place looking for work.

Meagher & Johnson, West Michigan street, just west of Fourth avenue, had no signs in front of their place of business, and no work to offer. The Western Labor Supply company, 411 West Michigan street, said a few teams were needed, and that teamsters would be in demand. Signs to this effect were posted in front of the office.

Two lumberjacks were seated in the Duluth Labor exchange. No signs for work were in evidence. The reporter stood around and looked at steamboat pictures on the walls for ten minutes. No clerk or proprietor appeared behind the counter, and the reporter left, without getting a chance to ask for a job.

There was nothing doing with Olund & Enberg, 505½ West Michigan street, and no signs promising work.

Gets An Offer.

The Duluth Employment company, 507 West Michigan street, wanted a few sawyers and swampers for Cass Lake. The reporter didn't accept the job, although $26 a month and board was offered him.

The Northern Employment company, on Sixth avenue west, just above Michigan street, had places for half a dozen pulpwood cutters, and signs to this effect were posted in front. Nothing else was open there.

Just across the street, in the Peerless Employment company office, three men to do swamping in a small Northern Minnesota camp were hired while the reporter waited for a word with the man behind the counter. The latter readily answered the questions put to him by the men, telling them the work would last three weeks, that their office fee would be $1, and that they would have to pay $1.22 railroad fare.

Paint Still Wet.

The order was for three men only, and after the three had been booked, the sign offering employment in this particular camp was torn down, and the paint on it was not yet dry. Two or three pulpwood cutters were needed to fill the only other order the Peerless man had on his books.

The North Star company, Michigan street and Sixth avenue west, had a sign out asking for one teamster. No other positions were offered the inquirer.

The Pacific Employment company had no signs out, and nothing to offer. The Stack Employment company, 515½ West Michigan street, had no signs out, and no work to offer. The Gilbert company, a few doors away, had the same story to tell.

When questioned, all the agents were pleasant and agreeable, with the same story to tell, that they might have orders later in the day, but that it probably would not take long to fill them. They said this was between seasons, and that it was always quiet at this time of the year, for the logging camps are breaking up, and are ordering scarcely any men, while the railroad work has not yet opened up. They admitted that it was more quiet than usual, however. They said that up to two weeks ago they had a hard time filling some orders, although the town appeared to be full of men. The latter didn't want to work for the wages offered. Twenty-six dollars and board was offered in nearly every instance. In some cases as low as $20 a month has been paid lately.

Big Crowd Drifts In.

Hundreds of men, evidently lumberjacks, throng Michigan street, between Fourth and Sixth avenues west. They drift aimlessly in and out of the employment offices and saloons, and stand on the curb stone, singly and in groups. Probably not half a dozen of them were the worse for liquor this morning. The Missabe morning train from the range added perhaps eighty men to the throng. Every train now is bringing in lumberjacks from camps that have broken up for the season.

The Herald reporter talked with nine or ten of these men. Three said they had made the round of the employment offices, but had found no work, except in one or two places, and that they had not accepted the places offered there because the wages offered were not high enough. A comparison of notes showed the reporter and the men had been offered jobs in the same places, so the reporter was convinced he was getting the same replies as other applicants. The others questioned said they hadn't made the rounds of the offices, but with one or two exceptions they had been in three or four of them.

It will take at least $100,000 to reclaim the ground and erect the statue which Lord Grey has suggested in this connection. Parliament will no doubt be asked for an additional appropriation to assist the battlefield scheme. In the meantime, Lord Grey is getting the schools and educational institutions, Canadian clubs and military and other organizations to interest themselves and to contribute towards the carrying out of a project to which he is lending not only his name and prestige but his best energies.

Historic Points.

While these are the only two battlefields that are directly referred to the commission, it is understood that the commissioners will be asked to give suggestions as to other historic points. There are interesting sites along the Detroit river, extending from Amherstburg to the town of Sandwich and the city of Detroit opposite. A few years ago the Ontario Historical society met there and spent a day reviewing the different objects of interest, and they recommended very strongly that steps be taken to preserve the old fort at the town of Amherstburg. The remains of the old fort are still there, there is a ditch which was used in connection with it, and it was thought that the place might very well be fitted up and preserved to commemorate the very stirring events that in days gone by took place in that neighborhood. Petitions were sent to the government, and they are applauded. The people in that locality are constantly expecting that something will be done by the government. Now that Mackinac has passed into the hands of the Americans, this is perhaps the furthest point west at which Canada can commemorate the old struggle between the two nations. In that district also, Pontiac, in the days of his conspiracy, made his field of battle. Indeed all along the river front was the scene of the last struggle, because the news of the treaty did not reach there for some years after it was signed, and the fighting was still continued with the Indians, not knowing whether the English or the French were supreme. Later on in the war of 1812 Gen. Brock was there, and it was one of the most important points in that contest. A monument has been erected to Brock at Niagara, but nothing has been done to mark his operations on the Detroit river. It was there, too, that Tecumseh, that brave Shawnee, centered his operations, and there is a stone in the old town of Amherstburg on which it is said he stood when exhorting his people to heroism in defense of British supremacy. There are a number of cannon balls that were taken off the schooner Ann, and there are also a great many historical relics in the hands of private persons and of public institutions in the town of Amherstburg which could be obtained to decorate any monument which might be erected to perpetuate the memory of these brave deeds. Afterwards, in the rebellion of 1837, the locality was the scene of further struggle, and the late leader of the Conservatives in the senate, Sir MacKenzie Bowell, was one of those who stood guard there to protect the country. Later, in 1866, during the Fenian raid the same locality was the very center of conflict. A. H. Clark, M. P., Essex, is recommending to the government that serious consideration be given to the petitions that have been sent in from the Ontario Historical association in connection with all these matters.

The Veterans' association of Wentworth, for instance, has also been asking for a grant towards the expense of erecting a monument on the scene of the battlefield of Stony Creek one of the most important events in Canadian history. And the Ladies' Historical association of Wentworth has secured the ground where the battle took place in 1812 and has prepared plans for a monument. A petition is now in the hands of the government for a grant towards erecting the monument.

Away down in Nova Scotia an idea of preserving and marking out the battlefield of the historic past has been put forward with considerable zeal. There are three places which mark epochs in the history of that province which itself resisted confederation with a bitterness and determination which has scarcely yet disappeared. The three places of special import to this province are Annapolis Royal, Louisberg and Fort Beausejour, where the last stand on this continent was made by the French.

LABOR

BUILDING ACTIVITY

Spring Rush Will be Crisis in Open Shop Fight Situation.

The critical period in the open shop fight in Duluth has almost arrived.

The usual activity in spring building is about to commence, and when it does commence there will be an increased demand for men in the building trades. This demand is already beginning to be felt, and additional men are being hired.

It is the hope of organized labor that the contractors will find themselves so hard pressed for help that they will be compelled to recognize the unions by hiring union men under union contract terms. They base their hope largely upon the fact that all over the country, and particularly in this section of the West, building operations become active at about the same time as they do in Duluth, if not somewhat earlier. This means there will be an increased demand for men in other cities and towns, and that the surplus from which Duluth contractors might hope to draw will be proportionately reduced.

The contractors still maintain that they are meeting with no difficulty in getting men, and that they will have no trouble even in the busy season. They assert that they will be able to get all the help they want right here in Duluth, for they claim the men have been out of work for so long that many of them are anxious to get back, even under open shop conditions. The Builders' exchange says It will give preference to Duluth men, and will advertise for men needed locally every time before seeking elsewhere for them.

Labor leaders deny that there is any weakening in their ranks. Benefits are still being paid regularly, and it is claimed members of union labor show no indications of a desire to give up the struggle without winning a victory. They say the attitude of the Builders' exchange in offering work to Duluth men first is not brought about so much by a friendly feeling toward Duluth men as by knowledge that possible shortage in the skilled labor market elsewhere may make it hard to get outsiders to come to Duluth to work under the open shop rule.

It is understood that more contracts for the erection of new buildings in Duluth this spring and summer have been let this year than up to the same time last year. This is taken to presage a season of unusual activity in building. Contractors are claiming a 15 to 25 per cent reduction in cost of building owing to the open shop, saying the difference is not due to any reduction in wages, but to increased efficiency and industry under open shop rules.

Logging camps are beginning to break up in Northern Minnesota, and every incoming train has its quota of lumberjacks. They are arriving at the rate of 100 or more a day. Some are going right on through to Minneapolis and St. Paul, while others are stopping in Duluth, believing this to be the more important labor center.

Of course these men have money, and will not be subjects for the bread line until it is gone. Just how long it will be before it is gone depends largely upon the disposition of the men who earned it by a winter's toil in the woods. Some will spend all their savings in a night or two of riotous living, and others, made cautious by the low wages and scarcity of labor, will be a little more careful of their cash, and will make it go farther.

The Women's Label league is increasing its membership right along, and is doing a lot of good work in the union label movement. The influence of this work is already being noticed in the stocks of goods in local stores, it is said.

LIVED IN THREE CENTURIES VIGOROUS AND STRONG AT 108

MRS. MARY WILKINS, 108 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Mary Wilkins of Remington, Ind., mother of Dr. John A. Wilkins of Delta, Ind., is one of the oldest residents of the state, having lived in three centuries and being in her 109th year.

She was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, September 29th, 1799, and came to this country with her husband in 1840. She is the mother of four children all living. At the present time she is visiting a daughter in Indiana and is in splendid health. She enjoyed an automobile ride a few days ago and was greatly pleased at the speed. Mrs. Wilkins remembers the crowning of Queen Victoria, and enjoys telling of the experiences and conditions of a hundred years ago.

On January 18th, Margaret Watson, daughter of Mrs. Wilkins sent the following letter from her mother:

"DEAR MR. DUFFY: I want to tell you about your medicine, it is doing me so much good. I am now a very old woman. I have passed my 108th birthday. Since taking your Pure Malt Whiskey my appetite is better, and I am stronger. I rest better and my daughter who is 75 years old, says I am getting younger every day. I feel that your Whiskey is a food and that it will keep me alive for a great many years more. Your Malt Whiskey makes me think of the whiskey they make in Ireland. You may put this in the paper if you want to."

Thousands of letters like Mrs. Wilkins' are received from grateful men and women who cannot say too much in praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the benefit derived from its use.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel throughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Dr. R. Curran, Consulting Physician, for free copy illustrated medical booklet and free advice. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Boston Transcript: The Buffalo bishop who calls upon all spinsters of marriageable age to take husbands evidently expects them to improve leap year privileges at their face value.

St. Louis Times: When a distinguished New York bishop advises spinsters to pray for husbands he merely places his official sanction upon a habit that many of them have long practiced.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press: The women of a St. Louis church have combined to boycott their preacher because he has archaic views. He is opposed to kissing, dancing and the holding of hands. He declares that dancing is a cardinal sin and kissing is an awful thing; that the man who kisses a girl should be shot. The women announce that they not only will not listen to his sermons, but will contribute nothing toward the support of his church. It is not expected that they will buy guns with the money they save.

St. Louis Republic: The vestrymen of a church in New York state are investigating the case of the rector of their parish. The charge is that he escorted one of his fair young parishioners home one evening a few weeks ago. Everything seems to have been lovely until they approached the house, and he asked if he might kiss her good-night. The young woman did not assent and the parson apologized for asking. The young woman has since withdrawn from the church The vestrymen, no doubt think that a man who has no more sense than to ask permission under such circumstances, needs investigation.

AMONG THE PLANTS

March is the main seed-sowing month, but quite a number came after some earth and began too early, and are asking advice and wanting to know what to do with the sickly things they have, so as to make them strong and sturdy. Well, it cannot be done, so the best way would be to dump the whole outfit and start over again, and it is plenty soon enough for those who have no greenhouse or hot bed.

Don't use any fertilizing material, but just good earth, thoroughly mixed with clean sand and run through the coal sieve, to take out the lumps. It must not be too wet. Neither go to the other extreme and have it too dry, but get it in good workable condition, fine and mellow. Use a box; don't use a flowerpot, it dries out too soon. The way we do here is to fill a flat box, smooth it off; then the seeds are sown and pressed down with a piece of flat wood; then it is gently watered, care being used not to float the seeds into lumps. Some fine, dry sand is sifted on by the fingers until the seeds cannot be seen, and the box is covered with a pane of glass laid across two sticks. No water is put on after the seeds are covered. The moisture comes to the top from below. Then the flat box is placed in a temperature of about 60 degs. nights; in the sunshine, 75 degs., and no more care is necessary other than to remove the glass as soon as the young seedlings show themselves. Then full exposure is given them and a little lower temperature, and we seldom have any plants damp off. As soon as they get large enough to handle, the tiny plants are rese: in other flat boxes.

Now, just a plain word about plants. Don't aim after great big ones to set out in a Duluth garden. Grow them just as cool as you can and give plenty of fresh air, so as to make them short-jointed and stocky. The average buyer wants everything big, and will often pass over what a grower would call a perfect plant to get a great big overgrown one, and the plant-grower is almost forced to keep his plants too warm and moist, or force them into bloom just to please the buying public. But the cooler-grown plant outgrows the other very quickly, once it is planted out in the garden. Now grow something for yourselves; it is interesting, and you will enjoy it much more than anything you can buy.

LABOR

BUILDING ACTIVITY

Spring Rush Will be Crisis in Open Shop Fight Situation.

The critical period in the open shop fight in Duluth has almost arrived.

The usual activity in spring building is about to commence, and when it does commence there will be an increased demand for men in the building trades. This demand is already beginning to be felt, and additional men are being hired.

It is the hope of organized labor that the contractors will find themselves so hard pressed for help that they will be compelled to recognize the unions by having union men under union contract terms. They base their hope largely upon the fact that all over the country, and particularly in this section of the West, building operations become active at about the same time as they do in Duluth, if not somewhat earlier. This means there will be an increased demand for men in other cities and towns, and that the surplus from which Duluth contractors might hope to draw will be proportionately reduced.

The contractors still maintain that they are meeting with no difficulty in getting men, and that they will have no trouble even in the busy season. They assert that they will be able to get all the help they want right here in Duluth, for they claim the men have been out of work for so long that many of them are anxious to get back, even under open shop conditions. The Builders' exchange says it will give preference to Duluth men, and will advertise for men needed locally every time before seeking elsewhere for them.

Labor leaders deny that there is any weakening in their ranks. Benefits are still being paid regularly, and it is claimed members of union labor show no indications of a desire to give up the struggle without winning a victory. They say the attitude of the Builders' exchange in offering work to Duluth men first is not brought about so much by a friendly feeling toward Duluth men as by knowledge that possible shortage in the skilled labor market elsewhere may make it hard to get outsiders to come to Duluth to work under the open shop rule.

It is understood that more contracts for the erection of new buildings in Duluth this spring and summer have been let this year than up to the same time last year. This is taken as a presage a season of unusual activity in building. Contractors are claiming a 15 to 25 per cent reduction in cost of building owing to the open shop, saying the difference is not due to any reduction in wages, but to increased efficiency and industry under open shop rules.

Logging camps are beginning to break up in Northern Minnesota, and every incoming train has its quota of lumberjacks. They are arriving at the rate of 100 or more a day. Some are going right on through to Minneapolis and St. Paul, while others are stopping in Duluth, believing this to be the more important labor center.

Of course these men have money, and will not be subjects for the bread line until it is gone. Just how long it will be before it is gone depends largely upon the disposition of the men who earned it by a winter's toil in the woods. Some will spend all their savings in a night or two of riotous living, and others, made cautious by the low wages and scarcity of labor, will be a little more careful of their cash, and will make it go farther.

The Women's Label league is increasing its membership right along, and is doing a lot of good work in the union label movement. The influence of this work is already being noticed in the stocks of goods in local stores, it is said.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Boston Transcript: The Buffalo bishop who calls upon all spinsters of marriageable age to take husbands evidently expects them to improve leap year privileges at their face value.

St. Louis Times: When a distinguished New York bishop advises spinsters to pray for husbands he merely places his official sanction upon a habit that many of them have long practiced.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press: The women of a St. Louis church have combined to boycott their preacher because he has archaic views. He is opposed to kissing, dancing and the holding of hands. He declares that dancing is a cardinal sin and kissing is an awful thing; that the man who kisses a girl should be shot. The women announce that they not only will not listen to his sermons, but will contribute nothing toward the support of his church. It is not expected that they will buy guns with the money they save.

St. Louis Republic: The vestrymen of a church in New York state are investigating the case of the rector of their parish. The charge is that he escorted one of his fair young parishioners home one evening a few weeks ago. Everything seems to have been lovely until they approached the house, and he asked if he might kiss her good-night. The young woman did not assent and the parson apologized for asking. The young woman has since withdrawn from the church. The vestrymen, no doubt think that a man who has no more sense than to ask permission under such circumstances, needs investigation.

LIVED IN THREE CENTURIES VIGOROUS AND STRONG AT 108

MRS. MARY WILKINS, 108 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Mary Wilkins of Remington, Ind., mother of Dr. John A. Wilkins of Delta, Ind., is one of the oldest residents of the state, having lived in three centuries and being in her 109th year.

She was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, September 29th, 1799, and came to this country with her husband in 1840. She is the mother of four children all living. At the present time she is visiting a daughter in Indiana and is in splendid health. She enjoyed an automobile ride a few days ago and was greatly pleased at the speed. Mrs. Wilkins remembers the crowning of Queen Victoria, and enjoys telling of the experiences and conditions of a hundred years ago.

On January 18th, Margaret Watson, daughter of Mrs. Wilkins sent the following letter from her mother:

"DEAR MR. DUFFY: I want to tell you about your medicine, it is doing me so much good. I am now a very old woman. I have passed my 108th birthday. Since taking your Pure Malt Whiskey my appetite is better, and I am stronger. I rest better and my daughter who is 75 years old, says I am getting younger every day. I feel that your Whiskey is a food and that it will keep me alive for a great many years more. Your Malt Whiskey makes me think of the whiskey they make in Ireland. You may put this in the paper if you want to."

Thousands of letters like Mrs. Wilkins' are received from grateful men and women who cannot say too much in praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the benefit derived from its use.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel throughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Dr. R. Curran, Consulting Physician, for free copy illustrated medical booklet and free advice. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

AMONG THE PLANTS

March is the main seed-sowing month, but quite a number came after some earth and began too early, and are asking advice and wanting to know what to do with the sickly things they have, so as to make them strong and sturdy. Well, it cannot be done, so the best way would be to dump the whole outfit and start over again, and it is plenty soon enough for those who have no greenhouse or hot bed.

Don't use any fertilizing material, but just good earth, thoroughly mixed with clean sand and run through the coal sieve, to take out the lumps. It must not be too wet. Neither go to the other extreme and have it too dry, but get it in good workable condition, fine and mellow. Use a box; don't use a flowerpot, it dries out too soon. The way we do here is to fill a flat box, smooth it off, then the seeds are sown and pressed down with a piece of flat wood; then it is gently watered, care being used not to float the seeds into lumps. Some fine, dry sand is sifted on by the fingers until the seeds cannot be seen, and the box is covered with a pane of glass laid across two sticks. No water is put on after the seeds are covered. The moisture comes to the top from below. Then the flat box is placed in a temperature of about 60 degs. nights; in the sunshine, 75 degs., and no more care is necessary other than to remove the glass as soon as the young seedlings show themselves. Then full exposure is given them and a little lower temperature, and we seldom have any plants damp off. As soon as they get large enough to handle, the tiny plants are reset in other flat boxes.

Now, just a plain word about plants. Don't aim after great big ones to get out in a Duluth garden. Grow them just as cool as you can and give plenty of fresh air, so as to make them short-jointed and stocky. The average buyer wants everything big, and will often pass over what a grower would call a perfect plant to get a great big overgrown one, and the plant-grower is almost forced to keep his plants too warm and moist, or force them into bloom just to please the buying public. But the cooler-grown plant outgrows the other very quickly, once it is planted out in the garden. Now grow something for yourselves; it is interesting, and you will enjoy it much more than anything you can buy.

SPORTS OF THE WEEK.

PLANS FOR KELLEY NINE

Duluth to Have Strong Semi-Professional Ball Team.

Amateurs Look Forward to the Opening of the Season.

Clyde Ziegler, manager of the sporting goods department of the Kelley Hardware company, is laying his baseball plans. Zieg doesn't intend to be a minute behind the game. Just as soon as the weather makes it possible, he will trot out the finest squad of semi-professional ball players Duluth has ever seen, and when the season gets under way, the wearers of the Kelley uniform will be ready for a good season.

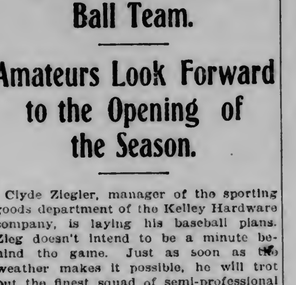
The recruiting of his team is Ziegler's principal worry now. Charley Schaefer, last year's catcher, has deserted to the Fitwells. McGraw goes with Brandon of the Northern league, and Sam Meneice also leaves. It is probable that one or two of the other boys will transfer allegiance, leaving the Kelley management to get some new men.

"I'm going to give every Duluth boy who applies a chance to make the team," said Ziegler this morning. "I intend to get the squad out as soon as possible, and by the time we play the first game I will know just where I am at in the matter of players. If I can't gather a team from the Duluth amateurs, I know where I can get semi-professionals to wear our uniforms. I have my lines on several men out of town now, and if the local boys don't show the necessary ability, I will begin importing.

"Let me tell you one thing. I will not hand out a uniform unless I know that the wearer can play baseball. I'm going to have a team this year that can go against Hibbing and Virginia and not be walked over. We are going to be in for the undisputed championship of the independent teams of Northern Minnesota, and the boys must play ball to land it."

Ziegler is now dickering for a game or two with the Duluth White Sox before the opening of the league season. The Sox will be home about May 10 from their training trip, and will play two or three games here before the season opens. Hibbing will probably get two dates and the Kelleys the other. Ziegler figures on having his team in shape by the first game. He can't forget the defeat the Kelleys gave the Sox on the opening day last year, and is anxious to repeat it.

The other amateurs of the city are already lining up their men. Charley Schaefer will captain the Fitwells and he will have a strong squad. The Columbias, Scott-Graffs, Oak Halls and Larsons will be in the filed again, besides a score or more of other teams of more or less baseball ability.



There's no disputing the fact that the league system is the only satisfactory one for settling championships. It has been proved often enough to impress it on everybody, but it appears that outside of professional circuits, few realize it.

In baseball, more than in any other sport, independent teams have trouble in settling their differences. They scrap over dates all during the season; they fight over umpires and fight the umpires when they do get them; everybody is claiming first honors all during the year, and at the finish nobody has the championship and everybody claims it.

The management of independent teams in Duluth and vicinity would do well to consider the league question well before the baseball season begins. Hibbing and Virginia, in a spirit of cheekiness, declare they will not stand for a league under any consideration. They think, for some unaccountable reason, that they are in a higher baseball sphere than the independent teams of Duluth, Bovey, Coleraine and three or four other range towns. Nevretheless those other towns count them in the championship race and there is no better way for Hibbing and Virginia to elliminate them than by beating them out in league fashion.

The Fitwells and Kelleys in Duluth are counted upon as about as fast as anything Hibbing and Virginia can gather together. Coleraine and Bovey will probably go together to secure a good team. Chisholm, Cloquet or some other range town might be brought in to make the sixth team and the league would be a corking good one for Saturday and Sunday ball.

Bad weheme is a plausible one. The teams will all be of about the same caliber. They will meet during the season at different times, anyway, and they might better have the dates pre-arranged than scrabble over them all during the season. They would have governing officials and a system of choosing umpires The row, into which Hibbing and Virginia worked themselves last fall, would be impossible. Everybody would be better pleased and the league would be a big boost for semi-professional baseball in Northern Minnesota.

Some pin-headed sporting writers, with nothing else to do during the lull in sporting events prior to the opening of the baseball season, are speculating on the chances of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt match being a fake and the effect a fiasco would have on the game. The stories are spreading broadcast over the country and they are really amusing. They say it would kill wrestling for all time in the United States.

Of course, it would. But does anybody presume for a minute that Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt are so blind to the interests of the sport, by which they make their living, that they would attempt to delude a public, which is ever on the alert to discover anything crooked in a wrestling match? The people do like to be humbugged, but you can't fool all of them all the time. They have been fooled so often by cheap wrestlers and equally cheap promoters that they are on the lookout for anything wrong when two grapplers get together and a slip in the match at Chicago would be the end of wrestling for all time.

There's no sport in which faking is more easy than wrestling. Pretty hitches can be broken with a show of cleverness, which might deceive even the initiated, but in the immense crowd which will gather at Chicago, there will be somebody to discover anything shady in the match and it would be all day with Frank Gotch, George Hackensmidt and every other wrestler. It isn't likely Gotch and the Russian are so near-sighter. As a further guarantee that the match is to be on the square, Hackenschmidt has said that there will be no second meeting. Let them do their best at Chicago and stick to that arrangement and the American public will finally believe that there are two top-notch heads-spiners who can work on the level.

Tommy Burns is getting another dose of ridicule from the sporting writers who dub him the champion lemon picker of the world. He is held up on all sides as the man who can induce more dubs to get into the ring with him for bigger prizes than any fighter who ever crawled between the ropes.

Tommy's unsportsmanlike conduct on different occasions has soured a good many true sports on him. He is more unpopular than any champion ever was, with the possible exception of Battling Nelson. But, despite the fact that Burns has met a lot of quinces, he must be given credit for one thing. He has fared better in England than any American fighter, who ever crossed the pond. He has licked big men, champions of their own countries, with one blow and he must have something to be able to do that. A man, who can put out a 200-pounder with one blow of his fist, must have some fighting ability, or he couldn't do it. That's a settled fact.

It's about time to give it to Burns. He has met everybody but Johnson and picked lemons, because he was in a lemon orchard and there were no peaches around. He is coming to this side of the water now to meet a dusky peach, who may also turn out to be a citron. He's coming here as the champion fighter of the world, and, though Tommy Brusso-Burns, himself, may not be respected, his ability and achievements must be and it's time some of the knockers let up. If Jack Johnson wins, there will be time enough for the "I told you so" crowd to get busy.

"Farmer" Burns, the same old boy, who has been wrestling almost as long as the memory of ordinary man, defeated Fred Beell at Omaha the other night. Can anybody imagine that, unless they saw it? The best little wrestler in the world, who has more science than Gotch ever thought of having, going down before a decrepit patriarch. Beell protested to the referee and claimed the fall was an accident. Perhaps it was. Beell has been known as the one square wrestler. But on the face of things, it's awfully queer. Perhaps the man, who sent out the dispatches, mixed the names.

BILL PAPKE CHAMPION

"Illinois Thunderbolt" Has First Claim to Middleweight Title.

Ketchell in Second Place With Hugo Kelly Third.

By W. A. PHELON.

Chicago, March 21.—Billy Papke, middle-weight champion. That is how the Spring Valley youth spells it now, and his claim to the title seems valid and proper—at least as much so as the claim of any other contestant. Stanley Ketchel makes the same claim, but, taken all in all, Papke has a better right to the title, irrespective of the question of superiority or inferiority to the Grand Rapids boy. Ketchel has not yet defeated such a man as Hugo Kelly. His best victory was over Joe Thomas, and Joe was a half-and-half—part middleweight and part welter—and without any title of any kind.

Mike ("Twin") Sullivan had some sort of a welterweight claim, but that didn't count at 158 pounds. Kelly and Papke fought at 158, ringside, and there could not be one word said against their being legitimate middles, boxing at a legitimate figure. Kelly's past record entitles him to precedence over Ketchel—no chance to dispute it. Therefore, by all law and logic, Papke is middleweight champion.

Tommy Ryan, of course, rises to dispute and say that he and he alone is the middleweight leader, but his claim is much like that of Jack McAuliffe, who, for years after he was fat and overweight, continued to claim the lightweight title. The best that Tommy Ryan could ask would be that the title should be held in abeyance till he can get into shape to fight for it. He has no right to block the road of such young men as Papke and Ketchel without delivering some goods to satisfy the public.

It is Billy Papke, middleweight champion by precedence and actual record, with Ketchel second claimant and Kelly third in rank. Sam Langford would grade right in with the bunch, if he were only white. None of the three is likely to give Samuel a chance, and he must wander disconsolate upon the outskirts.

Papke does not wish to fight again till he concludes a lot of theatrical dates. Kelly cannot fight again till his broken arm heals, and so the field is left temporarily open for Ketchel. If Tommy Ryan really wants to keep his claws on that title why not let him meet Ketchel somewhere?

Malachy Hogan says that both men could have been disqualified at Milwaukee the other night, and that they might have got it in the neck had he been the third man in the ring—Papke for butting, Kelly for holding on.

Grover Hayes gets Owen Moran after all—if he beats Spike Robson tonight. Moran came into camp a couple of days ago and agreed to meet Hayes the first Saturday in April at the National club. Grover will devote all his energy to erasing Mr. Robson, that he may have a clear title to the fight with Moran.

Frank Mulkern has arranged the following card for his first show in Milwaukee: Freddie Welsh and Dick Hyland, Indian Joe Gregg vs. Jack Dougherty, and Kid Taylor vs. Ad Wolgast.

O'DEA GETS MENEICE

Big Outfielder Released to Brandon by Columbus Club.

Kuehnow Leaves for the West on a Scouting Tour.

Artie O'Dea, manager of the Brandon team of the Northern league, has been notified by the management of the Columbus team of the American association that San Menelce, the Duluth outfielder, has been released to Brandon and Artie rejoices. He will go after Sam's signature to a contract immediately and hopes to land the big fellow.

Menelce will be a mountain of strength in the Brandon outfield. He is one of the heaviest hitters who ever played in the Northern league, and in the season of 1906, when with Winnipeg, led the league by a big margan. He only played a few games last year, performing with Duluth and hitting the ball at his old clip. He kept in shape by playing regularly with the Kelley Hardware semi-professional nine.

The fever is on Menelce again this year. He is too good a man to stay out of baseball, and his friends would be glad to see him in a Brandon uniform. O'Dea is anxious to sign him and hopes to induce the big fellow to break away from home associations for a few months.

A. W. Kuenow leaves tonight for Omaha and Sioux City on his scouting trip in the Western league camps. Omaha will report Monday and Sioux City Wednesday, and he will get a chance to size up the men, who are frozen out of the Western league clubs. Several good men have been promised him and, being right on the ground, he will have a good chance to get them. After the trip, it is probable no more men will be signed before the team reports. The men wanted will be ordered to go to Aurora, Ill., April 25, and the squad will begin to get in shape immediately. The weeding out process will be carried out on the trip, and Morrow will strike Duluth with only twelve or thirteen men.

New Company Wins.

The members of Company E, M. N. G., the new military company recently organized in Duluth, showed ability as indoor baseball players last night, when they defeated Company C by a score of 8 to 2. The exhibition was witnessed by a good crowd and was one of the best of the year at the Armory. The batteries were Pfitzenmaier and Dash for Company E and Clark and Foster for Company C.

Contest Between Barney Reilly and Arnold Olson Interesting.

Ole Feiring and John Evenson to Go After Record.

An Irishman must have a lot of nerve to tackle a Scandinavian at the latter's own game, but that is what Barney Reilly of Coleraine will do tomorrow, when he goes against Arnold Olson, the West Duluth youngster, in a ski jumping contest at Chester hill. The contest is arousing interest among the followers of the sport. Not that it will be as spectacular or the jumps as long as those of the professional riders, but because the boys are Americans and Barney is a rank outsider at the ski riding game.

Young Reilly is the sensation of the season of 1908. Ski riding has hardly reached the stage in the United States where natives of this country are the stars of the game. It is confined almost exclusively to Scandinavians born across the water, but the Americans are coming forward.

Olson is by far the best of the Duluth boys. He is only 14 years of age, but he is able to compete on an equal basis with mature riders. He has jumped 102 feet and stood, in contest this year, and has covered 107 feet and fallen. Young Reilly has a record of 109 feet on the standing jump, but is smaller than Olson and is handicapped by his lack of weight. The contest between the two boys will be one of the big events of tomorrow's benefit tournament.

The tournament, the proceeds of which will go to the Duluth riders, will bring together the stars of the hill again. Ole Feiring and John Evenson, American champion, are matched, and they should bring out some good jumping. Evenson holds the record of 122 feet and Feiring is after it. Under the hill conditions, longer jumps are possible than those made last Sunday, and Feiring expects to pull off something big tomorrow.

Besides the Duluth riders, Ole Mangseth, Olaf Junnum, Ole Westgard and Julius Kolstad, the Coleraine riders, will take part. Asmund Melgard, the Hibbing rider, is an entrant, and there will be several from Superior. The hill is in good condition and the spectacular events of last Sunday will be repeated.

Among the attractions tomorrow is Paul Braaten, champion rider of Norway from 1899 to 1903. Braaten comes from Battle Lake, Minn., and is brought here to take part in the tournament in order that his style may be compared with that of those who have made their records on American hills. In Norway the champion rider must be an all-around man. The ski riding there is largely of the cross-country order, where a man must be a good ski runner as well as a jumper. Braaten's records as a jumper may not be as good as those of the American riders, and he will not get a chance to show his ski running abilities tomorrow. The American riders will probably beat him on the jumps, but his form will be compared to theirs, and there are many followers of the sport here who are anxious to see him.

The ski riders have given almost as many farewells this years as the everwaving Patti, but it is announced that this will positively be the last. The special attractions are so many for tomorrow that a good crowd is expected to gather and show its appreciation of the efforts of the Duluth riders, who have taken down the big money in every tournament held in the Northwest this year.

INDOOR RECORD IS LOWERED

Harlow of C. A. A. Runs Fast Two Miles at Kansas City.

Kansas City, March 21.—In the indoor track and field meet of the Kansas City Athletic club in Convention hall last night the K. C. A. C. captured the point trophy with 23 points. Chicago Athletic club won second place with 11 points.

The Chicago team won the relay from the Kansas City quartet in 3:34.

Missouri was defeated by Kansas City in the two-mile relay.

The feature of the events of the entire meet was the two-mile special, in which Harlow, the long-distance runner of the Chicago Athletic club, lowered the indoor A. A. U. record for the distance in the time of 9 minutes and 47 seconds.

Taylor of the Chicago A. C. (scratch) won the final of the 50-yard handicap dash; Irons, C. A. A. (1 foot), second. Time, :26 3-5.

Bowling, unattached (5 feet), won the final in the 50-yard hurdle; McDonald, Nebraska university (6 feet), second. Time, :07 4-5.

Other results were:

880-yard run—Heydon, K. C. A. C. (70 yards), won; H. E. Krause, Baker university (45 yards), second; W. L. Davis, Nebraska university (40 yards), third. Time, 1:5.

FROM ONE TIE INTO ANOTHER

Noon Class Defeats Night Five in Y. M. C. A. League.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Horak's	8	4	.667
Deighton's	6	6	.500
Noon class	6	6	.500
Night class	4	8	.333

By defeating the night class by a score of 17 to 11 last night, the noon class team of the Y. M. C. A. Basketball league pulled itself out of the tie for last place and into a tie for second place. The game was a good one, somewhat rough, and hotly contested all the way. Both teams had much at stake and worked hard for the victory.

The victory of Deighton's team over Horak's this week pulled Horak down again and gave the other team a chance for the cup, which was put up by the Northern Hardware company, as the emblem of the league championship. The cup is a beautiful trophy, and adds interest to the remainder of the race, which promises to be fast.

CUT DOWN GAMES.

Harvard Faculty Votes for Curtailment After Stormy Session.

Cambridge, Mass., March 21.—After a stormy meeting, which lasted until midnight, the Harvard faculty voted last night to instruct the Harvard athletic committee to reduce the number of intercollegiate contests at the university. The following statement was given out:

"The Harvard faculty, believing that the present frequency of intercollegiate games is injurious to the scholarly interests of which it has charge, urgently recommends to the committee on the regulation of athletic sports at Harvard that it shall seek by means of an agreement with competing colleges or otherwise, to reduce considerably in the coming year its program of intercollegiate contests."

CABLE CHESS MATCH BEGINS

Representatives of Eastern and British Universities Play.

Philadelphia, March 21.—Play in the eighth annual intercollegiate cable chess match between American and British universities was begun this morning. The American players are quartered in Huston hall on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania and at the opening hour there was a large gathering of spectators watching the play. The Britishers won the toss for the move and choose to play the white on the odd numbered boards.

In messages of greeting which were exchanged between the contestants, the line up was announced as follows:

Boards 1, W. H. Hughes, University of Pennsylvania, America; vs. Roughton, Oxford, Great Britain.

Boards 2, L. J. Wolff, Columbia, America; vs. Illingworth, Cambridge, Great Britain.

Boards 3, K. S. Johnston, Harvard, America; vs. Stower, Cambridge, Great Britain.

Boards 4, H. Blumberg, Columbia, America; vs. Lob, Oxford, Great Britain.

Boards 5, I. Ash, University of Pennsylvania, America; vs. Woodhouse, Cambridge, Great Britain.

Boards 6, Charles Williams, Princeton, America; vs. Petrie, Oxford, Great Britain.

The American play white on Boards 2, 4 and 6.

The following openings were adopted:

First board, Ruy Lopez.
Second board, Ruy Lopez.
Third board, Ruy Lopez.
Fourth board, Ruy Lopez.
Fifth board, Ruy Lopez.
Sixth board, Petroff's defensive.

Wolff today pitted against the same man he was contesting in a game in last year's cable match at New York and as on the last occasion he played a Ruy Lopez. The first seven moves made today were identical with those in the game day were identical with those in the game played last year. On his eight turn, however, Illingworth, who lost the game last year, changed his tactics, though strictly on book variations.

MICHIGAN WITHDRAWS.

Wolverines Will Not Compete in Conference Games.

Chicago, March 21.—At a meeting here yesterday of the managing committee of the Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association, the official notice was received of the withdrawal of Michigan from the conference. That university will not be represented at the conference games to be held in this city, June 6.

Reports were received from a number of non-conference colleges signifying their intention to compete in the games. Among these are:

Oberlin, Knox, Beloit, Ames, Grinnell, Lake Forest, Morningside of Sioux City and the University of Washington.

Announcements were also made that it is expected that Stanford university and the University of California will also send teams to the games.

DEMAREST LOSES FIRST.

Chicago Billiard Player Defeated by Harry Wright.

Chicago, March 21.—J. F. Poggenburg of New York won the afternoon game in the national amateur billiard tournament, defeating Clarence Jackson of Chicago by the score of 400 to 280. Poggenburg's game was the strongest he has played in the tournament. He had good control of the balls throughout, making a run of 116 in his sixth inning. His average was 21 1-19.

Jackson's average was 14 14-19.

Calvin Demarest of Chicago, last night, lost his first game in the tournament for the national amateur championship, being defeated by H. Wright of San Francisco by a score of 400 to 267. Demarest was decidedly off stroke, and in addition the luck of the game was all against him.

LAMY SPEED SENSATION

Saranac Lake Boy Has Wonderful Skating Record.

Many of His Marks Have Never Been Surpassed on Ice.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 21.—Of all the great speed skaters Edmund Lamy, who is only 17 years old, stands out prominently as one of the fleetest racers who ever competed on the ice. During the winter he has won race after race against skaters many years his senior, and he comes close to being the world's amateur skating champion.

Lamy was born at Saranac Lake, a district where skating is one of the chief wintor sports. He got his first experience on Flower Lake and in the Saranac Lake Skating association. Three years ago, when just 14 years old, he won the junior International championship for boys under 16 years of age at Montreal, and incidentally lowered the world's record for the mile by 17 seconds, speeding over the mile in 3 minutes 3 seconds. In the junior 16-year-old class at Montreal in February, 1907, he won the record meoal by lowering the time for the mile to 2 minutes 48 seconds. On that day he won the world's championship, and a week later he captured the national mile championship at Newburg.

More honors came to Lamy on Washington's birthday a year ago when he won the world's one and five mile indoor titles in Pittsburg. This year the youthful speedster has swept everything before him. At Saranac Lake on Jan. 29 he had an unfortunate fall in the half-mile race, but he subsequently won the three-mile contest. He proved the hero of the day at Montreal on Feb. 3, when he took the half-mile and three-mile championships. The following day in Montreal he won the mile and two-mile handicaps from large fields, though he was back on the honor mark. He made a new record for the eight-lap course of 2:40 2-5.

Then he came to Pittsburg, where on Feb. 6 he was first in the indoor championships for the quarter and two miles. The next night he lowered the indoor record for the mile in both his heats and the final, his time being 2 minutes 40 seconds.

Lamy took part in a field day on Orange lake, Newburg, on Lincoln's birthday, when the Eastern Amateur skating championships were the attraction. He won every race, including the quarter, the half-mile, the mile, two-mile, and five-mile championships. In Duquesne Garden, this city, on Feb. 9, he made a new indoor record for two miles, fairly flying over the ice in 5 minutes 48 3-5 seconds. When 16 years old he skated five miles in 15 minutes 9 seconds. Both of these records have never been surpassed by either amateur or professional.

"DIXIE" IS CHAMPION.

Motor Boat Makes Fast Time at Palm Beach.

Palm Beach, March 21.—Commodore J. Schroder's Dixie of Jersey City yesterday captured the Dewar shield offered for the fastest mile and established a new record for this course and lowered the record made on the Hudson River course, under the auspices of the Marlboro club. The Dixie's miles, six in number, and with the three runs with the tide and three runs against, was 2:18 3-5, 2:20 2-5, 2:19 4-5, 2:19 3-5, 2:18 4-5 and 2:18 3-5.

This makes an average of 29.728 miles per hour. It is faster than the record on the Hudson river, which stands at 29.622 miles an hour. The Dixie won the world's championship.

SHERIDAN SETS MARK.

New York Breaks Record, Which Stood for Eleven Years.

St. Louis, March 21.—Martin Sheridan of the Irish-American Athletic club of New York, last night broke the world's record in the 56-pound weight lift for height with a throw of 15 feet 7 inches at the annual indoor meet at the Jai Alai building, under the auspices of the St. Louis university. The previous record was 15 feet 6⅝ inches. The old record had stood for eleven years.

TYRUS COBB SIGNS

Contract for One Year, But Terms Are Withheld.

Detroit, Mich., March 21.—Tyrus Cobb, champion batter of the American league last season, signed a contract last night to play with the Detroit American league club this year and will join the team at Little Rock, Ark., within a few days.

Cobb had been holding out for a three-year contract at $5,000 per year. The player arrived in town Thursday for a conference with President Frank J. Navin of the club and last evening Mr. Navin announced that an agreement had been signed. Mr. Navin declined to give out the details, saying only that the contract was for one year and that the terms were mutually satisfactory.

Sutter vs. Nygaard.

Charles Sutter, the Proctor lightweight, will go out of his class tonight to wrestle Nels Nygaard of the West end at the Metropolitan opera house. Nygaard weighs about 150 pounds, while Sutter will weigh in at about 135 now. The men have both done considerable wrestling, and the match should be a good one. A match is being made between Sutter and Harris for the lightweight championship of the Head of the Lakes.

Elks vs. U. C. T.

One of the big indoor baseball events of the season will be pulled off at the Armory tonight, when the Elks and the Commercial Travelers will meet. It will be the Elks' first appearance, and the U. C. T. are counting on picking the antlered ones off easily. The Elks have some old stars of the outdoor diamond; they have been practicing faithfully and count on giving the commercial men a severe setback. There will be a large crowd on hand to watch the fun, which will be followed by dancing.

Though defeats by the Blaine high school and Superior normal five put them out of the running for the Head of the Lakes championship, the boys representing the Duluth Y. M. C. A. in the basketball field have had an entirely satisfactory season. Out of fifteen games played, they have won nine and lost six, breaking even with the Nelson Dewey Regulars and Fargo Y. M. C. A., and winning from Bemidji and the St. Paul Y. M. C. A. fives. The victory over Bemidji gave the team the undisputed championship of Northern Minnesota.

The team this year has been about as fast and well-balanced as any squad which ever represented the Duluth Y. M. C. A. All of the boys have played well. There isn't an inferior man on the team. Toward the latter end of the season, when they found their bearings their teamwork developed wonderfully, and in the last four games, which were played against outside teams, no better exhibition of basketball could be asked. They played away from individual starring, and every man was ready to pass the ball at the word. The tactics worked well for the team, and accurate basket-shooting did the rest.

No man has thrown more baskets during the year than Harry C. Dinham, captain and center of the team. Dinham is a white streak in every game. His speed is marvelous, and his opponents ar foerced to watch him more than any other man. He can throw baskets from any angle or position. His work in that respect has worked continually to the success of the team, and his place in the center position would be hard to fill.

Ray Fenton, Charles Ballou, Earl Briggs and Denny Deighton divided the forward work among them. Fenton has won fame in different branches of athletics. He has played baseball, football and hockey, and the reputation he gained for himself in those sports is not detracted from by his work on the basketball floor. He is inclined to rough it some, but his tendencies in that respect have been largely overcome this season. He has been improving all year in basket-throwing and in the last few games scored heavily.

Ballou has not played in many games this year, but when he did, his work was fully up to the standard. He has had long training in local basketball around the Y. M. C. A. and it stood him well in the games this year.

Earl Briggs is an old Y. M. C. A. star, who didn't get in with the regulars until late in the season. He was only in the city temporarily and stepped into the breach when Skelton's injury necessitated the filling of his place. Briggs filled it admirably, putting up a great game at Bemidji, though he had never appeared in the lineup before. He is fast on his feet, watches the ball and throws well for basket.

Deighton took a place with the regulars late in the season, filling Briggs' place. Deighton is the captain of one of the teams in the Y. M. C. A. league and he made good in the regular lineup. Without the training of the year with the regular lineup, he fell into the team play well and his work in the last series was highly satisfactory.

Russell McLean, Eddie Smith, Al Skelton and W. R. Perry played the guard positions during the year, Smith and McLean carrying the heavy work toward the last of the season, McLean started out at forward and starred there, but when the team was rearranged for the game with Bemidji, he was placed at guard and the results were wonderful. He filled the place as though he were made for it, and he wasn't changed afterwards. His work at guard was even more brilliant than at forward and his record in both positions is excellent.

Smith played nearly every game during the year and was a strong pillar of the team. He's rangy, swift and checks his man closely. Few of his opponents got away with clean throws while he was on the job and he was a big factor in keeping scores down.

Skelton's injury, just before the team went to Bemidji was a big handicap. He had been looming up strongly and was counted upon as a great guard. In practice, he fell and sprained his ankle and was unable to play any longer. His loss was deeply felt and it necessitated a rearrangement of the team.

Perry played in only a few of the early games, acting as substitute later.

The team will play one more big game this year. It has fallen behind, financially, on bringing Fargo and St. Paul here, counter attractions injuring the crowds. In order to wipe out the deficit, a game has been arranged between a Y. M. C. A. league team and the regular team. The stars of the league will be picked and the two fives will meet about April 10. The league has been playing great basketball and there are men in every position, who would make up a team to give grand battle to the regular five. The game will be one of the best of the year and the boys expect to draw large enough to clean their slate.

APPRAISERS WILL MEET

Valuations to be Placed on Property Wanted by County.

Old Courthouse Roof is Leaking and Walls Crumbling.

The board of appraisers appointed by the district court to fix the valuation on the property about the corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street, which the county seeks to acquire through condemnation for courthouse purposes, will meet in the office of the courthouse commissioners in the Providence building, March 27, for the purpose of organizing and hearing any of the property owners that may wish to appear. The second meeting of the appraisers will be held April 15.

It is not anticipated that the appraisers will have any difficulty in arriving at fair valuation of the property the county seeks to acquire as prices have already been made on a majority of the lots and the board may, by getting the estimates of local contractors and builders on the buildings, arrive at an average valuation on the various properties which will be confirmed by the court.

The courthouse commission expects to have the plans and specifications for the new building from the Chicago architects by the last of this month, and no time will be lost in getting the same out for figures. It is understood that as soon as the plans and specifications are received there will be a joint meeting of the courthouse commissioners and the county board with a view of reaching some determination as to the plan of action to be followed to raise the additional funds to pay for the building.

The probabilities are that steps will be taken to ask the next legislature to pass a bill authorizing the county to issue certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $800,000 or $1,000,000. The last legislature authorized the issuance of certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $600,000. The plan of issuing certificates of indebtedness was adopted to avoid bonding the county to raise the necessary funds, but since the county board has agreed to follow out the grouping plan and has decided to buy additional ground space at Fifth avenue west and Second street and build a courthouse that will meet the needs of the county for some years to come, the amount of money to be raised by levy and by certificates of indebtedness will not be sufficient to pay for the structure by the time it is completed.

In spite of the efforts of the county board to make the old courthouse tenable until the new building is ready for occupancy the conditions are growing worse. The roofs are leaking badly, even on some of the additions constructed within the past few years. The northeast corner of the building is rapidly crumbling away and there is a possibility that the entire corner will fall out before the county moves into the building. The boilers were condemned long ago.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A second charge has been preferred against Frank W. Lyle, president of the defunct city bank of Dowagiac, Mich., who was arrested Thursday night on the charge of embezzlement of the funds of the Order of Elks. The charge is receiving deposits in his bank after the bank was insolvent.

Several days ago local banks reported that counterfeit $10-bills of the "Buffalo" series had been detected. Secret service officers were called and several people were placed under surveillance. Other arrests are expected.

Charles H. Keep of Buffalo, former assistant secretary of the treasury, and a member of the utilities commission, will be selected, it is said, as the new president of the Knickerbocker Trust company.

Two men were horribly burned and may die, four others were seriously burned and a side of the new Eagle hotel in McKees Rocks, Pa., was destroyed by a fire resulting from a gas explosion early Friday. LA FOLLETTE HAS A TARIFF BILL

Providing a Commission With Power to Suspend Schedules.

Washington, March 20.—If a bill for the creation of a tariff commission, which was introduced today by Senator La Follette, should become a law, it would be competent for the commission and the president, acting together, to suspend any tariff schedule, and put on the free list any article upon which there was such a combination as would control production prices, or wages either, in the United States or in any foreign market. The bill provides for the appointment of a commission of nine members, one from each of the judicial circuits of the Union, and no one of which shall be a member of congress. Not more than five are to be members of any one political party. One is to be skilled in manufacturing, another in agriculture, another in imports, another a representative of labor, the next a skilled lawyer in the tariff laws, the next an expert in tariff and reciprocity, one in the knowledge of production and accounting, another a statistician, who has made a study of the foreign markets, and the last an efficient economist. The members are to receive a salary of $10,000 each, and after the first eleven years of the existence of the commission, each of the members are to be appointed for ten years. The first appointments are arranged to terminate, so that a new member should be appointed every year.

In presenting his bill, Mr. La Follette said he would soon ask the senate for time to speak on the measure. In respect to the section of the bill authorizing the suspension of duties, he said, he had placed that provision there as giving his own views on the tariff, and because he believed congress had a right to legislate along those lines.

COLLINWOOD PARENTS

To Appeal to President for Investigation of School Fire.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 20.—Declaring their belief that no one could be held responsible under the Ohio laws for the fire which destroyed the Collinwood school building, in which 175 children lost their lives, the parents of those who perished, at a meeting held in the village last night, decided to appeal to President Roosevelt for aid in obtaining the enactment of a measure that will result in a federal investigation of the fire.

DEFENSE NEARLY IN.

Kansas City, March 20.—The defense in the case of Gen. Richard A. Horne, vice president and editorial writer of the Kansas City Post, charged with the murder of H. J. Graves, managing editor of that paper, probably will finish its side today. Alienists will be placed on the stand to prove the plea of insanity.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Reports Indicate Greater Activity With More Machinery Running.

New York, March 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade reports indicate a little more activity and the percentage of idle machinery decreases, but more reductions in wages and dividends show that the process of readjustment will take some time. Business is slowly coming to the steel mills, but expectation of lower prices has postponed many orders that will soon be placed. Pig iron is extremely quiet more inquiries being noted than last month, but little actual business is placed. Coke ovens increase output slowly, although normal activity waits for similar conditions at iron furnaces. Railway interests are slowly increasing purchases of locomotives, cars and other equipment, but this department and other heavy lines of steel are much quieter than the lighter forms, such as wire and wire products, tin plate and pipe. Building operations have not revived as rapidly as was hoped, yet the better weather is gradually restoring deferred work, and several public buildings are about to be commenced. Minor metals have advanced, both in the consumption at London and domestic markets.

In the textile industry the most significant feature is the unanimity with which cotton mills, especially in New England have announced a 10 per cent reduction in wages to take effect the end of this month. Jobbers' report restricted orders and there is also complaint regarding collections which tend to make operations more conservative. The trifling export trade in cottons lacks feature, some shipments of sheetings going to South America, prints to Central America. In woollens there has continued but slight improvement. Inactivity continues in the New England footwear industry, factories running on short time, as a rule. Many cities report an output of 40 per cent of full capacity and shipments through Boston are about 25 per cent below a year ago. Best news is received for future delivery. Some increase is reported in the local jobbing trade in spring lines. Leather is more active, although some lines are dull and many dealers are practically shut down. A firmer feeling in the hide market is not accompanied by many actual changes in prices, but larger sales have reduced packers' stocks.

AT USUAL TIME.

M. F. Chalk Expresses Views on the Opening of Navigation.

M. F. Chalk, local government inspector of steam vessel boilers, says that while navigation probably will open at the Head of the Lakes at the usual time, there will be little activity in vessel circles until some time in June. The package freighters will be the only boats of consequence that will be operating to any extent early in the season. The local vessel inspectors are busy getting ready for the opening of navigation. They have thousands of life preservers to inspect and stamp, and a considerable amount of office work to do. During the season they will have 300 vessels to examine in this district.

GRAND PACIFIC HOTEL SCORCHED

Chicago Hostelry Damaged to the Amount of $100,000.

Chicago, March 21.—Fire resulting from crossed electric light wires damaged the Grand Pacific hotel yesterday to the extent of $100,000, and for a time threatened the destruction of the building.

No lives were lost, although many of the guests were compelled to make hasty exits by the fire escapes, and but three people were injured. Two of these were in the crowd in front of the hotel, and were slightly cut by falling glass. The third was a fireman, Walter English, who fell from the fire escape and suffered a fracture of the left arm.

The clouds of smoke which poured out of the building were more dense than have been seen at any other fire in this city for a long time. Guests were warned to leave their rooms, and many of them came down the fire escapes.

The flames were confined, by desperate work, to the north wing of the hotel. The entire hotel, however, was completely flooded with water, and the damage from this source constituted the largest part of the loss.

On the first floor of the building were the drug store of Rogers & Diamond and the railroad offices of the Canadian Pacific, Erie, Michigan Central and New York Central and the Pennsylvania. The clerks in these places hastily gathered up their tickets and cash and left, when it was seen that the fire was serious.

A. J. Pierce and E. Spurealdo, elevator boys of the hotel, ran their cars until all of the guests had been taken out, and then carried the firemen to the upper floor.

ANOTHER COPPER "STRIKE"

Is Reported to Have Been Made Near Chengwatana.

Pine City, Minn., March 21.—Henry Hoefler, the manager of the J. Bennett Smith Copper mine below Chengwatana, reports that on Wednesday they made another find at the mine, and that they were taking out pay ore in large quantities. He reports that the last find is by far the best yet struck, and far exceeds their most sanguine expectations.

The sample of ore he showed was so heavy that one had to take a second grip on it or it would have fallen to the floor.

It now seems that Mr. Smith, after spending a fortune, and over a quarter of a century in prospecting on lower Snake river is to be rewarded at last.

JAMES R. KEENE (AT THE RIGHT) WHO GAINED VICTORY AFTER TWO CRUSHING FINANCIAL DEFEATS.

EX-SENATOR COCKRELL OF MISSOURI, WHO HAS BEEN A NATIONAL FIGURE FOR OVER THREE DECADES BECAUSE OF A POLITICAL DEFEAT.

BY DEXTER MARSHALL

(Copyright, 1908, by Dexter Marshall.)

FIRST an educational career, ending in the presidency of the State Industrial college of Iowa, which position he resigned to enter upon a business career that has made him a familiar character the world over."

Behind this brief biographical data appearing after the name, "Hunt, Leigh S. J.," in "Who's Who in America," lies one of the most remarkable of the numerous more or less notable cases of victory secured after defeat by various men prominent in the public eye. Hunt's case differs greatly from all the rest, however, in that he was called upon to suffer defeat, not once, but several times, after the last apparent knockout blow, retrieving his fortunes in an out-of-the-way corner of the globe, in the capital of the little Hermit Kingdom.

Hunt's first failure occurred when he was still in his twenties. It was due to bad investments of his savings, and when he came to balance up he found that he was several thousand dollars to the bad—not a large sum of money in itself, but very large, indeed, in the eye of a country school teacher and a former farm lad, whose father had experienced a hard time getting together enough wherewithal to feed and clothe and educate ten offspring.

When young Hunt awoke to a realization of the fact that he had made a mess of his initial financial ventures, he sat down and wrote a note to each of his creditors, telling them that they would be paid in full, with interest, in time. Then he took the first convenient train out of town, for he had made up his mind that the best way to win back his financial good name was in a new field. When his creditors heard of his departure, most of them, figuratively, kissed their chances of payment goodby, especially as young Hunt left no word behind as to his destination, and, indeed, was not heard of by his former associates and friends until he began to pay off his creditors, some years later. By that time he had risen high in educational circles in Iowa. The story of this first victory after defeat aptly illustrates the indomitable spirit he brought to his aid after each defeat that he sustained.

He had taught school in Indiana; when he reached Iowa and the town of Mount Pleasant, after leaving his native state, he quite naturally looked about for a position as teacher. The member of the school board to whom he applied informed Hunt that the only place open was waiting for a man who could speak a couple of foreign languages only, but, nothing daunted, he informed the Iowan that he would be glad to fill the position. Furthermore, he would guarantee to make the school the most successful one in the district. Thereupon, the other suggested that it might be well for the applicant to take an examination in languages. Hunt turned "nary" a hair. A wonderfully gifted talker, even in his youth, he eloquently argued the official into a belief that an examination was no test of a person's ability to teach languages, and so secured the promise of a trial as language teacher.

How He Won Out.

Hunt, after leaving the school official's house, couldn't get quickly enough to a bona fide master of languages. After swearing him to secrecy, he began learning the first lessons to be given to his classes, and night after night, with the tutor by his side, he mastered the lesson which he was to teach the following day. Did he win out as a teacher of languages? He did, and after he had made the school the best in the district, as he said he would, Des Moines captured him as its superintendent of schools. Here, also, he introduced up-to-date methods and ideas, and because the system under his supervision was improved several hundred per cent, he received and accepted a call to the presidency of the State college at Ames.

Hunt, as college president, refuted the somewhat cynical axiom of the upper educational world—a college president's ambition is to die in his chair. As a boy on the farm he had dreamed of a dazzling career in finance. As a school teacher the dream had pursued him; as a college president he still dreamed it, and, though he was making the institution under him ever stronger and increasing his fame and hold on his position thereby, he nevertheless one day vacated the presidential chair and set his face West, determined to make the dream of his life a reality.

He settled in Seattle. In a few years he was one of the biggest, if not the biggest, man in that booming coast city. He owned one of the leading newspapers, his shipping interests were only rivaled in magnitude by his real estate investments; he was at the head of a couple of railroads and a bank, and in several other financial institutions he was a power. He was pointed out to strangers as a man who was doing more than his share in making the city; his favor was solicited on all sides; even the politicians curried to him, offering to make him a United States senator.

All this was just prior to the memorable summer of 1893; before cold weather had come Hunt was flat on his back, financially, and all but buried under a debt running up into six figures. His splendid properties had vanished over night. As in the days when he had been wiped out of his thousands, he did a little quiet thinking, then wrote to his creditors that he would pay them every cent, with interest, some day, and left Seattle. But he took with him to China, where he went as a representative of a New York railroad building syndicate, the dream of his boyhood.

Up to the day that he struck the Oriental on his native soil, Hunt had been able to talk almost everybody he met to his way of thinking. With the Chinamen it was different. Hunt talked and talked, pointing out the great advantages that would redound to his auditors through the construction of the proposed railroad. But the yellow "big guns" remained obdurate; they wanted none of the foreign devil's ways. Hunt had banked on his ability to put the concession through; to do so meant his financial retrievement, in good part at least; but here was failure enveloping him for the third time.

Discouraged? Not he! With his little dream beckoning on he soon found himself in Seoul, the capital of Corea, where, as it was a matter of common gossip, he was not long in learning that the emperor was shy of ready money. Here was a fellow being in a predicament like unto his own, and he at once began to cast about for a way to place both himself and the other fellow in less trying circumstances. At last he hit on a plan. Not long after that he had talked his way into the presence of the emperor himself and learned from the unhappy monarch's own lips that all he needed was a little trifle of $5,000,000. Hunt coolly assured his majesty that the $5,000,000 would be forthcoming.

Got Loan From the Czar.

Some time later he was engaged in holding important conferences with the czar of All the Russias anent a loan of $5,000,000 to the Corean emperor. He convinced the czar that Russian influence in the Hermit Kingdom would be immeasurably increased by such material evidence of good will to the yellow emperor; the czar saw the point, assured the self-appointed Yankee envoy that the loan would be made on terms agreeable to Korea, and as soon as rail and sail could take him back to Seoul Hunt sought out the emperor and broke the good news to him.

It was such good news, indeed, that the emperor, whose purse had become more than ever painfully flattened during his new found friend's absence from the realm, gave him control of some mining lands up in the mountains back of Seoul. The emperor was very generous, for an emperor; he reserved for himself only twenty-five per cent of the net receipts of the mines.

Hunt now felt that he had a splendid chance to retrieve his fortunes and pay off his debts in the states if only he could get hold of the necessary capital with which to develop the concession. This time, in his search for money, he turned his face not toward St. Petersburg, but his native land. As luck would have it, on his way across the Pacific he met J. Sloat Fassett of New York, prominent in the Empire state political game for many a year agone. To him Hunt spun the story of his mines and how he secured them, and wound up with the cause of his trip to America. Before home was reached the two men had struck up a partnership, Fassett agreeing to interest the necessary capital. Something like a year later the mines were being developed.

The concesson speedily made all parties interested either rich or richer. Then one fine day Hunt went to Seattle, paid all his creditors in full, with liberal interest, and, not content with this, refilled the pocketbooks of all his old followers who had invested their savings in his ruined enterprise on his advice. They will tell you in Seattle today that into many a man's hand went very much more money than that man lost through Hunt's advice in the days when he was on the crest of the boom wave on the coast.

Hunt is now so wealthy, and his millions are so well invested, say those in a position to know, that he will never be called upon again to know the sting of crushing financial defeat or feel the elation of a rehabilitating victory. Now in his 55th year, he has mining interests that are pretty well scattered over the face of the earth, and his name is probably more familiar to dwellers in out of the way mining corners than that of any other man American born.

As would be expected of one who has been so punctilious concerning his legal and moral financial obligations, Hunt is the sort of man who never forgets a friend. Were he a member of a "400" family the newspapers would almost surely call him a spendthrift, so lavishly does he live. A good deal of his time nowadays is spent in Mexico, where he numbers President Diaz among his intimate friends. The bigwigs of England in Egypt and in the motherland as well are also on Hunt's visiting list. He it was who introduced cotton growing in the Soudan, thereby tickling John Bull half to death. That was three or four years ago. Today Hunt is dreaming of the day when the valleys and the irrigable parts of the Soudan will be one vast cotton plantation. Meanwhile his plantation, in the valley of the Dervishes, is yearly producing a fine grade of cotton.

Cockrell's Big Victory After Defeat.

A present-day political celebrity who gained his real victory through defeat is Francis Marion Cockrell, at present an influential member of the interstate commerce commission, and for thirty years prior to his appointment to that body by a Republican president a Democratic United States senator from Missouri.

After the Civil war was over and Cockrell had laid down his brigadier general's sword, which he had waved in the cause of the Confederacy, he went back to his law books. As most lawyers do sooner or later, he drifted into the political game, rapidly became prominent in the state councils of his party and was one of the two leading candidates for the gubernatorial nomination of 1874. It was the first office he had ever run for; his heart was set on getting it—nomination was equivalent to election—and he spent nights as well as days campaigning. He felt that his whole political future depended on his nomination.

He went before the convention with high hopes, and his disappointment was all the keener when the announcement of the result of the balloting showed that he had lost to his leading opponent, Charles H. Hardin, by just one-sixth of a vote. "Cockrell," said a friend, telling of the incident, "swallowed his Adam's apple hard once or

Duluth Schools Safe With Few Exceptions

HORACE MANN SCHOOL.

Duluth's public schools are tolerably safe and parents need not lose any sleep worrying over their children, while they are at their studies.

The school board's own committee of investigation has not found any very alarming conditions. Such changes as are needed, in view of the reform wave in school maintainence which has swept over the country since the Collinwood horror, are for the most part merely the changing of a door here, the fixing of a window there, and the yanking out of some combustible waste in another place.

It is true that there are a handful of frame school buildings of more than one story in the city and they are rather frowned upon, but they must be used for the present at least. There are no funds to replace all of the frame buildings with fireproof or slow-burning brick structures during the coming summer. The only thing to be done is to make the frame buildings as safe as possible and when the school board is able to build new schools, to make the new ones model, up-to-date affairs.

Even though there are some frame school buildings of more than one story seeing service at the present time, there is no occasion for a great ado about them. With one exception, the Horace Mann school, they are fairly sound structures, capable of holding out well until it is possible for the board of education to erect better ones.

The educational authorities themselves admit that the Horace Mann is rather a poor excuse for a school and the chances are that it will be abandoned at the close of the present year. What will be done to replace it is a problem for the school directors to figure out.

In the meantime, those in charge of the schools say that every precaution is being taken to prevent fires or accidents. Heating plants are being watched more carefully; janitors are instructed with penalties of losing their jobs hanging over them if they disobey, to keep all exits unlocked during school hours and they are strictly observing precautionary measures which are invariably allowed to become a little loose when the country is unclouded by the memory of a catastrophe so recent as the fire at Collinwood, Ohio.

The board of education's special investigating committee has not completed its labors yet, by any means. Only the schools in the East end and some of those in the central part of the city have been inspected yet. The West end and West Duluth and some of the outlying districts remain to be gone over yet.

The report, which the committee will make to the board of education, will undoubtedly be interesting, but the members say that on the whole, it will be favorable. They declare that Duluth's schools are well managed and most of them are safe.

CLANK OF MEDIEVALISM IN OUR COUNTY JAILS

How America's Free School System for Crime is Graduating Thugs and Degenerates---The Results of a Year's Investigation.

(Copyright, 1908, Charities and The Commons, New York.)

"Often we must imagine bunk over bunk in the same cell or cage, crowded until the horrors of stench and suffocation are indescribable."

"If the only or chief purpose of county jails were to keep wild beasts in cages, most of them are well adapted for this purpose."

"As to the customary mode of serving food, we can use no milder phrase than that it is revolting and demoralizing and often dangerous to health."

"There is no reason or fairness in subjecting unconvicted citizens to dirt and crowding, and thus punishing them more severely than the felons sent to a state prison."

"The best the visitor dares to write is 'the bedding is fairly clean, considering the situation.' The situation is vile."

"The very structure of the average jail is radically wrong. * * * It becomes a common receptacle of deadly elements."

"At times the cells are packed at night like the lower decks of a slave ship."

"Let any one of us imagine waiting perhaps for many months, perhaps even for years, with no exercise but the tramp, tramp in the close, dark corridor of a jail."

Neither descriptions of dungeons in Mediaeval Europe, nor of English jails in Dickens' time, nor of Russian fortresses of today, are these quotations. The writer is telling about American county jails—not incidents of bad conditions described by irresponsible reformers, but examples of the average county jail in this country as investigated by a committee of the National Prison association.

Prof. Charles R. Henderson of the University of Chicago is chairman of the committee, and the other members are John L. Whitman, superintendent of the house of correction, Chicago, and Warren F. Spalding, secretary of the Massachusetts Prison association.

About a year ago the committee, with the co-operation of Charities and The Commons, appointed some 400 investigators. Of those appointed 250, representing 37 states and territories, including the District of Columbia, visited the jails in their counties and reported conditions on blank forms covering all of the important details of jail construction and management. The results compiled by the committee bring to light conditions that are a disgrace to the country.

Disgraceful Conditions.

Under present conditions and laws, the county jail must provide for males and females; children, youth and adults; first offenders, habitual criminals, vagabonds, prostitutes; witnesses held for their testimony; poor debtors whose crime is their poverty; idiots, imbeciles, insane, epileptics; persons arrested on suspicion and apoplectics whom the sapient policeman could not distinguish from drunkards—often all these, under one roof and management, in a building so built that ceries and whispers travel along a corridor with cages open at the side.

The jail committee was strongly tempted to specify particular cities where nameless abuses exist; where vile men find their way to the door behind which prostitutes stand; where little children are kept in rooms with polluted and diseased adults; where a thoughtless lad is thrust by the hand of our country's law into the school of vice and crime, taught by trained scoundrels; where a girl for venial fault is shut up in a den of abomination for a night with some strumpet; where a poor victim of brain disorder howls all night in company with ruffians; where and honest fellow, unable to pay a fine for a spree, is locked in with burglars and thieves. These are not pictures from novels; that are bald, prosaic facts set down by honest eye witnesses in answer to printed questions.

From the entirely empty rural institution, in a prohibition county of Kansas, where the only inmate was a man who had kept a "blind pig," reports go to tell of the vile smelling city jails, where, at times, the cells are packed at night like the lower deck of a slave ship, where the corridors afford scant room for the crowd of men who swarm in them during the day. An average for the whole county would mean nothing. A few illustrations of jails, where conditions cry out for reform, would be more instructive.

Here are some examples of crowding taken from jails in urban counties:

In Birmingham, Ala., (first in alphabetical order of states), we find reported, 240 men in 72 cells and 25 women in 10 cells. The cells are 8 by 9 feet. There was one boy.

In Denver, Colo., there were 189 men in 90 cells and 22 women in 20 cells, 6 by 9 fee .

In Los Angeles, Cal., there were 135 men in 88 cells; there were 30 cells designed for four men each and 48 cells designed for two men each: 8 by 8 feet and 8 by 6 feet.

In Colorado Springs, Colo., there were 55 men in 19 cells, and 4 women in one cell room.

In Stockton, Cal., there were "six drunks" in one cell, 15 by 18 feet, and 46 prisoners in 26 cells.

In Washington, D. C., the total capacity claimed by the authorities was 320; while the total population was 474—a bad example for the capital city of the nation.

In Chicago, Ill., there were 434 men in 368 cells, with 39 boys in a room by themselves.

In Indianapolis, Ind., 143 men in 135 cells; 16 women in 14 cells. There were two boys, and the children are kept in the women's department.

In Terre Haute, Ind., there were 73 men in 42 cells; and the visitor says there have been 110 at a time in this jail.

In Marion, Iowa, asmall jail, built with four cells for men, had 20 men.

Kansas Jails Not Models

No jail in Kansas is reported as crowded; is that because it is virtually a prohibition state? But the jails of Kansas are not models. Rural and village jails usually have space enough for health, but they are among the worst for vile familiarities of association. The ordinary standard for judging whether a jail is crowded or not is too bad for a stable or cow shed, much less for human beings. This common standard is that so long as men can find room in bunk, hammock or on stone floor, with a newspaper for a mattress, the place is spacious enough. This is manslaughter.

The up-to-date, scientific standard is that each prisoner, awaiting trial, must have a decent and spacious cell to himself, without corrupting and degrading contact with criminals, and that when two inmates are in company, there is crowding, in the hygienic and moral sense. Judged by this modern standard, almost every jail reported requires rebuilding on a new plan; almost all are liable to be crowded, if there are more than two or three prisoners at one time.

On the question of food, the investigators have furnished dietaries, which compel one to believe that the food usually, or at least often, supplied, is by no means up to a modern standard. is not a "balanced ration," containing, in proper proportion, the elements necessary for the human body. The dietaries often reveal an excess of stimulant, in coffee, too little milk and cereals, too much meat. It is not unusual to read that the idle prisoners are fed meat two, or even three, times a day. This whole matter should be placed in the hands of a medical commission in each state, with power to fix a standard diet, adapted to the climate, the season, the activity, the age and sex of prisoners. Speaking with all due respect of county officials, they are not usually competent persons to draw up a dietary for prisoners of any kind.

Spartan simplicity reigns in the furniture of cells—a table, a chair, an iron frame, hinged to swing against the wall, or a canvas hammock, occasionally a shelf and a mirror. Often bunk over bunk is maintained in the same cell or cage, crowded until the horrors of stench and suffocation are indescribable. Simplicity is desirable; there is no call for luxury; but there is no reason or fairness in subjecting unconvicted citizens to dirt and crowding, and thus punishing them more severely than the felons sent to a state prison, and that even before trial, while they are legally and presumptively innocent.

Dirty Blankets.

It must be confessed that jailers should not be hastily blamed for the dirty condition of blankets, coverlets and sheets, which many inspectors report. The clothing of vagrants, tramps, inebriates after debauch and of disorderly women, is not often immaculate, and very frequently is densely inhabited. The boarding-houses and dens from which many come are alive with vermin and charged with germs of communicable disease. The life habits of many prisoners are on a level with those of savages, with a certain civilized refinement in the art of accumulating the conditions of disease. What can be expected, when we are told, as we often are, that prisoners are graciously permitted to wash their own bed covers, inside the pails, when the dirt becomes unendurable? When the bath tub is the only laundry, the chance of spreading disease is increased.

But under an open jail system, the filthiest, vilest prisoner punishes and tortures those who have not yet sunk to his level; for the vermin crawl from him to others and the stench from his dirty bedding defies all other cells and corridors. Under an isloation cell system, this could be prevented; with the open structure practically universal, it is impossible to prevent it. This is true of the lockups of many cities as well.

The visitor was requested to report how the jail was ventilated. The answers are not often satisfactory and this is not surprising. Ventilation is a complicated subject, but so long as the superstitious dread of "night air" fastens down windows in palaces, and so long as tuberculosis children cough out bacilli behind double glass windows of mansions, what can we look for in jails? The answers are often vague. Mention is made of windows, rarely of ventilating pipes from cell through roof. But are the windows open? Are the pipes stopped up with newspapers "to prevent draughts?" We do not know.

The very structure of the ordinary jail is radically wrong and offends against the laws of health. From ocean to ocean, one uniform plan has been slavishly copied from bad models—a cage of cells surrounded by a corridor. Into this corridor are emptied the foul breath and foul language of the occupants of darkened cells. It becomes a common reservoir of deadly elements. The ligh; of windows and the pure outer air do not enter the cell directly, but only through this corridor. No man builds a pig-pen or a hen-coop on such a monstrous plan. The jailer's residence, adjoining, always admits sunshine and air directly into each sleeping and living room.

Contagious Bath Tubs.

It is generally conceded by public sanitary authorities that the bath tub, in a promiscous crowd of persons, many of them having veneral skin diseases, is a vehicle of contagion which ought to be abolished. The reports seem to show that there are few shower baths in our jails, and that where any facilities are provided, they are tubs which are easily made dirty and dangerous, and are hard to keep really clean and safe.

Almost all the reports record the dull, monotonous, maddening tramp of prisoners aimlessly walking up and down the corridor of the county jails of our land. Of course, this tramp is not at the specific command of the jailers; the slouching march over the samo dead level of stone floor is the only means of exercise, and in that sense is compulsory. In Francois Coppee's story, "Le Coupable," we have a vivid and dramatic picture of the physical and psychical effects of this irrational, aimless, maddening form of exercise.

The problem of exercise cannot be separated from that of occupation and industry. To some slight extent, the deplorable situation is partly relieved by the fact that trusties are sometimes set to work on lawns or other outside work; that here and there a stone pile furnishes rude music and the faint hint of useful labor; and that generally the prisoners must give a few minutes of their tedious days to scrubbing and cleaning floors.

But let any one of us imagine himself waiting, perhaps for many months, perhaps even years, with no exercise but the tramp, tramp in the close and dark corridor of a county jail! It is the straight path to lunacy. Why not have walled yards in the open air, partly sheltered from rain, covered over with steel wire to prevent escape? It is simple; it is easy; it is human justice; it is social interest and wisdom. But it is rarely thought of. Anyone who has seen foreign jails of the better sort, knows how easy it would be to correct this defect.

In regard to administration, the report says that the essential fact is that the state laws against crime are not executed by state officials, but rather by local officials. One innocent question was asked the investigators, "In and out fee?" Some of them did not understand the question; they had never studies the "fee vs. salary" controversy, or it had been settled long ago in their neighborhood. Plenty of ugly testimony was turned up to the effect that when a county sheriff is paid for his services in fees, rather than by salary, he must have the sturdy virtue of a Cromwell or a Lincoln to preserve his soul in a state of grace. Most county sheriffs are too honest to pretend to know what a "state of grace" signifies. That much to their credit! But we are attacking a system, not particular individuals, unless they defend the old system; then they come out in the open as public enemies.

The "Kangaroo Court."

Explicit mention is found of self-government among prisoners, with some degree of control by the jail authorities, in several jails of the Western and Southern states. This self-government is sometimes called the "Kangaroo court;" whether it was imported from the British South Pacific colonies, along with other strange marsupial animals, we have not discovered. It seems to be an American revival of a vicious old English custom; its persistence is thought, by experts, to be a proof of the incapacity of the authorities to govern as their duty requires, and as one more evidence that the crowding of offenders and suspects, of all grades, in one jail, gives power of tyranny to the baser bullies of the herd.

Jail rules are enforced by penalties. Usually the diciplinary punishments are graded according to the offense and the attitude of the prisoner. In eighty-three jails, special punishment cells or dungeons are used; in two the offender is handcuffed to the door of his cell; in eleven jails reprimand or loss of privileges may be applied; in six to diet is restricted; in eight the offender is confined in his cell and not allowed to walk in the corridor; in one jail work is prescribed; in fourteen the measures are not specified; in one the lighter penalties are applied by the prisoners' court; in sixty-one jails, no punishment seems to be employed. Here also is a large subject for special treatment.

The schedules called for information, on the date named, of persons of the following classes—each class being subdivided into men, women, boys and girls. (1,) awaiting trial; (2), enduring a jail sentence or detained because of unpaid fine; (3), sentenced to state prison; (4), sentenced to reform school; (5), epileptics; (6), feeble minded; (7), sentenced to reformatory; (8), insane, waiting; (9), insane, chronic; (10), tramps; (11), witnesses; (12), city prisoners.

Those awaiting trial and those serving short sentences are naturally the largest number. Only those of the first class should be in jail; all the others should be placed elsewhere—save those on their way to state prisons and places of correction. In these first two classes a large number of boys are discern and also many girls, many of whim, under a good system of juvenile courts and detention homes, might be spared the demoralizing influences of the place. Boys sent to reform schools, figure in these columns.

Under the head of "abnormals," we find epileptics, feeble-minded and insane. The authorities are not always, nor often, psychiatrists, and the returns sometimes show hesitation whether a person should be classed as epileptic, insane or just plain drunk. The number is not very large, not large enough to make is a burden to the state to give them decent care in suitable institutions, but too large for the honor of our country. Manifestly, all members of these classes are not out of place in jails.

Some of the requirements cannot be me simply by changes in the structure and administration of the jail itself. Modern conditions and knowledge call for radical changes in laws and in the entire state system of correction and punishment. But some of the improvements demanded could be made at once in any county by an enlightened public and vigorous county board.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Next Monday spring vacation will arrive, and the seniors will have ample leisure to cram for a final try at "make-up exams," which are slated for next Saturday morning. Any of the baseball hopefuls who are behind will also retire into deepest seclusion during the week.

• • •

At chapel on Monday morning, Mr. Smith introduced L. A. Barnes to the students. He spoke to the students for a few moments on the necessity of keeping the school up in the lines of beauty, intellect and moral strength. Mr. Barnes is a member of the school board and manifested a desire to become better acquainted with the "system," so he spent a pleasant, and no doubt profitable, morning in visiting the various classrooms and hearing some recitations.

• • •

Real sympathy was manifested for "Dido" of Virgil fame on Monday, as shown by the bands of crape worn by many seniors, whose scope of study includes "Latin IV."

Baseball fans sat up and took notice the first of the week, and a little meeting was held for the purpose of looking up the past records of the candidates. Fifteen or twenty of the old men were found to be eligible, besides a score of the first year "colts," who can be counted upon in case of necessity. The track aspirants will soon don their gear for practice work, as there remains but two more months in which they can work. The work this year will be more practical and systematic than in the past. Coach Heisland will introduce the cross-country runs, and much time will be spent in mastering the start for short sprints. If the track team is successful in scalping Superior this year, as it was at the last meeting, it is hoped that a date may be arranged with Minneapolis.

The members of the "Schiller-bund" were much delighted over a talk on "William Tell," given by Mr. Ulrich, and illustrated by stereoptican views.

• • •

Cards were given out on Friday, instead of on Monday that the students' minds might be at rest during the vacation period. In consequence, there will be no worry over the "honor roll."

Members of the Musical society appreciated Mrs. R. P. Stover's charming musical numbers so much that several encores were asked for by vigorous applause. She kindly responded, and in honor of the day, which happened to be that devoted to St. Patrick, she sang some genuine Irish numbers, and the Sons of Erin present gave her a real ovation.

The "freshies" were madly enthusiastic on Wednesday when Mr. Smith, on behalf of the girls of "1911," presented to "Bud" Mars, the class president, a beautiful large green banner, with "1911" standing out in flaring white numerals. The girls have made such a gorgeous banner that the "'11 Huskies" will now make it their individual aim and effort to prevent any other class emblem from ever floating above it. As Mr. Mars left the stage, Prof. Custance struck up the well-known air, "The Wearing of the Green," which caused a small furore among the students.

The "seniors' fairly gasped with astonishment and relief when Treasurer Manley furnished his financial report to the class at the meeting on Wednesday. After being in debt for about two years, with no immediate prospect of squaring accounts, to suddenly leap to an eminence of absolutely no indebtedness, and with a surplus of about $150 in the treasury, and no expense to stand for until commencement time, seems almost like a fairy-tale.

• • •

There surely must have been a run on green ribbon in the shops on Monday, for the 17th brought out quantities of the favored color in hair-ribbons, ties, rosettes and button-hole boquettes.

• • •

Ralph Calkins was elected to lead the senior baseball aggregation and Allen Starkey was elected to captain the fleet footed senior track team.

The "Boo gang" ought to have a nurse, so some people say, for such a list of casualties is reported as to be almost appalling. One member has mumps, one has broken his collar bone and another his knee.

The Zenith board lunched together on Thursday and were very severe critics indeed as the stories were read to them. The story of Coiy Oleson was finally accepted as the prize winner after long and strenuous debate. It is an extremely clever story and in originality of thought was unsurpassed by any other. The stories of Miss Gladys Tyler and Evonne Roberts received first and second prizes for artistic sketches. Both of these young ladies have furnished many masterpieces, which will illuminate the pages of the Zenith. Deep satisfaction reigns in the heart of every senior over the announcement that their final effort will bear a dedication to Miss Wells.

The class of '06 has given the school a fine lesson in "school spirit," which will stand as a shining example for all time. At the end of the senior year they left the school financially embarrassed and were able to leave behind no imposing monument to their memory. Recently they have gathered together and on last Thursday, through their president, Edward Borgen, they presented to the school some beautiful paintings. One large panel of eight pictures is a reproduction of paintings by the great mural decorator, Puvis de Chavennes. This picture has attracted much interest, for the figures represent the sciences of chemistry, physics and other courses pursued by high school students.

The breezy little junior debating team, ably led by Leonard McHugh, produced fact after fact of invincible material for their side in the debate on Friday morning. The senior trio, after a gallant and well sustained fight, gave up and acknowledged themselves beaten by a team which certainly has an original gift of elocution. The winners received hearty support from all their classmates and unstinted applause broke forth many times. The winning team was Leonard McHugh, Robert Ely and Harlow Watkins, and the senior opponents were Andrew Mendahl, Wayland Sanford and Arthur Sundahl. The decision was announced by Prof. Crull and Prof. Ulrick, and was unanimous for the juniors. The honor roll, which was read during the morning, was long and pleasing, and the second and third periods were cut out to the joy of all the students.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

TRUSTEE FOR THE COMANCHE

E. A. Wayne, Manager of the Copper Gulf Company, Appointed Trustee of the Comanche---Will Fight Sale of the Property.

Silver City, March 21.—Judge Frank W. Parker has appointed E. A. Wayne, manager of the Copper Gulf Mining company of the Burro mountains, trustee for the Comanche Mining & Smelting company. The appointment came as a surprise to the public at large, but to none more so than the appointee himself, who had no knowledge that his name was being considered in connection with the position until a few hours before the appointment was made. Nothing but words of warmest praise and approval have been heard since the appointment was made and it can be truthfully said to have given universal satisfaction both to the public at large and more especially to the contending factions within the company. It was a very happy solution of a very vexatious affair and one, had it been allowed to proceed much further, would have resulted in serious detriment to the future plans of the company and to the mining industry of Grant county. Judge Parker, Referee Vallacott and the directors, stockholders and attorneys in the case are to be congratulated on the fortunate outcome of the affair.

Mr. Wayne, the appointee, was the unanimous choice of all the parties interested, and he takes hold of the trusteeship with the undivided support of directors and stockholders. This augurs well for the future of the company and certainly no more favorable issue could be asked by Silver City people. Mr. Wayne's plans, while largely indefinite as to details, are very specific in general outline and have for their ultimate outcome the reorganizations that will protest every creditor and every stockholder.

"We do not want to sell the property," said Mr. Wayne, in conversation with a reporter, "and we will fight its sale to the last ditch. What I an now working for is a general reorganization of the company, paying off its indebtedness at once and raising sufficient funds to put the company on a paying basis. All my efforts and the efforts of all the parties interested with whom I have talked, will be directed towards this end and we shall endeavor to protect the interests of every individual stockholders no matter how small his holdings may be."

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

New High Grade Ore Encountered in the Imperial Mine in the Bald Mountain District---Mining Cost at Wasp Reduced.

Deadwood, S. D., March 21.—A new grade of ore has been encountered in the workings of the Imperial Gold Mining company in the Bald Mountain district that may prove an important factor in the future work of the company. Back in the earlier days smelting areas were common, and frequently ran into high values, but more recently the low grade siliceous ores have been almost exclusively handled in this part of the hills. Now the Imperial has opened up a body of the blue ore, similar in nature and value to that mined by the Golden Reward company many years ago. The ore averages $20 per ton, some of it going much higher and carrier, gold, silver and lead in quantities that make shipment, despite high charges, much more profitable. The first shipment has already been made to Denver and returns should be had in a few days. The finding of a sufficient body of this character of ore to guarantee permanency has revived talk of reopening the smelter. In the Golden Reward, Mogul and Imperial workings, this ore is occuring in larger bodies weekly; in the Portland, Terry Peak and Ruby Basin districts and should the Deadwood smelter be again operated this ore could be handled when it gives returns of only $15 or $16 per ton.

Since the installation of air drills on the property of the Wasp No. 2 Mining company on Yellow Creek, the cost of mining has been still further reduced. The Wasp has been making a splendid record on ore that averages from $8 to $10 per ton in gold, largely from the fact that it is open cut work and that two blasts, each of which will break down 3,000 tons of ore, furnish enough for the mill to run 200 tons daily for a month. The air drills are applied to the surface of the open cut. The ore body in which is eighteen feet thick. The Wasp is considered one of the most economically run properties in the West.

John Hawgood, owner of the Snowstorm mine in the Bald Mountain district, is back from California, and expects to reoperate the property himself. The Snowstorm was under lease to the Mogul Mining company but different plans in working the latter property permitted the lease to expire. The Snowstorm consists of sixty acres adjoining the Ben Hur mine, the best produces in the district. It is possible that Mr. Hawgood will shortly commence operations on the Snowstorm, the Halcie, adjoining, of which he is also the owner, and the Emory ground in which Hawgood, Gushurst and Emory are associated together. There is a good hoist and full equipment on the Snowstorm and it will be operated through the shaft which at a depth of 350 feet comes in contact with the Ben Hur tunnel.

THE FIRST MILL AT RAWHIDE

Foster-Tyrer Reduction Plant Now Crushing Ore of the District---An Important Strike Made on the Microbe Fraction.

Rawhide, Nev., March 21.—Rawhide, less than five months old, has its first mill in operation. The Foster-Tyrer reduction plant is completed and is now crushing ore of the district.

What is regarded as an important strike has been made on the Microbe Fraction. In a drift on the sixty-foot level twenty feet from the working shaft a full breast of ore that will average $300 to the ton is said to have been encountered. Reports from the mine are that stringers from one to three inches thick are to found in the ledge that run up to $1,000 a ton in value. The Microbe Fraction, by a strange coincidence, is one of a number of claims, including the Hoosier, Remnant Fraction and El Capitan, which have just been made the basis of the Rawhide Combination Gold Mines company.

Ely, Nev., March 20.—The extension of the monzonite copper belt to the north side of the canon has been definitely determined by developments on the Vesta made while the work, preliminary to a patent, was being done. In a shaft forty feet deep four feet of sulphide copper has been penetrated with the bottom of the shaft in a better ore. The ore has the appearance of ores from the Nevada Consolidated workings and runs 4 per cent copper.

Palisade, Nev., March 21.—An important strike has been made in the lower tunnel of the Delmas Copper company's mine. At a distance of 170 feet from the portal of the tunnel a body of ore was encountered that carries 14 per cent copper, 211 ounces silver and $9.60 gold to the ton. There is said to be six feet of the ore.

Seven Troughs, Nev., March 20.—The Signal Peak Mining company has reached in its tunnel at a distance of 600 feet the original contact vein which was struck last summer in the shaft. The vein is about five feet wide with two feet of milling grade. The vein

UTAH SMELTER CONDITIONS

Continue to be Unsatisfactory, and United States Smelter and Mines Are Shut Down, Pending Hearing of the Case.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 21.—Smelter conditions remain distinctly unsatisfactory in Utah. When the recent application was made to the federal court for a modification of the smoke injunction, it was believed that Judge Marshall would grant an early hearing to the United States company, which professed to be able to offer satisfactory evidence that it could smelt all ores, except copper, without injury to man, beast or crop. Judge Marshall, however, will be in court at Ogden during the greater part of the month, and it is unlikely that he can hear the smelter case before March 30. This means a complete shutdown of the United States smelter for at least six weeks, even should the hearing be brief and the decision favorable to the company. In addition to its smelting plant, the United States company's mines at Bingham are shut down, as are its mines at Eureka, Nev. The Centennial-Eureka, at Tintic, continues to produce at the rate of 300 tons daily, of which 250 tons go to the company's smelter at Kennett, Cal., and fifty tons to the Yampa smelter at Bingham. Utah. There is no hope that the Knight smelter at Tintic can be put in commission within ninety days.

The sixty-two mile transmission line that is to carry electric power from the Beaver County Power company's plant to the Cactus mines and mills of the Newhouse company is nearing completion. Manager Lafayette Hanchett of the latter company said yesterday that the line would be completed and the company's machinery running with this power by March 10.

A strike has been made in the Bullock mine at Tintic. The ore was encountered in a drift run sixteen feet northward from the bottom of a new shaft. There is three feet of the ore, and it runs twenty-five ounces in silver, 5 per cent copper and some lead.

The Grachi Mining & Milling company, operating near Brigham City, has a good showing. The shaft is down forty feet and has been in ore all the way. Assays running as high as $32 in gold have been obtained, the ore carrying also considerable values in silver. The vein has not yet been crosscut, but is known to be twelve to fifteen feet wide. Interest in the

BUTTE MINES IN FULL BLAST

Amalgamated Sending Its Full Output of 8,000 Tons of Ore Daily to the Washoe Smelter—Production Cost Less Because of Attention to First-Class Ore.

Butte, Mont., March 21.—The Amalgamated Copper company is practicaly in full blast again, and is sending its full output of about 8,000 tons of ore a day to the Washoe smelter. Nearly 1,000 tons are going to the smelter from the North Butte properties, and about 400 tons from the Butte Coalition. The smelter at Anaconda is running to its capacity.

The remark of Managing Director John D. Ryan, when he gave orders for resumption of operations, that the Amalgamated Copper company would continue to produce copper as long as any other company, was based on the ability of the company to produce copper at as low a cost as any other producer, and even 12-cent copper, for the Amalgamated company, will give a profitable market.

It is estimated that the cost of production for the coming year will be at least one cent a pound less than last year, which was between 10 and 11 cents. The scale of wages under which the miners are now working is less than last year, being $3.50 a day instead of $4, and the standard of efficiency is greater. It will be the policy of the company, and of every operating company in Butte, to operate their properties with a smaller force of men, but to get the same work out of a reduced force. Thus the tonnage will be as great as ever, but the cost of taking out the ore will be materially less. Every man will be required to perform a full day's work and there will be no shirking. The cost of production will also be lessened by paying greater attention to first-class ores, and to opening up bodies of ore of this character.

At the mines of the North Butte company, the higher standard of efficiency of labor is being insisted upon, but the North Butte has the further advantage of having a much higher grade of ore throughout its entire property, than any other company in the camp, with the possible exception of the West Stewart mine belonging to W. A. Clark. During the past year the cost of production to the North Butte company has been about 10 cents. By paying greater attention to its very high-grade ore bodies, which are found on the lower levels of the Edith May and Jessie veins, and with the lower scale of wages operative, the company can produce copper at a cost not exceding nine cents a pound delivered in New York, and the cost may even be less.

The cost of production, to the Butte Coalition company, which is now taking ore only from the Rarus, at the rate of about 400 tons a day, is about the same as the cost to the North Butte (9 to 10 cents a pound.) With the completion of the Tramway surface plant, which will be so perfect that by economical handling an immense tonnage may be mined and sent to the smelter, the very rich ore bodies of the Minnie Healy, Rarus and Tramway may be converted into copper at an estimated cost of about eight and one-half cents. The new Tramway plant will be in operation inside of the next few months.

The stock of the Parrot Mining company has advanced about 8 points a share. There have been no developments at the mine in Butte to explain the activity in the stock. The mine was shut down when work was suspended in all the other Amalgamated mines, and no work of any kind was done in the Parrot until two weks ago, when retimbering a portion of the main shaft was begun.

The Raven Mining company has reached a depth of 1,100 feet with its incline shaft on the Raven claim, and has cut a station at the 1,100. A crosscut is now being run in the direction of the veins, and the first one will be reached in about six weeks. The vein has been developed on the 900, but contains little ore of value at that depth, and it is likely that nothing great will be found on the 1,100. Lessees have done some mining on the upper levels, where there are bunches of good silver ore, but their work has been temporarily stopped.

A good vein of copper ore has been opened in the Montgomery, one of the east side claims which the Lewishons were developing last year, but which they abandoned after spending about $60,000 on it. The Montgomery adjoins the property of the Pittsburg & Montana company, and lies south of the Bullwhacker. In the latter was developed a large low grade fault vein, having a strike north and south, but none of the characteristic east and west veins were found in the ground. The new vein opened in the Montgomery runs east and west, and was found on the 100-foot level. Where cut it is four feet wide. Lesees have shipped some of the ore, and the smelter returns showed 7 per cent copper and 8 ounces silver to the ton, but work on

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

New Company to Be Organized Soon By Houghton Interests Connected With Lake Company—Great Importance of the Lake Discovery to Ontonagon County Mining Interests.

Houghton, Mich., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a likelihood that a new copper company will be organized shortly by Houghton interests closely connected with the Lake Copper company. The latter corporation has been strictly local from its inception, so far as management is concerned, though of late a considerable share interest has developed in the East. All overtures looking toward a sale of the property, or a change of control, have been declined, and the recent filling of a depleted exchequer was made by the previous shareholders, who eagerly snapped up the 10,000 shares of treasury stock offered, leaving only a few hundred shares to the underwriting syndicate that took everything not subscribed for by the former shareholders, who were given pro rata rights. Interests closely connected with the Lake have not been asleep for the past few months, since the remarkable showing of copper in the new Lake shaft was made first, and in consequence about eight miles of land on either side of the Lake are tied up, and the new company, which is to be organized upon the Norton tract and adjoining lands, probably is the first of a series.

The importance of the development work at the Lake is just beginning to be appreciated, even locally. Apparently the Lake is another Baltic, and there seems no good reason why it may not be followed by other Champions, Trimountains and Superiors, as the Baltic was succeeded by the mines named. Of course it is not entirely safe to predicate the opening of a half-dozen great mines upon the showing made by a 100-foot shaft and a few drill-cores, hence it must not be taken as a certainty that another South Range district is to be developed in the vicinity of the Lake, but there is ample reason for hoping that such will be the case. A few of the leading characteristics of the Lake Superior copper district are so well understood that they may be considered axiomatic. Some of the fissure veins of Keweenaw county have given good surface showings that failed to make good mines at depth, though these are not numerous, but there is only a single instance, now coming to mind, of a good showing on an amygdaloid bed where a good mine did not ensure, and in this instance, which is that of the Winona, there is something more than an even chance that a good mine will be made. The surface showing at the Winona, nearly fifty years ago, was exceptionally good. Work was abandoned because of entire lack of rail transportation, but was resumed abou ten years ago, and the mine failed to hold its early promise. At present the showing is such that a good mine is expected to follow.

Good surface showing were encountered at the Calumet & Hecla, Quincy, Osceola, Kearsarge, Mohawk, Wolverine, Baltic, Trimountain and Champton. Wolverine went wrong at shallow depth, but at a quarter of a mile became richer than on surface. Tamarack, Allouez and Centennial were opened on lands where the copper-bearing beds did not outcrop.

The importance of the Lake discovery to Ontonagon county mining interests as a whole scarcely can be overestimated. Ontonagon county, though it had hundreds of mining companies, and scores of mines, mostly small, never had but two of its copper mines ever paid dividends. The amount of money put into Ontonagon county mines is several times as great as the dividends taken out, and while the Michigan may be termed an assured success, and the Victoria is doing very fairly, the Mass is struggling along under adverse circumstances, crippled by the loss of its most productive ground through a clouded title, and two Adventure is practically in a state of suspended animation. In the sixty years during which active mining has been in progress in Ontonagon county, mining companies have blanketed the entire mineral zone between sandstones, but the bulk of the mining has been done on the Evergreen belt. This is a series of parallel amygdaloid flows, seven in number, in a cross-section of only about 1,000 feet in width. The showing of copper in these, occasionally sweetened by masses of native metal of tons in weight, always has been sufficient to keep hope alive until funds were gone, but in only a single instance has a mine paid a dividend from copper taken out of the Evergreen belt. Capt. S. B. Harris of Hancock was the only man who ever took a profit from a mine in this belt, the Ridge, under his able management, paying several small dividends. The Ridge is now part of the Mass mine, but the Mass, as before stated, suffered a serious setback through the loss of its best bed on the Ogima lands, by reason of an agreement made nearly fifty years ago between former owners.

Now that attention has been diverted from the Evergreen belt, it is probable that hereafter more serious consideration will be paid to other parts of the Keweenawan belt in Ontonagon county, and especially to the basal flows along the Eastern Sandstone. In fact, it is but ten years since the eastern third of the Keweenawan series received serious attention in the oldest and most successful districts of Houghton county. Ten years ago practically all of the copper of the Lake district was coming from the central county of Houghton, and in that county was coming from the central third of the Keweenawan series of trap flows with intercalary conglomerates. As a result of the early work at the Baltic, three very large amygdaloid mines have been developed, and a fourth, the Superior, will begin production shortly, while the Globe, Challenge, Section 16, Atlantic and Isle Royale-altic are undergoing development, and are of much promise. The making of another Baltic

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Conference to Be Held By Mining Managers to Decide on Coming Season's Output and Discuss Labor Question—Bulk of Ore Will Come From Mesaba Range.

Along about the first of May an important conference of Lake Superior iron mining managers will be held either at Duluth or at Ishpeming on the Marquette range. Matters in which all are interested in common will be considered. Various problems are awaiting adjustment, not the least significant of which are different phases of the labor question. With it necessary to materially curtail the output of the region, in view of the depressed condition of the trade, a systematic effort will be made to guard against over-production and to do so in such manner as will best conserve all interests concerned.

It seems to be conceded that the bulk of the ore will come from the Mesaba range again, and the percentage is likely to attain higher proportions than last year. However, there will doubtless be many idle mines in that district. It is the intention to discriminate in favor of the more economical open pit property, for which reason it is altogther likely that a considerable number of underground producers will not be listed with the shippers this season. Comparatively few mines will be out of commission on the old range, but there will be none of them that will operate to maximum capacity. Many will employ only half the number of men given work in 1907. Approximate figures of the season's production for the Lake Superior region as a whole will be known following the forthcoming session of the operating heads. Reports will be made as to sales and the outlook and the plans of the various mining companies will be canvassed. Estimates of the probable output range all the way from 20,000,000 to 35,000,000 tons. The latter figure, however, is considered entirely too extreme.

With reference to the labor question, while it has already been decided that wages will remain on the same basis as last year, there is sure to be discrimination as to the class of men to be employed. Particularly will this be the case on the Mesaba range, where in the strike of last summer some valuable lessons were learned by the operating interests. Since retrenchment became the policy last fall, it has been the less desirable aliens who have been the chief sufferers, and many hundreds of these men have been weeded out. It is evident this course is to be continued. A census of employes has recently been taken on the Mesaba, and it is surmised in the connection that a further revision of working forces is in contemplation there. The cut, if it does come, will fall as lightly as possible on men of family and the best of the different classes. Foreigners of Socialistic tendencies have been put under the ban on all the ranges. It is this element that is held accountable for all the trouble making at the mines last summer.

Stripping operations are being resumed at the Steel corporation's big Fayal pit at Eveleth. This work is in the hands of contractors. A similar task has been in progress all winter at the Shenango Furnace company's mine at Hibbing, and notwithstanding the presence of frost very good headway has been made. The pit here will cover an entire "forty". The overburden averages probably ninety feet, about half of which has been removed. In portions of the excavation. Stripping is to be carried on at the International Harvester company's Hawkins pit at Nashwauk this year. Similar work is probable at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Utica property. At the Jones & Laughlin company's Grant mine at Buhl another trial is to be given the grab and overhead carrier system.

Exploration has been at low ebb on the Mesaba this winter, dozens of drills having been pulled up since last fall, and new ore finds have been few and of little significance. Discoveries of small deposits near Chisholm and in the Biwabik district are cases in point. However, it is likely that few new ore bodies of very great extent will ever be found on the Mesaba. The range has been punctured so full of holes that it is difficult to see how any deposit of particular moment has been left hidden. Now and then new lenses will be tapped, but in general the exploration of the future will be in the nature of proving up ore bodies already known to exist. More attention will doubtless be paid to the so-called Cuyuna range, to the southwest of the Mesaba, and where Rogers, Brown & Co. have shown the presence of merchantable ore in quantity.

The Cuyuna has been drilled for the past five years and is still much of a puzzle to the prospector. It has been determined that there are very large deposits of ore, but for the most part the drill cores show mineral low in metallic iron and high in phosphorus. Eventually the Cuyuna product will all be needed. The ore lies deep, generally under a wet, sandy overburden, and in many cases mining will be difficult and expensive. Much more will be known when shafts are put down and the deposits are investigated from lateral openings. The formation is vertical, for which reason drilling is not entirely satisfactory. The Northern Pacific railroad traverses the range, and thus transportation facilities are available whenever it is desirable to start shipments. It is not improbable that Rogers, Brown & Co. will send out some ore next year. Their deposit includes considerable high-grade material.

On the Gogebic range, in Michigan, an important feature of the operations of the past few years has been the search for deeper ore bodies to replace deposits worked out. Mining is in progress now 2,000 feet beneath the surface. The pinching out of the ore bodies at the old workings of the Colby, owned by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., resulted in the shifting of the scene of action further west on this

SHATTUCK'S SMELTER PLANS

Being Examined By Prospective Bidders---Copper Queen Output Greater Than Ever Before---Annual Meeting of the Octave Company.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 21.—During the past two weeks several representatives of prominent machinery houses have been in the district for the purpose of submitting bids for constructing the Shattuck smelter at Douglas. The plans for this smelter were completed last summer by A. B. Bell of the Wisconsin Bridge & Iron company. Several bids were completed, but after that it was decided to defer the beginning work on the smelter. These plans are now at the office of House & Houlton, in Douglas, where they are being exhibited to intending bidders. During the week Mr. Bell of the Wisconsin Bride & Iron company, has been in Douglas, and it is supposed that he is there for the purpose of submitting a revised bid. Rosco Cornell of the Allis-Chalmers was also at Douglas during the week, and it is known that this company will be one of the bidders for the construction of the new Douglas smelter.

At the Shattuck mine only a force of twenty-five men is maintained, and only development work is being done. The property is ready to produce ore whenever the time comes when it will be advisable to do so..

The Copper Queen Consolidated Mining company is today producing more ore than at any time in its history. This does not mean that more copper is being produced at the Douglas smelter, but it does mean that more ore is being produced from the mines of the company in the Warren district. The maximum copper output at the Queen smelter was made during one of the early spring months of last year, but at that time the Queen was smelting large amounts of custom ore, including from 300 to 400 tons daily from the Shattuck mine in this district, 150 tons daily from the Imperial mine in Pima county, and ore from dozens of other mines in Arizona, New Mexico and Sonora.

At both the Copper Queen and the Calumet & Arizona the forces of miners have been maintained during

COPPER MINE IS PECULIAR

Contains Concrete Mass of Pebbly Gravel in Which Copper Carbonate Has Been Forced---"Vein" is 125 Feet Wide.

Kingman, Ariz., March 21.—Possibly one of the most peculiar copper mines in the world has been located and is now being operated by County Recorder Thomas McNeely. It is situated below the old Mineral Park Chloride wagon road, and about three-quarters of a mile from the Western Railway of Arizona.

The mine or deposit is a concrete mass of pebbly gravel or sand in which copper carbonate has either been forced up from below or has been percolated through from some flow from above. The mass lies on a slope running down from the west side of old Nigger Head mountain, some distance below the veins of lime, which have in the past been used for the smelters at Chloride. It is the erosion from this lime deposit that has made the concrete filling in the great mass of copper-bearing material. So far the mass has been uncovered to an extent of from seventy-five to 150 feet in width and 900 in length and a depth of twenty-seven feet. In places the deposit is covered to a superficial depth with debris from the mountain, but wherever this has been sunk through the copper bearing material has been found.

Many holes have been sunk to the ore throughout the main mass of mineral bearing ground and so far no place has been found that does not show the same general character of matter. Assays from all over the mass gives results of from 3.7 per cent to 8 per cent copper. With the amount of work now done on the mine, it is estimated that there is between 150,000 and 200,000 tons of ore in sight, which will yield on a conservative estimate 12,150,000 pounds of pure copper. Should the impression of the owner be correct, and that the concreted mass is but the exudation from a great copper mine, the possibilities of this property are indeed great. But taken as a whole, the occurrence is one of the most peculiar ever found on the Pacific coast and should interest scientific men throughout the land.

PLANT A MODEL OF ECONOMY

Homestake Company Treats Slimes by Cyaniding at Cost of 32 Cents a Ton, the Average Value Being 90 Cents.

Lead, S. D., March 21.—What a well organized property equipped mining organization can accomplish in the way of treating low grade gold ores, with the help of good technical talent is shown by a special report made by C. W. Merrill in charge of the slime plant of the Homestake Mining company. The ore treated in this new plant was valued at 90 cents a ton, the cost of treatment averaging 32 cents a ton.

The addition to this plant has brought the recovery from Homestake ore to 93 per cent at a total milling cost for crushing, amalgamating and cyaniding of approximately 50 cents a ton.

These figures are based on actual operation of the plant for the month of November, during which period twenty-one presses were completed and running. Today the entire twenty-four filter presses are in operation and, a still further change is being made in the cost and recovery figures.

During the month of November, the plant treated 39,468 tons of slime for a recovery of 88 per cent by charge and residue assays, and 91 per cent by bullion, while the total costs were approximately 32 cents a ton. The average value of the slime treated was 90 cents. The cyanide decomposition was .37 of a pound for the first ten days, .33 for the second ten and .32 for the last ten days. The zinc consumption was .2 pound zinc dust per ton of slime, while the lime consumption was four and one-half pounds per ton.

During the last ten days of the month, which may be taken as a fair sample of the work being accomplished at present in the big plant, an average of 1,435 tons of slime was treated per day for a recovery of 8 per cent. The full capacity of the plant is placed at 1,600 tons every twenty-four hours on the slime from the ore mixture now being mlled.

One of the interesting features of the work is the low consumption of power. This was less than one-twentieth of a kilowatt per ton of slime per day, and, according to Mr. Merrill

BOOMING DAYS IN COLORADO

Every Engine and Extra Car Being Employed by the Three Cripple Creek Railroads to Handle Camp's March Product.

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 21.—The three Cripple Creek railroads are employing every engine and extra car in handling the camp's March product. The ore is transported largely to the mills of the United States Reduction & Refining, the Golden Cycle and the Portland companies at Colorado City, which treat 46,000 to 48,000 tons, or 90 per cent of the total. A heavy tonnage is going to Florence. The remainder, mostly smelter grade, is shipped to Pueblo and Denver. A growing tonnage is being treated by cyanide mills at the camp.

Last week the Golden Cycle mine produced 2,800 tons and the Portland 1,750 tons, while the Elkton, Isabella, Cresson, Vindicator, Strong, Mary McKinney and other well known producers exceeded their usual record. The March output, which will be limited only by the capacity of mills to treat the product, will approximate $1,500,000.

The Colorado Consolidated Mines company has purchased the Aduddell group in Willis gulch, Pleasant Valley district, Central City, Colo., from the Empire Gold & Copper Mining company.

The American Smelting & Refining company has instructed its agents at Leadville and other places not to purchase iron ore containing less than six ounces of silver a ton. This action is probably due to the large Leadville iron production in the last few months, the increase being more than 300 per cent. Many small lessees are affected.

After long idleness the Last Dollar mine, Cripple Creek, is outputting from the fourth, eighth and ninth levels 500 to 600 tons monthly. The ore is coming in from two veins, is thoroughly oxidized and contains values from $17 to $20 a ton. The main shaft has been sunk to 1,300 feet. The mine's total production to date is estimated at $2,150,000. It is under lease to the Western Investment company.

The Isabella Mines company, Cripple Creek, is outputting fifty to seventy-five tons daily on company account and all lessees are shipping. The company ore is coming from the 900, 1,000 and 1,100 foot levels of the Lee shaft and averages better than $60 a ton. Ores from lessees run from $20 to $35 a ton. The Isabella mill is treating 125 tons of dump ore daily, the savings being $6 a ton.

The Grizzly Bear tunnel at Ouray is in a good vein, which seems to have paralleled it for 700 feet. Recently a random shot reached the ore body, which is now disclosed at the breast and near the portal. The thirty-five ton mill erected a year ago is being enlarged to treat the ore.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT CABINET A SPLENDID SCHOOL FOR YOUNG MEN.

Top row—Eben Spencer, Robert Mars, Archie Glass, Secretary Norman D. MacLeod, Russell McLean, Palmer Bevis, Lawrence Jaques.

To become a member of the cabinet of the boys' department, Y. M. C. A., is an honor to which every one of the 500 members of the department aspires.

The thirteen boys who comprise the cabinet practically dictate the policy of the department, under the guidance of the secretary. They are responsible for making it a success, and to become a member of the cabinet a boy must have earned the respect and confidence of the boys in the association.

The boys who have graduated from the cabinet are, without exception, making a name for themselves. They are clean cut young men of the best type, and the business men of the city are beginning to look to the association, and the cabinet especially, for promising recruits.

SOCIALISM AND EMPLOYMENT.

There are many millions of people today who are out of employment, and all because of the laws that were and are made today by man and not from the fault of nature. The laws, as laid down by man, were good in the past, but will not suffice for the use of our day. The system we have today, could not long exist if it had not a surplus of unemployed upon which it can draw in times of need. The army of unemployed is growing larger every year, in spite of the prosperous times we have been having in this country. We have in this country 29,000,000 people who labor at gainful occupations, but 49.8 per cent of this number are employed only part time, there being some part of the year they do not have work. The 50.2 per cent work all year. Of this 29,000,000 workers, there are 5,000,000 women. And it seems strange that in this country, that one woman out of every five should be compelled to earn her own living. There are also working as wage earners 1,780,000 children, who seem to have been forced out of school and the home to earn or help earn their living.

The fact begins to stare us in the face that 6,780,000 women and children are working in places that really should be filled by men. We do not blame them; we pity them, but pity does not clothe nor feed those poor creatures who are driven from the home to the office and the factory, there to coin into dollars motherhood and childhood for the Moloch's greed and avarice. The trouble does not end there, for it is not only the women and children that are affected. The 6,780,000 women and children are the cause of throwing out of employment an equal number of men, therefore affecting twice the number, or 13,560,000 people. Women having been compelled to leave the home and invade the domains of man is shown quite clearly in the field of office work. The bookkeeper was a man who required a certain education and ability to perform the duties which would fall upon him, and as such, was able to command a good salary or wage. But the economic condition compelled the woman, who had a certain amount of the education needful to the performance of those duties aided by the modern appliances by which the work has been made so simple, to become a source from which the employer can draw his intellectual labor at a greatly reduced cost.

Drunkenness is given by many people as a great cause of unemployment. But investigation shows that while there is more or less drunkenness, a very small per cent of unemployment can be laid to that cause. Government reports of 1903 placed the cause of unemployment through drunkenness at .26 per cent. Studying the reports I find that in the year 1889 our idle army was only 15.1 per cent of all workers who were unemployed, and that the number had grown to 22.3 per cent in the year 1899; and again that in the year 1903 there were 49.8 per cent who were idle part of the year. I also find that in the state of Minnesota only 41.06 per cent work all year, while those who work only part time is 58.94 per cent. I also find that the native born people of the United States are not the best workers, as they so boastfully claim. The people from Canada work the most and the Swedish people come second as best workers.

With so many unemployed in so prosperous a year as 1903 was, it would not be getting far out of the way to say that between 80 and 90 per cent of the people will be in idleness if the present conditions continue as they are throughout the year. It is safe to say that in Duluth we have 5,000 idle men who are looking for work, but are unable to find it. It certainly is a deplorable condition of affairs, in a country as large as ours, and one that is so plentifully supplied with the materials out of which man can produce his wants. But being restricted from doing so by the laws as they exist is one of the great injustices of our day, and so long as we make no effort to study these questions, we cannot expect much improvement in the growth of the unemployed army. It seems reasonable to believe the contention set forth by the Socialists, that the trouble lies in the ownership of the tools of production and land. We Socialists believe that if the land and machines were owned collectively, and the present wage system were abolished and the equality of opportunity were the order of the day, it would relieve man of many of the injustices which beset his life today. Woman's place would be the home, and the child's place would be the school. Man's place would be one that would demand of him that he produce enough to support the wife at home and to surround her and the child with the necessities and luxuries of life.

P. G. PHILLIPS.

VICTORY AFTER DEFEAT

twice, then, remembering his campaign promise to shout as hard for the other fellow as for himself, if he was not nominated, he pulled himself together, hid his heartbreak behind a smile, strode down in front of the excited delegates, tossed his hat high in the air and let out an ear-splitting yell for his successful opponent. For a moment the convention sat dumb with astonishment. But when the significance of the act dawned on them the delegates rose to a man and shouted themselves hoarse."

After the conversation was over Cockrell's friends assured him that victory would yet come through his defeat. They banked on his dramatic and unselfish act in shouting for Hardin. Cockrell, it is said, at first doubted that he would ever be prominent politically; but a short while after his defeat he began to be talked of as the next United States senator from Missouri. Pretty soon the state was considering no other man for the place, and so it turned out that a twelve month after he had lost the gubernatorial nomination he was representing Missouri in "the most august legislative body in the world." There he remained for thirty years, or until Missouri elected a legislature that was Republican on joint ballot. Even then, a good many Republicans were more than half inclined to vote for Cockrell's re-election, so popular has the old gentleman been with Missourians of every political faith since he became a national figure.

Commissioner Cockrell's record of only two political offices, and one of them appointive, held in thirty-three years, is rather out of the ordinary. And since he has been in politics he has striven really for only one office—the one he failed to get. The senatorship was handed him by a party grateful for his whole-souled support of its gubernatorial candidate; and President Roosevelt made him an interstate commerce commissioner because he felt that the people would lose too heavily with Cockrell's retirement to private life. When considered in this light his victory after his one big defeat has been a unique one.

Stillwell's Daring Coup.

Less than a decade ago Arthur E. Stillwell of Kansas City, one of the most daring railroad builders and transportation men of recent years, was flat broke—he had lost control of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railroad, which he had conceived, financed and constructed, and with control of the property went not only his own fortune but the fortunes of many of his friends, who had backed him in the enterprise.

Even while his Wall street enemies were gloating over their supposed annihilation of the wizard of the West, he had squared his shoulders, conceived a railroad enterprise even more daring than his first and was actually securing co-operation from some of his former backers and friends who had not lost confidence in him through his great defeat.

The new scheme called for a railroad stretching from Kansas City to Mexico, with steamer connection with the Orient. Armed with a few letters of introduction and the same colossal nerve that had caused him to start the construction of his first railroad on a mere $20,000 that he had managed to save from his earnings as a traveling salesman and life insurance agent, he went to Mexico City to lay his plans before President Diaz and, if possible, through him to secure the support of the Mexican government.

He got the interview without much trouble; Mexico just then was most keen to have railroads built. But before he could get down to "tacks" Diaz volunteered the information that while his visitor was on the way South he had been bombarded with messages from the states, those sent from Wall Street warning him to have nothing to do with such a scoundrel, those from Western governors singing his praises.

There was silence for a moment when the president finished telling the incident. Then, with each man looking the other squarely in the eye, the president added quietly:

"I filed the messages from your friends and those from your enemies I burned."

It wasn't long after this interview that Stillwell secured a sufficiently large subsidy from the Mexican government to permit him to go ahead with his new railroad enterprise on a large scale.

The late Henry Villard was another man who "went broke" with a railroad—the Northern Pacific. He secured victory again through a railroad—the same Northern Pacific; and victory was largely his because his friends and backers in the old country also believed in him in spite of his defeat and the losses caused them thereby. It was the Northern Pacific, also, that primarily caused the financial defeat of the celebrated civil war banker, Jay Cooke, in 1873, who, in the latter years of his life enjoyed the fruits of a striking victory after defeat.

Keene's Vicissitudes.

Starting without a cent after his failure aas a curb broker in San Francisco in the seventies, James R. Keene, whose father went West to retrieve the family fortunes waged a bear campaign on the Bonanza mine stocks, thereby making himself a millionaire. These millions and a good many others he had managed to secure in the meanwhile he dropped when he failed to corner the world's wheat market. At that time he also got rid of $3,000,000 that he didn't own. Less than a decade later he had paid back this borrowed fortune with interest and had a snug fortune to his own credit in the banks.

Edmund Clarence Stedman, known nationally as the banker-poet, and whose death was recorded a short time ago, gained a notable financial victory two years after his defeat and proved it by paying his indebtedness in full—$300,000. That was about a quarter of a century ago. Very much more recently Mark Twain overcame a personal deficit of a half million or so by bravely going on a world lecturing tour at an age when most men's thoughts are all of a comfortable seat by a fireside.

Like Henry Villard, W. H. Moore, one of the most famous corporation promoters of latter day American history, met crushing defeat and won a striking subsequent victory on the same battleground. Moore, it may be remembered, was the leading spirit in the organization of the so-called match trust, the Diamond Match company. For several years the enterprise thrived mightily, securing control practically of the match industry in the country and paying large dividends.

Flushed with success, Moore and his associates decided to secure a monopoly of the match business of Europe as well. To this end the president of the company went abroad, and in due time it was announced that the governments of France and Austria would have none other than the trust's machinery. This was the signal for W. H. Moore to lead a campaign to boost the trust stock to $300 a share.

But—"the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley." Down plunged the market, down went match stock with the rest, and after a long and brave fight against great odds, Moore surrendered to the inevitable when he discovered that some member of his own pool was playing traitor. Moore left on the field of battle his personal fortune of $5,000,000 and as much again in borrowed millions.

"I will pay every cent of my indebtedness," he told the newspaper men when they sought him out. And pay he did inside of two years, his victory being secured by his reorganization of the match company.

Today W. H. Moore is a bigger power, financially, than ever, his interests being heavy in numerous railroads and big industrial corporations of national and international fame. Now 60 years of age, his face has the appearance and his step the elasticity of a man about two decades his junior. Naturally his is a buoyant spirit, but, unlike the ordinary promoter, there is nothing of the flamboyant about him. It is interesting to note that both he and Stillwell were born in Western New York, and that both began their big financial operations in the Middle West. Before he went to Amherst college, which he was compelled to leave before graduation, on account of ill health, Mr. Moore received his preparatory education at Cortland academy, Cortland, N. Y., where Alton B. Parker, President Roosevelt's opponent in 1904, was educated.

There are two very notable rather modern instances of mining men winning victory after defeat. Just before the panic of 1893 struck the Independence mine, and so brought about the founding of Colorado's largest mining camp, Cripple Creek, he had lost his savings, $3,000, in a worthless mine and was all but ready to close in disgust his fifteen years' search for gold "high up." N. C. Creede, whose discoveries led to the birth of Creede, Colo., spent fruitless years searching the mountains alone, and he, too, just before victory was won, felt that he had been defeated in his fight for a fortune.

THE FIRST MILL AT RAWHIDE

was first encountered 260 feet from the entrance. In 600 feet of work in the tunnel three viens have been exposed.

With a drift and crosscut started from the 125 foot level the Opdike lease on the Seven Troughs Consolidated has developed a substantial body of milling ore and the management expects shortly to break into the body of rich ore opened on the fifty-foot level. The vein shows nearly three feet of ore that averages $12.50 a ton.

Elko, Nev., March 21.—News has been received here from Boston that the Tuscarora Nevada Mines company has been financed and that the money to carry out the plans of the company will be available soon. The plans include the sinking of a deep four compartment shaft and other shafts and the building of a large mill, the building of a power plant and the building of a railroad from Elko to Tuscarora.

Grachl company's work is increased by the fact that it is operating in a territory in which no big mine has been developed.

Employes of the Oregon Short Line here, who have been developing some claims in Death Valley, West Tintic, have struck good ore. The main vein is from five to twenty-five feet wide, and in all 250 feet of development work has been done on it. Assays run as high as 45 to 70 per cent lead, 10.6 ounces in silver and a trace of gold. In some places the gold values run up to $12 to the ton.

the week at about the same as since the first of the year.

Visitors to Cananea say that the results of the development work during the past few months at the Greene-Cananea properties are almost phenomenal. Especially is this the case in the Cananea & Duluth, where an ore body has been developed for 1,200 feet and on three different levels. Besides the development work in the mines the smelting plant has been completely remodeled and overhauled, many new and economical features having been added, which guarantee a cheaper production in the future. As to when Cananea will resume production nothing definite is known. The remodeled plant will be ready for operation soon after the first of April, but whether it will be started as soon as ready is a matter for decision by the controlling interests.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 21.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Octave Mining company, here, last week, showed that the company has $4,700 cash on hand and goods in the company store valued at $15,000. The treasurer's report showed that the company had no outstanding indebtedness. It also showed that there was gold bullion in transit to the mint to the amount of nearly $40,000; that the company obtained a rebate of $15,000 by anticipating the full payment of property by ten months' time; that the company paid two-thirds of 1 per cent dividend on the outstanding stock, from May 20, 1907, to Oct. 20, 1907, and a monthly dividend of ¾ of 1 per cent on the par value of the stock was paid from Nov. 20 up to and including Feb. 20, 1908. The following board of directors was elected for the ensuing year: C. E. Miesse, Chicago; E. E. Hum, Beaver, Penn.; J. D. Moore, Birmingham, Ala. At a directors' meeting, after the annual meeting, Mr. Miesse was re-elected president, Mr. Moore, vice president, and Mr. Little, secretary and treasurer.

this would be reduced to a merely nominal figure were it not for the necessity of compressing a large volume of air in order to oxidize the reducing chemicals in the Homestake ore. This necessity calls for at least 70 per cent of the power used in the treatment of the slime. The explanation of the small amount of power used is the fact that there is no agitation of pulp, and to the further possibility of using a very small bulk of solution, namely, 1 to 1 or less being all that is leached through the slime cakes.

A thorough test has been made with different ores. During the period after the fire last summer, when the mills were able to resume crushing after a month's idleness, the Homestake was obliged to secure its ore from the open cut, surface ore being used. While this ore was of lower grade and slower of treatment than that taken from the lower levels, as today, it yielded a slightly higher recovery (up to 93 per cent) as was to be expected from ore containing practically no sulphides.

property, and since then two new shafts have been sunk, with results which indicate that the company was right in the conjecture that larger deposits were to be found at a lower level. Similar results have been achieved at Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Ironton mine, which for years before it was acquired by that concern was an abandoned shaft. The same work is in progress at the No. 6 shaft of the Steel corporation's Tilden mine, where a new steel shafthouse has lately been completed. While no statement has been given out of results obtained at this property, the surface developments indicate that there is something below, and that the company is doing after it in a way that promises well for the future life of the mine. In fact, it is a well-defined belief with mining men of the range that this property as well as the Palms, Anvil, Eureka and others will in the years to come produce more ore than in the past. The operators of every mine on the range, from the Atlantic on the west to the old Comet on the east, are going down deeper or are preparing to do so.

An order for ore to be forwarded to the furnaces of the Algoma Steel company at the Canadian Sault has opened the shipping season, at the Cambria Steel company's Republic mine, Marquette range, considerably in advance of the usual date. The product is being shipped at the rate of 5,000 tons a month, which is equivalent to the normal output for two days each week. The American Bridge company has completed the erection of the new steel shafthouse of the Steel corporation's Prince of Wales mine at Negaunee. The shaft over which it stands has been sunk an additional 200 feet for the purpose of opening a new deposit discovered beneath the present workings, and ore from this body will be shipped this year. M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Richmond property, in the Cascade district, south of Negaunee, will resume operations as soon as the shipping season opens. The mine was not operated on as large a scale last summer as the previous season, but it is in condition to produce a large output. It is an open pit proposition and is equipped with an excellent plant of machinery, as well as an ore crusher installed two years ago.

The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's plans for the upbuilding of the new town of Gwinn in the Swanzey district of the Marquette range are progressing rapidly. A building firm, which has already built some dozens of dwellings in the district, has been given a contract for the erection of a modern hospital and a physician's house. Bids will shortly be opened for a twenty-room hotel and a bank building. These structures will be substantially built, of solid brick, and will be modern and permanent. Already the company has expended large sums for homes for its miners and for mine buildings. It owns the townsite of Gwinn and proposes to develop a model mining town, one where buildings will be erected in accordance with regulations that will assure safe and substantial construction, instead of the heterogenous conglomeration of structures usually found in a small mining camp. The company has completed a new channel for the Escanabe river, to carry its waters away from the territory occupied by the mine. The ambitious plans for Gwinn, the extent of the building operations already carried out and the big scope of the company's steps for the development of its mines in the district are evidence of a vast tonnage of ore and that the company looks forward to the time when the district will be a big contributor to the mineral output of the Lake Superior region.

Sounding to confirm a theory held for years—this to the effect that deposits of iron ore existed in the Paint river valley, in the vicinity of the abandoned Atkinson townsite, the Western Menominee range—the developments on the McCollman lands, now being explored by Pickands, Mather & Co., are deemed of much importance. Ore has been found, but whether it is in quantity and of desirable quality are matters for the future to determine. Work has been in progress for upwards of a year. A diamond drill was first operated, but for the past five months shaft-sinking and drifting have been carried on. A depth of 200 feet has been attained. The showing continues to improve as work progresses, and as far as can be judged at this stage the property is a valuable one.

The Pittsburg & Montana company's central ore crusher at Escanaba is being overhauled and put in condition for service with the the opening of navigation. Ore from both the Marquette and Menominee ranges is treated at this plant.

the lease was stopped by the refusal of smelters to take the ore during the copper market depression.

The Pittsburg & Montana company appears to be west of the big fault vein and is mining on several fine veins having an east and west trend. The Pittsburg & Montana is making arrangements to enlarge its smelter.

Stock brokers appear to have control of the Butte-Montana company, and a lot of extravagant stories are circulated about alleged strikes and numerous levels full of ore. A Butte broker has secured an option on a big block of the stock, and he has been active in an effort to create a market. The only work being done is by some leasers and by the Boston & Montana company in making connections with the working of the West Colusa for purposes of safety and ventilation, the Boston & Montana company having a contract with the Butte-Montana for the use of the latter's shaft, which is only a little way from the shaft of the West Colusa. The Alex Scott, the property owned by the Butte-Montana, has an excellent location, and is so situated among producing mines that it seems certain to develop into a producing mine some day. It has but five acres of surface ground.

The affairs of the Butte Central & Boston Copper corporation have become so involved through litigation that they are difficult of adjustment under present conditions, and a reorganization of the company is likely. Claims aggregating about $130,000 are standing against the company, and about $80,000 of the amount represents money advanced by the Tri-National corporation of Boston and some of its officers personally.

group in Ontonagon county would note another epoch in the history of the Lake copper district, comparable in importance only with such events as the opening of the Cliff mine in Keweenaw county and the Minnesota in Ontonagon couty, 1845-1848, the discovery of the Calumet & Hecla in 1866, and the beginning of the development of the Baltic lode in 1896.

Wyandot is one of the crop of 1899 mining companies that has failed to make a mine as yet, having, in common with the Elm River, Rhode Island, Mayflower and Old Colony, done much work with scant reward. At present a 500-foot shaft on an amygdaloid bed about a quarter of a mile east of the Winona lode, is showing an encouraging amount of copper. The Wyandot management deserves to find a mine as a reward for its persistence, and the policy followed of continuing exploratory work, regardless of discouragements, is to be commended. Most of the latter day successful mines are made on ground that has been explored repeatedly, and as often condemned as worthless.

Some adjustment is to be made in the affairs of the Arcadian Copper company, not amounting to a reorganization, but planning along somewhat similar lines. For the immediate future, the Arcadian will be conducted as an exploration, pure and simple, and in its 3,000 acres of land there doubtless lie the makings of several good copper mines. The trouble is to find them in the 3,000 acres, the process taking much time and money.

No. 2 shaft on the Hancock Consolidated, after penetrating 700 feet of conglomerate and sandstone, without cutting a single bed of trap, is bottomed in a highly promising copper-bearing amygdaloid. In fact, the showing is so good that the management is afraid of talking about it, for fear that it may not hold. The new bed has not been corelated as yet with any of the developed amygdaloids of the district, as it lies in a horizon between the Pewabic lode of the Quincy and the Ashbed lode of the Atlantic.

Atlantic and Naumkeag are running two diamond drills, jointly, along their boundaries, in the horizon of the southern extension of the Pewabic lode.

Pacific, which is a neighbor of the old Atlantic, and which has been idle many years, may awake this season.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell, of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3rd our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by all druggists.

WORKERS FACE WANT.

Belfast Mills Make Further Reduction Affecting 20,000 Persons.

Belfast, March 20.—A further reduction has taken place in the working hours of the thousands of employes of the linen establishments in this city. Last November the operatives worked fifty-five hours a week: from now on until further notice at the mills whose owners are members of the Flax Spinners' association will run only thirty-seven hours a week. This reduction will affect between 15,000 and 20,000 employes, and is so substantial as to render privation inevitable.

It was hoped that with the advent of spring the American trade, upon which the prosperity of the industry is to a large extent dependent, would improve, but there re no signs that the markets in the United States have yet recovered from the effects of the financial crsis. The decrease in the demand for yarns is responsible for two reductions of the working hours since December, and masters as well as men are hoping for a fall in prices so that orders may increase.

THE METER SYSTEM.

The policy of the water and light department in abolishing all flat rates for water consumers and requiring the installation of meters in all cases has aroused much discussion, and no little opposition. Those who have flat rates with which they are satisfied, in many cases seem to object to paying out $12 for a meter, even though they are told that in all probability their water rates under the meter system will be lower than they are now on the flat rate basis.

As a general proposition it is the fairest way to make consumers pay for just what they use and for no more and no less, in dealing with any of these public utilities. Consumers now pay for electric light and gas upon a meter basis, by which they are charged a common rate for just what they consume. The same thing is proposed for the water service, and it seems as fair for that as for electric light and gas.

At the same time, there appears to be little to the theory that the city is going to save any money by preventing waste of water, which seems to be the main object of introducing the meter system. Some figures were given by The Herald last night which tend to show this at least to the extent of making a strong prima facie case against the plan.

Under its contract with the power company it is going to cost the city about $6 per million feet of water, or approximately $12,000 per year, to pump the water out of the lake and through the city. That is about the only item of expense that could be reduced by curbing waste of water. The test of the plan, therefore, is whether it will save enough to make the expense pay.

In the first place, the consumers are to be called upon to buy meters at $12 each, which will involve a cost of say $30,000. This must be paid for out of such reduction as can be made in the cost of furnishing the water. It will take a long time to save it out of $12,000 a year.

Again, the installation of thousands of new meters means more expense to the department for installing, inspecting, reading and repairing meters. What this will be can only be estimated. If it amounts to $3,000 a year, that will add 25 per cent to the only item susceptible of change by this plan—the item of pumping. If it adds $6,000 a year, that will be 50 per cent added to the item of pumping.

Will the use of meters, by reducing the waste in water, cut down the pumping cost enough so as to offset these expenses?

Popular Mechanics shows that in twenty-two cities the average gross cost of furnishing water is $02 per million feet. If that is approximately the gross cost here, the only part of that capable of being reduced by curbing waste is the $6 for pumping. The rest is fixed, and cannot be reduced in this manner.

The question to be decided is whether the item of pumping expense, which is the one item that saving of water will affect, can be reduced enough by the use of meters to equal the cost of installing and maintaining the meters. It does not seem probable.

THE KILLING OF AVERBUCH.

It is reported from Chicago that a coroner's jury will investigate the death of the young Jew Averbuch who was killed several weeks ago by Chief of Police Shippy, who charged the young man with having attempted an anarchistic attack upon him at his home.

An uneasy sensation that perhaps there was a failure of justice in this incident has been spreading widely. At first, nobody saw anything in it but a dastardly attack upon law and order by crazed and blindly vicious anarchists. This was because the chief's story was taken at its face value. There was vast indignation at the whole race and tribe of anarchists, which took a form so aggressive that there was danger that injustice would be done.

The officers of the law even went so far as to say that the social settlements of Chicago, in which public-spirited men and women labor for the redemption of the fallen and the outcast, should be rooted out because they had given harborage to anarchists.

The present investigation seems to be the result of reaction against this absurd clamor, since the investigation has been forced by people interested in the social settlements, with Jane Addams of Hull house at their head.

No possible harm can come from the proposed investigation, and there may possibly come some good. The facts about the killing of Averbuch are not at all clear. According to Shippy's story the young man appeared at his door and handed him a letter. Suspecting a ruse, the chief seized Averbuch's hands and a struggle began in which the chief was cut with a knife, his son shot through the lung, his coachman through the hand, and Averbuch was killed.

The letter has not been produced to show whether or not it was really a ruse. The first report that Averbuch was an Italian anarchist has been exploded. He was a Russian Jew, and it is not at all proved that he was even an anarchist. It has not been explained how this slender youth could have created so much havoc after his hands had been seized by Shippy, who is a physical giant and who had two men to assist him. At the same time, neither has it been explained how Shippy should have shot so wildly as to hit both his son and his coachman, while putting half a dozen bullets into Averbuch.

It is well that there is to be an investigation. So long as there is the slightest doubt about the justice of the killing of Averbuch it will not do to let the matter drop without a thorough investigation. The fact that Shippy is chief of police and that Averbuch was a poor young Jew makes no difference. There should be an investigation just the same as there would have been had Averbuch killed Shippy. They were both men, and men are not to be disposed of, either by police officers or citizens, without the public knowing all about how it happened.

There is room for a suspicion that Shippy, agitated by anarchistic talk and threats, lost his head and acted too hastily. For his sake everybody will hope that the suspicion is unfounded. But there should be an investigation to show whether or not it is unfounded.

THE NIOBE OF NATIONS.

In every part of the world the Polish people are rising to protest against the imperial expropriation acts for the Germanizing of West Prussia, or Prussian Poland, and small wonder. There is not a people on earth that holds liberty dearer than the Polish nation, and there is not one that is more mercilessly and ruthlessly oppressed.

Once a strong, vigorous nation, that did its share in the big things of European history, Poland today lies prostrate, divided between three countries and threatened with complete extinction as a people. Were the oppressor a single nation, the Poles would have risen long ago. As it is their efforts have been futile, because it is not one but three powerful nations that they must fight to win their dearly loved freedom.

There is no sadder tragedy in the history of nations than that of Poland. It was organized as a kingdom in 840. In the thirteenth century a Mongolian invasion swept Europe and shattered Poland into a collection of separate principalities. The fourteenth century saw the nation rise again under a common government, with Lithuania and Galicia added. In the sixteenth century Poland was a kingdom of imperial dimensions and imperial power, stretching from the Baltic to the Dneister and from a point ninety miles west of Berlin to within 150 miles of Moscow. It was larger then than Germany, Switzerland and Italy combined. Under Sobieski this nation turned back the invasion of the Turks and saved Vienna from serfdom to the Ottoman empire.

This was the crest of her fortunes. The hereditary dynasty that commanded allegiance became extinct, and religious dissensions divided the people. At a time when powerful monarchs were rising around her, looking about for fields to conquer to minister to their greatness, Poland was weak and disunited. Peter the Great and Catherine II of Russia, Frederick the Great of Prussia and Maria Theresa of Austria brought about the dismemberment of Poland, and divided her territory among themselves.

Poland's weakness was her internal dissensions, and her centralized, powerful neighbors took advantage of it. Having divided Poland among themselves, they have sought since to blot out her traditions and to obliterate all traces of Polish nationalism. The attempt in Prussian Poland is but a repetition of former outrages. Prussia is alienating the lands from Polish people and replacing them by immigrants, in the effort to Prussianize the land. Thus far Poland has resisted successfully many such attempts. Instead of being assimilated, she has assimilated the aliens. The Poles cling to their language and their institutions with the despairing grip of death, and have always resisted attempts such as are being made at present to enforce the use of the tongues of the conquerors. Though her people are scattered all over the world, there are yet in Europe 160,000,000 of them; a force that would, if it could be united, be a power in the councils of Europe.

The Poles refuse to part with their dreams of liberty and of a reunited and re-established Poland, and it will take a long and bloody struggle to shatter them forever.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST PROSPERITY.

A favorite phrase among reactionaries, used to describe the campaign being made by President Roosevelt and his supporters in both parties to curb the greed of special privilege, is "conspiracy against prosperity."

When the president demands laws regulating large business interests, it is part of a "conspiracy against prosperity." When states seek to regulate railroad rates, it is another part of the "conspiracy against prosperity." When any authority anywhere seeks to stand up for the interests of the producers and consumers of the land, and to demand that a share of the benefits of modern conditions shall be given to them, it is still another part of the "conspiracy against prosperity."

From the viewpoint of those who have been getting the rich cream from the nation's prosperity, leaving only the thinnest and bluest kind of skimmed milk for the ordinary run of humanity, it is easy to see that it is a "conspiracy against prosperity." It is a "conspiracy" to bring about a fair distribution of prosperity, and that means that those who have been getting more than their share must lose something. To their minds this constitutes a conspiracy against the good of the nation.

The trouble is that they, and too many of the rest of us, have been thinking too much about prosperity in the mass, and not enough about its distribution through the masses.

A nation's real prosperity does not consist in a large bulk of wealth without regard to who owns it. The average condition is what counts, and that does not mean the kind of average that results when one man owns a million, 9,999 own nothing, and the average is $100 apiece. It means the kind of average where the masses are well employed, well paid, comfortably housed, clothed and fed, and suitably educated. It means the kind of average where prosperity is distributed, instead of being mostly congested in the coffers of a few beneficiaries of special privilege.

We have now too much of the kind of average prosperity where, like the case of the one man with a million and the 9,999 with nothing, the average is only in figures. We have not enough of the kind in which, by reasonable regulation of employment, prices and profits, a fair share of the general prosperity is permitted to leak out to those who really make it—the men who till the soil, dig the riches out of the mines, and turn their brawn and brain into wealth in the factories.

If, in a community with conditions like that of the one and the 9,999 referred to, the 9,999 decided to cut off special privileges and turn the current of prosperity among themselves, instead of permitting it all to go to the one, no doubt the one would shriek that it was a "conspiracy against prosperity." It would be a "conspiracy," if you wish to call it that, for the distribution and against the congestion of prosperity, but the community would not have a dollar less wealth because the 9,999 got easier living conditions and the one lost some of his surplus.

THOSE ELECTION FRAUDS.

Following the recent city primary election, and before the general election, there was much talk in this town about election frauds.

It was charged, more or less openly, that there had been wholesale election abuses in the primary election, consisting of repeating and of fraudulent voting. The News Tribune, which had championed Mayor Cullum and was continuing its bitter opposition to his opponent, day after day spoke of these "wholesale frauds" and hinted darkly about "men higher up" who were implicated in them.

With this suspicion existing, naturally there were prosecutions. There were several arrests, and the county was put to great expense in bringing one of the accused men back from San Francisco and in prosecuting him.

The result was that yesterday all the election fraud cases were dismissed, and there are now none pending. There have been no convictions, and absolutely no proof of frauds, either wholesale or retail.

Now this matter is too important to stop here. Election fraud is a sinister thing. An election procured by fraud is as menacing to good government as an election procured through the negligence of the voters. But an attempt to influence a pending election by gratuitously false charges of fraud is also a sinister thing.

It was charged prior to the general election that this talk of fraud was being made for political purposes. The fact that no trials were attempted before election was used to support this charge. The complete failure of the prosecutions tends to support it still further.

If the prosecuting authorities have been misled into spending a good deal of county money by false charges intended for political purposes only it is a serious thing. If there were election frauds it was proper that there should be prompt prosecutions and severe punishment—for the "men higher up" as well as for the others. But the fiasco that has resulted from the charges that were made is not reassuring as to their good faith.

An investigation to determine whether or not a baseless cry of fraud was raised for purely political purposes would seem to be in order.

ECONOMIC TENDENCIES.

As nearly as one may ascertain, the people of this country are divided, in their economic views, into three great divisions.

First are those who, either because of self-interest, ignorance or sycophancy, wish to have matters remain as they are—or rather as they were; for the country has progressed economically more, in these days of Roosevelt, than it realizes. In this class are the beneficiaries of special privileges and of the people's negligence, such as those who control great corporations and those who have made much easy money by stock exchange tricks that are as evil and as unfair as any crooked gambler's devices. The man who has made fortunes by overcapitalizing industry does not wish to see the people, through their government, regulating capitalization. The man who, as dictator in a great industry, has robbed stockholders and public alike, does not wish to see the government "meddling in private business" as it must if it controls the large interests and makes them the servants of the people instead of their masters. This class is represented in politics by a large number of senators and congressmen, such as Senators Foraker and Aldrich and Speaker Cannon.

Second are those who might be termed social evolutionists, who realize that progress is an immutable law of nature and that the fond fools of the first class can no more stay it than they can make the sun stand still. They realize that as the rights of man struggled their way up and threw off the rule of kings, princes and potentates, so will they throw off the rule of big business interests which are now so oppressive. The members of this class wish to see humanity given at least equal rights with property; they recognize the absolute need of strict regulation of business by the government in the common interest, and if that fails they will probably advance into the next class.

This next class may be called social revolutionists. They, like the members of the second class, recognize the evils that exist in economic conditions, but unlike the second class, they have some definite plan for remedying them. They range all the way from the mild, scientific Socialist, who argues that the only cure is to put the ownership of unwieldy and unmanageable business interests into the hands of the people, to the wild anarchist, whose philosophy consists largely of striking blindly at existing institutions in the hope that if they are all destroyed something better will rise in their places.

Practically all of the people may be assigned to one of the three classes. The first class is most effective because it knows exactly what it wants and exactly how to get it. The second class is the least effective because it has not progressed so far as to cling to a tangible remedy. The third class is ineffective also because it is divided between a multitude of remedies, but it is the most useful of the three because it spurs the first class into better behavior and because it makes the second class give more attention to the need of finding the remedy.

Ultimately the second class will graduate, by reasoning and by the logic of events, into the third class, and there will be but two—the first class, which resists progress, and the third class, which demands progress and has a definite goal in view.

Anna Gould denies the report that she is to marry another French nobleman, and says she has had enough matrimony. She certainly has had her share—of a kind.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Here is the history of a lead dollar:

Where this dollar came into being has not been ascertained. Its birthplace was probably in some musty cellar. Under such circumstances this dollar had but little chance of being a good dollar. Heredity cuts a lot of ice.

The dollar met with much misfortune—it came to Superior. It had been going from bad to worse. Everybody rejected it. No one founded it lovingly deep down in the trouser pocket, but after once ascertaining its family history, they quickly passed it on.

So it came to pass—not the dollar—that a traveling man by the name of Foster came to Duluth. He registered at the hotel de Lenox. "I hate to do it," he cried, "but business calleth and I must hie me to Superior." So to Superior he went. There he met the dollar.

So in Superior they handed the forlorn lead dollar to Mr. Foster in exchange for more aristocratic currency. Coziy the poor dollar settled in the pocket of the traveling man. That's the only place where it could settle. Its peace was short lived. When the traveling man returned from Superior and shook off the lethargy that is brought on by a visit to the cross-bay town, he discovered that he had been made a victim. Ho, for revenge.

He passed the poor lead dollar on an unsuspecting woman in a Superior street candy store. Oh, base resolve.

Chapter the second.

It so happened that A. Ribenack, perpetrator of jokes of a practical nature, learned of the passing of the dollar of tainted lineage. His gallantry instantly bubbled to the bursting point. "Never let it be said," he cried, "that the deceived candy counter attendant be unavenged." Cheers greeted this resolve.

Going to the telephone Mr. Ribenack called up Mr. Foster and muffling his voice into a deep bass intonation, informed that gentleman that the chief of police was speaking. He informed him that the lady of the candy counter had complained grieviously against the passing of the shady dollar—coming to the station three times in fact to give force to her complaints.

Mr. Foster was told—not advised—to deposit a good dollar with the clerk of the hotel, as a guaranty that the lady of the candy counter would be paid in full Mr. Foster demurred. The voice took on a deeper, more sinister intonation and Mr. Foster meekly acquiesced.

Chapter the third.

Thirty minutes is supposed to have elapsed, the scene shifting from the lobby of the hotel to the grill room.

Hail fellows are gathered round the thirst board. Lo, one is missing—it is Foster. Money speaks, though, and the dollar of silver fibre and good family history is in the pocket of Host Ribenack. So while Foster worries lest the chief may resolve to make an example of him, his dollar is being bartered for fragrant whirs from old Havana.

Little Mlle. Birike Wirora thinks that the American men are "too fresh." The petite Hungarian dancer has seen the men of many climes. She has looked upon the youths and the gray beards of France, England, Germany, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Hungary, Spain—and America; and she says our men are "what you call—too fresh."

Mlle. Wirora, who is appearing at a local theater, was seen at the Lenox yesterday. Her views on things are certainly interesting. She has traveled all over this big world and she says she likes America, despite its men of forward tendencies. She says this, too, in a tone that belies more "jolly." She has many ambitions, and America is the place where she hopes to work these ambitious outs.

To the little woman in her dance of barbaric passions and of wild gestures, one wouldn't suppose that she was a home-loving person, but she is.

When one has played in London, Budapest, Dresden, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Milan, Rotterdam, Buenos Ayres, Rio De Janeiro, and other places as well they might want to settle down. Between telling of her ambitions, Mlle. Wirora is telling of her desire for a home, where she can forget that one Mr. Wagner, ever invented a sleeping car.

Since coming to America three years ago, Mlle. Wirora has played in vaudeville and burlesque. Her ambition is to shine in the light opera. She is learning the English language so that she can accomplish this desire. She would emulate the success achieved by Anna Held and Yvette Guilbert. She would give imitations of Madame Sarah Bernhardt—"Ze grand lady"—and of other famous women she has seen. She would go in for the straight light opera, with a little dash of specialty on the side.

But returning to the American Johnny. Mlle. Wirora says that they speak without being spoken to. "Zey see you on ze stage—ah"—deep shrug—"zey speak to you on ze street."

In other countries, she says, the men sometimes preface whatever they may have to say with "by your leave, Madame." But Americans simply walk right up. But, even at that, the American men most have something on the foreign ones, for Mlle. Wirora says that after all there are so many nice men in America.

This summer, Mlle. Wirora goes to see "my papa," in far away Hungary. Then she returns, perhaps to realize her dreams. Who knows?

THE WEATHER.

Mild, cloudy, with northeast breezes; such were conditions this morning. They mean showers elsewhere in the Northwest, but snow flurries here, according to the weather man. Last night's lowest temperature was 26 degs. and yesterday's highest was 39 degs. The weather man says it will be colder tomorrow, following another mild night. Today, be it remembered, is officially the first day of spring.

A year ago today it was mild and partly cloudy.

The sun rose this morning at 6:09 and sets tonight at 6:29, making 12 hours and 13 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The British Columbi-Alberta disturbance has advanced its center to Manitoba. During the past twenty-four hours its influence caused light snow in Wyoming and Western Canada, and warmer weather in the lake region, the Upper Mississippi, Red River and Missouri valleys and Eastern Rocky mountain slopes. Some rain fell during Friday or last night in South Atlantic and Eastern Gulf states, due to a slight depression that has since moved off into the Atlantic. Areas of high pressure overlie the North Pacific districts and the Ohio valley, the former causing colder weather in the extreme Northwest, and the latter being attended by lower temperatures in Atlantic and Gulf states. Mostly cloudy weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Sunday, with some chance of snow flurries and followed by colder Sunday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

In Praise of Tolerance.

One of the splendid things about the time in which we live is the growth and the constant expression of the spirit of tolerance. We no longer burn or hang those whose opinions differ from our own. We do not demand that another person's intellectual or emotional life shall be run into precisely the same mold in which we have crystallized our own. We have become hospitably disposed—at least most of us have—toward practises and customs at which a former generation may have looked askance.

A number of factors have combined to bring about this happy status. Chief among them is the craving for liberty which has taken possession of hearts the world over during the last half century. Beneath all the great recent forward movements of humanity we feel the mighty pulsations of this spirit that yearns for freedom, as the plant seeks the light. And the man who claims liberty for himself must accord it to others. Then, too, as knowledge has widened we have also learned how much more of truth is yet to be discovered. As a consequence, serious men, reverent in the face of great unraveled mysteries, have not been so enamored of the completeness of their own view of the universe that they are unwilling to hear patiently opposing views which may contain at least the germ of truth.

Another powerful factor in producing an age of tolerance has been the incontestable evidence furnished by facts. Our age reveres facts and when it can be shown that a so-called heresy produces desirable results, you can't relegate that particular view to the rear as unworthy of being tolerated for a moment in a civilized community. Take is in the region of physical healing, for example. The books on materia medica may say this or that, but suddenly something comes along very different from quackery, but at the same time not hitherto included in your therapeutics. But it works. Chronic cases and even incurable cases of illness yield to the new remedy. Right before your eyes, as before the eyes of the Pharisees 1900 years ago, is "the man that was healed of his infirmity." Facts, especially human facts, are stubborn things. Now, it does not follow that all the medical lore of the centuries is to be thrown away in favor of this new device or cult, but we ought to have grace enough to admit that no one school of medicine has the monopoly of the healing art.

Especially true is it in the realm of religion that modern developments conduce to the growth and practise of tolerance, though we are not always as tolerant as the circumstances warrant. For it cannot be denied that there are many roads to virtue and that the Heavenly city has gates on more than one side. Here again the facts are incontrovertible. When the Salvation Army was started it met with about the same reception in England which the man had who carried the first umbrella on the streets of London. "What possible good can result from the beating of drums and all the tomfoolery on the street?" But, lo, the years go by and men are reclaimed from the gutter, women are delivered from the shameful life. And with the facts before them, England and America unite in saying, "Bravo, Gen. Booth!"

Yes, give the other man his chance and his right. That is what tolerance means. And this we ought always to do not only in matters of medicine and theology, but in those frequent and inevitable differences of opinion with people under our own roof and in the places where we do our daily work. Provided we know that the person who holds contrary views is sincere in holding them, is open to new light and is trying to live up to the light he already has, we can bear with him and hope that some time common ground may be found. And if all maintained this attitude, what a good world it would be.

THE METER SYSTEM.

The policy of the water and light department in abolishing all flat rates for water consumers and requiring the installation of meters in all cases has aroused much discussion, and no little opposition. Those who have flat rates with which they are satisfied, in many cases seem to object to paying out $12 for a meter, even though they are told that in all probability their water rates under the meter system will be lower than they are now on the flat rate basis.

As a general proposition it is the fairest way to make consumers pay for just what they use and for no more and no less, in dealing with any of these public utilities. Consumers now pay for electric light and gas upon a meter basis, by which they are charged a common rate for just what they consume. The same thing is proposed for the water service, and it seems as fair for that as for electric light and gas.

At the same time, there appears to be little to the theory that the city is going to save any money by preventing waste of water, which seems to be the main object of introducing the meter system. Some figures were given by The Herald last night which tend to show this at least to the extent of making a strong prima facie case against the plan.

Under its contract with the power company it is going to cost the city about $9 per million feet of water, or approximately $12,000 per year, to pump the water out of the lake and through the city. That is about the only item of expense that could be reduced by curbing waste of water. The test of the plan, therefore, is whether it will save enough to make the expense pay

In the first place, the consumers are to be called upon to buy meters at $12 each, which will involve a cost of say $30,000. This must be paid for out of such reduction as can be made in the cost of furnishing the water. It will take a long time to save it out of $12,000 a year.

Again, the installation of thousands of new meters means more expense to the department for installing, inspecting, reading and repairing meters. What this will be can only be estimated. If it amounts to $3,000 a year, that will add 25 per cent to the only item susceptible of change by this plan—the item of pumping. If it adds $6,000 a year, that will be 50 per cent added to the item of pumping.

Will the use of meters, by reducing the waste in water, cut down the pumping cost enough so as to offset these expenses?

Popular Mechanics shows that in twenty-two cities the average gross cost of furnishing water is $12 per million feet. If that is approximately the gross cost here, the only part of that capable of being reduced by curbing waste is the $6 for pumping. The rest is fixed, and cannot be reduced in this manner.

The question to be decided is whether the item of pumping expense, which is the one item that saving of water will affect, can be reduced enough by the use of meters to equal the cost of installing and maintaining the meters. It does not seem probable.

THE KILLING OF AVERBUCH.

It is reported from Chicago that a coroner's jury will investigate the death of the young Jew Averbuch who was killed several weeks ago by Chief of Police Shippy, who charged the young man with having attempted an anarchistic attack upon him at his home.

An uneasy sensation that perhaps there was a failure of justice in this incident has been spreading widely. At first, nobody saw anything in it but a dastardly attack upon law and order by crazed and blindly vicious anarchists. This was because the chief's story was taken at its face value. There was vast indignation at the whole race and tribe of anarchists, which took a form so aggressive that there was danger that injustice would be done.

The officers of the law even went so far as to say that the social settlements of Chicago, in which public spirited men and women labor for the redemption of the fallen and the outcast, should be rooted out because they had given harborage to anarchists.

The present investigation seems to be the result of reaction against this absurd clamor, since the investigation has been forced by people interested in the social settlements, with Jane Addams of Hull house at their head.

No possible harm can come from the proposed investigation, and there may possibly come some good. The facts about the killing of Averbuch are not at all clear. According to Shippy's story the young man appeared at his door and handed him a letter. Suspecting a ruse, the chief seized Averbuch's hands and a struggle began in which the chief was cut with a knife, his son shot through the lung, his coachman through the hand, and Averbuch was killed.

The letter has not been produced to show whether or not it was really a ruse. The first report that Averbuch was an Italian anarchist has been exploded. He was a Russian Jew, and it is not at all proved that he was even an anarchist. It has not been explained how this slender youth could have created so much havoc after his hands had been seized by Shippy, who is a physical giant and who had two men to assist him. At the same time, neither has it been explained how Shippy should have shot so wildly as to hit both his son and his coachman, while putting half a dozen bullets into Averbuch.

It is well that there is to be an investigation. So long as there is the slightest doubt about the justice of the killing of Averbuch it will not do to let the matter drop without a thorough investigation. The fact that Shippy is chief of police and that Averbuch was a poor young Jew makes no difference. There should be an investigation just the same as there would have been had Averbuch killed Shippy. They were both men, and men are not to be disposed of, either by police officers or citizens, without the public knowing all about how it happened.

There is room for a suspicion that Shippy, agitated by anarchistic talk and threats, lost his head and acted too hastily. For his sake everybody will hope that the suspicion is unfounded. But there should be an investigation to show whether or not it is unfounded.

THE NIOBE OF NATIONS.

In every part of the world the Polish people are rising to protest against the imperial expropriation acts for the Germanizing of West Prussia, or Prussian Poland, and small wonder. There is not a people on earth that holds liberty dearer than the Polish nation, and there is not one that is more mercilessly and ruthlessly oppressed.

Once a strong, vigorous nation, that did its share in the big things of European history, Poland today lies prostrate, divided between three countries and threatened with complete extinction as a people. Were the oppressor a single nation, the Poles would have risen long ago. As it is their efforts have been futile, because it is not one but three powerful nations that they must fight to win their dearly loved freedom.

There is no sadder tragedy in the history of nations than that of Poland. It was organized as a kingdom in 840. In the thirteenth century a Mongolian invasion swept Europe and shattered Poland into a collection of separate principalities. The fourteenth century saw the nation rise again under a common government, with Lithuania and Galicia added. In the sixteenth century Poland was a kingdom of imperial dimensions and imperial power, stretching from the Baltic to the Dneister and from a point ninety miles west of Berlin to within 150 miles of Moscow. It was larger then than Germany, Switzerland and Italy combined. Under Sobieski this nation turned back the invasion of the Turks and saved Vienna from serfdom to the Ottoman empire.

This was the crest of her fortunes. The hereditary dynasty that commanded allegiance became extinct, and religious dissensions divided the people. At a time when powerful monarchs were rising around her, looking about for fields to conquer to minister to their greatness, Poland was weak and dismited. Peter the Great and Catherine II of Russia, Frederick the Great of Prussia and Maria Theresa of Austria brought about the dismemberment of Poland, and divided her territory among themselves.

Poland's weakness was her internal dissensions, and her centralized, powerful neighbors took advantage of it. Having divided Poland among themselves, they have sought since to blot out her traditions and to obliterate all traces of Polish nationalism. The attempt in Prussian Poland is but a repetition of former outrages. Prussia is alienating the lands from Polish people and replacing them by immigrants, in the effort to Prussianize the land. Thus far Poland has resisted successfully many such attempts. Instead of being assimilated, she has assimilated the aliens. The Poles cling to their language and their institutions with the despairing grip of death, and have always resisted attempts such as are being made at present to enforce the use of the tongues of the conquerors. Though her people are scattered all over the world, there are yet in Europe 160,000,000 of them; a force that would, if it could be united, be a power in the councils of Europe.

The Poles refuse to part with their dreams of liberty and of a reunited and re-established Poland, and it will take a long and bloody struggle to shatter them forever.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST PROSPERITY.

A favorite phrase among reactionaries, used to describe the campaign being made by President Roosevelt and his supporters in both parties to curb the greed of special privilege, is "conspiracy against prosperity."

When the president demands laws regulating large business interests, it is part of a "conspiracy against prosperity." When states seek to regulate railroad rates, it is another part of the "conspiracy against prosperity." When any authority anywhere seeks to stand up for the interests of the producers and consumers of the land, and to demand that a share of the benefits of modern conditions shall be given to them, it is still another part of the "conspiracy against prosperity."

From the viewpoint of those who have been getting the rich cream from the nation's prosperity, leaving only the thinnest and bluest kind of skimmed milk for the ordinary run of humanity, it is easy to see that it is a "conspiracy against prosperity." It is a "conspiracy" to bring about a fair distribution of prosperity, and that means that those who have been getting more than their share must lose something. To their minds this constitutes a conspiracy against the good of the nation.

The trouble is that they, and too many of the rest of us, have been thinking too much about prosperity in the mass, and not enough about its distribution through the masses.

A nation's real prosperity does not consist in a large bulk of wealth without regard to who owns it. The average condition is what counts, and that does not mean the kind of average that results when one man owns a million, 9,999 own nothing, and the average is $100 apiece. It means the kind of average where the masses are well employed, well paid, comfortably housed, clothed and fed, and suitably educated. It means the kind of average where prosperity is distributed, instead of being mostly congested in the coffers of a few beneficiaries of special privilege.

We have now too much of the kind of average prosperity where, like the case of the one man with a million and the 9,999 with nothing, the average is only in figures. We have not enough of the kind in which, by reasonable regulation of employment, prices and profits, a fair share of the general prosperity is permitted to leak out to those who really make it—the men who till the soil, dig the riches out of the mines, and turn their brawn and brain into wealth in the factories.

If, in a community with conditions like that of the one and the 9,999 referred to, the 9,999 decided to cut off special privileges and turn the current of prosperity among themselves, instead of permitting it all to go to the one, no doubt the one would shriek that it was a "conspiracy against prosperity." It would be a "conspiracy," if you wish to call it that, for the distribution and against the congestion of prosperity, but the community would not have a dollar less wealth because the 9,999 got easier living conditions and the one lost some of his surplus.

THOSE ELECTION FRAUDS.

Following the recent city primary election, and before the general election, there was much talk in this town about election frauds.

It was charged, more or less openly, that there had been wholesale election abuses in the primary election, consisting of repeating and of fraudulent voting. The News Tribune, which had championed Mayor Cullum and was continuing its bitter opposition to his opponent, day after day spoke of these "wholesale frauds" and hinted darkly about "men higher up" who were implicated in them.

With this suspicion existing, naturally there were prosecutions. There were several arrests, and the county was put to great expense in bringing one of the accused men back from San Francisco and in prosecuting him.

The result was that yesterday all the election fraud cases were dismissed, and there are now none pending. There have been no convictions, and absolutely no proof of frauds, either wholesale or retail.

Now this matter is too important to stop here. Election fraud is a sinister thing. An election procured by fraud is as menacing to good government as an election procured through the negligence of the voters. But an attempt to influence a pending election by gratuitously false charges of fraud is also a sinister thing.

It was charged prior to the general election that this talk of fraud was being made for political purposes. The fact that no trials were attempted before election was used to support this charge. The complete failure of the prosecutions tends to support it still further.

If the prosecuting authorities have been misled into spending a good deal of county money by false charges intended for political purposes only it is a serious thing. If there were election frauds it was proper that there should be prompt prosecutions and severe punishment—for the "men higher up" as well as for the others. But the fiasco that has resulted from the charges that were made is not reassuring as to their good faith.

An investigation to determine whether or not a baseless cry of fraud was raised for purely political purposes would seem to be in order.

ECONOMIC TENDENCIES.

As nearly as one may ascertain, the people of this country are divided, in their economic views, into three great divisions.

First are those who, either because of self-interest, ignorance or sycophancy, wish to have matters remain as they are—or rather as they were; for the country has progressed economically more, in these days of Roosevelt, than it realizes. In this class are the beneficiaries of special privileges and of the people's negligence, such as those who control great corporations and those who have made much easy money by stock exchange tricks that are as evil and as unfair as any crooked gambler's devices. The man who has made fortunes by overcapitalizing industry does not wish to see the people, through their government, regulating capitalization. The man who, as dictator in a great industry, has robbed stockholders and public alike, does not wish to see the government "meddling in private business" as it must if it controls the large interests and makes them the servants of the people instead of their masters. This class is represented in politics by a large number of senators and congressmen, such as Senators Foraker and Aldrich and Speaker Cannon.

Second are those who might be termed social evolutionists, who realize that progress is an immutable law of nature and that the fond fools of the first class can no more stay it than they can make the sun stand still. They realize that as the rights of man struggled their way up and threw off the rule of kings, princes and potentates, so will they throw off the rule of big business interests which are now so oppressive. The members of this class wish to see humanity given at least equal rights with property; they recognize the absolute need of strict regulation of business by the government in the common interest, and if that fails they will probably advance into the next class.

This next class may be called social revolutionists. They, like the members of the second class, recognize the evils that exist in economic conditions, but unlike the second class, they have some definite plan for remedying them. They range all the way from the mild, scientific Socialist, who argues that the only cure is to put the ownership of unwieldy and unmanageable business interests into the hands of the people, to the wild anarchist, whose philosophy consists largely of striking blindly at existing institutions in the hope that if they are all destroyed something better will rise in their places.

Practically all of the people may be assigned to one of the three classes. The first class is most effective because it knows exactly what it wants and exactly how to get it. The second class is the least effective because it has not progressed so far as to cling to a tangible remedy. The third class is ineffective also because it is divided between a multitude of remedies, but it is the most useful of the three because it spurs the first class into better behavior and because it makes the second class give more attention to the need of finding the remedy.

Ultimately the second class will graduate, by reasoning and by the logic of events, into the third class, and there will be but two—the first class, which resists progress, and the third class, which demands progress and has a definite goal in view.

Anna Gould denies the report that she is to marry another French nobleman, and says she has had enough matrimony. She certainly has had her share—of a kind.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Here is the history of a lead dollar:

Where this dollar came into being has not been ascertained. Its birthplace was probably in some musty cellar. Under such circumstances this dollar had but little chance of being a good dollar. Heredity cut a lot of ice.

The dollar met with much misfortune—it came to Superior. It had been going from bad to worse. Everybody rejected it. No one founded it lovingly deep down in the trouser pocket, but after once ascertaining its family history, they quickly passed it on.

So it came to pass—not the dollar—that a traveling man by the name of Foster came to Duluth. He registered at the hotel de Lenox. "I hate to do it," he cried, "but business calleth and I must hie me to Superior." So to Superior he went. There he met the dollar.

So in Superior they handed the forlorn lead dollar to Mr. Foster in exchange for more aristocratic currency. Cozily the poor dollar settled in the pocket of the traveling man. That's the only place where it could settle. Its peace was short lived. When the traveling man returned from Superior and shook off the lethargy that is brought on by a visit to the cross-bay town, he discovered that he had been made a victim. Ho, for revenge.

He passed the poor lead dollar on an unsuspecting woman in a Superior street candy store. Oh, base resolve.

Chapter the second.

It so happened that A. Ribenack, perpetrator of jokes of a practical nature, learned of the passing of the dollar of tainted lineage. His gallantry instantly bubbled to the bursting point. "Never let it be said," he cried, "that the deceived candy counter attendant be unavenged." Cheers greeted this resolve.

Going to the telephone Mr. Ribenack called up Mr. Foster and muffling his voice into a deep bass intonation, informed that gentleman that the chief of police was speaking. He informed him that the lady of the candy counter had complained greviously against the passing of the shady dollar—coming to the station three times in fact to give force to her complaints.

Mr. Foster was told—not advised—to deposit a good dollar with the clerk of the hotel, as a guaranty that the lady of the candy counter would be paid in full. Mr. Foster demurred. The voice took on a deeper, more sinister intonation and Mr. Foster meekly acquiesced.

Chapter the third.

Thirty minutes is supposed to have elapsed, the scene shifting from the lobby of the hotel to the grill room.

Hail fellows are gathered round the thirst board. Lo, one is missing—it is Foster. Money speaks, though, and the dollar of silver fibre and good family history is in the pocket of Host Ribenack. So while Foster worries lest the chief may resolve to make an example of him, his dollar is being bartered for fragrant whiffs from old Havanas.

Little Mlle. Birike Wirora thinks that the American men are "too fresh." The petite Hungarian dancer has seen the men of many climes. She has looked upon the youths and the gray beards of France, England, Germany, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Hungary, Spain—and America; and she says our men are "what you call—too fresh."

Mlle. Wirora, who is appearing at a local theater, was seen at the Lenox yesterday. Her views on things are certainly interesting. She has traveled all over this big world and she says she likes America, despite its men of forward tendencies. She says this, too, in a tone that belies more "jolly." She has many ambitions, and America is the place where she hopes to work these ambitions out.

To the little woman in her dance of barbaric passions and of wild gestures, one wouldn't suppose that she was a home-loving person, but she is.

When one has played in London, Budapest, Dresden, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Milan, Rotterdam, Buenos Ayres, Rio De Janeiro, and other places as well, they might want to settle down. Besides telling of her ambitions, Mlle. Wirora is telling of her desire for a home, where she can forget that one Mr. Wagner, ever invented a sleeping car.

Since coming to America three years ago, Mlle. Wirora has played in vaudeville and burlesque. Her ambition is to shine in the light opera. She is learning the English language so that she can accomplish this desire. She would emulate the success achieved by Anna Held and Yvette Guilbert. She would give imitations of Madame Sarah Bernhardt—"Ze grand lady"—and of other famous women she has seen. She would go in for the straight light opera, with a little dash of specialty on the side.

But returning to the American Johnny, Mlle. Wirora says that they speak without being spoken to. "Zey see you on ze stage—ah"—deep shrug—"zey speak to you on ze street."

In other countries, she says, the men sometimes preface whatever they may have to say with "By your leave, Madame." But Americans simply walk right up. But, even at that, the American men most have something on the foreign ones, for Mlle. Wirora says that after all there are so many nice men in America.

This summer, Mlle. Wirora goes to see "my papa," in far away Hungary. Then she returns, perhaps to realize her dreams. Who knows?

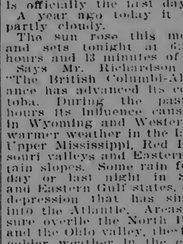
THE WEATHER.



Mild, cloudy, with northeast breezes; such were conditions this morning. They mean showers elsewhere in the Northwest, but snow flurries here, according to the weather man. Last night's lowest temperature was 28 degs. and yesterday's highest was 39 degs. The weather man says it will be colder tomorrow, following another mild night. Today, be it remembered, is officially the last day of spring.

A year ago today it was mild and partly cloudy.

The sun rose this morning at 6:09 and sets tonight at 6:30, making 12 hours and 13 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The British Columbi-Alberta disturbance has advanced its center to Manitoba. During the past twenty-four hours its influence caused light snow in Wyoming and Western Canada, and warmer weather in the lake region, the Upper Mississippi, Red River and Missouri valleys and Eastern Rocky mountain slopes. Some rain fell during Friday or last night in South Atlantic and Eastern Gulf states, due to a slight depression that has since moved off into the Atlantic. Areas of high pressure overlie the North Pacific districts and the Ohio valley, the former causing colder weather in the extreme Northwest, and the latter being attended by lower temperatures in Atlantic and Gulf states. Mostly cloudy weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Sunday, with some chance of snow flurries and followed by colder Sunday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

In Praise of Tolerance.

One of the splendid things about the time in which we live is the growth and the constant expression of the spirit of tolerance. We no longer burn or hang those whose opinions differ from our own. We do not demand that another person's intellectual or emotional life shall be run into precisely the same mold in which we have crystalized our own. We have become hospitably disposed—at least most of us have—toward practises and customs at which a former generation may have looked askance.

A number of factors have combined to bring about this happy status. Chief among them is the craving for liberty which has taken possession of hearts the world over during the last half century. Beneath all the great recent forward movements of humanity we feel the mighty pulsations of this spirit that yearns for freedom, as the plant seeks the light. And the man who claims liberty for himself must accord it to others. Then, too, as knowledge has widened we have also learned how much more of truth is yet to be discovered. As a consequence, serious men, reverent in the face of great unraveled mysteries, have not been so enamored of the completeness of their own view of the universe that they are unwilling to hear patiently opposing views which may contain at least the germ of truth.

Another powerful factor in producing an age of tolerance has been the incontestable evidence furnished by facts. Our age reveres facts and when it can be shown that a so-called heresy produces desirable results, you can't relegate that particular view to the rear as unworthy of being tolerated for a moment in a civilized community. Take is in the region of physical healing, for example. The books on materia medica may say this or that, but suddenly something comes along very different from quackery, but at the same time not hitherto included in your therapeutics. But it works. Chronic and even incurable cases of illness yield to the new remedy. Right before your eyes, as before the eyes of the Pharisees 1900 years ago, is "the man that was healed of his infirmity." Facts, especially human facts, are stubborn things. Now, it does not follow that all the medical lore of the centuries is to be thrown away in favor of this new device or cult, but we ought to have grace enough to admit that no one school of medicine has the monopoly of the healing art.

Especially true is it in the realm of religion that modern developments conduce to the growth and practise of tolerance, though we are not always as tolerant as the circumstances warrant. For it cannot be denied that there are many roads to virtue and that the Heavenly city has gates on more than one side. Here again the facts are incontrovertible. When the Salvation Army was started it met with about the same reception in England which the man had who carried the first umbrella on the streets of London. "What possible good can result from the beating of drums and all the tomfoolery on the street?" But, lo, the years go by and men are reclaimed from the gutter, women are delivered from the shameful life. And with the facts before them, England and America unite in saying, "Bravo, Gen. Booth!"

Yes, give the other man his chance and his right. That is what tolerance means. And this we ought always to do not only in matters of medicine and theology, but in those frequent and inevitable differences of opinion with people under our own roof and in the places where we do our daily work. Provided we know that the person who holds contrary views is sincere in holding them, is open to new light and is trying to live up to the light he already has, we can bear with him and hope that some time common ground may be found. And if all maintained this attitude, what a good world it would be.

BEN JOHNSON OF KENTUCKY

BY SAVOYARD.

THE county of Nelson, State of Kentucky, is eighty years older than the Constitution of the United States. It was named for Thomas Nelson, a signer of the declaration of independance, a soldier of the Revolutionary war, and a governor of Virginia. Partly blue grass and partly bear grass, Nelson county is one of the best in the entire commonwealth. It is washed by the waters of Pottinger creek and the Beech Fork and Rolling Fork of the famed Salt river. It abounds in springs of clear, crystal, cold limestone water, the virtues of which serve to make Nelson county whisky hte best in the world. Bradstown, the county seat, was long the Athens of the West. It was there that was located the famous Jesuits' College of St. Joseph, whence were graduated so many eminent Americans; and when that institution was at its zenith Bradstown was the seat of more learning, more culture, more eloquence than any other community between the Allegheny mountains and the setting sun. It was here that a king of France, spent some years of his exile. Rowan and Hardin headed the bar, and Pope, Wickliff, Grigsby, Chapese, and Guthrie were their learned and brilliant associates. John Hays, a prodigious genius, was another, who survives in tradition as the greatest orator the western hemisphere has produced. Joseph Holt was yet another orator, little, if any, inferior to Marshall or Menifee.

In 1804 William Johnson and his son William, went from Maryland to Kentucky and located in Nelson county, in the hills; but some time later they acquired 5,000 acres of very fertile land, between the Beech and Rolling forks, and engaged extensively in farming, raising chiefly corn and hogs. The younger Johnson became a trader to New Orleans, freighting bacon to that market by flat boat and returning by steamboat. The calling was attended with many hardships and great dangers, but it made hardy, adventurous, and agressive folk of the thousands of Kentuckians engaged in it.

In direct successive line there were seven William Johnsons, every one of them endowed with a force of character that rendered him more than a common man. The greatest of them was William Johnson, born in 1817, the son of the flatboatman of that name. When he was a lad of seventeen his father bought a half interest in the general store of a merchant named McManus, then the leading establishment of that kind between Louisville and Nashville, and put William and an older brother in the store to learn the business. At nineteen William displayed such a capacity for business, with excessive ability, such a forceful personality, that he dominated both his partners, and the entire establishment was under his control, and wonderfully prosperous. His father died same two or three years later, and William was nominated as his executor, and some time after, McManus died, and William was the executor also. The famous Ben Hardin was his legal counsel, and was swift to discover the extraordinary capacity for practical affairs possessed by his youthful client. When the two estates were finally settled Hardin was instrumental in having young Johnson appointed master in chancery of the circuit court, and while serving in that capacity he studied law, was admitted to the bar, and immediately taken into co-partnership in the practice by Hardin, then the first lawyer of Kentucky and the equal of any lawyer in all America.

Soon after he came to the bar young Johnson was elected county attorney, an office he held for eleven years. In 1865 Johnson, reared a Whig, was a Democrat and a candidate for state senator on the Democratic ticket. The issue was the thirteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution, and there were soldiers at the polls. Johnson was in no humor to be beaten by bayonets, and rallied his friends, took possession of the polls in some of the precincts, expelled the soldiers, and when the returns were all in he had an adequate majority, and served the term of four years.

In 1869 he was re-elected. It was a difficult task that confronted the statesmen of Kentucky in those days. The state was full of soldiers returned from both armies, and there were many and bitter animosities. Fortunately, a great man, Thomas E. Bramlette, was governor, and William Johnson was one of his most trusted advisers. A policy of complete amnesty was adopted, and it is said that Bramlette granted 4,000 pardons in a single day, all to operate before trial of the indictments. This saved the state from chaos, and by 1867 there was fraternity between the Confederates and Federals in nearly every community.

Johnson was looked upon as the most learned and accomplished codifier of statute law in the state. He made it a specialty, and, living near Louisville, he was kept busy by the leading lawyers of that metropolis, who piled him with questions in line with his studies in that branch of the profession.

Ben Johnson, member of the Sixtieth congress from the Fourth Kentucky district, is a chip of the old block. He is emphatically a man of affairs, a practical thinker, a will of iron, a good hater, and a better friend. Born in 1853 to affluance he elected to be a pillar of society, rather than a parasite upon it. His might have been a life of leisure and of luxury; he preferred to run the race of life as his father had before him, a leader of his people.

When he was born, John C. Breckinride was vice president, John J. Crittenden and John B. Thompson were senators from Kentucky, and Charles S. Morehead was governor. John Young Brown, W. C. P. Breckinridge, J. C. S. Blackburn, James B. McCreary and James A. McKenzie were just out of school. John G. Carlisle and John M. Harlan were young and struggling lawyers. The Know-nothing party was not yet dead, and there was as yet no Republican party in the old commonwealth. James B. Beck was not known outside his judcial circuit, and James Guthrie disputed with the youthful vice president the leadership of the Kentucky Democracy. Joseph Holt was the most eloquent Democratic orator of the entire Union.

That was in 1858, when Ben Johnson was born in the room in which he has ever since lived, in his father's residence, near Bardstown. He was graduated from St. Mary's college, in Marion county, at the age of 20, and received his diploma from the law school of the University of Louisville four years after. In 1885 young Johnson was returned to the legislature from Nelson county. Two years later he was re-elected and chosen speaker of that body. It was the legislature that gave James B. Beck his last commission as senator, and in those days the Kentucky Democracy was a militant party, untorn by factions, unplagued by small men. There was no machine. Simon Bolivar Buckner was governor, and conventions reflected the choice of the electorate.

At the close of his term as speaker, young Johnson returned to his law office and the personal management of his extensive business affairs. As had his father before him, he had the reputation of a consummate business man ere he was 25. He was the close personal friend and trusted counselor of such men as Milton H. Smith, the greatest railroad executive west of the Alleghenies, and of John M. Atherton, lawyer, orator, statesman, student, capitalist, pronounced by John Sherman to be the greatest intellect he had ever met. Had Atherton possessed the robust physical constitution of James B. Beck, his name in the political world would be written as high on the roll as Blaine's or Conkling's, as Thurman's or Lamar's. His speech in advocacy of the election of Tilden, in 1876, was as masterly an argument as ever came from the American stump, and in the senate he would have been Aldrich and Carlisle combined. He is yet living, at near threescore years and ten, but it was only his active outdoor life that preserved him so long.

When Cleveland became president, in 1893, he appointed Ben Johnson collector of internal revenue of the Fifth Kentucky district, perhaps the second in the Union in the amount of taxes paid. To this office Johnson brought all his capacity for business, and all his energies as an executive. There was no better conducted office in the Union, and it is doubtless true that Johnson is the best equipped man in congress to legislate on internal revenue taxation. He is as familiar with all the laws on that subject as he is with his alphabet, and his clear and convincing discussions of the matter would be invaluable to congress if it should be attempted to revise the revenue laws during his service in the house of representatives.

In 1906 Ben Johnson was elected to congress, and for the reputation he had made as a clear-headed business man he was assigned to the committee on the District of Columbia. He is also the Kentucky representative on the congressional campaign committee, and will go far if his congressional career shall be prolonged.

Just now the Democracy of Kentucky is experiencing some little tribulation. William O. Bradley, a stalwart, 306-er, a Republican who is eternally quarreling because a force bill is not enacted by congress to make it illegal for South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana to vote the Democratic ticket—William O. Bradley will be United States senator from Kentucky, March 4, 1909. Let us hope the first thing he shall turn his attention will be a reversion of that speech his brother-in-politics, Deboe, made in that body on the interoceanic canal.

Kentucky is in sore need of a new crop of Democratic leaders. They must be young men, and, above all, men who have not been involved in the faction quarrels of the past ten years. Unless that is done, Kentucky will become as reliably Republican as Ohio within the next four years. Ollie James and Ben Johnson are young men, and both have kept out of the mess at Frankfort. Owsley Stanley did burn his fingers a little in the devil's broth of faction; but he is a young man of immense popularity and is certain to recover from it. The Democracy would have been all right in the old Commonwealth by this time if Ben Johnson or Ollie James had been elected senator last January, and doubtless the legislature is now contrite because it failed to elect one of these at that time.

I understand a movement is on foot to make Ben Johnson chairman of the Democratic state committee. If that is done it will mean a militant Democracy. It will mean victory in November. It will mean a Democratic Kentucky.

The Democrats are there, all right. All that is necessary is the appointment of a shepherd who can herd them. Let the brethren join in singing the Ninety-and-nine."

FOLKS BACK HOME. By Eugene Wood. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

This charming author gets as close to the people as any living writer who treats of the plain folks of the United States, and in this collection of stories of Central Ohio, in which he deals with the same conditions of life and the same types of character as in his previous book "Back Home," he is at his best. The stories are so human and so comfortably real that reading them is just like sitting down in a comfortable "rocker" in the cheery "sitting rooms" of the folks "back home" to commune with them in person. You may remember that when farm plays began to be in fashion, and the best of them, "The Old Homestead," was in vogue, you used to sit in the audience with your eyes made moist by your appreciation of its truthfulness to life and because of the memories it gave you of other days. Reading Eugene Wood's books is very much like that. You know the people they tell about, and it is like reading about the folks of your own "back home." There is always a positive charm about the stories, and while one is rather gruesome, a genial humor and a wholesome optimism shine through all of them.

THE STUFF OF A MAN. By Katherine Evans Blake. Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Co. $1.50.

Here is an eminently readable novel dealing in a spirit of broad humanity with the ever-present race problem. The scenes are laid in the lower part of Indiana, across the river from Kentucky, where the South and its problems crowd over the state line and make themselves as vivid as they are in Dixie. The story deals with an experiment in bringing the black man into his own, and in proving that he has within him, even if it has been submerged by race oppression, "the stuff of a man." No attempt is made to disguise the discouraging nature of the material that must be handled; the negro is pictured with all his carelessness, slovenliness and obliquity of moral vision. But his human side is pictured in very engaging colors, and there is a convincing if subtle exposition of the part the white man has played and is playing in holding the negro back. There are several very attractive and skillfully sketched characters that stand out clearly in the story, and a particularly noticeable charm lies in the dainty and limpid style of its descriptive passages. As for the story itself, it is vivid, strong and convincing, and cannot fail to engage the reader's closest interest from beginning to end.

TANGLED WEDLOCK. By Edgar Jepson. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

It may sound trite to say that this novel is unconventional, but that is just exactly what it is: deliciously, thrillingly and withal, delicately and wholesomely unconventional. Its central figure is a young girl who grows up under the lax care of a foolish and visionary mother who has surrounded herself with as quaint and entertaining a circle of designing rogues, frauds and charlatans as ever mouthed inane affectations. She becomes associated with a young sculptor, becomes his model because of her devotion to his work, marries him though he has once been married and there is at least a reasonable doubt whether his first wife is yet dead or not, and clings to him when it is found that the real wife still lives. There is a vein of full-blooded passion running through the tale that gives it unusual virility. Dressed in the rich literary style of the author of "The Admirable Tinker" and embellished with his entertaining wit, it is fresh, sparkling and altogether pleasing.

THE VERMILION PENCIL. By Homer Lea. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

This is a powerful story of primitive passions, dressed in the unfamiliar garb of Chinese surroundings. The heroine is the wife of a Chinese magnate, and the hero is a Breton priest from a Catholic mission who has been engaged to teach her. Both are innocent of guile, and daily association has the result that is inevitable under such circumstances. They learn to love each other, and finally fly from the court and seek refuge in a cavern whose associations of superstition they believe will render them safe. However, they are dragged back, and the wife is condemned to the Chinese punishment for the adultress, which consists of slow torture of her naked body before a throng of spectators. Whether the punishment is really carried out or not it will be as well to leave the story to tell. The author holds a commission as lieutenant-general in the Chinese Army of Reform, and has spent much of his life in military operations in the remote interior of China. Out of his extraordindinary opportunities for observation, he has written this romance. The story itself is eminently worth while, and the freshness of its setting, with its revelations of the unfamiliar habits and customs of the Celestial Empire, give it uncommon interest. The book opens with a picture of a typhoon that is a remarkable piece of vigorous and impressive word painting.

IN MARY'S REIGN. By Baroness Orczy. New York: Cupples & Leon Co. 75 cents.

This thrilling story of plot and counterplot in the days of Mary of England lacks not complication of theme and frequency of incident. Its hero, the Duke of Wessex, is a dashing blade, and its heroine, Lady Ursula, to whom he is engaged through a parental arrangement, but whom he learns to love as an unknown, is a fair and sprightly figure. The queen herself is in love with Wessex, and part of the plot turns on the machinations of Spanish envoys who seek to wed her to the Spanish monarch. The book will interest those who seek thrills, for it is elaborately set forth with complications innumerable.

PALMER'S BUSINESS MEETING MANUAL. By Clarence A. Palmer. St. Paul: Published by the author. Cloth, 25 cents; paper, 15 cents.

In this little booklet will be found a compendium of parliamentary rules and practices, covering briefly but amply all the information necessary about motions, debates and decorum in business meetings. It should be invaluable to those who are called upon to preside over gatherings of any sort. The possession of the knowledge provided here will serve not a little to make such meetings run more smoothly and accomplish their work with greater certainty and celerity. The fundamental rules governing deliberative bodies have seldom been boiled down to a more accurate and convenient compass than in this little book.

Literary Gossip.

The little brown man is interested in other spectres besides that of American domination. The leading publishers of psychical research literature, the Boston firm of Small, Maynard & Co., received the other day from the leading bookseller in Tokio a large order for works by Prof. J. H. Hyslop, Camille Flammarion and Hereward Carrington, authors of important works dealing with psychical subjects.

"The Supreme Gift," by Grace Denio Litchfield, was published by Little, Brown & Co., today. The story deals with the renunciation made by a girl of singularly beautiful character to save those ruined by her father's financial failure. The main theme was suggested by the famous Waggaman failure in Washington, where, by the way, the scene of Miss Litchfield's novel is laid. The characters are entirely fictional, however, as are the incidents. The book is illustrated by an attractive frontispiece in color by Alice Barber Stephens.

The new edition of Charles A. Conant's "Modern Banks of Issue," which the Putnams, publish this month or early next month, will contain a chapter, not originally in the book, that treats of the crisis of 1907 and the relations that can be established between it and industrial and economic tendencies that in part at least explain it.

The C. M. Clark Publishing company, Boston, announce for early publication, "A Cowboy Cavalier," by Harriet C. Korse. As its name applies, the story is a romance of ranch life in the West. The author does not rely upon imagination for her descriptions. She has lived in the country of which she writes, and the tale is drawn almost entirely from life. Every character in the story is living in Texas today, every incident related actually transpired and even the conversations took place much as recorded. Miss Morse has drawn her characters with rare sympathy and understanding, the plot and incidents are highly dramatic, and a delightful play of humor flashes through the pages.

The first volume of the new edition of the "Dictionary of National Biography" was published simultaneously in England and America March 10 (the Macmillan company being the American publishers), and it is promised that a new volume will appear each month until the twenty-two volumes are out. The original edition was in sixty-six volumes, and was published at more than three times the price of the present edition. Furthermore, the new edition has been corrected and some of the bibliographies have been revised, so that in spite of the lower price it is preferable, both on account of accuracy and the amount of shelf room required, to the original issue.

Miss Katherine Lee Bates' volume of literary travels in England, published last fall, entitled "From Gretna Green to Land's End," has been strengthened by the addition of a map showing the places visited. The publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., state that they will be glad to mail a separate copy of this map upon request to any purchaser of the first edition.

M. Camille Flammarion, whose sensitiveness to all influences of earth and air is revealed in his "Mysterious Psychic Forces" (Small, Maynard & Co.), is in protest against the automobile. He says that the big red devils disturb the music of the spheres and the harmony of the angelic choir. They raise a dust cloud that stands between him and his constellations, besmirching his lenses and clogging the delicate machinery of the observatory. He may have to retire, he admits, with his astronomical instruments and his apparatus for conducting seances to some far away spot where the toot of the automobile is not heard and where nothing impedes the interplay of electrical and psychic forces.

George Wharton James, the authority on Indian subjects, will soon publish, through Forbes & Co., "What the White Race May Learn from the Indian," a work resulting from twenty-five years' association with the red man. Dr. James, who is an adopted member of the Havasupai tribe, believes the Indian is more sensible than we are in many things that pertain to health and happiness. Among the subjects he will discuss are diet, exercise, art, education and religion.

"Jacuette: A Sorority Girl," one of Duffield & Co.'s early books for 1908, deals with a question that many prominent educators have considered vital. President Seelye of Smith college believes that in the lower schools, at least, secret societies are harmful, lowering scholarship, setting up an authority in opposition to that of the teachers, and establishing class distinctions at variance without democratic institutions. On such grounds the high school fraternities and sororities are meeting a lively opposition in many of the larger cities. Miss Cody's unique bit of fiction, the incidents of which are based upon conditions in Chicago, aims to present the case in an impartial way.

The Appletons announce a new book by Alfred Henry Lewis, which will be, in many respects, a companion volume to his life of Andrew Jackson. Under the title "An American Patrician," he tells the romance of Aaron Burr, taking up the whole story of Burr's life and telling it in a picturesque manner by means of conversation, anecdote and narrative. By this novel method of treatment, the book gives a most realistic and dramatic picture of what is probably the most romantic life in American history.

Among the Magazines.

The March magazine number of Charities and the Commons contains the first published results of the "Pittsburg Survey," not an engineering survey, although in many senses as technical, but a study of social conditions in the biggest industrial city in America. A staff of from ten to twenty-five experts have been on the ground since early fall, and will continue throughout the spring. Miss F. Elizabeth Crowell, a member of this staff, tells what bad housing means to the city toilers in a community like Pittsburg—a striking study of the evil conditions that are practically forced on the workers. Miss Crystal Eastman, also a member of the Pittsburg staff, contributes a masterly analysis of the master and servant law in Pennsylvania.

The Keramic Studio for March is filled with new designs for the china painter and water colorist. The colored study of "Arbutus" by Maud E. Hulbert is especially worthy of mention, the coloring being soft and delicate, and it being very appropriate for this season of the year. The other studies in black and white are: Grapes, by Miss H. B. Paist; salad bowl, by Miss Ophelia Foley; design for vase or stein, by Miss O. E. Wilson; small violet study, suitable for bonbon dish or plate, by Miss O. E. Wilson, and other studies in conventional floral designs. The Studio presents quite successfully illustrations on the mouldings of pewter.

That Uncle Joe Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives and the favorite son of Illinois, would make a great and successful run as a presidential nominee no well-informed Republican can doubt. In the current issue of Leslie's Weekly, Congressman William B. McKinley of Illinois sets forth vigorously and persuasively the reasons why Mr. Cannon should be nominated for the presidency, basing his claims on a record of service to the party and to the country of which any man might be proud. Accompanying the article is a full-page portrait of the popular speaker. This number is most pleasing to the eye, the illustrations including a drawing on the front by W. Rice, representing the police in Central park, New York, saving the life of a youthful skater; quaint pictures from the files of Leslie's Weekly of fifty years ago; photographs of wonderful catches of fish off the coast of Florida; unique pictures of Radcliffe college girls exercising in Harvard university's gymnasium; a striking photograph of the New York stock exchange on a busy day.

The effort which the United States army is making to secure recruits to its ranks, and the reasons why the effort is being made are told in an interesting and well-informed article contributed to the current Harper's Weekly by Victor Rousseau. "A Tale of Three Cities" is the title of an article dealing with the three chief towns of Western New York—Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo—describing their characteristics and their achievements as municipalities. The author, Edward Hungerford, handles his subject with a vivid and illuminating touch, and his article is of wide interest; for the cities described are representative types. In the same issue the Weekly presents a picturesque and delightful letter from one of its correspondents with Admiral Evans's fleet, Lieutenant-Commander Andrews of the battleship "Kansas."

PRIEST DENOUNCES CZAR.

Father Petroff, Former Royal Favorite, Exposes People's Wrongs.

St. Petersburg, March 20.—Once more has the voice of a priest been raised in Russia against the czar's government; once more has an ex-favorite loudly denounced his late patron's cruelty towards the people. This latest addition to the fast-increasing host of czar-condemners—a host that is far more powerful than most people suspect—is Father Petroff, professor of religion in schools, preacher, member of the Duma and at one time confessor to the Grand Dukes Paul Alexandrovitch and Constantin Constantinovitch.

Like some few pops (Russian priests) who have not yet quite been stifled by autocracy, Father Petroff is an idealist. When entering the service of the imperial family he thought he would thereby do good to the oppressed Russian people, from whom he springs and whom he loves. He thought that his influence on the young members of the imperial household would make them see the wickedness of regarding their subjects as herds of cattle and beasts of burden. But the odds against him were too great. After a decade of work in the palaces came the massacre of Jan. 22, 1905, when he heard the grand dukes say they ought to humbly thank the soldiers for shooting the people. "Then," to use Father Petroff's own words, "I shook the dust of palaces from my feet."

As people in St. Petersburg agreed with Father Petroff, he was elected a member of the first Duma. But his old patrons called him a traitor and handed him over to the tender mercies of the Holy Synod. "This man knows too much and will speak of it in the Duma," they said. He was, therefore, seized by the order of the synod and banished to a monastery for three months. Not only this—but he was deprived of his professorship, forbidden to preach in any church and fined. When his term of banishment was over the Duma had been dissolved.

He determined to expose the wrongs of the people and the tyranny of czars by means of a newspaper, which he started and called God's Truth. This, too, was suppressed by the government. Not content with this, the Holy Synod has instituted twenty-seven prosecutions against him, and would have unrobed him long ago were it not that Father Petroff proved that he has never swerved from the purest Christianity.

BRIDGE as a sort of mental chewing gum is the heretical idea advanced by a Wellesley college professor, who is concerned about the number of games which the undergraduates of Wellesley will sit in. Apparently nothing will stop her. The fudge parties, delightfully girlish and pleasantly relaxing, with which the college girl was wont to please herself, have passed away, and in their place she has established a pastime with which the world-weary while away hours of delight. The Wellesley professor says:

"The bridge playing fever does not abate. It threatens to become a fixed form of relaxation in college, especially among women who cannot, like their brothers, go out at night to break street lamps, pester the policemen and make such like protests against the higher life.

"The rowdiest college boy, however, does not probably spend so much time in his relaxation as does the quiet but constant bridge player in our Wellesley community.

"When one thinks of an undergraduate's ignorance of the world, how sad it is to contemplate our foolish virgins playing bridge!

"Even the emptiest mind must chew on something, and bridge provides a sort of mental chewing gum."

The dispatch, which gives these details, also relates that the lady never herself sat into a game of whist, and truly it would seem that the game holds for her all of the charms of the unknown. Smashing street lights is not an art in which many are conversant, but if it brings no greater pleasure, or no more exciting a thrill, nor a freer sense of unrestraint than a hand at bridge in which the other three are held by three girls with whom one comes in contact every day and several hours of every day, truly smashing street lights is like many of the other desires of early youth—sound and fury, signifying nothing. Meanwhile Wellesley goes placidly on, mentally chewing bridge.

Church affairs are occupying the most prominent place in affairs. The stitching, in preparation for the Easter sales, goes on apace and many of the societies are tying Y. M. C. A. comforters. In fact that way of filling in time is becoming very popular and the office force of the association is rather busy making arrangements for the distribution of silkoline to be fashioned into comfortables for the solace of young men away from home. The most important musical affair of the spring will be the Sembrich concert to be given the last of the month. At an informal tea this afternoon at which Miss Jessie Campbell was hostess at her home, 403 East Third street, the engagement of the hostess, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Campbell, to Frank E. Church of this city was announced. Only the intimate friends were present. At the tea table a centerpiece of violets was used and at each cover a boquet of the same flowers was placed. Both Miss Campbell and Mr. Church are well known in the younger society set and the announcement is of much interest.

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the sunflower banquet at which the women of Pilgrim church were hostesses Wednesday evening. The room was gay with decorations of life size sunflowers of skillful manufacture, and the tables were most attractive in the same decorations. The single blossoms were laid gracefully on the cloth and the candles rose from the candelabra from a smaller sunflower base. The salad was most cleverly arranged to simulate a sunflower and the menu cards were also representative of the large yellow blossoms.

Presiding as hostesses were: Mesdames W. I. Prince, W. H. Cole, George Gray, Nichols, W. A. McGonagle, John Heimick, C. W. Ericson, Hart, E. D. Field, C. A. Duncan, Edward Berg, Oscar Mitchell, Van Wagner, N. J. Allen, Robert Smith, W. W. McMillan, M. Jenks, N. H. Maynard, Dr. Mary McCoy, Miss Roe, Miss Blodgett and Miss Lippett.

The list of toasts was a most delightful one. C. E. Lovett presided as toastmaster and the responses were given by J. W. Reynolds, who had as his toast "The Parcels Post," and Rev. Alexander Milne, Watson S. Moore and Dr. A. C. Taylor. A feature of the first toast was the reading of replies from men of national reputation of their opinion of lack of expressed opinion at the parcels post. Among these from whom replies were received and read were Senator Jeff Davis, H. W. Watterson, Senator Moses E. Clapp, John A. Johnson, Booker T. Washington, Fred A. Busse, H. C. Lodge, Reed Smoot, W. B. Heyburn, J. Adam Bede and Knute Nelson.

Covers were laid for 163 guests and the annual March banquet of this church has set an even higher standard than the delightful functions which went before.

DULUTH GIRL WHOSE WORK IN CLAY MODELS IS ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

UNFINISHED BUST MARY D. McFADDEN.
MARY NAUGHTON.
CLAY MODEL OF C.F. NAUGHTON
UNFINISHED CLAY STATUE OF BISHOP JAMES McGOLRICK

Many Duluthians who are interested in the work of Miss Mary Naughton along the lines of sculpture will be glad to know that three of her casts, upon which she has been working during the last year, will be sent by her to the State Art society for the annual exhibit of the society. Miss Naughton has a cast of Bishop McGolrick of this city, half life size, and two busts, one of her brother, C. F. Naughton, Jr., and another of Miss Mary McFadden of this city. The accompanying pictures are of the unfinished molds, upon which Miss Naughton will be at work for the next week or two. The plaster molds are yet to be made, and they will be taken to Chicago for casting, and the plaster casts will be sent to the Minnnesota exhibit. Miss Naughton expects to have the plaster moulds ready by the first of May. The annual exhibit will be held the latter part of May, and will be shown in Duluth the first week of June.

This branch of art which has been taken up the Duluth young woman has few devotees, considering the number engaged in other lines of art work. The difficulties in the way are many and dishearten many students. Miss Naughton has completed a four-years' course at the Chicago Art institute, where she studied under Lorado Taft, and was a member of the class of 1901, which class designed "that fountain," which called forth much comment from the press at the time. The class erected on the Lake Front park, adjoining the institute, a temporary fountain, in plaster, a design of playful nymphs.

The three pieces of her recent work, of which illustrations are shown, have a simplicity and refinement of feeling that are especially pleasing. Miss Naughton exhibited two pieces at the annual exhibit, two years ago. A small-sized bust of a woman's head and a child's head in plaque. About all her work there is a fineness that finds it best expression in the modeling of children's and women's heads and faces, although there is quiet dignity in the figure of the well-known bishop that many Duluth people will appreciate. These casts, if shown, will be among the most interesting exhibits to Duluth people.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

To Continue Study.

At a business meeting of the Ladies' Literature class held Tuesday afternoon the course of study for the ensuing year was discussed. The class will continue the study of English history and literature for two more years instead of one more as originally planned, making a three years' course. Next year's outline will include the history and literature from the Elizabethian period through the reign of George II.

At the next meeting of the class, Rev. Alexander Milne will speak on "Oliver Cromwell."

Lecture on "Faust."

"The Second Part of Faust," will be the subject of a lecture by Rabbi Lefkowits before the members of the German Literature class of the Twentieth Century club Tuesday afternoon of next week. The meeting will be at 2:45 o'clock. The class has completed the study of "Faust." The first part of the poem is well known through the opera and the drama but the exposition of the less known portion will be of unusual interest. The lecture is open to the members of the club and their friends.

Travel Class.

The last meeting of the year of the Travel class of the Twentieth Century club will be held Friday afternoon of next week at 2:30 o'clock instead of the regular afternoon, Tuesday. The chairman of the department of education and reform will be elected at this meeting, as well as the leader of the Travel class for the ensuing year. The members of the class and all former members interested are invited to be present.

The feature of the afternoon will be a lecture of Prof. R. E. Denfeld, who will have as his subject "Some Phases of the Educational systems of Europe and America." The subject promises to be one of unusual interest, and as Prof. Denfeld is one of the lecturers who appears annually before this class and is received with great pleasure, a large audience is assured. Any one interested in the subject is invited to attend.

City Mission Work.

The Ladies' Union of Pilgrim Congregational church will meet Wednesday afternoon of next week at the church parlors. Talks will be given by Miss Mauck, superintendent of the Bethel Rescue Home and by Capt. Watts of the Salvation Army. Each month some phase of the city mission work is presented before the union, in order that the members may be kept in touch with local conditions and that aid may be given intelligently and where it is most needed.

Sembrich Concert.

The concert tour of Mme. Marcella Sembrich which has followed her opera season with the Metropolitan Opera company has thus far proved a brilliant series of concerts which have been social events of importance as well as as brilliant musically. Mme. Sembrich with Ellison Van Hoose, tenor and Michael de-Zadora, pianist will appear at the Methodist church in this city, March 31. Mme. Sembrich will sing the Sunday evening preceding her appearance in this city with the St. Paul Symphony orchestra.

That the public is more exacting than it realizes in its demands on the singers is the opinion of Mme. Sembrich.

"Instruments may get out of tune in cold weather," she declares, "but the singer is always expected to be in perfect condition. A great many things that would not affect another person may put a singer into a condition that it will make it impossible for her to appear to advantage. But the public is not patient under these circumstances. The singer who would win fame today must do far more than was ever expected in the past. Patti once told me that she never could have made her great reputation today. She said that in the days of her triumph orchestras were smaller, and that the singer was not required to act. But today one must be not only a singer, but an actress."

The advance subscription list of seats assures a brilliant audience on the appearance of the great singer in Duluth.

Entertain State Regent.

The local chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution were busy during the week, the state regent, Mrs. E. H. Loyhed of Faribault, being the guest of the two chapters, Daughters of Liberty and Greysolon duLhut. The meeting of the first named chapter was held Wednesday afternoon with Miss Ensign of East Second street. The members of Greysolon chapter met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. N. F. Hugo. Both meetings were of much interest, and the week was a busy one for the members. Mrs. Loyhed returned Thursday to her home.

BY MAUD WALKER

Ted, Marie and Gracie were prisoners. It was raining out of doors, a cold spring rain, such a rain as even a boy did not wish to venture out in. And Ted, with his two little sisters, had to be content indoors till the clouds should clear away.

"If only we had a good book of stories to read," said Gracie, the youngest of the three. "We've read everything in the library, and I don't like re-reading stories. One always knows just what is going to happen, you know, when reading a story for the second time."

"Oh, I don't want to sit down in a corner and read," declared Ted. "I want to go fishing, I do. Here is a whole Saturday passing by and I'm kept indoors like a girl or old lady. Bah, how I do hate a cold rain when it's good fishing season!"

"Well, I wish with all my heart that Uncle Tom were here," said Marie, twelve years old and two years older than Ted. "We'd have a good time if he were here today, for he knows so many interesting stories and games."

"Oh, yes, if Uncle Tom were only here it wouldn't matter if it poured pitchforks," cried Ted. "I'd rather be shut up in the house with Uncle Tom than be at liberty on the banks of the river—just at the best fishing place, too—on a fine sunshiny day. Uncle Tom is so jolly, he is."

"Children," cried their mamma at this moment, putting her head in at the sitting room door. "I just had a 'phone from Grandmamma. She says your Uncle Tom is en route to town where he has some important business to attend to, and that as soon as he has transacted it he will pay us a call. She says, furthermore, that if it continues to rain for me to prevail upon Uncle Tom to stay with us overnight, as she doesn't want him to make the long return ride through such a deluge."

"Hurrah!" cried Ted, doing a handspring for very joy over the news.

"Goodie!" cried Gracie, jumping about the room in great glee.

"Splendid prospects for a jolly day!" declared Marie, a bit more calm than her excited brother and enthusiastic little sister. "Now, let's build up a roaring wood binze in the library, for Uncle Tom loves an open fire."

Half an hour later came Uncle Tom, stamping his feet on the porch floor and crying out lustily: "Open the door of the ark and let a poor half-drowned two-legger in!" Then, as Ted, Marie and Gracie flew to meet him he came in laughing and shaking his raincoat for all the world as a dog shakes his furry coat when he comes out of the water.

And then the children led Uncle Tom to the library where a cheerful flame leaped toward the top of the chimney.

"We knew you would love a bright wood binze," explained Marie. "See, Ted built the fire, and he stacked the wood so as to make it look like a camp fire."

"Ah, yes, I do love a wood blaze," said Uncle Tom. "It always reminds me of the time a thousand years or so ago when I was an American Indian. In those days—before I was reincarnated—I used to lie in front of my camp fire and dream of these days that have now come to pass. And many things of interest transpired during those times."

"Come, tell us of some of those interesting happenings," urged Marie, drawing the chairs about the fireplace, the big leather easy one placed in the middle for Uncle Tom.

Uncle Tom sat down, heaved a sigh of contentment and smiled on the happy and adoring little trio of kinsfolk gathered round him.

"Well," he said, "as I came along the country road this morning I saw a pretty cotton-tail running for cover. It recalled to mind the time, a thousand years ago, when the rabbit lost its tail."

"When the rabbit lost its tail?" and Ted's eyes rounded in astonishment.

"Yes, for you see, a long, long time ago—before the incident I am about to relate to you happened—the rabbit had a fine long tail, quite as splendid and full as the tail of a fox. Well, one day the old boss rabbit of the rabbit dominion—in other words, the King Rabbit—was out in the woods for a morning stroll. As he went along enjoying the fine, fresh spring air he fell in the company of a fox, a very pretty red fox, carrying on his arm a basket covered over with fresh grape leaves.

"Ah, friend Fox," said Mr. King Rabbit, bowing low, waving his long bushy tail and shaking his ears; "mayhap we two are going in the same direction. If it be so, may I have the pleasure of conversation with you as we walk thither?"

"Certainly, neighbor Rabbit," replied Mr. Red Fox, being a very friendly fellow. "It will afford me great pleasure to chat with you as we walk along the same path. I am on my way to visit a sick fox, and am taking a basket of dainties for him to eat. You see, when one is sick one likes to have one's friends come in and fetch something appetizing."

"Ah, true you speak," said Mr. King Rabbit, nosing slyly the basket which hung over Mr. Red Fox's arm. "But, by the by, friend Fox, have you heard the last scandal about those grey foxes and their enemies, the chipmunks? Ah, you haven't? Well, let's sit us down here in the shade and rest a bit and I'll tell you all about it." And the cunning old rabbit made it a point to sit down beside the basket which, being very heavy, the red fox placed on the ground, glad of the opportunity to rest his arm a bit. Then, seating himself beside his neighbor, the old rabbit, the red fox gave himself up to the enjoyment of listening to a bit of neighborhood gossip and a few minutes rest. Old Mr. King Rabbit, sitting between the basket and its owner could slip his paw quietly under the leaves as he talked and draw forth the dainties hidden therein and place them quietly behind him. Then, in an exciting point of his narrative, and while Mr. Red Fox was laughing till he thought he would die at some joke the grey foxes had played upon their enemies, the chipmunks, he quietly gathered up some small stones that were scattered about the ground and slipped them in the basket beneath the leaves. Then, feeling that he could wait no longer for a taste of the many dainties he had stolen from the basket, he suddenly calmed himself, stopped in the very midst of his narrative and said:

"Friend Fox, I am detaining you. It is fitting that I beg your pardon and let you continue your journey, for it is a long way and, the day being hot, the dainties you are carrying to your sick friend will become heated and their flavor spoilt. So I beg you to be on your way, and excuse me if I remain here to rest a bit before returning to my own home. I am not so young as I used to be and feel the fatigue of walking on a warm day. And allow me to say adieu as I sit here in the shade, for I am too weary to rise."

The reason for old rabbit's wishing to remain seated was the fact that he had hidden the stolen dainties behind him, covering them most adroitly with his big, bushy tail.

The fox took up his basket, complaining that it felt heavier than when he had started out with it, and added that he supposed the fact was due to the distance he had been carrying it. Then, wishing his neighbor, Mr. King Rabbit, good morning he went on his way, the basket of stones over his arm.

Then, chuckling with happy anticipation of the meal of dainties that he was so soon to enjoy, the old rabbit took up the many goodies, such as the ripest berries, the freshest of wild-bee honey, the richest of grape juice, bottled, and the daintiest of wild grain, made into cake paste with fruit juice and started off toward the bank of the creek, where he might sit down and eat to his stomach's contentment. He feared to remain where he was with his stolen feast, for the fox might take it into his head to look into the basket to see if all was safe therein, and beholding stones, instead of food, return to the spot where he had left his neighbor, Mr. King Rabbit.

Once on the bank of the creek, old Mr. King Rabbit found a nice grassy spot overhanging the water where he could sit with his tail dangling in the cooling stream, for he was very warm after his hurried run to the creek, carrying all the edibles at one load. He began on his feast, taking up the cake paste and licking it tastingly. Then, lifting a bottle of grape juice to his mouth, he drank long and deeply.

But just as he set the bottle down, smacking his lips in enjoyment of the delicious draught, he cried out with sudden and awful pain. Then, half leaping, half rolling over in the grass, he wailed and groaned, for he seemed to be suffering most intense agony. When at last he could cease his groaning and writhing he began to examine the seat of pain—his beautiful tail; or, I should say, the place where his tail had been. But to his terrible sorrow and grief his tail—the pride of his life—was no more. In fact, it was being carried down stream at that very moment by a huge turtle that had snapped it from its place at the end of Mr. King Rabbit's back, thinking, no doubt, that he had found a very appetizing morsel of food.

But what a terrible plight old King Rabbit was in. Not only did he suffer agony of body, but agony of mind as well. He did not finish the dainty meal he had begun with such relish a few minutes before, but got up and crept homeward as best he could, with the poor tail stub paining him till he could scarcely walk.

When he arrived in the midst of his followers they all began to ridicule him, laughing at his sad plight, and declaring that since he had become bob-tailed he could no longer be their ruler. They had no mercy on him, and told him there was no place for him in the camp, that so unsightly an animal as a rabbit without a tail was not wanted in their grove and meadows.

But old King Rabbit, so cruelly hurt by the treatment of his own brothers, decided upon a terrible revenge. At night, when all were fast asleep, he crept swiftly from one burrow to another, biting off the tails of all his kind, and when the morning dawned a sorry sight met the rising sun. Every rabbit—big, little, old, young, male and female—were going about tailless. And now their former king was not alone in his deformity. All rabbit-kind was bob-tailed. And all rabbit-kind was in mourning. They attributed their ill fate to their leader, and straightway banished him from their midst. In his unhappiness he ran and jumped into the river, drowning before he could be rescued by sympathizing rabbits.

But the tails of the rabbits never again grew out, and all that were born came into the world without tails.

"And is that the reason rabbits have no tails?" asked Ted, as his Uncle Tom came to the end of the story.

"So I have heard," laughed Uncle Tom. "But, look! The sun is coming out. Come, everyone of you, get into your wraps, for I'm going to take you home with me to stop over Sunday. Then we'll investigate the truth of the rabbit-tail story."

"Oh, it's too good a story to investigate," cried Gracie. "Don't let's question it. I shall always think of the old rabbit stealing the fox's basket of dainties whenever I see a rabbit running through the pasture."

"And so shall I," laughed Marie, who had taken the story with "a grain of salt," but who had enjoyed it just the same. "And now let's go and ask mamma's consent to go home with Uncle Tom. What a grand old time we'll have, anyway."

"Yes, and I want a story of why the chimpanzee hasn't a tail all the samey the monkey, his brother," laughed Ted.

And away they all ran to ask permission to go home with Uncle Tom, whose home was on a jolly big farm where fun was to be had by the wagon load.

HAPPY TIMES.

Warm spring days are drawing near
Oh, such joy! Oh, such joy!
And the fishing season's here
For the boy; for the boy.

With his fishing rod and line
He is gay; he is gay;
For he'll have a dandy time
Each Saturday, each Saturday.

Off to fishing pond he'll run,
With a chum, with a chum,
Will they get the fish to bite?
Well, I guess some; I guess some.

Places of Interest in Foreign Lands

A GLIMPSE AT HOLLAND.

In Holland, that most unique of all countries, filled with its serious and picturesque people, the canal plays a most important part and is in truth the very high road of the country. Beside this waterway the roads of steel and soil dwindle into insignificance. The merchants of the towns and cities must wait upon the coming of the canal barges to receive their merchandise.

The canals of Holland form one great family, so to speak, for they are all tributary to each other, and if one has the time and the patience to travel on a canal barge he may sail from one canal into another till he has traversed them all, and do so without leaving his own boat.

In the year 1716 Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, while stopping in Holland, wrote to a friend the following description of Rotterdam:

"All the streets are paved with broad stones, and before the meanest artificer's doors are seats of various colored marbles, and so neatly kept that, I will assure you, I walked all over the town yesterday incognito in my slippers without receiving one spot of dirt, and you may see the Dutch maids washing the pavement of the street with more application than ours do our bedchambers. The town seems so full of people, all in motion and with such busy faces, that I can hardly fancy that it is not some celebrated fair; but I see it is the same every day.

"The shops and warehouses are of a suprising neatness, filled with an incredible quantity of fine merchandise, and so much cheaper than what we see in England, I have much ado to persuade myself that I am still so near it. Here is neither dirt nor beggary to be seen. One is not shocked with those loathsome cripples so common in London, nor teased with the importunities of idle fellows and wenches that choose to be nasty and lazy. The common servants and the little shopwomen here are more nicely clean than most of our ladies, and the great variety of dresses (every woman dressing her head after her own fashion) is an additional pleasure in seeing the town."

It is to be regretted that the admirable neatness and cleanliness of Rotterdam in the year 1716 no longer prevails there, for with modern business rush and hurry it has become a dirty, noisy and ugly city, very cosmopolitan in character.

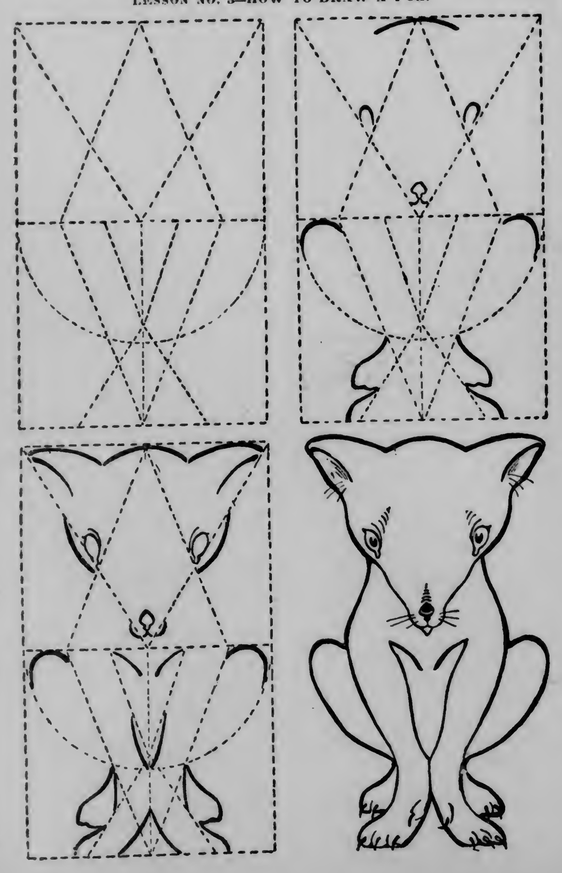
Helpful Hints for Our Young Artists.

LESSON NO. 3—HOW TO DRAW A FOX.



WHEN THE FLOOD IMPRISONED RALPH.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

Ralph Hammerstein was a boy of adventurous spirit. His home was on the broad prairies of the far West, in the very heart of the cattle district, where one might travel for 10 miles together—or perhaps twice as far—without seeing a single habitation. Occasionally one would see a lonely shack, occupied by a "cowboy" or two. Again one would turn round a long, sloping hill, to come upon a comfortable ranch house of one-story and surrounded by cattle sheds, cow pens and stables for horses. In a dwelling of the latter kind Ralph lived with his parents, his father being a well-to do stock raiser.

Although Ralph had much to interest him about the big ranch—which contained about 5,000 acres of land—he often found the time heavy on his hands, when not attending the little school, five miles distant from his home. On Saturdays he usually explored the country about his father's ranch, especially the lowlands, which lay between a pretty river and one of its tributary streams, the latter being of a deep gorge nature, flowing between rude cliffs of rock. The source of the tributary stream—by name, Wolf Creek—was in a rough, hilly part of the country, the bluffs and abrupt hills marking the country across which they ran like a small mountain chain. This gave a certain picturesqueness to the rolling prairie land, and the sparse timber that bordered the river and Wolf Creek gave a welcome touch of freshness and green to the dull aspect of the monotonous landscape.

The rocky, timbered banks of Wolf Creek afforded pretty good hunting, as they abounded with rodents and prairie wolves, and many a day did Ralph spend roaming thereabouts with his rifle. And often his day's bag was quite well worth while, for the destruction of the wolves was to him a sense of duty, as well as a show of his splendid marksmanship.

One day towards the end of March, the weather being very fine after the melting of the heavy snows that had covered the hills and filled the gorges of Wolf Creek, Ralph, with gun over shoulder, and a small lunch and bottle of drinking water in his knapsack, started to the banks of Wolf Creek to hunt. The melting snows and heavy accompanying spring rains had filled to overflowing every little hollow in the land, and the tiny streamlets—which during the summer months were as dry as a bone—had become swollen into rivers of the third magnitude.

Upon reaching Wolf Creek Ralph was astonished to see it leaping between its banks like a furious torrent, carrying loose brush and tufts of grass which it had washed from the banks far above water line. Ralph had never seen the stream so high, and knew that the river into which Wolf Creek flowed must be something fine to look upon.

"It's only five miles to the river—if I cut across prairie—and I think it worth my while to go over and see how the old run looks," mused Ralph to himself. "Guess my foot-log hasn't been carried away."

To his joy Ralph found the foot-log which spanned Wolf Creek in its usual place, but the water beneath it almost touched its under side. Ralph was sure of foot, however, and felt no hesitancy in crossing on the foot-log, though he knew the water beneath him was fully two feet over his head, and that the rush with which it was coming through the gorge was so severe that, should he lose his balance and fall into it, he would have a pretty hard fight to swim ashore, besides the danger of not being able to climb the steep, slippery and rocky bank at any nearby point.

But this knowledge did not daunt Ralph, who was a boy of venturesome spirit. He stepped upon the foot-log and walked across the raging stream as quietly as if he had been walking on level ground without a drop of water within a mile of him.

Then he went directly across the rolling prairie toward the river, a stream without banks of any great depth, and, therefore, one that swept wide of its bounds during high-water times. Sometimes Ralph had seen it spreading over the lowlands adjacent to its course like a mighty inland sea, measuring at some points several miles in width. And within what appeared to be its center stood the tall cottonwood trees which at normal times graced its banks.

And today Ralph beheld the river swollen to vast proportions, raging like mad as it rushed wildly toward its outlet into a greater river 50 miles away. It seemed that the whole country side had poured into this one stream all its melted snows and accumulated spring rains, for never before had Ralph seen it of such outgrown proportions. Across from him on the opposite bank were several cattlemen, come for the purpose of viewing their old friend—the river—in all its glory of the spring freshet. These men knew Ralph, and waved their arms to him, calling out greetings.

"How's Wolf Creek?" asked one, using his hands as a megaphone to carry his voice across the broadened river.

"Second to none," cried back Ralph, proudly boasting of his own dear little Wolf Creek, the pride of the ranchers living near to it.

"Well, don't you know you're running a risk to be on this side of your own native stream?" cried back the speaker. "Water's pouring down from every hill, through every gully into Wolf Creek, and it will probably be over its banks before you can get back there. How'd you get across? On the foot-log, eh?"

"Yep, on the foot-log," replied Ralph. "But the water wasn't within a foot of the log when I crossed it. I'm not fretting about getting back O. K." And Ralph laughed good-naturedly. "Whoever heard of a stream rising a foot inside of an hour? And I'll be back there in less time than it takes for you to cross your cow pens. It's about five miles, and I'm a dandy on foot. Just you watch me. So long till I see you again."

Then Ralph was off as fleet as a deer. But he could not keep up the rapid gait, and after the first half mile was obliged to slow down a bit. After about an hour and a half of pretty brisk walking he reached the place on the bank of Wolf Creek where he had crossed on the foot-log en route to the river.

But upon descending the steep bank to the spot of crossing he stopped in utter alarm. Where was the foot-log? Surely, it could not have been carried away by the rising water! But so must have been the case, for no foot-log remained there now. And the water was tearing at the banks many inches above the place where the ends of the foot-log had rested.

Ralph was in a dilemma. On the one side of him was Wolf Creek, across which he could not pass, for swimming through that turbulent water so filled with dangerous driftwood was out of the question. On the other side of him was the river, a veritable inland sea, covering a vast portion of the valley that stretched along its banks. And there was no possible way of crossing the river, either. Between these swollen streams he was caught like a mouse in a trap. And there wasn't a single habitation in the 15-mile angle which stretched between the creek and the river. About 15 miles up stream was—or used to be—a cattleman's shack of logs and sod roof. But Ralph hadn't been there for two years, and the owner of the place might have moved away. Well, what was he to do, anyway? The nights were cold and he didn't relish the idea of passing the long, dark hours under the sky without so much as a blanket to wrap himself in. And he had no food save a light lunch which would suffice only to stay his hunger for a few hours. Ah, he had been a fool to cross that foot-log. He had been taught a good lesson, too, and he hoped he'd never be such an idiot as to forget it. But the lesson, while it was a good one, did not teach him the way out of his dilemma. He might go up Wolf Creek for the distance of fifteen miles before he should find a place where he might cross it.

"Well, I feel like kicking myself clean across Wolf Creek and all the way home for having been such a long-eared jackass," declared Ralph. "If ever a smart Alec lived, I'm that Alec."

Then poor Ralph went back up the bank and began to scan the country lying between him and the river. He half hoped to find some other trapped person to keep him company. To his joy he beheld a curl of blue smoke rising over one of the abrupt bluffs about a quarter of a mile up stream. He hurried toward the spot the smoke rose from. "There must be some fire where there is smoke," he soliloquized. "And where there is fire there must be human beings—or a human being."

As he rounded the point of rocky bluff he came to a well-protected stretch of level land—perhaps half an acre—that nestled at the very foot of the cliff. And there he saw a comfortable wall tent, a wagon, two horses tethered out to grass and a camp fire with a steaming kettle placed over it. And from the tent's opening came a tall, grizzled man smoking a pipe. When he saw Ralph he nodded without a sign of surprise, removed the pipe from his lips and said, "Hello, stranger—What'd you come from? The freshet fetch you?"

"The freshet's got me all right, all right," laughed Ralph. "And I was never so tickled to death in all my life as I am to see that kettle boiling and that tent for shelter. Gee, but I thought I was in for a night of it, when, lo and behold, there came a curl of blue smoke, and like the star in the East it led me to the place I was looking for—namely, grub and a covered bunk."

"Ha! ha!" laughed the old man, who proved to be a trapper. "I like to hear a young feller talk up in meetin', be-gosh! Come right up an' git yer part of all that's doin' here. Me pal has gone to town, an', blast me, if he'll git back agin, fer I wuz jist down to see about that old foot-log, an' kill me fer a badger if it warn't gone—swept clean away."

"And the departure of that foot-log has played the deuce with me," confessed Ralph.

But at this minute they heard a loud hallon coming from the opposite bank, and going hurriedly down to a spot where they could look across the creek they beheld the old man's "pal" waving frantically and explaining in his own emphatic way that the foot-log was gone and he cut off from headquarters.

"Ah, I'll settle the problem," said Ralph to his friendly old host. "Let your partner go to my home and explain that I am a prisoner on this side and he on that side, and that during high water we wish to swap homes. Eh?"

And so Ralph's suggestion was carried out, the "pal" going to Ralph's home, where he explained all about Ralph's situation. And many days passed before Ralph was enabled to reach his own home. But during his stay with the old trapper he had a royal good time, finding a most entertaining host and plenty of camp food, and declared that so far as he was concerned he was glad to be held by the floods and that he would never forget the pleasant visit with the old trapper on the banks of Wolf Creek.

When he saw Ralph he nodded without a sign of surprise.

Signs That Never Fail.

If your dear little dog is sick,
Can you tell?
Of course, for his nose is cold
When he's well.

Also he will much enjoy
To eat
Of some very nice tender bits
Of meat.

But if he is sick, why, warm
Is his snout,
And he will not play nor
Frisk about.

Neither will he drink milk,
Nor will he eat;
And he'll lie doubled up with
His head on his feet.

So, if you would prove his health,
These signs try;
They'll always hold good till
Your dog does die.

AT THE LYCEUM

Spectacular Dramatic Production Of The Story Of "Parsifal" on Saturday Evening---The Mack Leone Players in "At Piney Ridge."

From the time of its earliest production, "Parsifal" has kept tongues wagging.

"The play is saturated with Buddhism," proclaims the oracular critic. "This drama is intended to teach nothing," insists the literary wiseacre. "It has no ethic content. It is simply a spectacle to please theater-goers and fill an evening with agreeable sensations." "It is a shrewdly planned commercial enterprise." "A most ingenuous filler of the cash drawer," sneers the sagacious cynic.

Beneath all surface differences there is a stratum of common agreement. The vehement and insinstent fashion in which all sorts and conditions of men keep finding in this notable work something that impinges upon their especial way of looking at things, makes it clear that the idea embodied in "Parsifal" moves along the central plane of thought and feeling. Whatever may be the precise purport of this so-called message, whatever theory of art or of morals it may serve to emphasize, it unquestionably speaks to the soul and sets astir the inner fibers of the being. Its inevitable effect is a troubling of the waters of the elemental fountains of life.

The legend of "Parsifal" crystalizes around two mystic objects, a spear and a cup or chalice, called in medieval speech "Grail." The old romances loved to weave song and story about these sacred objects. They used to tell how the roman governor, Pontius Pilate, gave them to Joseph of Aramathea. That spear, they accounted, to be the cruel shaft which pierced the heart of Jesus, as he hung dying on Calvary. That crystal cup they dreamed of as the chalice which he had used in the Parting Supper, and in which was caught the blood which streamed from his wounds, as loving hands removed his body from the cross. This blood-dipped spear and the Grail haunted the thought of the middle ages as the emblems of that life-giving and redemptive energy bestowed upon the world through the death on the crosss. From them streamed a talismatic virtue. The touch of the spear wrought health. Sight of the Garil gave life. They glowed with light celestial. The devotee who gazed upon them found the shadows lifted from his heart. They were charged with a heaven-born vigor which rejuvenated the wasting springs of moral life. When they were unvicled a superhuman vitality was imparted which could more than offset the drain of moral years.

Three chracters in this story center the attention—a king, an enchantress, and a deliverer.

The king is smitten with a grievous hurt. Venturing within the precincts of the abode of evil he is entrapped. The Sacred Spear is snatched from his hand; its point is thrust into his breast, and he makes his way back to the sanctuary of the Grail to drag out a crippled existence of lingering torture, which all the resources of human skill, and even the mystic, unearthly, life-force of the Grail are powerless to relieve. A being of royal capacity and bearing, with all the tokens of kingliness in mind and heart he is, and yet how weak and ignoble, tortured with pain, lashed by conscience, wrung by mental anguish, in the throes of a perpetual struggle with himself, defeated, degraded, writhing with a wound which no art can medicine, no skill can staunch.

The second character is Kundry, a strange woman, gifted with the power that unnerves resistance and enchains the faculties as with magic—a tool of evil. Kundry has not always been the slave and instrument of evil. A mockery of the Redeemer brought her under a curse, which compelled an age-long servitude as an unwilling temptress, until her chain should be broken by one whose purity could withstand the terrific force of her fatal blandishment. While she plies every art to drag a fresh victim into the tells of her master, she prays that her lurements may be conquered, and that the tempted one, clothed with the strength of victory, may rend the diabolic snare in which her own soul has been entangled. The seductive allurements of evil, which the constraint of her sad fate compels her to exert, are made to serve as a background, which is projected the magnificence of the complete triumph over evil. The chaste heart is shown to be clad in complete steel. Vice is demonstrated to be weaker than virtue. Sin is revealed as impotent to beat down the guard of holiness, though it call into the field all its subtlety and energy. The will to do right is exhibited as a Gibraltar that cannot be carried by assault.

The central character in the story is a deliverer—a mere youth, utterly untutored in the actualities of life. Reared in forest depths, nested in a mother's guardian love, ignortnt of the touch of pain, of the cry of woe and of the steep of death. The singular title given to him is that of a "Guileless Fool." This crisp and tantalizing epithet is modeled on the quaint conceits and the odd names with which the old-time characters delighted to chirsten themselves. The meaning is more than it seems and lies deeper than the surface. "Guileless," the dictionaries tell us, means "free from deception," "honest," "sincere."

The relation of these three characters is unfolded in a story which consists of four chapters; first, "The Sorrow;" second, "The Deliverer Beholds the Sorrow;" third, "The Deliverer Tastes the Suffering;" fourth, "The Deliverer Heals the Woe."

"AT PINEY RIDGE"

Will be the Next Offering by the Mack-Leones.

"At Piney Ridge," will be the next offering by the Mack-Leone company, and this sterling story of the Tennessee mountains should be one to appeal to all lovers of real drama. Without any attendant fireworks or blood and thunder, the play deals with a varied assortment of Southern characters from the humble and ignorant mountaineers to the gentlemanly banker from Chattanooga. There are the usual negro comedy types, who furnish most of the comedy, and a splendid heroic male lead, that of Jack Rose from Piney Ridge. The female parts are all strong, headed by "Cindy Lane," the mountain girl, whose only relation is the simple text, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I Shall not Want." The part will be assumed by Miss Leone. Mr. Mack has the heroic Jack Rose, quiet and determined, but never melo-dramatic, and Mr. Chapman has a good "heavy" role, and Mr. Patten, Miss Farnum and Miss Meade all have splendid roles. There will be matinees on Wednesday and Friday, and the popular custom of having tea and cakes will again be in order.

VIOLA ALLEN

Will be Seen at the Lyceum in "Irene Wycherley."

One of the dramatic treats of the present season may be anticipated in the forthcoming engagement of Miss Viola Allen, in her new play, "Irene Wycherley," which comes directly from the Astor theater in New York. It has there received the highest endorsement, and has in every instance duplicated the enormous success achieved by the play at the Kingsway theater in London, Eng.

Miss Allen has been too long a distinguished figure of the American stage to require a dissertation upon her talents, and in the present instance it is only necessary to observe that, given the proper vehicle, she will, of course, rise to the occasion. Messrs. Liebler & Co., Miss Allen's managers, have in this instance supplied her with a play that has already proved itself one of the sensational successes of two dramatic centers, and they have also supplied her with a cast that is claimed to be unequaled in its ability for the purpose in hand. Such names as Edwin Arden, Paul McAllster, Grant Stewart, John Glendinning, Mrs. Sam Sothern, Marie Wainwright, Nellie Thorne and others are well known to theater-goers everywhere.

Of the play it may be said that it is the first effort of a hitherto unknown playwright; that it discloses the highest social life of England; that it is virile, exhilarating and wonderfully interesting, from first to last, depicting as it does a phase of human life that, while all too common, is of such absorbing interest that it has never failed yet to leave the auditor with a gasp at the final curtain. Miss Allen and her company will be seen at the Lyceum theater Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday matinee, March 31 and April 1.

VIOLA ALLEN,
As "Irene Wycheily," at the Lyceum March 31 and April 1.

Lyceum Notes.

Paul Gilmore has the newest of the new plays in "The Wheel of Love," written for him by George V. Hobart. The play is a semi-Western automobile love tale and gives Mr. Gilmore the best opportunity for distinguishing himself he has ever had. The piece will be brought here within the fortnight.

"Buster Brown" will be at the Lyceum soon, with Master Reed in the title part.

Pixley & Luder's famous musical comedy, "The Burgomaster," will be at the Lyceum soon. Gus Weinburg and Ruth White, the two originals in the parts of Peter Stuyvesant and Willie Van Astorbilt, will be the featured members of the cast, and there will be an especially strong acting company, and also a chorus of fifty.

No dramatic writer ever hit upon the idea of making a young Swedish girl the heroine of a drama until "Tillie Olson" was brought out. There have been numerous Swedish-American dramas written for male stars, but this is the first one in which the fair sex is exploited. The only Swedish character in "Tillie Olson" is the girl Tillie. The rest of the characters are products of the great Northwest, the scene being laid first on a Minnesota farm, and later in the city of Minneapolis.

AT THE BIJOU

Sophie Everett & Co. and the American News Boy Quartette Will Be the Features of the Vaudeville Bill Next Week.

Probably one of the best bills of vaudville ever offered at the Bijou will be seen the coming week, as each act can be called a headliner.

The bill includes such favorite vaudevillians as Sophie Everett and company, in a one-act farce, entitled "A House Warming." The following notice from the New York Telegram speaks of the merit of this act:

"Pleasing acting, humorous sketches, a high class musical act and other attractive numbers combine to make the card at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue theater, this week, one of the very best at that popular house this season. There are three numbers, any of which might be classed as a headliner of any ordinary program, but the feature of the features was 'A House Warming,' an act presented by Sophie Everett & Co. The sketch has many amusing lines and situations and won scores of laughs and rounds of applause from start to finish. Miss Everett is supported by E. P. Jerome and Harvey F. Miller."

Among the other features will be the American Newsboys' Quartet. This act is the original Newsboys' quartet, that has been a feature in vaudeville for several seasons. They present the playlet, entitled "Recollections of School Boy Days," carrying a complete set of scenery, properties and electrical effects. The four includes the same well known singers, dancers and comedians that have been before the public for several years, viz., Charles Glick, Jack Gehringer, Fred Ford and Lee Laird.

A team of comedy entertainers, who have been a feature attraction the country over, are Lawrence and Harrington, who are the original Bowery Boy and Tough Girl, and are the first performers to introduce these characters to the vaudeville stage. They will present the same act in Duluth that has made them such amusement favorites.

Among the novelties booked will be Potter and Hartwell, in "The Man With Two Heads." This is the most unique novelty ever offered at the Bijou, and one that is new to the public.

Wilfred and Lottie as "The Hand-Balancer and the Wise Dog," have a gymnastic novelty that has been a big hit over the entire circuit, and is different and more difficult than the run of such acts.

Isadore Silver, the Bijou's popular singer, will sing "Katy, Darling, I Am Waiting."

The moving pictures for the week will be "The Quack Doctor's Medicine" and "An Indian Love Story." Both are new feature films. Matinees are given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. A special school children's matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Newest Russian Visitor a Failure as Far as Public Esteem Goes---Dustin Farnum's Second Attempt is Another Frost.

New York, March 21.—It was to be predicted that Mme. Vera F. Komisarzhevsky, the Russian actress, of the St. Petersburg Dramatic theater would find it a profitable policy in the end to curtail her engagement at Daly's theater. And now the announcement has gone forth that she will close at the end of a week, thus remitting two weeks of the five of her engagement originally outlined.

Socially she has been lionized here by society, but the Goulds and the rest who entertained her at teas in her social capacity as the Countess Mauravieff, were conspicuous by their absence at her performances, and her clientele was made up almost entirely of her countrymen. They occupied the gallery and shouted "Brava!" trying to make up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers—all of which is patriotic, from a Russian point of view, but unprofitable when there is rent to pay and a strong company to maintain. The American contingent stayed away. Few English speaking playgoers were present at any time. The press criticised her coldly, and some engaged themselves with more concern about her unpronounceable name than her appealing art.

Unfortunately, the distinguished actress had early put a gentle but firm quietus on the busy press agent. When he suggested with a becoming modesty sundry well-tried and infallible devices for promoting interest in her visit, like tanbark, milk baths, etc., she met his well-meant advice with an emphatic injunction.

"No," she is reported to have said, "if they won't come to see me for the sake of my art, they may stay away." The American press agent was struck dumb. He stared at her and then went off and told his friends that the Russian woman was obviously shaky in her intellectuals.

Unfortunately, moreover, she choose plays that are deficient in the sort of heroics which appeal to the eye. Her work is predominantly quiet and suggestive. She does not beat doors and dissolve in tears and go about with the emotional sniffle, handkerchief pressed to her nostrils. Her art lacks the "grandstand" element, and her method reminds one more of Mrs. Fiske's than any one else's. In the interest of truth she makes no concession to claptrap.

In Sudermann's "Battle of the Butterflies" she might have been one of the minor characters so far as any effort went to lift Rosie by a tour de force into a thrilling entity. But that is what the author intended, and the author's intention is obviously her keynote. Yet this performance was amazingly interesting, even to us who understood not a word of what was said and knew little of the comedy. The ensemble work of the company was simply enchanting. Every part was played to the life. The characterization of the miserly old Winkelmann by Neildov was an amazing example of peevish senility reduced to the last fraction, while Komisarzhevsky's Rosie was the living embodiment of girlish simplicity and Bravich's Kessler irrestible as a legere depiction of a suave and persuasive man of the world. With nothing to go by except the brief English outline of the by except the brief English outline of the action act by act in the program it was remarkable how the animated but well considered mimetic work of the entire troupe enabled the non-Russian element to follow the plot.

The Sudermann comedy was given only Monday night and Wednesday matinee. The remainder of the week was divided between "A Child of Nature," a play by A. N. Ostrovsky, and "The Children of the Sun," by Maxim Gorky. Down to this writing this scribe has not seen her in anything heroic or hysterical, and she has yet to show him that she can soar in passionate outbursts with the same facility and grace that she can depict the intellectual figures of her repertory, types created by the passions rather than the mind.

Dustin Farnum has the distinction of scoring one of the shortest runs of the season in "The Rector's Garden," by Byron Ongley. The play lasted one week at the Bijou and then was withdrawn. Manager Henry B. Harris decided that to be the better policy, though the Saturday matinee was crowded with Mr. Farnum's female admirers. The actor himself lacked confidence in the vehicle,

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The Famous Cherry Sisters Will Be An Added Feature With Merry Maidens During the Coming Week.

The Cherry Sisters, the dear old Cherry Sisters, who cavorted in the old Casino at the top of the incline railway when last they appeared in Duluth, will appear at the Metropolitan next week, as a special feature on the Merry Maidens' program.

The popularity of the Cherry Sisters always was a strange one. In the old days, when they first came out of Iowa to elevate the stage, people often went two and three times to watch their performances, adding diversion to their second and third appearances by the hurling of rotten eggs and vegetables during the evening.

The Cherry Sisters became so used to this sort of a reception that they got into the habit of having a net over the proscenium arch before they began their show.

But the only original Cherry Sisters, Addie and Effie, will be at the Metropolitan next week.

Aside from the Cherry Sisters, The Merry Maidens company is considered a strong one. It is headed by Sam Rice, the well known comedian and producer.

Chief in his support are Lewis and Thompson, Patti Carney, Clayton and Drew, Lulu Beeson, holder of the Richard K. Fox medal for buck dancing and many others.

"The Heir to the Hoopla" and "At Coney Island" are both said to be very funny skits.

During the week, there will be the usual matinees and an amateurs' night Friday.

The meaning is more than it seems and lies deeper than the surface. "Guileless," the dictionaries tell us, means "free from deception," "honest," "sincere."

The relation of these three characters is unfolded in a story which consists of four chapters; first, "The Sorrow;" second, "The Deliverer Beholds the Sorrow;" third, "The Deliverer Tastes the Suffering;" fourth, "The Deliverer Heals the Woe."

Miss Allen has been too long a distinguished figure of the American stage to require a dissertation upon her talents, and in the present instance it is only necessary to observe that, given the proper vehicle, she will of course, rise to the occasion. Messrs. Liebler & Co., Miss Allen's managers, have in this instance supplied her with a play that has already proved itself one of the sensational successes of two dramatic centers, and they have also supplied her with a cast that is claimed to be unequaled in its ability for the purpose in hand. Such names as Edwin Arden, Paul McAllister, Grant Stewart, John Glendinning, Mrs. Sam Sothern, Marie Wainwright, Nellie Thorne and others are well known to theater-goers everywhere.

Of the play it may be said that it is the first effort of a hitherto unknown playwright; that it discloses the highest social life of England; that it is virile, exhilarating and wonderfully interesting, from first to last, depicting as it does a phase of human life that, while all too common, is of such absorbing interest that it has never failed yet to leave the auditor with a gasp at the final curtain. Miss Allen and her company will be seen at the Lyceum theater Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday matinee, March 31 and April 1.

Lyceum Notes.

Paul Gilmore has the newest of the new plays in "The Wheel of Love," written for him by George V. Hobart. The play is a semi-Western automobile love tale and gives Mr. Gilmore the best opportunity for distinguishing himself he has ever had. The piece will be brought here within the fortnight.

"Pudsy Brown" will be at the Lyceum soon, with Master Reed in the title part.

Pixley & Luder's famous musical comedy, "The Burgomaster," will be at the Lyceum soon. Gus Weinburg and Ruth White, the two originals in the parts of Peter Stuyvesant and Willie Van Astorbilt, will be the featured members of the cast, and there will be an especially strong acting company, and also a chorus of fifty.

No dramatic writer ever hit upon the idea of making a young Swedish girl the heroine of a drama until "Tillie Olson" was brought out. There have been numerous Swedish-American dramas written for male stars, but this is the first one in which the fair sex is exploited. The only Swedish character in "Tillie Olson" is the girl Tillie. The rest of the characters are products of the great Northwest, the scene being laid first on a Minnesota farm, and later in the city of Minneapolis.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The Famous Cherry Sisters Will Be an Added Feature With Merry Maidens During the Coming Week.

The Cherry Sisters, the dear old Cherry Sisters, who cavorted in the old Casino at the top of the incline railway when last they appeared in Duluth, will appear at the Metropolitan next week, as a special feature on the Merry Maidens' program.

The popularity of the Cherry Sisters always was a strange one. In the old days, when they first came out of Iowa to elevate the stage, people often went two and three times to watch their performances, adding diversion to their second and third appearances by the hurling of rotten eggs and vegetables during the evening.

The Cherry Sisters became so used to this sort of a reception that they got into the habit of having a net over the proscenium arch before they began their show.

But the only original Cherry Sisters, Addie and Effie, will be at the Metropolitan next week.

Aside from the Cherry Sisters, The Merry Maidens company is considered a strong one. It is headed by Sam Rice, the well known comedian and producer.

Chief in his support are Lewis and Thompson, Patti Carney, Clayton and Drew, Lulu Beeson, holder of the Richard K. Fox medal for buck dancing and many others.

"The Heir to the Hoopla" and "At Coney Island" are both said to be very funny skits.

During the week, there will be the usual matinees and an amateurs' night Friday.

Sophie Everett & Co. and the American News Boy Quartette Will Be the Features of the Vaudeville Bill Next Week.

Probably one of the best bills of vaudville ever offered at the Bijou will be seen the coming week, as each act can be called a headliner.

The bill includes such favorite vaudevillians as Sophie Everett and company, in a one-act farce, entitled "A House Warming." The following notice from the New York Telegram speaks of the merit of this act:

"Pleasing acting, humorous sketches, a high class musical act and other attractive numbers combine to make the card at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue theater, this week, one of the very best at that popular house this season. There are three numbers, any of which might be classed as a headliner of any ordinary program, but the feature of the features was 'A House Warming,' an act presented by Sophie Everett & Co. The sketch has many amusing lines and situations and won scores of laughs and rounds of applause from start to finish. Miss Everett is supported by E. P. Jerome and Harvey F. Miller."

Among the other features will be the American Newsboys' Quartet. This act is the original Newsboys' quartet, that has been a feature in vaudeville for several seasons. They present the playlet, entitled "Recollections of School Boy Days," carrying a complete set of scenery, properties and electrical effects. The four includes the same well known singers, dancers and comedians that have been before the public for several years, viz., Charles Glick, Jack Gebringer, Fred Ford and Lee Laird.

A team of comedy entertainers, who have been a feature attraction the country over, are Lawrence and Harrington, who are the original Bowery Boy and Tough Girl, and are the first performers to introduce these characters to the vaudeville stage. They will present the same act in Duluth that has made them such amusement favorites.

Among the novelties booked will be Potter and Hartwell, in "The Man With Two Heads." This is the most unique novelty ever offered at the Bijou, and one that is new to the public.

Wilfred and Lottie as "The Hand-Balancer and the Wise Dog," have a gymnastic novelty that has been a big hit over the entire circuit, and is different and more difficult than the run of such acts.

Isadore Silver, the Bijou's popular singer, will sing "Katy, Darling, I Am Waiting."

The moving pictures for the week will be "The Quack Doctor's Medicine" and "An Indian Love Story." Both are new feature films. Matinees are given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. A special school children's matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Newest Russian Visitor a Failure as Far as Public Esteem Goes---Dustin Farnum's Second Attempt is Another Frost.

New York, March 21.—It was to be predicted that Mme. Vera F. Komisarzhevsky, the Russian actress, of the St. Petersburg Dramatic theater would find it a profitable policy in the end to curtail her engagement at Daly's theater. And now the announcement has gone forth that she will close at the end of a week, thus remitting two weeks of the five of her engagement originally outlined.

Socially she has been lionized here by society, but the Goulds and the rest who entertained her at teas in her social capacity as the Countess Mauravieff, were conspicuous by their absence at her performances, and her clientele was made up almost entirely of her countrymen. They occupied the gallery and shouted "Brava!" trying to make up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers—all of which is patriotic, from a Russian point of view, but unprofitable when there is rent to pay and a strong company to maintain. The American contingent stayed away. Few English speaking playgoers were present at any time. The press criticised her coldly, and some engaged themselves with more concern about her unpronounceable name than her appealing art.

Unfortunately, the distinguished actress had early put a gentle but firm quietus on the busy press agent. When he suggested with a becoming modesty sundry well-tried and infallible devices for promoting interest in her visit, like tan-bark, milk baths, etc., she met his well-meant advice with an emphatic injunction.

"No," she is reported to have said, "if they won't come to see me for the sake of my art, they may stay away." The American press agent was struck dumb. He stared at her and then went off and told his friends that the Russian woman was obviously shaky in her intellectuals.

Unfortunately, moreover, she chose plays that are deficient in the sort of heroics which appeal to the eye. Her work is predominantly quiet and suggestive. She does not beat doors and dissolve in tears and go about with the emotional snuffle, handkerchief pressed to her nostrils. Her art lacks the "grandstand" element, and her method reminds one more of Mrs. Fiske's than any one else's. In the interest of truth she makes no concession to claptrap.

In Sudermann's "Battle of the Butterflies" she might have been one of the minor characters so far as any effort went to lift Rosie by a tour de force into a thrilling entity. But that is what the author intended, and the author's intention is obviously her keynote. Yet this performance was amazingly interesting, even to us who understood not a word of what was said and knew little of the comedy. The ensemble work of the company was simply enchanting. Every part was played to the life. The characterization of the miserly old Winkelmann by Noldov was an amazing example of senile senility reduced to the last fraction, while Komisarzevsky's Rosie was the living embodiment of girlish simplicity and Bravich's Kessler irresistible as a negere depiction of a suave and persuasive man of the world. With nothing to go by except the bald English outline of the action act by act in the program it was remarkable how the animated but well considered mimetic work of the entire troupe enabled the non-Russian element to follow the plot.

The Sudermann comedy was given only Monday night and Wednesday matinee. The remainder of the week was divided between "A Child of Nature," a play by A. S. Ostrovsky, and "The Children of the Sun," by Maxim Gorky. Down to this writing this scribe has not seen her in anything heroic or hysterical, and she has yet to show that she can soar in passionate outbursts with the same facility and grace that she can depict the intellectual figures of her repertory, types created by the passions rather than the mind.

Dustin Farnum has the distinction of scoring one of the shortest runs of the season in "The Rector's Garden," by Byron Ongley. The play lasted one week at the Bijou and then was withdrawn, Manager Henry L. Harris decided that to be the better policy, though the Saturday matinee was crowded with Mr. Farnum's female admirers. The actor himself lacked confidence in the vehicle,

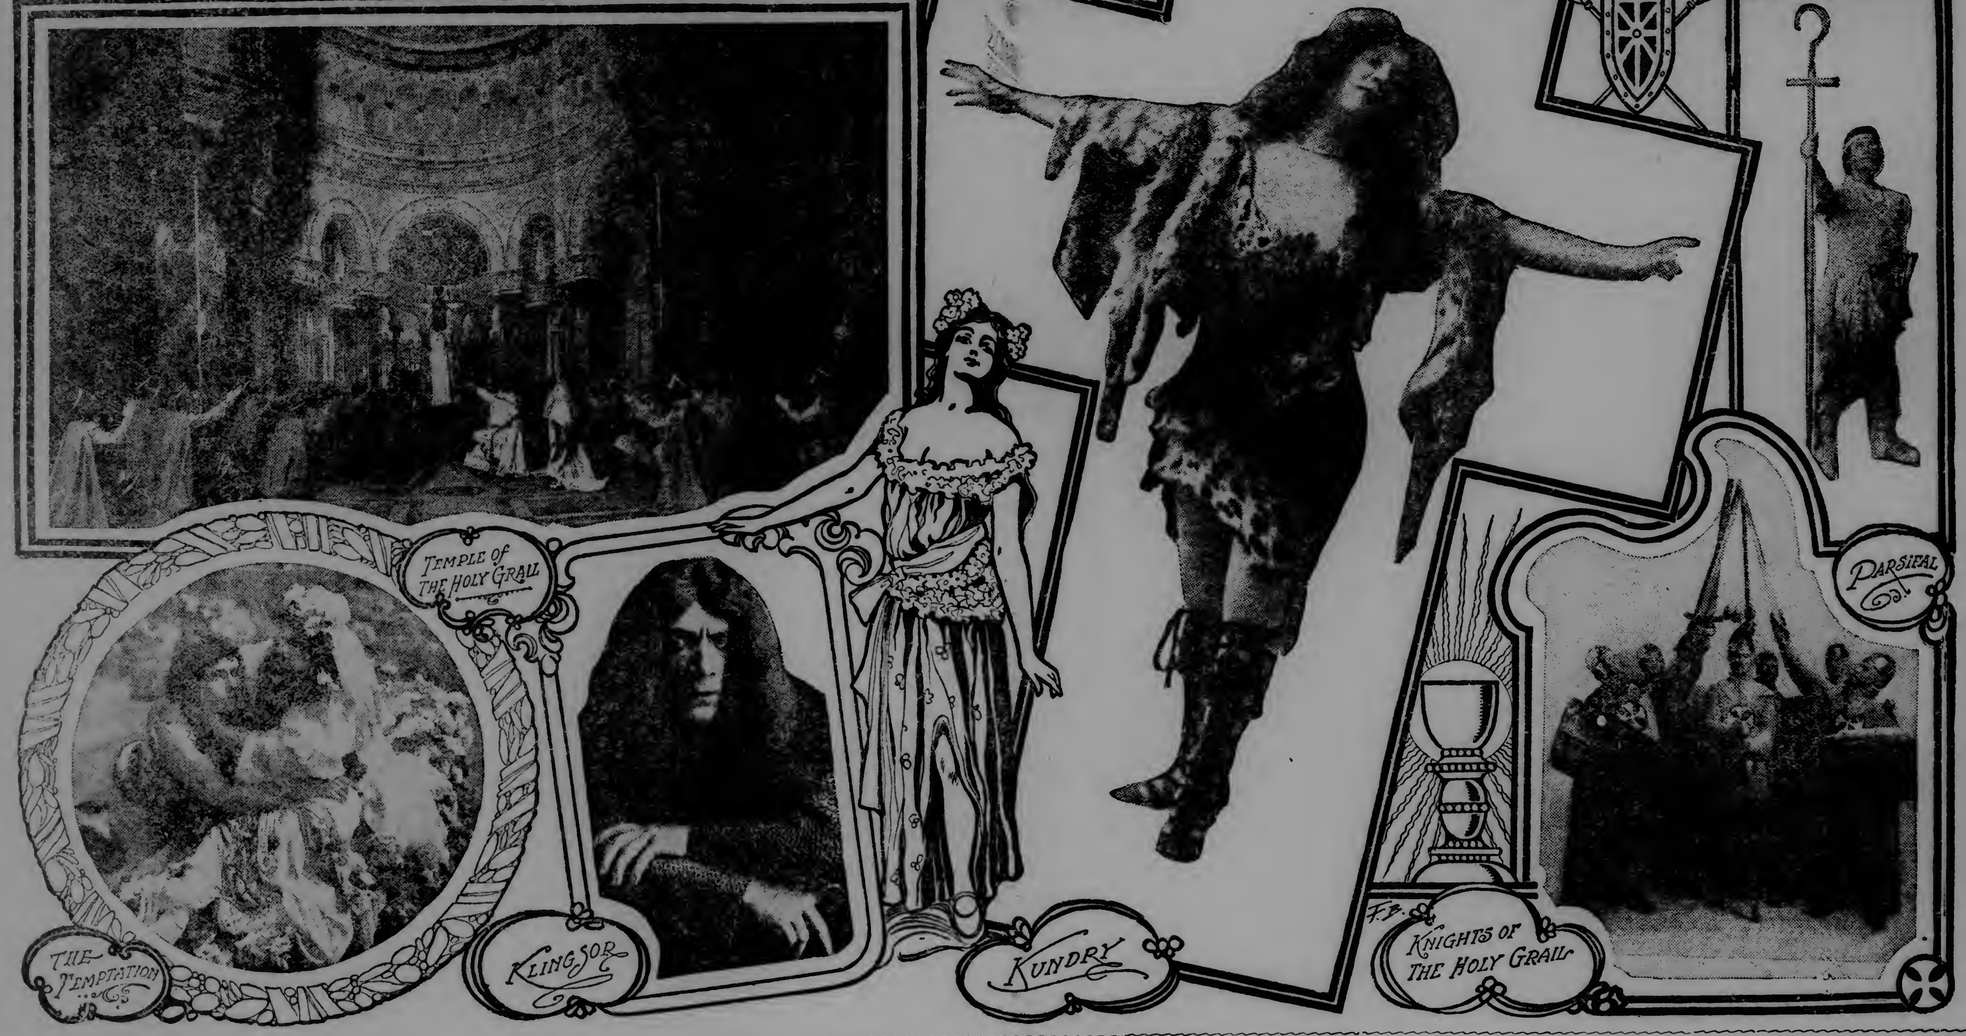
RICHARD WAGNER'S MYSTIC FESTIVAL PLAY

ADAPTED BY WILLIAM LYNCH ROBERTS



and expressed his thanks to friends that the piece had staying qualities, but declared to the reporter of his manager that he was not to blame for the change. The latter had gone to great lengths in the way of securing what it is claimed would be the most elaborate production of the season, but its weak spots were laid bare at the first performance.

Hamlin has resumed his duty for a splendid part, and it may have been his luck in the connection which led to his arrest a week ago Monday in upper Broadway as he was making the rounds in his automobile several hours after midnight, and had to leave his car to be conducted to court in person.

Marie Cahill is credited for the present season in "Miss Dolly Dollars" with the distinction of having done more to kill the drama than any other one person. While she does not monopolize all the credit for the wretchedness of the piece, she is given a large share of it. On the other hand, Miss Cahill is entitled to credit for the fact that she demonstrates in her own person that there is a public for good original musical comedy pieces, and that the cravings of the American people are not entirely for the "girl" kind. Marie Cahill's success this season has been largely with the contract she has entered into, compelling her to produce a piece of her own each year. If she succeeds in getting a good one she will be entitled to the credit, and those interested in the success of the American stage will be glad to see her do it. Nearly every week one thing or another has been pushed out instead of Miss Cahill's piece, and the latest report is that Miss Cahill herself departs from the company in May.

In the game Edith Wynne Matthison is completing her place in Mr. Mansfield's company in Miss Crane's play, "The Garden of Paradise," in Washington and Miss Anglin has left Ottawa on with Mr. Miller as they were to San Francisco, where the latter is to open his tour to the southward on Australia.

Miss Bertha Galland is said to have a very fine season which ends her engagement with Mr. Frohman's company and starts her on a starring career, in which she will be directed by prominent manager. In the meantime a chief opening tour is planned for her through Pennsylvania and Ohio, and a number of managers who saw a selected performance in which she scored one of her good successes.

Although the critics say they are busy preparing to get ready for the party of the year in New York it looks as though the party of Paul Kester's play of "The Country Girl" in New York is going to be a very quiet affair. The piece has been pushed out to the country and the critics have been given to understand that they are not wanted in New York. Whether the piece is to be withdrawn or not is not known, but it is said that it will not be seen in New York as a Metropolitan production.

Frank Keenan, who is one of the most capable of the actors now, and whose work in "The Warrens of Virginia," William Winter compares to the best work of some of the old-timers of the American stage recently started in its opening dressing by an informal talk before the Players' association at the Hotel Astor, in declaring that the American people are incapable of enjoying tragic plays because they are not really a happy people. Their merriment he said is on the surface and is not the spontaneous expression of a really contented and happy state of heart. His remarks created much discussion and were taken up editorially by some of the papers in an attempt to refute his argument.

Mr. Keenan sticks to his guns and has evidently given the playwriting public new thought for direction. He is to be invited by Columbia university to elaborate his ideas in a thesis, which may earn him a degree.

The critics were again at sixes and sevens over Mr. Sothern's performance of Rollen, this week, and the managers, evidently with a view to illustrating a paradox, prints in its advertisements of Sothern's engagement, side by side, the opinions of William Winter and Alan Dale. Winter says: "Mr. Sothern's presentment of Rollen illustrates his ability and heightens his reputation as an actor." In contrast to this read what Alan Dale said, and spark unintentional of his view: "Rollen made up like a Roquefort cheese." Meanwhile the management, after printing a schedule of the actual receipts will offer each not ranging from two to ten announces extra matinees and another extension of southern engagement.

Mary Hall, who has been resting in her home since her tour in "The Girl of the Golden West" was closed, has been engaged for the leading parts of the new stock company that is to be installed in the Davidson theater in Milwaukee, commencing the first of next month. The Davidson is the first class theater of Milwaukee and the experiment of transferring the stock business to that playhouse will be watched with a good deal of interest. Miss Hall had planned for a long vacation, but the offering from Milwaukee, for a special engagement was so flattering that she was compelled to accept it. Miss Hall will open in Maxine Elliott's old part in "Her Own Way," and will follow in a list of star parts that were specially selected for the engagement there.

• • •

Ronald Wolf says that following "The Ranger" and "The Rector's Garden" Dustin Farnum is now singing that sad refrain

"Carry me back to the old Virginnum."

Maxine Elliot has scored well enough with her newest play, "Myself Bertha," to hold it over for next season. She will play it on tour in the country after her return from England late next fall.

• • •

Robert Fisher, who has been playing with "The Man of the Hour," closes his engagement with that company in March and will hurry East to join the company Manager Brady is rehearsing for "Way Down East," and which is to play the pastoral drama in London. Fisher will have the old part of Squire Bartlett in the London production.

• • •

Kathryn Pearl, who played earlier in the season with "The Rollickers," announces that she has been divorced from Eddie Redway, the comedian, and thus ends another of those sudden romances of stageland. Not long ago Redway was in the "Chaperones" and Miss Pearl was a chorus girl in the same company. They were joking in a restaurant one evening when somebody suggested that they get married. Acting upon that suggestion, they became man and wife and after a short while of happiness won their separate ways, and last month Mr. Redway ended it by securing an out-and-out divorce.

The new comedy, "Going Some," which was written in conjunction by Paul Armstrong and Rox Beach, will be produced in New England this spring by Liebler & Co. George Marion will stage the play. It is said he will also have an important part in the company that includes James E. Sullivan, Howard Estabrooke, Agnes Palmer and Carrie Reynolds.

• • •

William Farnum has been booked to succeed Malcolm Williams as leading man at "Polly of the Circus," now being played in New York by Mabel Taliaferro and company.

Word comes from Chicago that Kohl and Castle are contemplating a big change in the policy of two of their vaudeville houses there. It is reported that in the near future they will put in picture shows in both the Olympic and the Haymarket, and that the real vaudeville activity will be centered upon their handsome new house, the Majestic. The craze for the moving pictures, with illustrated songs, is spreading all over the country, and the small cost is something in this connection that immediately appeals to the manager. The Olympic and Haymarket have long been prominent vaudeville houses in Chicago, and to take them off the circuit would mean a reduction of the vaudeville demand in that field.

Frank Worthing, who rejoined Grace George in California a few weeks back after a long siege of pneumonia, was not permitted to remain at his post very long. Mr. Worthing soon succumbed and left last week for Phoenix, Ariz., where he was advised to go and remain for an indefinite period on account of the condition of his lungs.

• • •

An action was started in New York last week to determine the proprietorship of the vaudeville act, "The Star Bout." Taylor Granville and his wife, Laura Pierpont, the well-known Cincinnati actress, have been made parties to the action. It appears that financial assistance was loaned them in the early part of the season to bring the piece to the stage, but that there is some question as to the rights of the men who put up the financial backing.

• • •

It is said to offset the demand of American vaudeville houses for some of their star acts the London Music Hall men have decided to make way for American talent in a broader sense than ever before. They are now booking some big American specialties with a view of filling in the gaps caused by the desertion of many of their old favorites. This exchange should work to the advantage of both sides, for it will mean new faces and new specialties in quarters where they have not been seen before.

• • •

Thomas Ross opened his season in Washington this week in "The Traveling Salesman." The interest chiefly centering in this new effort is due to it having been written by James Forbes, whose "The Chorus Lady" was such a jolly surprise that much is expected of his second venture as a dramatist. Mr. Ross is a splendid young actor, and if given the opportunity should prove as big an individual hit as Rose Stahl did in the first Forbes play.

• • •

Another new play which is down for an early metropolitan hearing is "The Servant in the House." This is the drama by C. Rann Kennedy, in which Henry Miller agrees to establish his permanent company for the benefit of the American stage. It has had a week's tryout in Baltimore, and the word from there is that the play created a profound impression. The story deals with the contrasting purposes of a cold-blooded bishop and an ignorant but intensely human member of drain pipes. The forceful manner in which these contrasts are driven home give the play a powerful acting incentive and evidently the treatment is symbolic enough to make room for no end of discussion.

An unusual condition arose in San Francisco the other day when Mary Shaw was asked to abandon her proposed performances of "Mrs. Warren's Profession" in that city. It appears that the Van Ness theater, in which the Ibsen-Shavian star was booked, belongs to the Josuli society. Just before the announced presentations of the Shaw play the star was approached by a delegation of Josuits and asked to forego the San Francisco performances of the play. Miss Shaw promptly refused on the very ground that the objections to this play were not at all well taken.

This action was but another evidence of the snap judgment that is taken concerning the play. Ever since the first presentation in New York the impression has gone forth that it is an impossible drama, and without waiting to investigate it deeply enough to see what is its real purpose, people rush into the breach to prevent its performance. One need but through a serious performance of "Mrs. Warren's Profession" is the best possible cure that can be suggested for all this hysteria.

While the subject of the so-called immoral play is on cupid do not overlook that Newark, N. J., is still doing business at the old stand. The other day in Newark, a play called "A Millionaire's Revenge," was terribly foiled. In fact, it was squelched, which is worse than the rate that usually befalls the manent company for the benefit of the American stage. While the subject of the so-called immoral play is on cupids do not overlook that Newark, N. J., is still doing business at the old stand. The other day in Newark, a play called "A Millionaire's Revenge," was terribly foiled. In fact, it was squelched, which is worse than the rate that usually befalls the bad man in "melodrammer." This story deals with incidents in the Thaw tragedy. An old law of New Jersey was resurrected to fit the case, and the manager and actors of the show were arrested. The man who owns the theater is named Siegfried Leschzimer. He wanted to go to the bail of the actor and manager until he found that no further performances would be permitted in that city. The imparting of this information to Siegfried was conducive to the development of a cold storage temperature in the neighborhood of his extremities that came in contact with the ground first. He departed, leaving the manager and his histrionic satellite basking in the bowels of the bastile in Newark, N. J. The manager's name was Jacobs, and the actor man was known earlier in the program as Harold Vossburg. The latter's name is turbidom would suggest a handicap, and it might be observed in passing that the weight assigned to Harold was probably given. It's tough enough to play Harry Thaw in Newark, without being arrested for it.

Troubles multiply for Joe Weber. In one week he missed the services of Lulu Glaser from "The Merry Widow" burlesque through illness, and at the same time William Raymond Sill, who has published his publicity for the entire season packed his typewriter and moved. Miss Glaser is back in the cast and much better, but Sill has severed all connection with the Weber house, and will be seen in a new field of theatricals ere long.

• • •

Alexander Carr, the young Hebrew character comedian, who was the big individual hit of "Wine, Women and Song" when it had its long run in New York city, is now being planned by the Shuberts as the star in a play on the order of David Warfield's earliest achievements. Carr made his big hit in imitations of Warfield, and it is said that the Shuberts think if they can find such vehicles for him as Belasco has secured for Warfield in the past that there will be room for his leaver line of work. Carr is now playing all season in the Shubert show, "The Great White Way," and has been anything but a sensational hit in that affair.

• • •

Eddie Leonard, who was long with the Rackstader Minstrels and also in vaudeville, has been engaged for a prominent part in the forthcoming big minstrel show which Cohan and Harris are getting together to feature George Evans in.

• • •

Yank Newell, who was well known in the popular-priced theaters as a manager and producer, died last week at his home in New York city. He was about 60 years old and had been in failing health for a year or more. Newell was long identified with the show, "Muldoon's Picnic," and had played it in nearly every theater of the country where time was available.

• • •

Marie Dressler is booked for a hurry-up trip to America to say howdy before returning to England, where she will take up her stage work about Easter. This is the real opening of the London season, and Marie will be strictly in the swim when she returns to the London stage after her long illness.

• • •

The retirement of Nat Goodwin from the American stage is said to be only temporary. Goodwin will leave shortly for the West, where he is connected with a mining enterprise that is being extensively advertised. It is known that there is a new play in the hands of Liebler & Co., which is thought to be the thing Goodwin has long needed. He is, in fact, under contract to that firm to produce the play next season, so it is likely that after booming his mining deals he will resume his place on the stage in this new drama. It is a story of the palmy days on the Mississippi river when the professional gamblers ran up and down the big boats. As Goodwin has disked in the limelight often enough as a destroyer of markets in prominent gaming quarters, he ought to be able to play a few stacks of stage money away without turning a hair. If he ever had to play any of his own cash, it is said that the piece would be lifted up to the heights of tragedy.

An old landmark for theatrical people in New York is to give way to the march of progress. It is the passing of the old apartment building, the Barrington, which faced into Long Acre square, had was patronized by theatrical people for years. The old building, after May 1, is to be remodeled and made over into a modern office building.

• • •

Clyde Fitch sailed last week for Italy, and will spend the spring and early summer at his villa near Florence. Meanwhile two of his newest plays will be given a hearing in New York. The first of these, "Girls," is down for an early presentation, to be followed by "Toddles." Joseph Coyne, the star of this piece in London, is now booked for a return to America early next fall, and will likely be seen as the star in a comedy secured for this purpose by Manager Charles Frohman.

Boyd Putnam, who was here earlier in the season as Lillian Russell's leading man, has been ill in Washington, and is no longer with that star in "Wildfire." His place has been taken by Howard Gould, who is now supporting Miss Russell on her Southern tour. John O'Hara, who was with the late Dennis O'Sullivan in "Peggy Machree," has also been added to the company, taking the place of Owen Westford, who died some weeks back.

• • •

Bertha Kalich will go into the Garden theater next week and finish out the season there in "Marta of the Lowlands." It was decided to keep the star away from New York for the season, but her success in this play has been so pronounced that it was found convenient to book the play there after all, and so Madame Kalich, at the end of the season, will have started and closed her tour in the metropolis.

• • •

Henry W. Savage has booked a London season for his biggest George Ade production, "The College Widow." The company now being formed will open there April 15. Just what has induced Manager Savage to risk this American college play in London is not given out. In fact, the details concerning the season there are lacking. It is known that Thomas Meighan and Frances Ring will join the company shortly and play important parts in the London cast.

After all the excitement and noise it turns out that "The Prince of Pilsen" did not create the wonderful stir that it was expected to. In fact, the run has been an indifferent success, and soon a new revival, which is to the Parisian taste, will be put on at the Olympia, where the American musical comedy was given its try-out. The failure of the piece was not due to its lack of interest as much as to the inability of the Parisians to see the humor from their point of view. Strange as it may sound, the idea of a Cincinnati brewer doing anything funny was not excruciatingly funny to Paris. The average habitue of Olympia cares more for mushrooms on surprise than for violets and as whispers of sea shells Paris likes something more substantial than shells, so all told our big musical piece was all right except that it would not do.

Willard Coxey, who for the last five years has been the publicity pusher for the Barnum & Bailey circus has announced his intention to forget the sawdust and foreswear the menagerie stories for all times. Having filled enough patent insides of country papers to do for a lifetime, and promoted enough fabrications not wholly woven in fact for the entertainment of people who like to read about that American institution, the circus, Mr. Coxey says he has had his share of honors and now wishes to pass. He resigned last week from the show and will take a long vacation trip through Europe. Upon his return he will devote his attention to the theater. Coxey is known in every town of any size in the country for his long association with the big tent shows, and if he takes up theatrical work he will find an open field in which he is at least very well known.

George Ade's efforts at musical comedy have all been so successful that Cohan & Harris are said to be contemplating the making of a musical show out of his former play, "Artie." This story, based on some of the Hoosier humorist's early stories, was not a howling success earlier in the season, but the new managers think they can take it over into the musical field and establish it. Lawrence Wheat, who played the title role, is now appearing in a Cohan & Harris show, and will, it is said, be transferred to the old part when it is seen in its new guise.

A pretty musical play for children was produced in Boston last week with marked success. It is called "The Wonder Lander Man," and characters from the late Eugene Fields poems are the types in this new effort. The piece was staged under the guidance of Mrs. Field, who expressed much pleasure with the undertaking, and who thinks it will be a big go.

Nellie O'Neill Sterry, known by her first name on the stage, was the victim of a quick shift in court action the other day. Her husband, Charles Sterry, is best known to vaudeville as the dancer and comedian, Charley Guyer. Their marital troubles have often caused public comment. The other day the soubrette had Guyer foiled to court to answer in proceedings instituted by her and asking for an annulment of their marriage. Guyer's attorneys discovered in the action that Miss O'Neill was without a valid claim in that she had obtained the bonds of her divorce from Billy Van by marrying in New York state without the consent of the court. On this ground they asked an annulment for Guyer, and it is likely that he will be sustained in his action. Guyer is now working in vaudeville with Lillian Crisp, doing the act that is an outgrowth of the specialty Guyer and added to the company, taking the place of Owen Westford, who died some weeks back.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell's tour in her old repertoire does not seem to have started off well. At the outset, in Cumberland, Md., she disappointed the opening house and substituted her understudy. This caused a row, and the other evening there was canceled because of further time was canceled because of the temporary loss of her voice. This, with the failure of "Electra," and the row she had with the newspaper men in New York, has all served to make the present visit of the English player anything but a bed of roses and a smooth success.

Edward Johnson, the tenor who has made such a hit in "A Waltz Dream" since the bringing out of the Strauss operetta in this country, has returned to the cast of that company for the remainder of the season. He was out remainder of the season owing to contracts for concert work that were made before he was engaged for the role he now occupies.

Rose Stahl had a gay time of it in Trenton, N. J., one day last week, as she played there for the first time in her career as a star. The town is known as the home of the successful portrayer of "The Chorus Lady," and paid homage to their talented daughter when she visited them in that big success.

Manager Savage has disposed of the rights to play "Der Lustige Witwe" in German in New York city to a number of managers who were stepped by him earlier in the season when they attempted to pirate the piece. The managers now contribute a goodly portion of the receipts to the American impresario and thus have the right to continue their performances.

The marriage of Samuel H. Harris to Miss Alice Merrill, a sister of Mrs. George M. Cohan, further cements the relationship that exists between the manager and his prolific and versatile protege. Mr. Harris was quietly married at Long Branch with George M. Cohan and the bride's sister being parties to the ceremony. Both the Merrill girls prior to their marriage played small parts in the Cohan & Harris productions.

Louis James has acquired the rights to the production of "Peer Gynt," the last big thing undertaken by the late Richard Mansfield. It is his intention to make a tour in the Ibsen story next season.

and expressed his doubts to friends that the piece had staying qualities, but deferred to the judgment of his manager. The latter had gone to great lengths in the way of expense to mount it in a manner that should appeal to the eye, but its weak spots were laid bare at the first performance.

Farnum has resumed his hunt for a suitable play, and it may have been his haste in this connection which led to his arrest Tuesday morning on upper Broadway for exceeding the speed limits in his automobile. Anyway the actor was arrested by a policeman, and had to leave his $500 watch for collateral to appear in court.

Margaret Anglin has modified her plans, and is again in the cast of "The Great Divide" with Henry Miller, after a short season in "The Awakening of Helen Ritchie." Which does not mean that her new play is a failure. On the contrary, all reports are to the effect that Miss Anglin has again demonstrated her splendid judgment about plays, and scored a decided triumph in the new part. But "The Awakening of Helen Ritchie" was brought out this season merely to comply with the contract she had with the author, compelling her to produce it at this time or forfeit her rights. Her intention was to give it a two weeks' try-out, and then depart for Australia for her twenty weeks' tour. This arrangement has been revised, and instead of going to Australia at this time, as originally planned, her departure has been postponed until May.

In the meantime Edith Wynne Matthison, who temporarily took her place with Mr. Miller, is bringing out her new play, "The Servant in the House," in Washington, and Miss Anglin has resumed her tour with Mr. Miller on his way to San Francisco, where the actress will arrive in time to take the steamer for Australia.

Miss Bertha Galland is said to have a play for next season which bids fair to rival "The Thief" in dramatic power and sustained interest, in which she will be starred by a prominent manager. In the meantime a short spring tour is planned for her through Pennsylvania and Ohio, where she is particularly popular, in a comedy of manners, in which a celebrated French star, now dead, scored one of her greatest triumphs.

At the Lyric theater they are busy rehearsing and getting ready for the early production of Paul Kester's play of "Don Quixote," in which E. H. Sothern is to create the role of the sorrowful Knight of La Mancha, which Heinrich Heine declared, with Falstaff, to be the most humorous figure in all literature. These preparations portend an extension of Sothern's time considerably beyond what was originally allotted to him in New York by the Shuberts. Altogether, this has been the most successful engagement the actor has ever played here since his earliest successes in the comedies of Belasco and De Mille. And it has been due chiefly to his charming performance of Lord Dundreary. In which he copies his father so fetchingly. Even the unfavorable opinion expressed of "The Fool Hath Said" by the papers last Tuesday morning was unable to check the impetus of his success, for the house was crowded Tuesday night at the second performance of the play, and the audience was visibly pleased in spite of a bad performance of this Russian drama. For Sothern lacked the warmth and sympathy which the role of Rodion, the student, requires, and his support was miserable, except that given him by Adolph Lestina as Bezak, the investigating magistrate. This actor, who plays Asa Trenchard, Jefferson's old part in "Lord Dundreary," came strongly to the fore in the role of the Russian Sherlock Holmes, and, in the re-enactment of the murder of Gromoff with Rodion, made far toward developing the strong climax of the fourth act. It is a tribute to Sothern's good sense and artistic purposes to yield such prominence to a member of the cast, and it round out the whole performance.

The attraction to follow Madame Kosmarzhevsky at Daly's will be Clyde Fitch's comedy of "Girls," which opened its season at the Belasco theater, Washington, last Monday night, and has been highly praised by the critics of the national capital. It is a humorously handled argument of the eternal question—woman, and deals with four girls who locate in New York with a solemn agreement to live independently of man.

The Bijou, since the withdrawal of "The Rector's Garden," has been closed. It will be reopened with a production of Ibsen's "Love's Comedy," a satire in rhymed verse, in which Grace Elliston will appear. One of the parts was offered to Henry E. Dixey, but the comedian received extraordinary inducements to resume his vaudeville engagements in a new sketch in which he will have the support of Miss Nordstrom, and declined a liberal offer.

A controversy has been precipitated over the play which is again bringing to the front Hilda Englund, the Scandinavian actress, who appeared in the original cast of "Peer Gynt" in Norway, and whose incisive criticism of the late Richard Mansfield during his engagement in Ibsen's play here, excited considerable attention. Miss Englund declares that she originated the idea of producing Ibsen's comedy, and was given the part which Miss Elliston is to play, and even rehearsed it for some time. She charges that Miss Elliston was smuggled into the theater during the rehearsals by the management in order to copy her business, and when the Scandinavian actress had almost completed the directing of the play she was unceremoniously dismissed and her part given to Miss Elliston.

Frank Keenan, who is one of the most intellectual actors we have, and whose work in "The Warrens of Virginia" William Winter compares to the best work of some of the old-timers of the American stage recently started an interesting discussion by an informal talk before the Playgoers' association at the Hotel Astor, in declaring that the American people are incapable of enjoying tragic plays because they are not really a happy people. Their merriment, he said, is on the surface and is not the spontaneous expression of a really contented and happy state of heart. His remarks created much discussion and were taken up editorially by some of the papers in an attempt to refute his argument.

But Keenan sticks to his guns and has evidently given the play-loving public a new thought for digestion. He is to be invited by Columbia university to elaborate his ideas in a thesis, which may earn him a degree.

The critics were again at sixes and sevens over Mr. Sothern's performance of Rodion, this week; and the management, evidently with a view to illustrating a paradox, prints in its advertisements of Sothern's engagement, side by side, the opinions of William Winter and Alan Dale. Winter says: "Mr. Sothern's presentment of Rodion illustrates his ability and heightens his reputation as an actor." In contrast to this, read what Alan Dale said, and mark the intellectual tone of his view: "Rodion made up like a Roquefort cheese." Meanwhile the management, after printing a schedule of the actual curtain calls after each act, ranging from two to ten, announces extra matinees and another extension of Sothern's engagement.

Mary Hall, who has been resting in her home since her tour in "The Girl of the Golden West" was closed, has been engaged for the leading parts of the new stock company that is to be installed in the Davidson theater in Milwaukee, commencing the first of next month. The Davidson is the first class theater of Milwaukee and the experiment of transferring the stock business to that playhouse will be watched with a good deal of interest. Miss Hall had planned for a long vacation, but the offering from Milwaukee for a special engagement was so flattering that she was compelled to accept it. Miss Hall will open in Maxine Elliot's old part in "Her Own Way," and will follow in a list of star parts that were specially selected for the engagement there.

Renold Wolf says that following "The Ranger" and "The Rector's Garden" Dustin Farnum is now singing that sad refrain:

"Carry me back to the old Virginia(n)."

Maxine Elliot has scored well enough with her newest play, "Myself Bettina," to hold it over for next season. She will play it en tour in the country after her return from England late next fall.

• • •

Robert Fisher, who has been playing with "The Man of the Hour," closes his engagement with that company this month and will hurry East to join the company. Manager Brady is rehearsing for "Way Down East," and which is to play the pastoral drama in London. Fisher will have his old part of Squire Bartlett in the London production.

• • •

Kathryn Pearl, who played earlier in the season with "The Rollickers," announces that she has been divorced from Eddie Redway, the comedian, and thus ends another of those sudden romances of stagedom. Not long ago Redway was in the "Chaperones" and Miss Pearl was in the "Chaperones" and Miss Pearl was a chorus girl in the same company. They were joking in a restaurant one evening when somebody suggested that they get married. Acting upon that suggestion they became man and wife and after a short while of happiness went their separate ways, and last month Mr. Redway ended it by securing an out-and-out divorce.

• • •

The new comedy, "Going Some," which was written in conjunction by Paul Armstrong and Rex Beach, will be produced in New England this spring by Liebler & Co. George Marion will stage the play. It is said he will also have an important part in the company that includes James E. Sullivan, Howard Estabrooke, Agnes Palmer and Carrie Reynolds.

William Barnum has been booked to succeed Malcolm Williams as "Doing Time on the Queen's Highway," now being played in New York by Mabel Taliaferro and company.

Word comes from Chicago that Kohl and Castle are contemplating a big change in the policy of two of their vaudeville houses there. It is reported that in the near future they will put in picture shows in both the Olympic and the Haymarket, and that the real vaudeville activity will be centered upon their handsome new house, the Majestic. The craze for the moving pictures, with illustrated songs, is spreading all over the country, and the small cost is something in this connection that immediately appeals to the manager. The Olympic and Haymarket have long been prominent vaudeville houses in Chicago, and to take them off the circuit would mean a reduction of the vaudeville demand in that field.

Frank Worthing, who rejoined Grace George in California a few weeks back after a long siege of pneumonia, was not permitted to remain at his post very long. Mr. Worthing soon succumbed and left last week for Phoenix, Ariz., where he was advised to go and remain for an indefinite period on account of the condition of his lungs.

• • •

An action was started in New York last week to determine the proprietors of the vaudeville act, "The Star Bout." Taylor Granville and his wife, Laura Pierpont, the well-known Cincinnati actress, have been made parties to the action. It appears that financial assistance was loaned them in the early part of the season to bring the piece to the stage, but that there is some question as to the rights of the men who put up the financial backing.

• • •

It is said to offset the demand of American vaudeville houses for some of their star acts the London Music hall men have decided to make way for American talent in a broader sense than ever before. They are now booking some big American specialties with a view of filling in the gaps caused by the desertion of many of their old favorites. This exchange should work to the advantage of both sides, for it will mean new faces and new specialties in quarters where they have not been seen before.

• • •

Thomas Ross opened his season in Washington this week in "The Traveling Salesman." The interest chiefly centering in this new effort is due to it having been written by James Forbes, whose "The Chorus Lady" was such a jolly surprise that much is expected of his second venture as a dramatist. Mr. Ross is a splendid young actor, and if given the opportunity should prove as big an individual hit as Rose Stahl did in the first Forbes play.

Another new play which is down for an early metropolitan hearing is "The Servant in the House." This is the drama by C. Rann Kennedy, in which Henry Miller scores to establish his permanency on the stage for the benefit of the American stage. It has had a week's tryout in Baltimore, and the word from there is that the play created a profound impression. The story deals with the contrasting purposes of a cold-blooded bishop and an ignorant but intensely human mender of drain pipes. The forceful manner in which these contrasts are driven home give the play a powerful acting incentive and evidently the treatment is symbolic enough to make room for no end of discussion.

As Goodwin has basked in the limelight often enough as a distributor of markers in prominent gaming quarters, he ought to be able to play a few stacks of stage money away without turning a hair. If he ever had to play any of his own cash, it is said that the piece would be lifted up to the heights of tragedy.

An old landmark for theatrical people in New York is to give way to the march of progress. It is the passing of the old apartment building, the Barrington, which faced into Long Acre square, and was patronized by theatrical people for years. The old building, after May 1, is to be remodeled and made over into a modern office building.

Clyde Fitch sailed last week for Italy, and will spend the spring and early summer at his villa near Florence. Meanwhile two of his newest plays will be given a hearing in New York. The first of these, "Girls," is down for an early presentation, to be followed by "Toddles." Joseph Coyne, the star of this piece in London, is now booked for a return to America early next fall, and will likely be seen as the star in a comedy secured for this purpose by Manager Charles Frohman.

Boyd Putnam, who was here earlier in the season as Lillian Russell's leading man, has been ill in Washington, and is no longer with that star in "Wildfire." His place has been taken by Howard Gould, who is now supporting Miss Russell on her Southern tour. John O'Hara, who was with the late Dennis O'Sullivan in "Peggy MacIvee," has also been added to the company, taking the place of Owen Westford, who died some weeks back.

Bertha Kalich will go into the Garden theater next week and finish out the season there in "Marta of the Lowlands." It was decided to keep the star away from New York for the season, but her success in this play has been so pronounced that it was found convenient to book the play there after all, and so Madame Kalich, at the end of the season, will have started and closed her tour in the metropolis.

Henry W. Savage has booked a London season for his biggest George Ade production, "The College Widow." The company now being formed will open there April 15. Just what has induced Manager Savage to risk this American college play in London is not given out. In fact, the details concerning the season there are lacking. It is known that Thomas Meighan and Frances Ring will join the company shortly and play important parts in the London cast.

After all the excitement and noise it turns out that "The Prince of Pilsen" did not create the wonderful stir that it was expected to. In fact, the run has been an indifferent success, and soon a new revival, which is to the Parisian taste, will be put on at the Olympia, where the American musical comedy was given its try-out. The failure of the piece was not due to its lack of interest as much as to the inability of the Parisians to see the humor from their point of view. Strange as it may sound, the idea of a Cincinnati brewer doing anything funny was not excruciatingly funny to Paris. The average habitue of Olympia cares more for mushrooms en surprise than for violets and as whispers of sea shells Paris likes something more substantial than shells, so all told our big musical piece was all right except that it would not do.

Nellie O'Neill Sterry, known by her first name on the stage, was the victim of a quick shift in court action the other day. Her husband, Charles Sterry, is best known to vaudeville as the dancer and comedian, Charley Guyer. Their marital troubles have often caused public comment. The other day the sonbrette had Guyer haled to court to answer in proceedings instituted by her and asking for an annulment of their marriage. Guyer's attorneys discovered in the action that Miss O'Neill was without a valid claim in that she had violated the terms of her divorce from Billy Van by marrying in New York state without the consent of the court. On this ground they asked an annulment for Guyer, and it is likely that he will be sustained and in this event Guyer is now working in vaudeville with Lillian Crispi, doing the act that is an outgrowth of the specialty Guyer and O'Neill originally put into "Babes in Toyland."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MINNESOTA

THEY HAVE CLOSE CALL

Mother and Son Barely Escape Perishing With Their Home

Which Catches at Night and is Gutted by Flames.

Crookston, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Peter Huff and her son, Louis, 15 years of age, had a narrow escape from cremation last night in a fire which completely gutted their residence on Robert street. They were in the house alone, Mr. Huff being at Grand Forks, and Louis was awakened by the smell of smoke. He got up and opened the door into the hall on the second floor and was nearly suffocated by the dense smoke. He rushed to his mother's room across the hall and aroused her. Scantily clad, they groped their way downstairs, but were forced to retreat upstairs again by the flames. Taking a blanket apiece, they covered their heads and again started downstairs, and when near the bottom, dashed through the door and to the front entrance, which was unlocked, and staggered into the street almost completely overcome.

They turned in an alarm and, though the firemen had but two blocks to come, the entire house was enveloped in flames when they reached the scene. Three lines of hose were laid, but before the flames were checked the house was completely gutted.

Chief Norris says the fire is one of the most peculiar he ever saw, as every portion of the house, upstairs and down, seems to be burned about the same. All the furniture was burned up in every room in the house, and there were four rooms downstairs and four upstairs.

George F. Carpenter owned the house and carried $1,200 insurance. His loss was about $2,500. The loss on the furniture was about $1,500 with $2,000 insurance. About half of the furniture, which had been used in a large flat just previously, was stored in a woodshed in the rear, and this was not harmed.

WISCONSIN

PLEAD STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

Railroads Raise Point That May Count Against The Shippers.

Oshkosh, Wis., March 21.—The date on which the Hepburn bill went into effect may make a difference of something like $500 to Oshkosh business men. The dispute will be determined by the interstate commerce commission, being one of the principal issues raised in the hearing before Special Examiner George W. Brown.

The total amount of claims filed in the three actions combined in one is said to be about $2,000. Of this amount less than 25 per cent is disputed.

The Hepburn act was passed June 29, 1906, and provided that it should go into effect immediately after passage, publication and approval. That provision was subsequently amended by a joint resolution of congress extending the time it should go into effect sixty days. Therefore, it was maintained, it did not become effective in any of its provisions until Aug. 28, 1906.

The bill provided that no claim more than two years old should be filed on causes of action accruing under the provisions of the bill. But, it was stated this would not apply to claims prior to the passage of the bill, which might be presented within one year. The claims made by the Oshkosh parties were filed in August, 1907. It is maintained that these claims were filed within one year from the time the bill became effective under the postponing joint resolution. The defendants hold that the claims should be filed within one year from the date of the actual passage of the act in June, 1908.

HOODLUMS NUMEROUS

Young Toughs Make Life Miserable for West Duluth People.

Pelt Members of Sleighing Party With Rotten Eggs.

Young hoodlums are making life a burden to a great many people in West Duluth and the West end.

They are not of the vicious type of the famous "Apaches" of Paris, but their pranks are becoming more and more unbearable, and many complaints have been made to the police during the last few weeks.

Last Wednesday night Principal House of the Irving school gave a sleighride to four sleigh loads of the pupils of the school as a reward of merit to the most successful students. The young toughs waylaid the party and pelted the members with rotten eggs.

On another occasion there was a meeting of a young people's society at St. Luke's church. One of the young toughs turned out the lights, and gave the alarm of fire. A stampede in the dark was narrowly averted.

These are but a sample of the acts committed by the young men in question.

The majority of them seem to have no regular employment and they spend their time loafing about the street corners and thinking up schemes to make life miserable for peaceful citizens.

The police secured the names of seven of the boys who took part in the affair at St. Luke's church and arrests may follow.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

Pall of Mystery Over Feast of the Dynamiters.

Tonight's the night.

Midst the smoke of powder and the bursting of bombs, the Dynamite club, organization of good-fellowship, will celebrate its annual banquet at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms.

In the absence of the chef, two proficient members have concocted the potions that will load the festive boards.

The chief Dynamiter has returned and will preside at the dinner. Another Dynamiter of note is expected from the coast.

Beyond this nothing is known, and a deep pall of mystery shrouds the affair.

DISCUSS INDIANS.

Members of Young People's Society Hold Interesting Debate.

"A Night With the Chippewa and Sioux Indians," was the subject for discussion last night at the monthly meeting of the Literary society of the Asbury M. E. Church Epworth league. The meeting was very well attended, and several interesting papers were read on the subject, among which were those of Mrs. Julia Meldahl, Martin Meldahl, Miss Eliza Remfrew, Andrew Meldahl and Miss Eva McLyman.

The discussion of the evening centered about the papers read by Andrew Meldahl and Martin Meldahl.

nAdrew Meldahl's paper dealt with the question as to whether the Indians had been defrauded by the United States government. It was decided, after a heated discussion, that they had not been.

"Is the Reservation Plan the Best For the Indians?" was the subject of Martin Meidahl's paper. It was generally conceded the placing of the Indians on reservations was not the best thing for the race, as it did not tend to further their civilization.

A very dainty lunch was served after the evening's program by the hostess, Mrs. G. W. Smith and Miss Elizabeth Shaw.

YOUNG SPARTAN

Does Not Flinch When His Leg is Broken.

"I guess I can stand it, if grandma doesn't cry," was the Spartan-like statement of 3-year-old Donald Moseman, this morning, after he was carried to the home of his mother, Mrs. Martha M. Moseman, 615 North Fifty-ninth avenue west, with his right leg broken in two places.

The little fellow had been sliding down Forty-seventh avenue west, and at the junction with Fifty-fourth, his sled swerved into a log, crushing his leg and breaking it in two places. He was taken home, given medical attendance and is doing well.

The accident recalls the death of the boy's father last year. Just a year ago today, Elmer E. Moseman was crushed by the fly-wheel of a machine, which he was loading on a car. He died March 30, of his injuries.

FREIGHTERS LAUNCHED

Henry Berwind and W. H. Truesdale in the Water.

Detroit, Mich., March 21.—The 11,000-ton freighter Harry A. Berwin, built at the Ecor yards of the Great Lakes Engine & Manufacturing company for G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, was successfully launched today. Miss Ruth Hartwell of Chicago christened the steamer. A feature unusual in lake shipbuilding was performed when, immediately to lowing the launching, the steamer was towed to the docks and the boilers dropped into the hull. In thirty minutes after the launch they were in place.

Loraln, Ohio, March 21.—The new steel steamer W. H. Truesdale, built for the Empire Steamship company, was launched at the yards of the American Shipbuilding company today. The vessel was christened by Miss Jessie Steel of Buffalo, N. Y. Among those who witnessed the launching was W. H. Truesdale, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railway company, in whose honor the vessel was named, and a party of his friends from the East.

The new boat is 452 feet long, 52 feet beam and 28 feet deep. She will enter the coal and ore carrying trade.

CRUELTY IN OHIO PRISON

Senator Lamb Discovers a Man Hanging by His Wrists.

Columbus, Ohio, March 21.—Senator Lamb of Toledo today made the statement that, while visiting the Ohio penitentiary in company with some Toledo woman, he saw a prisoner hanging by his wrists. The man's head was hanging down on his shoulders, according to Senator Lamb, and his feet were just touching the floor.

"I was astounded," continued the senator, "and soon saw that the attendants were trying to keep me away from this man. I insisted on seeing him, and the man said to me, 'I have been hanging here since Thursday and they let me down only to eat bread and water."

"The guard," said Mr. Lamb, "told the man to shut up, but I got this much out of him anyway."

Senator Lamb admitted that he did not ascertain the identity of the man nor the cause of his punishment, but he will report the case to the penitentiary probing committee.

COURT ANNULS

Famous Fitzgerald Concession to Americans in Venezuela.

Caracas, March 18, via Willemstad, Island of Curacao, March 21.—The high federal court of Venezuela yesterday handed down a decision from which there is no appeal, against the Manoa company and the Orinoco company, limited, American concerns, annulling the famous Fitzgerald concession under which the companies claimed rights in Venezuela. The claims of these companies constitute one of the matters which are now being discussed diplomatically between Washington and President Castro. Rudolph Dolge, representing the Orinoco company, the present owners of the Fitzgerald concession, has filed a protest with the American legation here against this decision.

Commercial Club Begins Movement That Concerns Individuals.

Superintendent Will be Employed to Look After Work.

An open letter to the people of St. Louis county from the committee of the Duluth Commercial club on agricultural development.

"Fellow citizens:

"In appointing a committee on agricultural development and authorizing that committee to employ a man in the capacity of superintendent who shall give his entire time and energy to the work, the Commercial club of Duluth has simply taken the initiative step in a movement looking toward the permanent prosperity of the people of St. Louis county. The intelligent, systematic and scientific development of the agricultural resources of St. Louis county, is a proposition of such vast proportions, that it cannot be accomplished by any one locality or set of men. There must be a community of interest and co-operative effort. It is a proposition of vast importance to every line of industry in Northeast Minnesota.

"It is a movement that concerns the welfare of every individual in St. Louis county, from the infant whose little life depends upon a daily ration of pure milk, to the man of mature years, who cannot depart that life in peace until he sees his children and children's children assured of the necessities and comforts of life.

"It is also of vital interest to the man, who from necessity stands in the bread line, with no assets except the labor of his hands, to the man who has accumulated a surplus and seeks safety in his investments, and to every other citizen, between these two extremes, who labors with hands or brains. It is because of this general interest and the universal benefits that would follow the permanent and progressive development of our agricultural resources, that we now invite and urge the hearty co-operation of every newspaper, every commercial club, every business organization, every municipality, every farmers' club, the St. Louis County Fair association, and every enterprising citizen of St. Louis county in carrying forward this movement to a successful issue.

"It is proposed as the first step in this effort, to make a complete collection of the native and cultivated products of our soil, which will fully show present results and future possibilities, and that this collection be sent as a St. Louis County agricultural exhibit to the Minnesota state fair, along with a supplementary exhibit, showing in graphic form by stereopticon views and charts, the great industries that have developed about the Head of the Lakes, and the markets these industries afford for garden and dairy products.

"It is further intended to place these exhibits also at the St. Louis county fair in Hibbing, and in the City of Duluth, to better inform our people in regard to our own resources and to show what can be accomplished by applying intelligent and business methods to the production and marketing of food products within this county.

"We invite your help in placing A. S. Hostetter, superintendent, in charge of this work, in touch with the farmers, dairymen and gardeners in every community, in order that he may get the best results to secure products not heretofore grown in the county and to increase the quantity and improve the quality of those already produced. Mr. Hostetter will distribute the best seeds obtainable of grains and vegetables among those who will give them special care and cultivation, and furnish samples for exhibition. These seeds will be supplied in sufficient quantity for the grower to secure the necessary samples for exhibition, and have enough more of the product for his own use to plant another crop.

"It is also the intention to study the conditions and gather statistics in regard to dairying for the purpose of establishing creameries, skimming stations and pasteurizing plants; to assist in organizing farmers' clubs and to hold farmers' institute meetings from time to time for comparison and discussion of methods and the application of scientific principles to farm and dairy practice, to the end that the farmer may realize better returns on their investments of money and labor, and at the same time the consumer may secure at home a superior product at a more reasonable price than is afforded by an outside market.

RT. REV. JAMES McGOLRICK,
Vice Chairman, Agricultural Committee."

JOHNSON IS LAUDED

Speaker at Democratic Banquet Urges Governor for President.

Feeling in His Favor Crops Out at Social Gathering.

Some hint of the strong feeling in favor of Governor Johnson's securing the indorsement of Minnnesota Democrats for the Democratic nomination for president was given last evening.

In spite of the fact that the affair was planned merely as a social gathering in honor of J. H. Shulenberg, the strong sentiment favoring Governor Johnson's endorsement made itself evident.

All but two of the speakers avoided the question, as several strong Bryan leaders were present. Dr. C. A. Oredson, however, made a speech, in which he warmly lauded Governor Johnson, and advocated his endorsement by the state delegates. Dr. Oredson's remarks apparently touched Attorney Alfred Jaques on a tender spot, and he replied. Mr. Jaques severely censured several of the large Eastern papers which are opposing Bryan, and urged the importance of sending delegates instructed to vote for the Nebraskan.

Dr. Oredson's Speech.

Dr. Oredson spoke in part as follows:

"The subject upon which we shall dwell for a few moments will be the tariff. W. J. Bryan has said it is the paramount issue. Our worthy governor, J. A. Johnson, has said it is an issue.

"Tariff is a charge allowed for the privilege of introducing goods manufactured in one country into another. Such charges should be regulated by the wants, needs and interest of a country. The introduction of tariff in this country began immediately after the close of the Revolutionary war. The right and power of the thirteen original states to levy the tariff was then conceded. The right, however, soon came in conflict with the central government and as result we find the Constitution, 1789, took the power away from the states and vested it with the central government, who has and maintains that power to this very day. In the same year, 1789, we find a bill was introduced in congress to levy a special tariff on imported goods to encourage home industries. The bill was adopted, and as we would say, it was a wise measure at that time, because there were no manufacturing concerns who were endeavoring to make manufacturing a success in this country. We know now if the foreign manufacturers' greed had been anywhere near equal to the present American manufacturers at present, they soon would have swallowed them up. What happened under the protection of the government? These manufacturers soon grew into gigantic proportions. It should then have been the duty of our lawmakers and legislature to cut down the protection given to them in their infancy. Do we find this was done? No. Instead, we find almost a steady increase in tariff in the years 1816, 1824, 1828, and later the Dingley bill, the highest protective tariff in the world.

"Yes, as W. J. Bryan says, it is 'Glorious larceny.' We know that American cotton cloth can successfully compete with Manchester made goods in China, Japan and Central Africa. Can it then not more successfully compete against Manchester made goods in the United States itself?

"One word more as to the presidency. I have the utmost respect and esteem for W. J. Bryan as an orator, and as a man he stands supreme and personally he is the most popular man in our political realm, but the people have had it drilled into them ever since 1896 by Republican press and Republican orators that he is an unsafe and unsound man for president. Whether this be true or not it will certainly have its effect upon his election. On the contrary, we have a man in our own state who has practically switched this state from the Republican rank and put it in line with Democratic states. He is the only man who can carry Minnesota for Democracy. As a man and as an orator he stands above reproach. Other states, yes, the North, the East, the West and South are all looking upon him as the Moses who will lead Democracy through the wilderness of doubt into the state of power. We would indeed be ungrateful if we did not support the man, our worthy Governor John A. Johnson."

The following officers were elected by the club for the present year: President, Louis Levine; vice president, Henry Moran; secretary, J. A. Tucker; treasurer, William Curtis; financial secretary, Charles Hoar.

Following the election of officers, ex-Mayor M. B. Cullum presented Mr. Schulenberg with a handsome Masonic gold charm, and President Louis Levine with a gold stickpin. The gifts were from the members of the club in appreciation of the good work done by the officers.

Both men responded briefly, thanking the members for the evidence of their friendship. Mr. Schulenberg will leave the city shortly for the West.

The speakers of the evening were: Dr. O. A. Oredson, Alfred Jaques, W. B. Getchell, Bert Pesler, Samuel F. Kelley, August Hagberg, William Bernard and Andrew Nelson. M. H. McMahon acted as toastmaster, and about seventy-five guests were present.

RAILROAD NEWS

SAFETY IS ADVOCATED

Maintenance of Way Association Wants Many Rail Reforms.

High Officials of Western Union in the City.

F. M. Hamilton, connected with the engineering department of the Pennsylvania road, is in the city today, on his way to Winnipeg. He has been attending the convention of the American Railway Engineering and Maintenance of Way association, which has been in session at Chicago this week.

"A notable campaign has been started by the association in the interest of safer and more intelligent operation of railroads," said Mr. Hamilton this morning. "During all the sessions of the convention, safety in operation has been the keynote and it also was made the guiding principle of all the reports made.

"Never before in the history of any railroad association have so many radical and important changes been recommended in the practices of operation, of signaling, of construction and of maintenance now governing railroads. Upon the floor of the convention the fact was recognized that the record which has been made by American railroads during the past few years is far from an enviable one. Engineers and operating men, in discussing the problems, were free to admit that the American public has a right to a better assurance of safety when they ride on railroad trains, and that the record of killed and injured, as well as the record of property loss, is deplorable and ought to be materially diminished.

"It is fully recognized that many of the changes recommended cannot be brought about for years, and will cost large sums of money. For example, the association has made a stand for complete uniformity in signaling on all railroads. To bring this about would cost millions of dollars, and yet the arguments advanced in favor of the move are apparently unwarrantable. It was even stated that owing to the fact that the joint use of tracks is becoming more general, train crews are frequently obliged to operate for considerable distances over roads with the signal system of which they are not familiar. Uniformity would make it possible for an operating man to work on any railroad without being compelled to work a new system; would make possible the quicker and more accurate interpretation of signals and would inspire confidence by having the united indorsement of all roads."

OFFICIALS HERE.

Western Union Men Making a Periodical Trip of Inspection.

T. P. Cook of Chicago, general superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph company; L. McKusic of Chicago, assistant general superintendent; D. R. Davies, superintendent of construction, and M. Cook and J. Swan, minor officials of the company, are in the city today. The party is accompanied by H. C. Hope, superintendent of telegraph for the Omaha road. The men came to Duluth on the private car of Mr. Cook, which was attached to the Great Northern train arriving here shortly after 10 o'clock last evening.

"There is nothing of news value connected with our visit to Duluth," said Mr. Cook this morning. "We are merely on a periodical tour of inspection, which will cover all of the Middle West.

"We find everything in a very satisfactory condition along the line. Since the strike last fall, things have been running smoothly, and from all indications will continue so to run. There are few idle telegraphers in the country just now, for the new federal law shortening hours of employment on the railroads opened up many new positions, because the law called for an increase in the number of men employed."

RESUME WORK.

Northern Pacific Plans on Reconstruction Work Near Wadena.

St. Paul, Minn., March 21.—Preparations are being made by the Northern Pacific to resume the extensive reconstruction work which it is carrying on between Wadena and Glyndon, Minn. The work, which was begun two years ago this spring consists of regrading and rebuilding practically the entire track for this distance with the object of doing away with a number of steep grades. It has been necessary to carry on this construction work while the line was constantly in use, laying the new track at the side of the old.

In some places deep cuts have been filled by the use of trestle and embankments twenty feet in height and a large number of men have been employed on the construction crews. The work has progressed so far that only the finishing touches remain to be put on the stretch between Wadena and Lake Park, and it is believed the section of track between Lake Park and Glyndon will be completed before next winter.

As a result of the work, all the grades, both east and westbound, between Wadena and Lake Park have been reduced to 3 per cent.

On the Lake Park-Glyndon stretch the eastbound grade has been decreased from 9 per cent to 3 per cent, and the westbound grade, which was 75 per cent, has been entirely eliminated.

By doing away with these grades the Northern Pacific will have considerably increased the efficiency of its line and made possible the hauling of heavier freight trains and the making of better time. It will thus be better able to handle the heavy business on its main line.

GREAT WATER POWERS

Milwaukee, Wis., March 21.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Marinette, Wis., says: "A greater water power consolidation, which will, it is believed, make Marinette and Menominee one of the greatest manufacturing centers in the Northwest, has practically been consummated. The owners of power on the Menominee and Peshtigo rivers have combined and expect to organize a holding company to take over all the power.

United Stles Senator Isaac Stephenson, Perley Lowe, the wealthy Chicago lumberman, Francis A. Brown, A. F. Hancock, P. A. Martineau and Elmer Grimmer of this city and F. H. Johnson of Oshkosh and other capitalists of that city, are reorganizing. The powers in the combine are the Chapple rapids and Pembine falls on the Menominee and Potato rapids and Caldron falls, Johnson falls and High falls on the Peshtigo river, making a total of 25,000 horsepower in all.

The Chapple Falls power is about four miles from this city and will be improved this year. Over $400,000 will be expended in developing. Power will be conveyed to Green Bay and other cities as well as Marinette. All of the power named is within a radius of forty miles from Marinette.

IS CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER TONS OF EARTH.

Calumet, Mich, March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Steve Bailey of Mohawk was killed and Charles Chunach of the same place was badly injured by a cave in on the Keeweenaw Central right-of-way yesterday. The accident happened near Allouez. Bailey and Chunach being engaged with eight other men in digging through a hill, when the sides caved in burying Bailey and injurying Chunach. About a thousand tons of frozen earth and ice swept down upon Bailey and he was crushed to death. Bailey leaves a wife and four children. The coroner's jury found no one to blame.

OLYMPIC FUND GROWS.

New York, March 21.—Clarence H. Mackay subscribed $250 yesterday to the fund to send an American team to the Olympic games in England next summer.

The fund is growing slowly but surely, as the American Olympic committee is leaving no stone unturned to raise the required amount of money.

TO PACIFY REPORTERS

Berlin, March 21.—Chancellor Von Buelow in view of his approaching speech in the reichstag on the foreign affairs of the empire, is striving to find a way to effect a settlement of the difficulty between the newspaper reporters and parliament.

Two days ago, the leader of the Center party, Herr Groeber, called the newspapermen "swine" in open meeting, because they had jeered at the remark of a member of the house. The reporters decided not to send out a word of the reichstag debates until an apology and fullest retraction had been offered.

THE BREAD LINE.

Out of the shacks and hovels,
Out of the reeking slums,
Haggard and gaunt and ragged,
Jailbirds, hoboes, bums,
The long line winds and passes
For a cup and a loaf of bread—
The shivering, hungry specters
Of a life that is morally dead!

Hand them the smoking coffee,
The loaf that is warm and white,
While the good and the great are sleeping
Through the depth of the wintry night—
Little enough, Heaven knoweth!
For the dead that are yet alive,
Out of the love and plenty
Of those who have and thrive!

Who are they? Nameless beggars,
Crushed and beaten and spent,
Wrecks of the Godlike human
On lowering deeds intent;
Palsied with lawless passion,
Cringing with shapeless fear,
Lost to the bright ideal
Of joy that is circling near.

Give them this noble pittance!
For schemes and systems and shows
That society breeds and pampers
Regardless of mankind's woes—
Little enough for the awful
Selfishness, cant and greed
Of a world that is always preaching
A lowly and loving creed.

But hold! as the gaunt line passes,
A face that is tender and white,
With eyes that are filled with sorrow,
Gleams in the ghostly light!
Then another and then another,
As the bread line files along,
Tells the pitiful story
Of faith and hope gone wrong.

These are our stricken brothers,
Come from the reign of death,
Men who have faced the battle
Down to its burning breath.
Where to him that hath is given
The chances that bring success,
Where those who are rich in power
Gloat in the heedless stress.

These are the weakling fathers,
Loving and tender and true,
Who toiled for an honest living
And never received their due.
Victims of ruthless Progress,
Prompted by direst need,
Begging for starving children,
With hearts that blanch and bleed.

These are society's prisoners,
Granted a full parole
As long as they do not sully
The law that surrounds the whole;
But no man's care or burden,
And no man's special love,
Though he build his churches starward,
And pray to the Christ above!

Way for the midnight bread line!
Make way for the motley crew!
Marooned in a land of plenty,
Are they nothing, O man, to you?
Something is due to the vanquished;
Something we owe to him
Who lost while others conquered,
Ere hope grows wan and dim.

Yes, give him a drink that is warming,
Give him a loaf that is white,
But think that an honest profit,
A wage that is fair and right,
Might shorten the line that passeth
In the wrack of a winter's gale,
And lighten the fate of the children,
Dimple a cheek that's pale.

Yes, lest we forget our duty,
We who have toil and trade,
Let us consider the issue
By the laws of our living made.
Those who have won must be kindly
To those who yet want and wait;
Up from the weak and erring
Lifting the load of fate.

Better to shorten the bread line
That each have a chance to win,
Ere the spirit is crushed and broken,
Ere the soul is steeped in sin.
Man to man doing justice,
Even the golden rule,
Lest God write o'er a people:
"They lived the life of the fool!"

Indisputable Evidence.

You have read our oft-repeated statement, "In use for over 30 years." It was in the early sixties that the prescription now universally known as Castoria was first made use of. With a record of over fifty, under five years of age, out of every hundred deaths, it was the AMBITION OF EVERY PHYSICIAN to discover a remedy suitable for the ailments of infants and children that would decrease this distressing mortality. In Castoria that relief has been found.

Let us take the statistics covering the deaths in the City of New York for the past 30 years, and here we find the benificent effect of a combination of drugs excluding opiates and narcotics so long sought for, namely: CASTORIA.

Of the total number of deaths in New York City in 1870, 50 per cent. were under five years of age; in 1880, 46 per cent.; in 1890, 40 per cent.; in 1900, 35 per cent. only. Just stop to think of it.

Until 1897 no counterfeits or imitations of Castoria appeared on drug store shelves, but since that date Mr. Fletcher has been called upon to suppress a number of these frauds. While the record for 1900 does not come down to our expectation it is owing to the carelessness of mothers when buying Castoria. The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is the only safeguard.

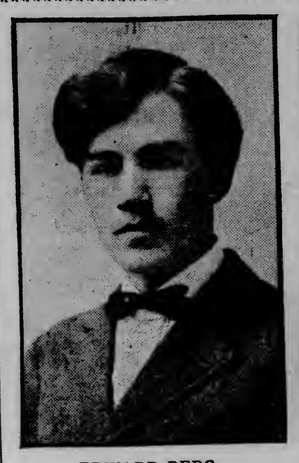
VIRGINIA DEBATING TEAM WINS AGAIN.



EDWARD BERG.

AXEL B. DAHL.

LAMBERT S. GILL.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lambert S. Gill, Edward Berg and Axel B. Dahl, the debating team from the Virginia, Minn., high school, won the semi-final debate for the championship of the state in the debate with the North high school team of this city, in the auditorium of the North high last night. This entitles the Virginians to debate with the winner of the Montevideo-Le Sueur contest in the final debate. The judges were well known members of the St. Paul bar: W. B. Douglas, former attorney general; Pierce Butler and George B. Edgerton, and they decided by a vote of two to one for the boys from the range. The local debaters were Benjamin Goldman, Marie Wilcox and Elof Bauer.

It was the judgment of the large audience that listened to the discussion that the Northern Minnesotans had the best of the argument upon almost every point. The winning team had the affirmative side of this question, which has been debated throughout the series: "Resolved, That congress should subsidize the Southern states for the education of the Southern negroes, granted that this would be constitutional and that the Southern states would not object." The Virginia trio produced, in the course of the argument, four charts, on which were displayed facts and figures in support of their contentions, that were well nigh indisputable, while the Minneapolis debaters had but one chart, and that was not to be compared with those of their opponents in any way.

BEAR RIVER IS "DRY."

That Section Votes to Put Quietus on Saloons.

Bear River, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The temperance advocates won about all they could expect in the recent elections in this section, the license question getting some severe jolts. The question voted in the towns was whether license should be authorized. In Morcom the advocates of license mustered only four votes, while sixteen were registered in the negative. Bearville went eleven votes against the license and five in favor.

As the county commissioners recently revoked the license of the last saloon in this section, at the request of settlers, there can be no saloons unless the efforts being made to incorporate the town of Brule are successful.

The objection of the Bear River people to license is based upon the ground that the district is too far from police protection and that any saloon that could be established would simply become the resort of floaters of evil character and would therefore be a menace to law and order in an unusual degree.

BRUTE SENT TO JAIL.

Robert Peterson Gets Twenty Days for Illtreating Family.

Two Harobrs, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is considerable feeling in this section against Robert Peterson, the brutal farmer, living a few miles north of here, who came home intoxicated the other night and turned his family out of doors in their night clothing, compelling them to walk a mile through the cold in search of shelter, and public indignation is hardly satisfied that he received only twenty days in the county jail. Mrs. Peterson is planning to go to South Dakota and live with relatives as soon as she recovers from the shock to which she was subjected. One of the children, an 8-year old girl, is quite ill from the exposure to which she was subjected, it being said the child was thrown from her home without any clothing on at all.

WOMAN BLIND PIGGER

Is Held to Grand Jury Under Bonds of $5,000.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The novelty of having a woman blind pigger under the ban of the law is presented here. Maggie Reno, aged 33, has been locked up in the county jail, charged with selling liquor illegally in the timber near Schaaf, about thirty-five miles from here, near the terminus of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad.

At the preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace William S. Andrews, she was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bail.

A number of complaints have been made of late regarding selling of liquor in the woods north of here. Sheriff Emil Nelson, with his deputy, Louis P. Christensen, has made frequent tours in the interior of the county for the purpose of keeping a close watch on alleged offenders, as well as looking over the lid on the licensed saloons.

No arrests have been made and no clue obtained yet to the two men who held up and robbed Matt Lappy, a Finlander, of the sum of $18, Monday morning, near the approach of the new No. 6 steel dock, now under construction. He was assaulted by two men, one of whom hit him over the head with a large rock and the other slashed at him with a knife, nearly severing his ear from his head.

Degree Teams on Range May Strive for Honors Soon.

Aurora, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable talk has been heard as to the inauguration of an annual contest between the degree teams of the Pythian lodges on the range. If the movement is a success a silver cup will be the trophy to strive for, the team winning out for three consecutive years to have possession of the cup permanently. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. JOHNSON'S STRENGTH ne voters by naming men of fitness regardless of party. It also reviews the governor's work for better insurance legislation and his work in settling the strike on the iron range.

* * *

St. Paul politicians are taking a rest after the strenuous primary campaign which ended last Tuesday. Dan Lawler was nominated easily on the Democratic ticket and will have the solid party behind him. The Republicans nominated McKibbin, the man whom the organization opposed and while McKibbin has been promised the support of Hoffman, the man he defeated, he will have a hard time getting the support of the organization. McKibbin had a plurality of about 1,400 over Hoffman, but did not have a majority of the votes. Those who voted against him are not likely to be friendly to him. The inclination of most of the Republicans is to let well enough alone. The Hoffman faction say that "If St. Paul is to have a boss, it might as well be Dick O'Connor as Hugh Halbert." And before the primaries the McKibbin faction said that they would as soon be governed by the present "gang" as by the "gang" that assumed to dictate to the Republican voters whom they should nominate. The chances are that St. Paul will have not only a Democratic mayor but a Democratic council for another two years.

PENNSYLVANIA IN LINE.

Keystone State to be for Johnson---New England Also.

Washington, March 21.—Three signs of reviving interest in the Johnson presidential boom are noticeable. Thursday a Johnson club of 150 members was organized at Cambridge, Mass., the New York state committee decided against an instructed delegation at Denver, and its chairman was interviewed to the effect that Governor Johnson was the man who should be nominated. The third sign is the presence in Washington of Col. James McClurg Guffey, Democratic boss of Pennsylvania, who is said to be here for the purpose of arranging for an uninstructed delegation from that state.

The club at Cambridge is the forerunner of various similar clubs in New England. Specifically, it marks the active beginning of a movement to control the Massachusetts delegation for Johnson. This probably will not be difficult, notwithstanding that Bryan men are at work in that section. New England is not natural Bryan country.

Col. Guffey was on record some time ago as saying that Pennsylvania must support Bryan for reasons bound up with the fate of county, municipal and legislative tickets in that state. His change of front is taken to mean that he now believes it will be possible to prevent Bryan's nomination.

To sum up the situation, it begins to appear that concerted and widespread effort is to be made to control enough votes at Denver to prevent Bryan's nomination. The result of such a movement is as yet problematical, but there is some hope for the Minnesota governor in the very fact that it is being made. Two weeks ago it looked as if Bryan would get the nomination by default. Recent events, however, have encouraged anti-Bryan people somewhat, and they are now beginning to believe that after all there is a possibility of defeating Bryan at Denver. Governor Johnson is the only man with whom such a result can be secured. If Harmon and Gray are candidates, it will simply be for the purpose of controlling delegates which Johnson might not be able to control. All anti-Bryan votes in the convention will ultimately go to Johnson, according to the talk here today.

Washington in an automobile, and not on a railroad train, as was reported by the station people. Attired in a short coat, a slouch hat and carrying a walking stick, he stepped into an automobile near the Italian embassy in this city, and made a rapid run to Baltimore. It is believed here that he was accompanied on this trip by Miss Elkins, but the persistent refusal of the friends of the principals to this international romance to furnish the smallest scrap of information to the reporters makes it very difficult to establish the fact. It is assumed, however, that the statement made in Baltimore last night was correct, and that the couple did join Senator Elkins in Baltimore, whither he had gone to attend the funeral of the late Senator Whyte, and that the duke took a train from Baltimore and continued on his way to New York, whence he sailed this morning for Europe. It was stated at Mr. Elkins' house today that the senator had not yet returned to Washington.

PRIEST LOSES HIS VESTMENTS

Says They Were Stolen From the Continental Hotel, St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Francis J. Kiell of the Greek Catholic church, complained to the police last night that a suit case, containing his vestments and other valuable and sacred articles, had been stolen from his room at the Continental hotel. Detectives Daly and Sweeney were sent out on the case, but so far no arrests have been made. The vestments, because they cannot be duplicated in America, are very valuable to Mr. Kiell, aside from their intrinsic value, which is about $500.

Rev. Mr. Kiell is a missionary in behalf of the Greek church. He says that yesterday afternoon he left the hotel to confer with church people of the city, and when he returned missed the grip containing his vestments. The loss was reported to the hotel and later to the police.

John Peterson, manager of the Continental hotel, declared last night that the room occupied by the priest had been locked all day, while Mr. Kiell was out of the hotel, and he cannot account for the robbery.

SENATOR BRYAN BETTER.

Washington, March 21.—The physicians attending Senator Bryan of Florida report a much improved condition today. He passed a good night, his temperature reaching only 101. There are now some hopes of his recovery.

WHEAT HAS SICK TONE

Market is Off on Bearish Influeuces From All Sides.

Flax is Firm During the Short Session in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 21.—Wheat had a heavy decline in all of the American markets today. The opening was easier and prices slid off during the entire session, closing at the low level.

For the first time in quite a while, car receipts in the Northwest were larger than the same time a year ago and this was an important factor for lower prices. There were heavy profit-taking sales in the May option. All of the news was bearish. The weather continues good in the Southwest, cables are off and there are prospects of large world's shipments.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d lower, Berlin ⅞c lower, Budapest 1⅝c lower, Antwerp ⅝c lower, and Paris unchanged to ⅛c higher.

The May option closed 1¾c lower in Duluth, 1⅞-⅞c lower in Chicago, 2-1⅛c lower in Minneapolis, 1c lower in New York and 1¼c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1¾c lower in Duluth and Chicago, 2-1⅛c lower in Minneapolis, 1c lower in New York and 1¼c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed 1⅜c lower in Liverpool and ½d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅝-¾c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a quiet tone to the speculative wheat market at the opening and values were ½d lower. Offerings were larger and support feeble, prompted by the weaker American cables yesterday, and the Bradstreet statement on weekly exports. Following the opening, the market reacted and for a time trading was at a slightly higher level as a result of leading houses supporting, but again at the close easiness developed on the liberal offerings of La Plata wheat and the expectations of continued large world's shipments this week. At this time, the market was quiet and ½d lower than Friday.

"Corn was quiet at the start and ¼d lower, followed later by a further decline of ½d. The weakness in America yesterday and the quiet demand for spot, stimulated larger offerings."

Car receipts in Duluth were 73 against 137 last year, and at Minneapolis 200 against 200 last year, making a total for the Northwest 373 against 337 last year. Chicago received 33 against 14 last year. Winnipeg received 147 against 132 last year.

Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 220,000 bus.

Clearances of corn were 141,000 bus.

Wheat was dull during the session in Duluth. May wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.04⅝, declined to $1.03½ and closed at that price, a loss of 1⅜c from yesterday. July wheat opened late at $1.04½, declined to $1.03 ½and closed at that price, a loss of 1⅜c from yesterday.

Cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern. Durum wheat closed 5c lower.

Flax was fairly active during the early part of the day and closed firm. May flax opened a shade higher at $1.16½, declined to $1.16⅜ and closed at $1.16½, a shade higher than yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.18⅜, declined to $1.18⅛ and closed at $1.18⅜, unchanged from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat: No. 1, hard on track, $1.07¼. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.05⅜. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.05¾; May, $1.03¼; July, $1.02⅜. Durum on track: No. 1, 87¾c; No. 2, 85¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Weak on Heavy Profit-Taking in May Options.

Chicago, March 21.—The wheat market today opened weak because of heavy profit-taking sales in the May option. Cables were lower and receipts in the Northwest were heavier than had been expected. Fine weather in the Southwest was also a bearish factor. May wheat opened 1⅛@⅜c to ⅜-½c lower, at 95¼c to 95½c and sold at 94⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 486 cars against 262 cars last week and 381 cars one year ago.

The market dragged all day and became very weak. The close was weak with May 1⅝@1¾c lower at 94c.

The corn market was easy because of lower cables and receipts which were larger than expected. May corn opened ⅜@½c to ⅜@⅝c lower at 65½c to 66⅝c and for a time held within that range. Local receipts were 239 cars with 17 of contract grade.

Prices sagged along with wheat and were weak until the close. The final quotation on May was 1¼@1⅜c to 1⅝@1¾c lower at 65⅝@65¾c.

The oats market was weak along with wheat and corn. May oats opened a shade lower at 54⅜c and sold at 54¼c. Local receipts were 231 cars.

The provisions market was slightly easier in sympathy with grain but was steadied somewhat by a higher market for live hogs. May pork was 2½c lower at $12.40. Lard was 2½c lower at $7.90. Ribs were 2½c lower at $6.80.

Close: Wheat—May, 94c; July, 88⅜@⅞c; September, 86c. Corn—May, 65⅜@⅝c; July, 65c; September, 62½c. Oats—May, 54-54⅛c; May, 53¾c; July, old, 47⅝c; July, 46¾c; September, 38¼@¾c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Larger Receipts Took a Cent Off of May Wheat.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 21.—Receipts today of 300 cars against 200 a year ago took 1 cent off the price of May wheat after the opening. Local elevator stocks increased 157,338 bus for the week, making the total 6,392,145, and for one day since making up the weekly table there is another increase of 25,000 bus, which brings the total back again to above the seven million mark. Duluth got 73 cars today against 137. The Liverpool cables 1⅝@¾d lower had no effect on sentiment here, but continental weakness caused a little sympathetic selling. Some traders sold May and bought July and July was fractionally firmer. Before the close heavy selling began and prices fell another cent, the market closing very weak. May opened at $1.05⅜; high, $1.05⅜; low, $1.04; close, $1.04⅛. July closed $1.02⅝. September closed 91¼c.

Relative to the option cash wheat was firmer. No. 1 northern brought 2c over May and No. 2 northern cold at May price. There was no demand for choice spring wheat, which notwithstanding the larger total receipts, was scarce.

Close: No. 1 northern, $1.05⅞; spot, $1.05⅜ to arrive; No. 2 northern $1.03@1.03¾ spot; $1.03⅜ to arrive. No. 3 wheat, 95c@$1.01.

No. 3 yellow corn, 59¾@61¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 51½@51¾c.

No 2 rye, 74¾@75¾c.

Barley dull and easier, some lots quoted 2c lower without sale. Close, 65@80c.

Flax easy and in moderate demand at Duluth, May price. Close: $1.16½.

Bran in bulk, $21.50@22, millers' quotations.

The tendency in flour was weaker, but prices were not reduced, millers deciding to wait until Monday. The mills are having a splendid business in by-products, all grades of mill stuffs selling well, but for flour proper business is quiet, especially so with the smaller city and the country millers, who are finding it dull. Shipments, 66,-000 barrels; first patents, $5.35@5.50; second patents, $5.25@5.40; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.30@3.40.

Grain Gossip.

Minneapolis: The first spring weather in a seeding report of the season was reported at the chamber of commerce today. One of the large elevator companies had a message from its agent at Java, S. D., about fifty miles west of Aberdeen on the Missouri slope, saying that several farmers in that vicinity had seeded about fifty acres each.

Clear and spring-like weather over the Northwest with its promise of an early season is likely to bring fresh reports every day of new crop sowing. It is early, but the first report is not without precedent. According to the records kept by the chamber of commerce, seeding commenced in South Dakota the latter part of January in 1901. In Minnesota dates are about the same and in North Dakota the season is later, beginning about April 1 and is completed about May 1.

An early and favorable start generally means a big harvest. Last year, which was an unfortunate season right through, seeding had to be delayed until well into the spring months. In some sections, wheat was sown after June 1 and the penalty was frosted wheat.

Copper Gossip.

Hayden, Stone & Co., Boston, to Walter W. Carr: Coppers opened but firm with special strength in Calument & Hecla and Old Dominion. Utah Consolidated declared a 50 cents a share dividend which was the same as three months ago. Our market will follow Amalgamated very closely. There are few stocks for sale and any buying demand will advance them sharply.

• • •

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The general market this week ksaw transaction of over 4,000,000 shares. During that period some bad news was published and some weak periods were seen. Tonight prices are about on a par with last Saturday's and during the six days the outside selling was more than the buying. It looks as though an accumulation had been going on. Rising bank reserves all over the world means higher securities values. It cannot be any other way in the long run. A steady buying of the standard investment issues has been going on. It will spread into stocks of less certain dividend return before long and make a bull market. The Steel issues afford a safe and certain chance for a rise.

HEARING IS POSTPONED

Probate Court Will Consider Higgins Estate Case in April.

The hearing for the revaluation of the Higgins' estate, within Minnesota, which has been in progress before Probate Judge Middlecoff for the past two or three days has been adjourned until April 21, at the request of State Auditor Iverson, who claims that some of the witnesses for the state are out of the state and cannot return before next month.

Mr. Iverson is seekling to show that the $308,000 valuation put on the real estate in this state belonging to the estate of ex-Governor Frank W. Higgins of New York, has been greatly under estimated; that it is nearer $2,-000,000. The valuation on which the court fixed the inheritance tax was determined by Joseph Sellwood, Chester A. Congdon and C. L. Rakowsky of this city, and the estate contends that the figures are conservative and right. It is claimed that the valuation, as returned to the court, was found by men with expert experience as to the values of ore lands and that their figures were based on the actual contracts that have been made for the ore. It is claimed that the state has valued as cutover lands, large tracts which will be tied up for years, under timber contracts, and will not be available for sale to anybody for farming purposes.

The estate will claim further that the state, in attempting to fix the value of the reputed ore lands figured in the total amount of ore without making allowances for the expense that will be incurred in getting the ore, or for deducting the percentage of ore that cannot be taken out. It will be contended that the practical iron ore men, who estimated the value of the property, are in a better position to fix the same than the men whom the state sent up here for that purpose.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Which Were Reduced Late in Session, Partly on Realizing.

Market Turned Dull and Heavy and Close Was Easy.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 21.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 8 points under a renewal of Wall street selling and liquidation, which was promoted by easy cables, unfavorable trade reports and fear that the good weather recently reported over the South would lead to increased acreage. Prices made new low records during the early session with active months selling about 10 to 14 points net lower, while new crop positions were quiet and relatively steady at a decline of points. The decline was checked around 9.67 for May by covering, but the market showed little rallying power.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., March 21.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade for the week has been very uneven. Bulk of the movement went to points in Dakota and Canada. Good mares suitable for breeding purposes are in broad demand. There is an increased demand for driving and delivery horses. During the next two weeks a large number of logging horses will arrive on the market, and as this has been an easy winter on horses in the woods, they will be in good condition. Gopher's Desk Ransacked by Students for "Slams" Upon Them.

Members of the Football Team Are to be Given Blankets.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robbers broke into the Gopher hole Wednesday night and ransacked the desk for material that they thought might prove to be "slams" upon them. The editors say that they have proof that the culprits were upper classmen and that their names begin with some letter from A to D. Several cuts were taken, preventing the printing of the second form for two weeks. The editors vow vengeance and are hard at work to discover the guilty parties, who will receive their full share of "slams," it is asserted. A heavy safe has been procured to preserve all '09 Gopher "dope" from further disturbance.

Minnesota football men, who won "M's" last year, will soon receive additional trophies of gridiron prowess. There are several blankets now in the Armory waiting their claimants. These are awarded according to the custom which originated here last year. The blankets are large, heavy ones, 7x7 feet, with the Minnesota "M" on the corner, and a maroon star for each year its owner has succeeded in making the coveted "M." Only one blanket is given to a man, regardless of the number of years he makes the 'varsity. The captain of the team receives a star slightly different from the ordinary ones. This year the men who receive stars are Schuknecht, Case, Dunne, Kjelland and Bandelin. Blankets will be given to this year's men: Coughlin, G. Capron, H. Capron, Young, Chestnut, Rademacher and Mohistad.

• • •

This afternoon, in the Armory, the regular annual indoor track meet was held. The men were in excellent condition for the meet and many of the contests were exceedingly close. Those who made the best show in the dashes were Hill, Ertle, McGregor, Hiss and Smiley. The long runs were very popular this year, more men entering these contests than is usual. Strong work was done in the high jump, shot put and pole vault. The only "M" men who earned their initials on the cinder path who went into the meet were Mostensen and Little. As the meet came off on the same day as the interclass men's basketball tournament, the Armory was handsomely decorated.

Thursday night the girls' basketball team left for Nebraska, where they will play the Cornhuskers' quint tonight. Seven girls made the trip, those who have done particularly good work this year in the interclass tournament and intercollegiate contests. They were accompanied by Day Oakes and "Peggy" Woodrich and chaperoned by Miss Butner of the physical culture department. At the contest the governor's wife, Mrs. Sheldon, and Mrs. William J. Bryan will act as patronesses.

"As You Like It" is now billed by the Dramatic club, to be given some time in May. Contrary to expectations the Dramatic club has decided not to present Bernard Shaw's comedy, "You Never Can Tell." Charles Holt, who is coaching the club, said that it was impossible for amateurs to present this play successfully. The club intended to put on both of the plays, but it is likely now that a little farce will be presented in the near future and the Shakespeare play in May.

Professor Beach of the academic department, representative faculty member in the Minnesota union, will have an interesting article in the April Mag on the prospective union. "Who will go what" is to be the question of April 11. That will be the all important day for some freshmen, for rule 1 of the Pan-Hellenic association reads: Pledge day shall be the second Saturday in April. By that time each sorority will have given its two rushing parties and each impressed the freshman coeds in its own way. Some of the more popular girls have attended several of the parties, and doubtless are just at present having a hard time to decide which one to "go" if a bid should come from all.

Rule 2 will doubtlessly complicate matters considerably. It reads thus: "During the week immediately before pledge day there shall be no intercourse whatever between sorority girls and freshmen" A curt note from an intimate upper classman can be interpreted then in any way desired.

Uniform invitations will be sent out to the freshmen so as to reach their destinations the morning of April 11. College people are all waiting to see the result.

WATER POWER IS CHEAP.

Percival Robert Moses, in The Engineering Magazine: If water power is immediately available in sufficient quantity for the use of the factory, it is almost always the cheapest form of power to use. By this is meant, water power directly convertible into power for operation of machinery—not water power used to drive electrical machinery from a distance perhaps of fifty or sixty miles. In plants where water wheels can be obtained to develop the power in the mill, the cost is practically limited to the investment charges, the cost of oil and repairs and the cost of oil and repairs forming a very small fraction of the operating cost. I have figures from a number of water power plants varying in size from a few hundred horse power up to several thousand, and the repairs on these plants are extremely small. On one 600-horse power plant, the labor for engineers and switchboard attendant amounted to $1,220 a year, the cost of oil being less than $135 a year, and repairs $500 a year. At another plant, in the southern states, the cost was $1.24 a year per horse power installed; this included the maintenance of the electric equipment, and the total cost of operation in this latter case was less than $5 per horse power installed per annum. In plants where logs and ice interfere with maintenance of track and water way, the cost of repairs, etc., may run up to $3 per horse power installed, but this is exceptional.

SOME IMPORTANT DEALS ARE BEING NEGOTIATED

Activity in Local Real Estate Circles is Becoming More Apparent—SomeBig Sales Are Under Way But the Parties Interested Are Keeping Under Cover for Business Reasons—Real Estate Agents Notice the Increasing Inquiry for Homes by Those Who Have Been Renting Houses and Flats.

Activity in the local real estate market is becoming more apparent. The sales are increasing, the inquiry is greatly stimulated and there are some big deals under way which will be of more than passing interest to the public as soon as the negotiations have reached a point where the people interested are willing to let the transactions become known. There have been quite a number of important realty deals under way for the past several days, but the parties interested in them are keeping carefully under cover for business reasons, and the details cannot be stated at this time. It is stated on good authority, that there are some propositions being considered at the present time, in regard to some valuable city property, of a magnitude that few people are aware of. A large number of new inquiries for residence properties have come into the real estate offices this week, and the conditions indicate that many people who have been renting houses and flats are hunting for homes. Several cases are known where propositions have been submitted to real estate investment concerns for building contracts on unimproved property in various parts of the city. Some of the agencies report a number of applications for building loans.

John A. Stephenson, representing the Western Land association, has sold the 50-foot frontage on East Superior street, just west of the city hall to Donald B. McDonald, of Cole & McDonald, Virginia, for $25,000. It is understood that the new owner will erect a three-story building on the site and that he has several tenants in view. Mr. McDonald and his associates own the Miles block on Superior street, their holdings on that thoroughfare amounting to about $140,000.

The rumor has been current this week that the old Masonic Temple property had been sold. E. P. Alexander, agent for the property, says there is nothing in the reports. He says the property is on the market if the owners can get their price, but they realize that the property is well located and are in no hurry to sell.

Mr. Bunnell is the proprietor of the News Tribune.

WORK DONE BY PARISHIONERS

Members of St. Jean Baptiste Church Redecorated Building.

The decorations that grace the arched vault and walls of the St. Jean de Baptiste church, corner of Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, making it one of the handsomest churches of the city, are entirely the work of members of the parish, who as painters and carpenters, have donated the labor of their hands to their church.

The church was first dedicated and blessed on Feb. 12, 1905, by Archbishop Langevin, at which time Father Guillet was pastor.

On Nov. 27, 1907, new altars were installed, which were blessed by Bishop McGolrick. The pastor of the church then, as now, was Father Frigon, though at present he is away and Father Langaniere is acting as pastor in his place, during his absence.

The work of decoration, which has been in progress lately, was done under the management of Hildege Desroches, a member of the church.

Alphabets of Various Languages.

The alphabets of the various languages of the world vary from 12 to 202 letters. That of the Hawaiian language has only 12 letters, while that of the Tartars is at the other end of the list with 202 letters. The American people, however, agree that golden grain belt beer is the ideal table beverage. It is a liquid bread, full of lifegiving, health-sustaining qualities. GERMS CAUSE DISEASE

Progressive Medical Experts Cure All Maladies of Men Without Knife and Bleeding.

There are no other ways of effecting a cure than the natural.

Miracles and other wonders belong to the time of Christ. Other than natural methods, like Dowieism, etc., always have proven to be false.

This was told to a reporter by the most successful of men's Specialists of the Progressive Medical association.

Most of the diseases are caused either by accidents or infections or germs, like typhoid fever, penumonia, grip, consumption and others. Again other diseases are the natural consequences of faulty metabolism, which is to say that the internal organs, as the Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, Spleen and Lungs are brought into a suffering condition by constant, faulty eating, drinking and living. This in turn will form poisonous material in the body, which slowly but surely, brings on suffering and your early death. Each organ excretes its own poison. If the liver is at fault, you will always feel tired, the skin on the face and abdomen is sallow and your eyes appear yellow. If the Kidneys are suffering, you will feel it in your back, your urine is red and if you leave it stand for 24 hours you will find brickdust or other sedimentary deposits on the bottom; the active poisonous material, however, stays in the body, and in turn causes poisoning of the heart muscle, and by exposing the body to cold temperature, a sudden contraction of the blood vessels follows, which crystallizes the uric acid most usually between the joints and often in the muscles; these crystals are like fine needles and are causing the severe pain which every rheumatic sufferer experiences. All these troubles are curable in the hands of Specialists. You need not suffer of any chronic disease whatever, if you make up your mind and go to the Progressive Medical Specialists; you will find they will cure you of all chornic diseases, no mater how long you have them; they can cure you because they have devoted their life and labor to the study of a special class of diseases. However, they accept men only and there is no one who can cure them as well as these Specialists. Whatever disease you have, and no matter how long, go and consult the Specialists; they will not charge you anything for it. Their offices you find open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. No. 1 West Superior street, Duluth.

COLLEGE OFFERS SITE

For Old Schoolhouse Where Republican Party Was Organized.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 21.—A special to the Evening Wisconsin from Ripon, Wis., says: By a mail vote, the trustees of Ripon college have sanctioned a recent action of President R. C. Hughes, in offering to the Commercial club of Ripon a site for the old school house in which the Republican was organized. The vote was unanimous. Preparations for the new site are now being planned by President Hughes.

An architect of Chicago is expected in the city within a few days and will look over the college campus with a view of establishing the building in a most advantageous spot, with reference to the buildings now in position, and to future buildings. The Commercial club has raised sufficient funds, and it is proposed making the removal to the new site on the college campus early.
